NOTICE.—OPTION CLAUSE.

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having, in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option,

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them.

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists working in the North of England who have odd weeks vacant are invited to communicate with the Local Manager at above Theatre, with a view to arranging a trial week.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

MISS HETTY KING

Returning March 9 on the Lusitania after making another brilliant successful tour through the UNITED STATES and CANADA.

Owing to the Enormous Success at Bennett's Theatre, Montreal, Miss King has been retained for the Second Week. Houses packed to the doors. Hundreds turned away at each performance.

Many thanks to P. G. Williams, Esq., Mike Shea, Esq., Martin Beck, Esq., and C. Clarke, Esq., for their offers for next season.

SUCCESS

Greater than ever!

A FEW PRESS OPINIONS.

MORNING TELEGRAPH, Dec. 14.

HETTY KING IS A WINNING BOY.

THOUGH A MALE IMPERSONATOR, THE LITTLE ENGLISH WOMAN IS ALWAYS CHARMINGLY FEMININE.

By SAM M'KEE.

As the bill-topper of a splendid programme in celebration of the return to his desk of Percy G. Williams, the Colonial this week has Hetty King. It has been nearly two years since this attractive and talented little Englishwoman has visited America.

Male impersonators are not always entirely normal any more than female impersonators are invariably pleasant to contemplate. Of Hetty King, though, it can be unhesitatingly said that she is a male impersonator who never becomes masculine, but is at all times charmingly feminine.

Miss King knows how to sing, she is an easy and graceful dancer, and she can act quite a bit, too.

Miss King knows how to wear male attire, and she has many spick-and-span suits, cut after the most approved and most advanced styles. But no one ever loses sight of the fact that she is not a boy, and everyone is delighted that it should be so.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY GROWN UP.

And yet she is boyish, too. Boys are never as nice as Hetty King, and yet she might be Little Lord Fauntleroy grow up, at that, when she first appears to sing of "Beside the Seaside." Here is this natty little woman in white flannels, a straw hat and patent-leather shoes with white uppers. If this boy of Hetty King's should make actual visit to the seaside the Summer Girl would have to go 'way back and exit

In this garb Miss King illustrates how the burglar, the drunk, and the Johnny behave "Beside the Seaside." Everyone would be glad to meet such a burglar, such a drunk, or such a Johnny anywhere.

In a glossy black naval uniform resplendent with gold trimmings, and wearing white gloves, Miss King sings of how "All the Nice Girls Love a Sailor." She is such a pretty naval officer that the boldest buccaneer who ever sailed the sea in his long, low rakish craft would gladly strike his colours at the approach of Admiral Hetty King.

Next she is a Territorial English soldier, dressed in brown. She smokes a cigarette, swishes a little cane, and her jauntiness supplies the answer to her question of "Girls, Girls, Why Do You Love a Soldier?"

Miss King shows her skill as an actress and her command of pathos in "My Birthday." She is a young fellow just celebrating his coming of age. Though looking swagger in evening clothes, the first cigar makes the young fellow sick.

Then comes over the telephone the news that his father, who had been a pal as well as a parent, is ruined and had shot himself. Miss King sings of the young man's sorrow in telling, unaffected fashion. She is sincere and not in the least theatrical.

"I'm Going Away" Miss King gives as an encore. This song won her many admirers on her former visit to America. She is a sailor with his kit in a handkerchief preparatory to making a trip. He dances a hornpipe over his joy at escaping from the girls.

HETTY KING AT BENNETT'S.

Hetty King scored a success at Bennett's yesterday afternoon, the audience recalling her time after time, until finally she found it necessary to crave their indulgence in a short speech. As a male impersonator this talented little lady has few, if any, equals anywhere to-day, and the first audience she has played to in Montreal evidently were of that opinion, for she had to sing no less than six songs to please them, and even then they would have had more. Perhaps the best of her efforts were "Beside the Seaside" and "My Birthday," but she evidently missed the chorus to which she has been accustomed in England, where the whole audience are wont to join in the chorus of any song which pleases them.

MONTREAL HERALD.

HETTY KING MADE BIG HIT AT BENNETT'S.

Two English turns divide the honours at Bennett's this week. Miss King, billed as "London's Male Impersonator," is a very versatile and dainty little lady. She can wear male attire of an effeminate cut, which was evidently made in New York, very gracefully, and she sings several songs with an equal grace. Also she can dance a bit, and be saucy. As well as that she can smoke any old thing from a fat cigar to a briar pipe with equal ease and a total disregard of the consequences. And she can be tragic, for her act is not all comedy. Miss King's turn was easily the most popular on the bill last evening, and she was so loudly encored that she was compelled to make a speech.

NEW YORK PRESS, Dec. 14.

At the Colonial Theatre this week a bill is offered whose value is of the thirty-third degree, and all because Hetty King is the top-liner.

Miss King is a male impersonator, and her songs, her acting, her style is the quintessence of perfection, the pinnacle of delighful femininity essaying the masculine.

She had the audience with her from her first song, "Beside the Seaside," in which she is dressed in a well-fitting suit of white flannel and a straw hat. Her depicting of the burglar, the tipsy fellow, and the Johnny, emphasised the determination of the audience not to let her go until it could applaud no more. Her next impersonation was of a naval officer, and here she sings of "Girls Love a Sailor." In her dark uniform, trimmed with gold lace, she is quite too natty for any girl not to fall in love with her at once.

Again she comes out as an English soldier in khaki, smoking a cigarette and carrying a cane. Her song, "Girls, Girls, Why Do You Love a Soldier?" could easily be answered by every maid in the audience.

A change from jaunty, light-heartedness to subtle, touching pathos follows in "My Birthday," and in this song Miss King demonstrates she is an actress of the highest rank. She is clothed as a swell who has just become of age, and as he smokes his first cigar it makes him sick. Just then he receives a message by telephone that his father—his side partner, his pal—had lost his fortune, and in despair has shot himself. So well does Miss King sing this song, so well does she act the part, that the sympathy of the audience goes out to her as truly as though it were real life.

As Hetty bows her dainty acknowledgments to the many encores upon leaving the stage the audience becomes determined to bring her out once again, and salvos of applause, cries, and yells finally succeed in bringing the artist on for another song. Dressed as a sailor, with all his worldly possessions tied in a handkerchief, she sings "I'm Going Away," dances a hornpipe, and skips off the stage. A tumult of applause ensues. But it does no good, for after a few minutes the next number is put up and the performance continues.

For many in the audience it was as if the light had gone out, and had taken all possible joy with it, and a majority no doubt said to themselves what I whispered to myself: "I'm going to see her again and soon!"

By this time the bulk of the audience had settled in its mind on what evening it would come to see Hetty again. The thought is pleasing, and good-natured tolerance and a degree of interest once more holds sway, and the acts which followed received liberal applause.

* * * * *

As the audience filed out I heard a man on my right say: "Four, Henry, for to-morrow afternoon—and try to get the same seats we had to-night."

Oh, that Hetty King!

NEW YORK TRIBUNE, Dec. 14.

ONE OF THE HITS OF THE SEASON.

Hetty King, the English impersonator of men, made one of the vaudeville hits of the season at the Colonial Theatre yesterday. She appeared as a "chappie," a soldier, a sailor, a bad schoolboy, and as a young man on his twenty-first birthday. Her characters were portrayed with an art that ranks her among the best of her class.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.

HETTY KING HEADS A STRONG BILL AT THIS HOUSE, AND PLAYS TO STANDING ROOM ONLY.

By ARTHUR ANGYALFI.

At the Alhambra Theatre this week every seat is sold and standing room at a premium. This condition two weeks ago existed at the Colonial Theatre, and for the same reason—Hetty King is on the bill.

Her success at the Alhambra is as pronounced, as complete as the most sanguine performer could hope for himself. In her act she is the incarnation of the ideal, the beginning and end of perfection. In her song, "Beside the Sea." in which she is attired as a natty young chappy in a perfectly-fitting brown suit, brown straw hat, and tan shoes, she immediately captivates by the delightful art she puts into her work. While she is the real tony young fellow, she neither loses her womanly attractiveness nor goes over the line which divides the masculine woman from the mere impersonator.

While all Miss King's songs are successes, perhaps the one which most powerfully vibrates the human chord is "I Am Twenty-one To-day." In this she takes the part of a swell young man who has just reached his majority, and is about to enjoy himself without restraint. He finds a letter addressed to him by his father, who writes that his fortune has vanished. The telephone-bell rings, and he hears that his father—who had been his playmate, his pal—had shot himself. The change from a joyous, light-hearted youth contemplating a life of pleasure to a bereaved son who has lost his beloved parent is so touchingly portrayed by Miss King that most of the women in the audience were in tears, and many of the men gulped hard.

Next week Miss King will appear at the new Bronx Theatre. No greater proof were needed to demonstrate Mr. Percy G. Williams' high plans for the patrons of that house.

TIMES.

HETTY KING SCORES IN IMPERSONATIONS.

Hetty King, the well-known English male impersonator, heads the bill at the Colonial this week in her speciality. Miss King is the most beautiful and youthful of the many artists in her line who have appeared here, and in the numerous and varied characters which she portrays displays a remarkable ability for detail in this difficult style of characterisation.

BUFFALO COURIER.

HETTY KING GREAT FAVOURITE WITH SHEA GOERS.

Hetty King fairly charmed Shea goers at both performances yesterday, and as a regular Beau Brummel sort of male impersonator she is extremely good. For half an hour at Shea's Theatre she gave a dashing and entertaining series of impersonations, with appropriate accompanying songs, and she made a great and lasting hit. It was her first appearance here, and the cordiality of her welcome was encouraging for the dainty and clever young woman. Miss King's first impersonation, that of a jolly seaside youth, was accompanied by the rendition of a rollicking song, "Beside the Seaside." Another hit was as a tipsy young fellow singing "In the Park." A semi-dramatic recitative song entitled "My Birthday" was cleverly given, the song being about a young chap rejoicing over his twenty-first birthday and interrupted in his revelry by the receipt of a letter from his father announcing his financial ruin. The melancholy aspect of the act is increased by a telephone message announcing the suicide of the father, the story ending with the youth being bowed down and overwhelmed with sorrow and disappointment. Miss King acted the part in fine style, and for an enthusiastic encore responded by appearing as a gay young sailor, dancing a hornpipe with variations and singing a tuneful number entitled "Going Away," one of her favourite songs and very catchy. Miss King wears masculine clothes very effectively as well as naturally, and her peculiarly "London Johnny" style and swing proved quite captivating.

NEW YORK CLIPPER.

HETTY KING.

Unquestionably Hetty King, who re-appeared in New York at the Colonial last week, after a two years' absence, is the greatest male impersonator now in this country. Miss King first looked across the footlights of a theatre on old Broadway at the New York in the fall of 1907, when the Klaw and Erlanger "advanced vaudeville" reigned at that house. She was received with open arms then, but her present act is vastly superior to the one she gave at the New York, and it seems that her art has improved in the two years that have intervened.

A slim, dapper "boy" is Hetty King, dressed in the pink of fashion, and wearing her masculine attire like a pet of the drawing-room. She acts her songs with a keen appreciation of every word in them and an intelligence in bringing forth this meaning that lets nothing escape. "My Birthday" and "Beside the Seaside" were two of her new repertory, the former being an exceptionally effective number. Miss King's graceful, pretty dancing is still a feature of her act. She was a tremendous favourite at the Colonial, and her return engagement in America should be much more successful than her first visit. About thirty minutes were taken up on the full stage.

TORONTO PRESS.

ENGLISH COMEDIENNE MAKES A BIG HIT ON HER FIRST APPEARANCE HERE.

Hetty King, the English music-hall artist, famed the world over as one of the best male impersonators on the stage, heads this week's bill at Shea's. She wears men's clothes in a style that does credit to her smart London tailor.

Miss King sings after the London music-hall manner; she dances exceedingly well; she changes her walk as completely as she does her costume; and her material is new.

CHICAGO INTER OCEAN.

Hetty King, the graceful, charming, and keenly-humorous impersonator, is at the Majestic this week. She is dressed elegantly, has capital songs, and has made one of the most definite hits of the year at the Majestic. She is to-day the greatest and most fascinating woman in American vaudeville.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

[As Good Friday occurs next week, it is most important that our Correspondents should send their copy so that it reaches us not later than the first post on Wednesday.]

ABERDARE. — NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Lewis Gilbert and company are here with A Daughter of the Sea. Mr. Lewis Gilbert ably depicts the villainy of Mark Glensdale; Miss Florrie Green is an excellent Sunshine; Mr. Sutton Taylor a very successful Sir Maxwell Brentwood; Miss Mattie Everette a vivacious Mollie; and as Ken Moreland Mr. Roy Denham is well placed. Mr. Geo. P. Greatrex is seen to advantage as Captain Ben Morrison; and Mr. Cyril Craven is an excellent Jack Strong.

NEW EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Empire Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Victor Rowe; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred H. Reid.—Clara Reid and John power, who top the bill here, are well received in their comedy act, The Chambermaid; Edward Caselli is a famous banjo virtuoso; Dora Dorris, a chic comedienne, and the Vanderbilts (Harry and Edith) also score well. The pictures afford much pleasure.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—In Our Miss Gibbs, this week's production, Mr. George Gregory gives a fine humorous study of Timothy Gibbs, and admirable support is supplied by Mr. Lionel Mackinder as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, Mr. Robert Nainby as Slithers, Miss Alice Pollard as the heroine, Miss Marie Wilson as Lady Bessie, and Miss Grace Wixon as the stately Duchess.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher. — The Marvellous Craggs, in their latest acrobatic comedy sketch, Billy, provide the chief attraction. Other fine turns are contributed by the Soho Trio, in their charming vocal and dancing scena; Miss Arabella Allen, with her clever impersonations from Dickens; Four Royal Scots, talented vocalists and instrumentalists; Ambrose Thorne, a versatile light comedian; Earle and Melville (the Quarrelsome Pair), patter comedians and dancers; and Reg Beauchamp, an eccentric comedian with a "vast voice."

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Miss Florence Baines' excellent company opened here on Monday with Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Madge Grey in the rôle of Mary Ellen Thompson creates continual hilarity; Miss Ruby Glyn acts with delicacy and refinement as Eva Lancashire; and Miss Mabelle Clinton is very successful as Bertha. Mr. Charles Williams plays in convincing style as John Higgins; Harry (his son) is capably portrayed by Mr. Sidney Dench, jun.; and Mr. Billy Brereton as the lawyer Herbert Fox is commendable. Mr. Alan Servington is an amusing Moses Goldberg; Mr. Lonnen Meadows makes the most of his opportunities as John Henry Thompson; and Mr. Charles Neilson shows considerable ability as Grant. Miss Fanny Olive was well suited as Mrs. Thompson, and Miss Alice Neilson merits praise as Bella. Various specialities are introduced, Miss Madge Grey obtaining a tremendous reception in her baby song, Mr. Chas. Neilson, violinist, being also warmly appreciated.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The Accrington Garrick Amateur Dramatic Society is presenting The Silver King here in aid of the local charities.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Devil's Sunday and Sally in Our Alley are presented by Mrs. John Lawson, who in both sketches achieves a success; Mrs. Lawson is ably seconded by Mr. Rene Owen, Misses Daphne Shaw, C. Williams, and Rutherby and Messrs. Horton Tree, Boon St. Josephs, John Cecil and Hamilton Sells. Splendid dressing and staging are features of both productions. Tom Jones delights with vocal numbers and Welsh humour; Beatrice McAdam proves herself a versatile instrumentalist; and Charles Harde as humorist and raconteur, and Miss Frances Buchanan, comedienne, complete the programme.

ALEXANDRA PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Carpenters Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. H. Crocker.—Exceptionally good is the selection of films shown this week at the Alexandra Picture Palace, Aldershot, and the pictures appeal to both old and young alike from beginning to end. Besides the pictures an acceptable turn is provided by Little Ivy Lea, who wins favour for a well-rendered coon song, but her greatest success in her second contribution, "Daddy," which she sings to her own 'cello accompaniment. Little Miss Lea is only just turned fourteen, but her execution is marvellous, and she undoubtedly has a good future before her. An amusing tale of a municipal office is told by a film, entitled The New Chief, while one continuous roar of laughter is produced by another film bearing the name of Foolshead Preaches Temperance.

WIDE WORLD PICTURES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and B. Sloman.—The capital programme presented here this week includes Her Great Mistake, Rescued From the Eagle's Nest, The Little Dog Clipper, Episode of the Races, A Chance Shot, Brave Lad's Reward, Life in Ceylon, Bobby and the Bad Shilling, General Buller at Aldershot, The Female Highwayman, Love Will Find a Way, The Lonely Trappers, and The Haunting Melody.

ASHINGTON. — MINERS' THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Gould. — Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company is paying a return visit in A Life for a Life. As Josh Harker Mr. Lester is excellent; Mr. Geo. D. Daiper as Kit Oswald makes a veritable hero; and Mr. Hugh Travers as Perdo Li Calci is particularly good. Miss Dorothy Riddell as Kate Evelyn is very clever, and as great a favourite as ever; Miss Lailah Davis as Eulalie and Wee Winnie Warden as Venetta, the baby detective, are entertaining. Capital comedy is in capable hands, Mr. Horace Buckley as Tim McCarthy and Miss Jennie Clare as Nancy Dorn being first class.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Millar Anderson's company is here for the week with For Her Husband's Sake, a domestic and romantic dramatised story in four acts. It tells the story of a true wife's devotion and self-sacrifice for a husband. Mr. Walter Domoney as Lieut. Jack Seymour, R.N., was the customary stage naval officer, the soul of honour, bluff and courageous; Mr. Millar Anderson shone conspicuously as the scoundrel, the tempter of women, Herbert Grey; Mr. Chas. Williams as Joseph Dene, a diamond merchant, did good work in character study; Mr. Cyril Jarvis finds ample scope for his abilities in depicting the mannerisms of the Yankee oil king, Abraham K. Silas; the Hibernian wit and humour of Terry O'Neil was well hit off by Mr. Raymond; and the Italian ne'er-do-well, Pietro, was portrayed in the customary mysterious, vicious, hot-tempered, and vengeful manner by Mr. Jack Mercer; Mr. W. Long imitated the foreign pose of the French hotel proprietor, Alphonse; Miss Josephine Richards as Marie Dene won sympathy; Miss Enid Ross as Estelle sustained with ability a very objectionable personage.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—The play at the Empire this week is entitled Only a Little Boy, written by Miss Florence E. Florence from a domestic incident in real life. The play has been very successful. The cast of character includes Miss Florence E. Florence, the authoress, in the character of June, very sympathetically portrayed; Miss Connie Meadows as Deborah must also be congratulated on her interpretation; as two boys, Billie and Tag, Miss Dot Forde and Miss Hettie Senior won the sympathy and applause of the audience. Mr. F. Marriott Watson as Bragstone stood out prominently as a notable in the cast; and Mr. Elton Morgan was good as Ambrose Pennington, a gamekeeper.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Sims.—The pictures for the week include the fine sacred production Belshazzar's Feast. It is a striking representation of the dramatic event of the cryptic "writing on the wall." The German Zoo is a fine film, illustrating the collection of animals in the Zoological Gardens of the German capital. The Focori Troupe of Continental Acrobats are seen in picture, and The Diver's Wife is a very good drama. Humour is watched, of a laughable character, in Hero. The vaudeville turns are Horace Sade, in the dances of all nations; Cara Magda is a clever gymnast; and Alan Wright sings "A picture no artist can paint" (illustrated).

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—Mr. Mark's programme for the week includes the romantic and moving story, The Treasure of Lole; A Child's Forgiveness, which touches a sympathetic chord; The Engineer's Romance, which also appeals to their humanity and better feelings. The vaudeville portion of the programme is exceptionally bright. Ivy, a little juvenile performer, is very good in song and dance, and a bright serio-comic singer is Miss Marie Frances.

THE PICTUREDROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—The picture exhibitions here are interspersed with good variety talent. The turns have gradually become more and more a prime feature of late at the cinematograph halls. This week the engagement of the Gay Bohemians, under the direction of Mr. Tom Adshead, works an advance in this class of entertainment.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—A return to drama is made this week. Miss Hilda Beverley's company presenting A Destroyer of Men. Miss Beverley as Olga Mishla proves herself a powerful actress; Stephen Langton acts the part of Count Starevitch with considerable ability; a versatile artist is seen in the person of Stanley Pearson, who plays in no less than three parts; and Miss Mary Brammer as Vida Revel, Miss Dorothy Hildebrande as Nina Patacake, Mr. James Jarrett as Michael Mishla and Mr. Edward Keith as Coco are worthy of mention.

PICTURE PALACE.—Patrons are enjoying another attractive programme this week. The Galley Slave, Noel, The Dance of Fire, The Robbers of Fingall's Cave, Bear-hunting, and Lucretia are the principal films. By way of novelty, and also with the view of gaining recruits for the local "Terriers," special military pictures were shown on Wednesday evening.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. Walters; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leigh.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor opened to an enthusiastic audience on Monday. The principal boy is played exceedingly well by Miss Lilly Simmons, who gives impressions of Harry Lauder, Marie Lloyd, and Vesta Victoria; Miss Dolly Andrews makes a charming Princess Yanzora; and Captain Selim is in the hands of Miss Gladys May, her lover, Irza, being portrayed by Miss Kitty Russell. All the humorous parts are in capable hands, Messrs. Rand and O'Ryan being much in evidence by their smart dancing and clever patter; Dan Lyall as Tinbad is very funny, and cuts some peculiar capers; Mr. Shepherd (Mrs. Sinbad), Mr. Melville (Caliph of Bagdad), J. Riche as King Krusty Mug are all very good; the Three Eltons are a skilful trio of bar performers; Geo. Melville sings in a good treble voice, and is repeatedly encored.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Messrs. Clifford Hamilton and Charles Rocke's company appear in the stirring drama, A Woman's Past.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing Director, W. Smithson.—The Four Black Diamonds top the bill here with some clever glees; Geo. Payne's Wanderers include an excellent whistler; Elroy, the armless wonder, is a marvel; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard give a really amusing sketch; Zenary Bros. contribute a fine acrobatic turn; Ena Corelli, a little girl, shows great promise; Rolando Martin is a funny comedian, his patter being good; and Sam Williams causes much mirth.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. George Dance's company, in Miss Hook of Holland, is paying a return visit. Mr. Edmond Russell is a clever humorous Mr. Hook, and Mr. Fred Dark as Simon Slinks is also very funny. Miss Gertrude Melville is a dainty and captivating Miss Hook, and Mr. A. Ballance is a gallant Van Vuyt. Mr. W. Mansey does well as Captain Adrian Paap, and Miss Cissie Sephton as Mina is equally effective.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. and Mrs. Rice Cassidy's company is here in A Beggar on Horseback. As Seaweed Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy scores a great triumph, and Mr. J. Rice Cassidy is successful as the Hon. Algernon Fitzhugh. Mr. Villiers Stanley does creditable work as Allen Armstrong, and Mr. Tom Roydon gives a good portrayal of the Duke Sergius Rubinoff. Miss A. Roscoe as the Countess Olgar and Miss Isabell Hunt as Maggie Bolton both do well.

TIVOLI—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Corman's Juveniles are the premier turn, with an admirable scena, cleverly done, and Bugler Carr is a first-class equilibrist; Señor Blanco and company are very good in a musical sketch; the Melroses are good in vocal numbers; Williams and Relma are very amusing with quaint patter; and Millie Lawrence sings nicely.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. C. Routledge.—Mr. Fred Newman and company are still drawing good houses with some capital animated pictures and first-class artists.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The theatre is closed this week excepting for the benefit performances which are taking place to-day (Saturday) for Mr. Lewis A. Long, the much-respected acting-manager.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Two comedians who are always sure of a warm welcome are Herbert Rule and Julian Mack, and though their styles are quite dissimilar their efforts to amuse are equally mirth-provoking. The female impersonations and make-up of Albert Letine are still a source of amazement to the audience. Les Piccolinos, a trio of midgets, perform many astonishing feats; Stiddar and Dunbar prove themselves to be a clever pair of musical comedy artists; Cavalli continues to raise much hilarity by his ventriloquial interlude; Maude Vera, a pleasing comedienne and dancer, is on a return visit. The Pictures are of the best.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Pantomime again rules here, Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's company being the attraction with Robinson Crusoe. Foremost in a strong band of comedians is Mr. Ally M. Benson, who, as Mrs. Crusoe, keeps the audience in continual laughter; Mr. Billie Bland as Billy Crusoe gives great assistance, and the two work well together; Mr. Tom Lewis gives a humorous interpretation of Will Atkins. The singing all round is exceptionally good. Miss Violet Thorn as the principal boy acts in a sprightly and vivacious manner, as also does the principal girl, Miss Kittie Liske. Miss Hilda Hemus as the Spirit of the Ocean has a delightful voice, and is deservedly encored; and Miss Kitty Chester should also be mentioned for her charming singing as Fairy Liberty. The scenery and dresses are smart and artistic. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Dytum and Dale.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—A welcome return visit of Dare-Devil Dorothy is paid this week, the company being that of Mr. J. W. Cordiner. Miss Gertrude de Lacey plays the title-rôle in bright and breezy fashion; Miss Kathleen Stewart is a charming Ruth; and Miss Nellie Harcourt is good as Judith, her clog-dancing being exceptionally clever; Mr. James Salter is most amusing as Silas Crump; Mr. George A. Fox is a pleasing Captain Fielding; Mr. Robert Gilbert spares no effort to make Captain Dudley as unscrupulous as possible; and Mr. Francis Trevor provides a fine study of Hawkins.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann. — Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. H. Browning's company opened here on Monday in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Rutland Barrington appeared with much distinction as the Marquis of Steventon; and congratulations are due to Mr. Ethelbert Edwards, whose impersonation of Jack Frobisher would certainly be difficult to excel; Miss Gwendoline Hay's impersonation of Lady Alethea Frobisher is powerful; and to the rôle of Hankey Bannister full justice is done by Mr. Russell Barry; Mr. H. Browning appears to advantage as Harry Dallas; and Miss Ethel Trevor-Lloyd fills the rôle of Lady Westerby to perfection; Mr. Lambert Plummer is well suited as Bertram Hannaford; and Miss Hilda Sims is all that could possibly be desired as Lady Lucy Dereham.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Miss Grace Warner and company commenced on Monday the second week of their engagement here with The Wages of Sin. Miss Grace Warner was eminently successful as Ruth Hope, and Mr. George Gordon's impersonation of George Brand was characterised by undoubted cleverness. A powerful impersonation of Stephen Marler was furnished by Mr. Frank Esmond; and Mr. Roy Rhind as Harry Wentworth left nothing to be desired; capital character sketches of Jemima Bloggs and her daughter Julianna were furnished by Miss Florence M. Daly and Miss Lizzie Palmer; and the rôle of Josiah Deane was in the safe hands of Mr. Frank Hertie. Some humour was infused into the rôle of Ned Drummond by Mr. Louis Nanton; and Miss Edie Rutland was charming as Rose Deane.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The star here is May Moore Duprez, the charming comedienne, who captivates all with her songs and dances. A pleasing return visit to this city is being paid by Mr. Jack Lorimer, the droll Scotch comedian; Hanvarr and Lee interest with their club-swinging, &c.; and Blake and Aruber make an unmistakable hit; Irve, Hayman, and company produce the sketch Xmas Eve; and Walker and Lake create much laughter with their up-to-date patter. Also here are Tony Freedman, comedian; Stella Stahl, comedienne and dancer; O'Hanlon Trio, who sing and dance in clever style.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—Marie Kendall is the star here, and affords much pleasure with her catchy chorus songs; Victor's Juveniles appear in their vocal and dancing scena, which has been uproariously received; and the Two St. Johns are capital musical comedians and dancers; Miss Virginia Grant's vocal items gain her the heartiest applause; and the parodies of Frank Melvin are certainly amusing; Miss Odeyne Spark, a dashing comedienne with good songs, dances well; and also here are Sisters Hall, duettists and dancers; Gwennie Harcourt, low comedy artist; Steve McCarthy, comedian; and the bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—A great array of pictures have been exhibited here this week, including the 2500ft. film representing the fight between Johnson and Ketchell for the heavy-weight championship of the world.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Rogers. — Some beautiful films have been shown here, including Launcelot and Elaine, The Lady Detective, Rose of the Tenderloin, &c. Messrs. Heeley and Crawford, the society comedy duo, gain a capital reception at each performance.

BILSTON. — ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee, Mr. A. L. Owen; Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Tunstall.—Mr. Carr Loates's company is here with At the World's Mercy. Miss Cissie Milford is successful in the dual rôles of Kitty Knott and Skittles; Mr. Carr Loates is well placed as Jabez; and Mr. G. D. Knight does well as Morris Goldstein. The Alice Lloyd of Miss Margaret Butler is all that could be desired.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King. — The Moody-Manners Opera Company, Ltd., commenced the second week of a highly-successful visit on Monday, when Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci were presented to the delight of a crowded house. Mr. Albert Bowyer as Turiddu and Miss Grace Nicoll as Santuzza in the former opera, and Mr. Seth Hughes as Cannio and Miss Rosa O'Farrell as Nedda in the latter, acquitted themselves admirably in their respective impersonations. On succeeding evenings, Tannhäuser, Il Trovatore, Carmen, The Lily of Killarney, Samson and Delilah, and Maritana have also been produced, and the visit of the company may be noted as a great success.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—The popular comedian, Mr. George Lashwood, fresh from his triumphs in America, is the leading attraction here, and is received with the greatest enthusiasm in this, his first, appearance on his return from the States. The comedy bicycle act of Zanora and Berg goes well, and Miss Daisy Dormer, the clever comedienne, is a universal favourite. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde are society entertainers of unusual ability; and Belmore and De Velin, duettists, Pasquali Bros., smart acrobats, Will Musgrave, comedian, Miss Edith Fink, serio, Miss Lila Vesta, vocalist, Natalia and Diana, gymnasts, nd Brown's Royal Bioscope complete an excellent combination.

HIPPODROME. — Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. John F. Preston's company is playing Rogues of the Turf on the two-houses-a-night system. Miss Beatrice Weston as Marion and Mr. Preston as Joe Flaxman are prominent in the course of a capital performance.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Redway.—In that delightful farce Mr. Preedy and the Countess Mr. Weedon Grossmith takes with droll seriousness a part that fits him admirably, and the audience laugh at his clever acting and the sheer absurdity of the situations. After Mr. Grossmith comes Miss Ruth Mackay with a fine and attractive reading of the character of the Countess. Other characters are ably represented by Miss Evelyn Kerry (Emma), Miss Lydia Rachel (Mrs. Sidgrave), Mr. Edward H. Wynne (Mr. Sidgrave), Mr. Murray Carson (Bounsail), Mr. Ronald Squire (the Earl of Rushmere), Mr. Edward Bonfield (the Hon. Robert Jennaway), Mr. Arthur B. Murray (the manservant), and Mr. Frank H. Denton (Saunders, a provincial dentist). The piece is preceded by a humorous playlet, entitled A Ball or a Motor?

PRINCE OF WALES'S. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy, the author of The Servant in the House, is a Birmingham man, and this augments the interest manifested in its production here this week. The acting throughout is excellent, and warm praise is due to Mr. Matthew Boulton in the rôle of the servant Manson, his performance being very impressive; Mr. E. H. Patterson, with a clever study of the worldly bishop; Mr. Walter Gay, a capital vicar; Miss Nellie Hodson, the vicar's wife; Mr. Harry Parker as Brother Robert; Miss Laurie Flockton and Mr. Forrester Harvey. At the close Mr. Charles Macdona, the manager of the company, came forward and thanked the audience for their cordial reception of the play.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Other pantomimes are over, but Aladdin continues to occupy the stage, and justifiably. Last Friday over 400 members of the Rocket Club visited the theatre and spent a very happy evening. All the performers are in fine form, and Mr. Collingwood's "benefit" last evening (Friday) was an enormous success.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Hall Caine's popular drama The Prodigal Son is doing good business, being adequately presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. S. Herbert Humber gives a powerful portrayal as Oscar Stephensson; and Mr. Hugh Montgomery as Magnus is very effective. Mr. Ernest Rivary does justice to the part of Stephen Magnusson, and Miss Barbara Gott gives a careful study of Anna, his wife. In the dual rôle of Thora and Elin Miss Elsie Wood scores effectively; and Miss Betty Castle as Helga acquits herself with credit. Miss Marie Harcourt and Mr. Philip Renouf also give capital assistance.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—A capital attraction has been secured in East Lynne. Miss Rose Ralph gives a capital study of Lady Isabel, and puts a wealth of feeling into the emotional situations; Mr. Hugh Carmichael is convincing as Archibald Carlyle; and Mr. Alfred Richards makes an interesting type of stage villain as Francis Levison. Mr. Fred Ingram as Lawyer Dill is an entertaining character; and other parts are cleverly represented by Miss Florence Lovell, Miss Lulu Bowes, and Miss Rosie Bruton.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Manager, Mr. Martin Morris.—Crowded houses are enjoying the performances of the F. R. Benson Shakespearean company. The plays presented are The Merchant of Venice, The Tempest, The Taming of the Shrew, Macbeth, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Hamlet, and Twelfth Night. The chief players are Miss Gladys Vanderzee, Miss Kate Turner, Miss Dorothy Radford, Mr. Robert Atkins, Mr. Charles Sparrow, and Mr. Henry Herbert. The staging is excellent, and the costumes and uniforms all that can be desired.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The enthralling situations in The Drama of Life, which is being presented by Mr. J. E. Barnes, are thoroughly appreciated by good houses. Mr. Lingford Carson earns much applause for powerful acting in the principal part, and Mr. Archie Helsby is also conspicuous for a clever portrayal of Walter Beech. Miss Pattie Hastings does well as Sylvia Beech, and Miss Doris Denville earns admiration for a juvenile study. Mr. Sidney C. Cranson and Miss Alice Oliver are responsible for refreshing humour, and other parts are well represented by Mr. Marshall Meade, Mr. George B. Davis, Mr. George Byrne, and Miss Beatrice Hudson.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams. — A strong dramatic sketch illustrating the evils of the opium habit constitutes the principal turn here this week. It is entitled The Yellow Fang. Miss Mary Mayfren is an actress above the average, and she is supported by a capable company. Nellie Wallace is a big favourite; the Kremo Family of acrobats perform exceptionally clever feats; the Elite Boys have some excellent harmonised numbers and pleasing dances; and "fun is fast and furious" while Tom and Marie Motramo, comedy artists, occupy the stage. Tom E. Hughes is exceedingly funny; the Villions are skilful cyclists and dancers; Beatty and Blanche are charming duettists; and Maudie Francis is a dainty juvenile comedienne.

THE GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, pays his first visit to this theatre, and he is packing the huge building at every performance. He is greeted with round upon round of applause, which is repeated at the finish of each song. Elliott can safely claim another triumph this week. W. J. Churchill has some good songs and is an expert mirth-maker; the Colini-Clairons, a troupe of Continental artistes, introduce some novel and artistic dances, which are a strong feature of the programme; Miss Edie Reynold's violin solos are beautifully rendered and greatly appreciated; Les Silas, French operatic artiste, sings selections from grand and light opera; Conan and Doyle are unable to appear, and good substitutes are found in Aubrey Fitzgerald and Miss Elizabeth Wieland in a humorous sketch, entitled The Spider and the Fly; Gipsy Woolf and her Six Sunbeams have some pretty dances; and Keen and Waller and Doff Woolf complete a strong bill.

GAIETY.—General Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—A delightful comedy act, presented by Viviana and Company, depicts a quaint entertainment in a toyshop, and is hugely enjoyed by the audience. Ted and May Hopkins, a pair of jolly Welsh humorists, have a great reception in their bashful love scene, and provoke hearty laughter. Irene Rose is responsible for three pleasing songs in a scena, entitled Her First Engagement; Blanch and Zeyna are daring cyclists on a cup-shaped track, Burns and Bentley present a dancing speciality; Harley and Melton are smart comedians; the Stein Esthor Trio of hand jumpers are a clever combination; Harry Nelson is an amusing entertainer; and Mabelle May is popular in song and terpsichore.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—The appearance of John L. Sullivan was sufficient to ensure crowded audiences. A thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is provided by Emerson and Baldwin, American juggling comedians; Pitts and Gould appear in a dainty song and dance scena, entitled Bachelor's Memories. Iris Fox is a vivacious and popular comedian; the Sisters Wingrove are talented duettists and dancers; the Christie Duo are expert loose-legged dancers; Madison and Webb are entertaining in a humorous sketch, My Husband; Florrie Robina is a charming comedienne; and Hector and Lolletta are novel jugglers and equilibrists.

ASTON HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Leo Dryden in his character representations of Martin Harvey, George Alexander, and Beerbohm Tree is a big attraction, and he strikes a very popular note. A complete animal circus is presented by Carl and Mary Ohms; Captain Kettle keeps the audience in a merry mood by his quaint patter whilst performing sleight-of-hand feats; the Brothers Lavelle are amusing acrobats; Young and Evans are successful Hebrew comedians; Nan Farren has a good reception in chorus songs and dances; and Harry Taylor, comedian, Stevens and Brett, burlesque entertainers, and Gus Leonard, light comedian, are also well received.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—There is every indication that the new picture season opened here last week will prove a highly-successful venture. The two-houses-nightly system is highly appreciated, and the afternoon performances are well attended. Prominent on the programme this week are several good dramatic pictures, including For Sake of Conscience and How a Dog Saved the Flag, also a clever French comedy, None But the Brave Deserve the Fair. Miss Dora Kingsley delights audiences with her vocal contributions.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—A number of splendid new films are exhibited this week, including The Custer's Last Stand, The Cowboy Millionaire, and Kidnapper and Rescuer, and these meet with popular approval. A good selection of humorous subjects provokes roars of laughter, and the programme is completed by clever turns by the Hayes Duo, in a laughable sketch, and Mabel Kington, ballad vocalist.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—A delightful picture entertainment is thoroughly enjoyed by all visitors to this hall, the programme being remarkable for the novelty and excellence of the subjects. Tabloid dramas figure conspicuously, and the comic pictures are quite new. Vaudeville turns of a pleasing nature greatly enhance the entertainment.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Another successful pantomime here is Mr. Gilbert Payne's The House that Jack Built. Mr. Payne in the rôle of Sir Niggley Grabbs works hard, and meets with every success; the Dame Trot of Mr. Fred Fulton is in worthy hands; and Jossem and Jewon arouse a deal of excitement, thanks to Messrs. Lapham and Wallen. The title-rôle is exquisitely played by Miss Nellie Dyson, who is admirably assisted by Miss Fanny Adamson as Sunshine, both artists' songs being capitally rendered. Miss Ethel Errol is very good as Tommy Tucker, as also is Miss Hilda Deacon as Marjorie Daw. The Fairy is depicted by Miss Vera Kingdon in pleasing style. Effective scenery and a strong chorus are features of the cast. The Godfrey Girls are a trio of charming dancers.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, The Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland), Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi. — Two capital houses witnessed an entertaining performance on Monday. Mr. Arthur Lennard is the special attraction, his songs being enthusiastically received. The Four Janowskys do a clever acrobatic ladder act; Little Zola provokes much laughter; and a pleasing turn is that given by Mlle. Dora Martini, a capable gymnast. Mr. Bert Williams excels as a ventriloquist; Miss Lizzie Fletcher is a favourite comedienne; and the Adams cycle scena is highly satisfactory. Interesting films are shown on the Hipposcope.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. William Maclaren and company are paying another visit here with Claudian. Mr. Maclaren acts the title-rôle with much impressiveness, and Almida is cleverly interpreted by Miss Lily C. Bandmann. The other parts are in able hands.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager Mr. Fred Waller.—Florrie Forde is singing her chorus songs here with great success; Maggie Bowman and Tom J. Morton contribute a really excellent turn, consisting of duologues and dances; Sam Redfern sings and patters as of yore; Vory is a wonder as a "rag painter"; Charles Norton gives a clever mimetic monologue entitled Comedians at the Races; Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley are smart dancers; Pongorilla is a clever gymnast; and Guest and New Lyn provide an entertaining turn of song and dance.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The Flag Lieutenant, presented by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's excellent company, is pronounced the greatest success of the present season. Mr. Ralph Roberts in the character of Dickie Lascelles gives a most natural and humorous impersonation, that won the hearty applause of the large audience; Mr. Mark Paton submits an admirable piece of acting as Sir Berkeley Wynne. The rendering of Major Thessiger by Mr. Frederick Leister could scarcely be improved upon; Mr. Edward Mervyn is worthy of every praise as Surgeon Walter Crutchley; Mr. Stanley Groome and Mr. Guy Lanham as the Midshipmen are a lively couple; Mr. Lloyd Pilgrim wins much favour as Colonel McLeod; Miss Mabel Rees is all that could be desired as Mrs. Cameron; Miss Rita Johnson makes a brilliant Lady Wynne; Miss Rosalind Ross gives prominence to the part of Lady Dugdale; and Miss Una Venning is seen to advantage as Viola Hood.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. B. Cardwell's pantomime The House that Jack Built is being well received. Miss Daisy Wood and Miss Dolly Dodds give clever impersonations of Jack and Jill; Miss Isa Wilson is a sweet Fairy Twinkle Star; Misses Marie Lumberg and Jenny Marsden act prettily as Colin and Gretchen; much humour is created by Jimmy Watson as Aunt Purdy; Mr. H. Hillerby as Squire Bunce, Messrs. Graham and Barron as Scraggs and Scraggles, and Messrs. J. Harrison and Paddy Sloan as Pils and Squills. Specialities are introduced by the Forget-Me-Not Trio, Graham and Barron, Jimmy Watson, and a very clever child actress, Miss Peggy McDonnall.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mr. Fred Karno's company

presenting her less experienced sister, Nora. Mr. Mollison's Dick Crawford is a convincing performance of restrained force, and Miss Hughes also has excellent support from Mr. Henry Deas as her lover Dan Mallory, Mr. F. A. Marston as Patrick O'Brien, Miss Josephine Woodward as Mrs. O'Brien, and Miss Mabel Durrant as Sylvia Simpson, the show girl. The play (which contains many novel features) is very finely staged. A Breezy Morning, capitally played by Miss Vron-Neville, and Mr. H. Neville, precedes.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Once again Mr. G. M. Pohini and Austin Melford's capable company, with the time-honoured drama The Silver King affords endless pleasure to the lovers of good fare, the play being staged with the usual excellence. Mr. Fred D. Davis presents a very fine emotional and well-studied performance of Wilfred Denver, and Miss Mildred Surrey wins unbounded sympathy with her impressive acting as Nelly Denver. Mr. Sidney Lynn's conception of the character of Captain Skinner (the Spider) is clever; the faithful Dan'l Jaikes is still in the capable hands of Mr. E. J. George; Mr. A. Wright is capital as the oily scoundrel Coombe; and the remaining important characters in the cast are filled with great credit by Messrs. W. Leslie Ellis, A. H. Warburton, and Percy Stone, and by Miss Mary Glangrane and Miss Hilda Bateman.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Daisy Jerome is remarkably versatile, combining vocalism and dancing with humour and vivacity, which quite wins her audience; and in a scena, The Deputy, Annie Schuberth, the charming soprano, fresh from her pantomime triumphs here, elicits great applause; James Eadie and Cissie Ramsden, on a return visit with their clever and humorous sketch Charlie's Visit, are well received; Henry Helme, "the French Alpine vocalist," has a voice of great power; Kerr and Koe submit some amusing patter and dancing; the Four Regals present a picturesque act, The Armourers, in which they accomplish novel and extraordinary feats of strength; Fred Barnes, light comedian, sings capital songs in good style; Billy, the educated pony, is a remarkable example of animal training; in a humorous sketch The Bo'sun's Mate, T. B. Vaughan and John Lawson's company elicit laughter; and there are some entertaining pictures shown by the Bioscope.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Syd Walker and his assistants are responsible here this week for much hearty laughter in a funny sketch, A Debt Collector; in a sporting scena, From the Time of the Crusaders, the Crosit Trio of French acrobats do excellent work; Ada Fawn, comedienne, of recent pantomime fame here, is received with hearty marks of approbation; in a clever comedy sketch, The Fire Station, the Fimans are successful; "Dreamland" is an entertaining vocal scena given by L. B. Athol; Crosby and Walker, as "Jocular Hon Boys," are amusing; Ted Curtis and Piccs are good comedy artists; and the Sisters Rivers, duettists and dancers, complete the bill, in which the Palace Perfection Pictures are a feature.

BRIGHOUSE.—Albert Theatre.—Proprietors, the Albert Theatre Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Martin Manley. This week the fare is very excellent—pictures by the New Century Picture Co. There are some very interesting films shown, both humorous and dramatic. In the Sultan's Power, The Hungry Child, Romeo Turns Brigand, Sexton Blake, Tales of a Wayside Inn, The Old City of Ostia, The Corsican's Revenge, Drowsy Dick's Dream, A Vendean Rebel, The Gentleman Thief, The Baldheaded Corporal, and a few others make up the programme.

BRIGHTON. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here with Her Forbidden Marriage, which is admirably staged. Mr. Louis Hector gives a manly and popular impersonation of George Maddison; Miss Alice Bowes makes a graceful and charming Lucy; Mr. W. H. Porter is forcible and convincing as the villainous Char.es Devereux; Miss Grace Lester is excellent as the scheming Lady Lucretia; Mr. Frank Denis acquits himself admirably as Sir George Lancaster; Miss Gladys Newcombe imparts sympathy to her enactment of the Mother Superior; and much fun is provided by Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy Tuttutt and Miss Sybil Hare as Patty Lovejoy.

Alhambra. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Madame Holt's Juvenile Follies dance and sing themselves into high favour; the Lewin Martel Duo are excellent xylophone players; Carlisle and Walker are entertaining with quip, song, and story; Alice Maple is a pleasing serio-comedienne and graceful dancer; Clivetto, dancing juggler, is distinctly original; George Antill, comedian, merits praise; Marie Lord is a charming comedienne; Teddy Rutland, comedian, is well received; Racpo is diverting with "reckless silence and fun"; Mundell and Maude, and Hylder Tremaine and company are appreciated in comedy turns.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Maidie Scott, comedienne, gives a delightful turn which is enthusiastically appreciated; Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, also wins very hearty applause; Mlle. Yetta is a clever wire dancer; Harry Taft, comedian, is well received; Bert Errol displays a phenomenal voice with pleasing effect; Fred. Russell, ventriloquial humorist, achieves his customary success; the Great Lumars are skilful acrobats; Ernest Rees is a droll comedian; the Derrington Family are sensational cyclists; and Alan Holt and company are completely successful in the exciting piece, A Society Woman.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Messrs. Arthur Shelton and Horace Lingard's company opened here on Monday with Fanny and the Servant Problem. Miss Beatrice Morean submitted a clever portrayal of Fanny; Mr. Horace Lingard merits high praise for his enactment of the pompous butler, Martin Bennet; Mr. Wilfred Compton was distinctly effective as George Newle; Mr. Russell Davis as Lord Bantock and Mr. Roland Hope as Dr. Freemantle were admirably suited; Miss Rita Sponti and Miss Miriam Holt appeared with much success as Lord Bantock's warm-hearted spinster aunts. The programme for the week also included Sardou's Divorçons.

Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—A fine series of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The Story of a Western Cowboy is drama full of exciting and daring scenes; The Spanish Girl is a love drama; and stirring stories are conveyed by The Bookmaker's Revenge and A Tale of the Sea. The amusing pictures include Gibson Goddess, Baby's Bet, Magic Melody, and the Late Guest. Mr. Osland Denver contributes baritone songs in finished style; and Mr. Arthur W. Briggs merits praise for his pianoforte accompaniments.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. F. W. Bolam's principal company is here in the Drury Lane success Marriages of Mayfair, the play being admirably staged. Miss Naomi Neilson presents an excellent exposition of Bess Bissett; Miss Mildred Cottell is sufficiently dignified as Lady Margaret Villiers; Miss Dorothy Monkhouse makes a good character study of Mrs. Bissett; Miss Aimee Gratton-Clyndes is effective as Lily de Mario; and Miss Conyers-Radcliffe is a pleasing Dorothy Gore. Mr. Paul Beckett presents a fine sinister study of Jim Callender; Mr. Sidney Rensef acts consistently as Lord Adolphus Villiers; Mr. Frank Cleugh is effective as Nigel Villiers; Mr. Duncan Yarrow plays earnestly as Dudley Gore; and the remaining parts are all carefully undertaken.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Messrs. Faulkner and De Courtsey's company is here with The Sins of the Fathers, which is well staged. Miss Edith Blande acts with much power as Camille Le Blanc; Mr. Max Coutts is effective as Sebastian Brandt; Mr. A. W. Thompson acts carefully as Mr. Harmsworth; Mr. Victor Howard plays with expression as George Armitage; Mr. Will Simpson gives a good characterisation of Deuteronomy Smith; and Miss Ethel Wynne Matthews is pleasingly effective as Ethel Harmsworth. The comic parts of Polly Popplethwaite and Jimmy are capitally undertaken by Miss Dolly West-Symes and Mr. Edward King.

Palace.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Assistant-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Tarro Miyake, stated to be the champion ju-jitsu wrestler of the world, presents a fine exposition of self-defence and wrestling in Japanese style, assisted by Taka, one of the instructors to the British Navy. The Gothams excel as harmonisers, and put in some comic business; Edwin Garth amuses with song and patter; Shrillo is a clever whistler; Bi-Bo-Bi does an acceptable eccentric musical turn; Len Hale is an expert roller skater; Frank White, coloured comedian and dancer, obtains applause; Lisbon and Barker, comedians, are successful; Vesta and Minnie Pine amuse with a golf sketch, &c.; and animated pictures conclude.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—George Robey heads the bill here, and obtains every mark of appreciation. Daisy Lloyd Wood, from the Prince's pantomime, has a very cordial reception; Siegel and Fields entertain with an interlude of piano playing and dancing; Frank Dunlop, from the Royal pantomime, amuses with song and patter; the Merry Marvels successfully present an instrumental and dancing act; "My Fancy" is warmly applauded for her expert sand dancing; Ida Barr, actress-vocalist, presents a very pleasing turn; Marie Jones, assisted by Ernest Munro, scores with her lightning change comedy playlet Wanted, a Co-Respondent; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures. Thursday's matinée was for the benefit of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, under the patronage and presence of the Lord Mayor, the Lady Mayoress, the High Sheriff, and Mrs. Riseley.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Cramer; Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh had a good house on Monday, when much appreciation was shown of the acting of With Edged Tools. Jocelyn Gordon was admirably played by Miss Marie Leonhard; Mr. Hamilton Deane was capital as the hero, Jack Meredith; Mr. J. D. Geddes was a dignified Sir John Meredith; the villain, Victor Durnovo was capably portrayed by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Miss Marguerite Cellier ably sustained the part of Millicent Chyne. Mr. Henry Nunn as Guy Oscard, Mr. Albert Campbell as Maurice Gordon. Miss Florence Dulhunty as Marie also did good work. The scenery was effective.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—There is presented here this week a delightful drama, Little Phil's Mother, and good houses are the rule. Miss Florence Dalton does good work in the difficult rôle of Elspeth; Little Gertie Renaud gives a pathetic study of Phil; Miss Maud Russell is well fitted for the part of Ruth Towers; and Mr. Percy Ballard proves himself a clever actor as Frank Towers. The element of humour is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Thorne.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The musical element predominates in the programme here. First place is occupied by A. U. Mackinnon's Scottish Comedy Quartette, harmonising vocalists, in "Ancestral Spirits"; Mendel, the blind pianist, performs remarkable feats of memory, and contributes brilliant solos; Alma at the piano is a humorous turn with a laughing song; and Cliff and Kean in a vocal comedy dancing act are smart. Horace Jones is good with song and patter, and Florence and Rose Showell, duettists, have excellent voices. Palermo is shown by the Empire Theatrescope.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The chief attraction here is Tsohin Maa and his band of Chunchuses, mountebanks, conjurers, &c., whose conjuring and wonderful feats bring forth rounds of applause; Mona Garrick contributes clever character impersonations; Wallace Whitney is a robust comedian with good jokes; George Lawrence is a taking light comedian; Rooke Rorke and company make a capital impression with The Prince's Love Affair; and another attractive turn is provided by Mlle. Dalmere's table circus with performing rabbits and cats. Beattie Foster, comedienne, is good; and the Rosses, comedians and dancers, and the Palace pictures complete.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — Opera House. — Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ede Hague Body.—Through the kindly assistance of Mr. Dudley Bennett, Mr. Dan Thomas, whose properties had been destroyed at Crewe, was enabled to produce his pantomime, Dick Whittington, this week. In the title-rôle Miss Daisy Yates was a decided success; Miss Olive West (Alice) also did well, and was responsible for some graceful dancing; Mlle. Lilian's capital contralto voice was heard to advantage in the songs allotted to the Fairy Queen; Mr. Dan Thomas (Betsy) was a host in himself, originality being a distinct feature of his clever performance; his assistant comedians, Mr. J. Harris (Jack) and Mr. H. G. Lydon (Fitzwarren) are also exceedingly funny. Dick's feline friend is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Pete Almonte.

BURY (Lancs).—Royal.—General-Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is paying another visit with The Merry Widow, which is attracting large and enthusiastic audiences. Mr. Fred Leslie is a magnificent Danilo, and Miss Phyllis Le Grand scores a big success as Sonia, her singing being of a high order. The remaining characters are ably played by Mr. Edward D'Arcy, who makes a quaint Popoff, Mr. Ripley Evans as Jolidon, Mr Fred Fowler as Nisch, Mr. William Alison as Marquis de Cascada, Mr. H. Gordon Sherry as M. de St. Brioche; Miss Katie May as Frou-Frou; Miss Winnie Bailey as Olga; Miss Heather Featherstone as Sylvane, and Miss Ada Thomas a charming Natalie. The mounting is excellent.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Four Miovskys, in comic acrobatic and musical act are a good top turn; other acceptable items are provided by George Norton, in comedy act; Vardon, ventriloquist; Harry Kimberley, comedian; Penstone and Sango, vaudeville artists; Victor and Louis, in comedy sketch, Golfer and the Caddie; Three Favourites, burlesque artists; and Paul Corrix, in Herculean speciality act.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—An interesting and varied series of films is on view, and variety turns are provided by Rose Tilley, comedienne, and George Edney, descriptive vocalist.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here with A Thief in the Night. Mr. Leyton Chancellor as Michael Pagani makes an excellent villain; Ivan Escombe is well played by Miss Margery Fane; Mr. Hugh Wallace is satisfactory as Lord Romilly; Mrs. Russell Bogue makes a good character-sketch of Crake; Miss Beatrice Homer acts effectively as Sonia Cleeve; Miss Louie Worden, Miss Prudence Ayrton, and Miss Mysie Moule give capital interpretations.

CARDIFF. — New Theatre. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford. — Theatregoers here welcome a return visit of Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in A White Man. Mr. Guy Hastings, in the rôle of Captain James Wynnegate, submits a delineation that stamps him as an actor of ripe experience; Miss Kathleen Mande's interpretation of Lady Kerhill is particularly charming and graceful; Miss Hilda Barita's Nat-u-rich acts with infinite credit; Mr. R. A. Brandon (Big Bill), Mr. Gerald Valentine (Shorty), Mr. Alex Munroe (Andy), and Mr. Jay Ellis (Grouchy) all give remarkably clever expositions; Mr. Eric Hudson is well remembered for his skilful and genuine character acting as the Indian chief Tab-y-wena; Mr. Frank Mayo stands out clearly in a big cast for his excellent portrayal of Cash Hawkins; Mr. Ray Raymond as the Sheriff, Mr. Charles Maunsell as Lord Kerhill, and Miss Nora Nagle as Little Hall all do exceptionally well.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll: Acting-manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—L'Incognita again charms her audience with her wonderful voice, and prolonged and spontaneous applause is accorded this great soprano; La Sylphe is equally entrancing in her three classical dances; Phil Percival has a comical burlesque on Sexton Blake; Winifred Ward appears in a couple of songs; The Casey Army, as presented by Ernest Cadle's company of humorous impersonator, is a droll knockabout performance; George Rae's Scotch song is supplemented by a capital dance; the Jackley Trio prove the best comedy acrobats imaginable, the whistling proclivities of George, the page, being an important feature; Walter Wade, a mimetic comedian, submits some capital vocalism; and the Bioscope proves unusually interesting.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay. Can a Woman be Good? is the title of the exciting drama presented at the Royal by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Blanche St. Albans proves a graceful exponent of Esther Howard; Miss Florence Hunt as Naomi Merrick is powerful; a pathetic rendition of Magdala Fawcett is provided by Miss Lilian Earle; Mr. J. Millone as Manuel Errington does well; Mr. H. C. Robinson as Herod Steinburg is well placed; Mr. J. G. Maine as Cairns and Mr. J. Archer as Starman submit clever impersonations; and Mr. J. R. Tyrrell (Curley Dabbs) and Miss Winifred Barton (Slithers) provide excellent comedy.

Palace Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will A. Jackson.—At the head of a talented and varied programme are appearing the Max Tourbillon Troupe (three ladies and three gentlemen) of clever bicycle acrobats; Motoring by Harry Tate's No. 1 company is not new to Cardiff audiences, but this extremely farcical sketch never fails to cause considerable laughter; Madge Allan wins special commendation for a pleasing and clever dance. Others who contribute are Ryder Slone, comedian; the Dartons, harmonising duettists; Walter Barrett, baritone; Ray Royal, with illustrated songs.

CARLISLE.—H. M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Charles Windemere's company opened here on Monday in the farcical comedy Where is William?. Mr. Windemere as Sir Wm. Gregory was irresistibly funny, and he was well supported by Mr. Rule Pyott, whose Jolley was a thoroughly humorous performance; Mr. Chas. R. Francis made the most of his opportunities as the juvenile, and he had a graceful and clever partner in Miss Cakra Mannafield. As the burglar Mr. G. L. Buxton was quite successful; Mr. Leslie Norman as General Rubbub contributed a character sketch which kept the audience in roars of laughter; Miss Bella Donaldson was delightful as Lady Gregory; Eliza in the clever hands of Miss Zoe Davis was very much appreciated; and Miss May Rosine as the wife of Jolley added greatly to the success.

New Public Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Sydney Bacon, Resident-Manager, Mr. Peter Mooney.—Her Terrible Ordeal is a strong dramatic picture, and appeals to the public taste. The Egyptian is a fine piece of colour cinematography. Helen's Suitor's and a host of other capital films are much appreciated.

CASTLEFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. W. V. Garrod and his capital company are paying a visit with Are You the Man? the play being well mounted. Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a telling impersonation as Capt. Jack Beaumont; Joshua Beaumont is carefully and earnestly played by Mr. Chas. Halling; Miss Bertha Kingston proves herself a fine emotional actress as Lilian Brandon, and plays throughout in a natural and charming manner; Sidney Beaumont has a capital exponent in Mr. William Bradford, who plays the villain with much distinction; Miss Ethel Crawford is decidedly good as Flo Dalton, acting throughout in a capable manner; as Solomon Moss Mr. Frank Dallas is most amusing; Miss Alice Clark makes a sprightly and vivacious Jennie Wagstaffe; Private Tom Hopkins finds a capable representative in Mr. Seymour Perry; and Mr. Owen Redmonde brings out to the full the quaint humours of P.C. Banks.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—Burley and Burley head the bill here as comedians and finger-balancers, and their business is mirth-provoking; Harry Elliston and company, in a laughable sketch Aunt Matilda, is hugely enjoyed; St. Ruth and Conyers are dainty and charming vocalists; the singing and dancing of Lil O'Gorman is deservedly applauded. Other contributions to a good programme are Wills and Warlock, comedians and dancers; Fred Spencer, expressionist comedian; the Primrose Quartette of vocalists; Geo. Le West, ventriloquist; and Elsa and Max Arbra.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. O. Redford.—This week Messrs. W. H. Hallett and Walter Howard's principal company is here with Her Love Against the World, Mr. Fred Emery (Earl of Strathmore) is a manly hero; the villain, Prince Ulric, is a consistent study in the hands of Mr. Oswald Gray; Miss Elsie Roberts as the Princess Iris is interesting; and other parts are admirably played by Messrs. H. W. Hallett, Hy. Hallett, and C. R. Hann.

CHESTER. — Royalty Theatre — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—An excellent variety show is the attraction this week. The Martialo Trio give their astounding juggling and balancing act; Mollie Edwards is a comedienne and vocalist of distinction; Jan B. Vaubert a smart and novel illusionist; The Unites provoke much amusement in their comedy act; and the Brothers Leo are good comedians. Ada Tilley, Harold Wagner and company present a well-acted sketch entitled A Call to Arms; Dan Hendy proves an acceptable acrobatic comedian; and the Harvard Sextette earn well-deserved applause by their novel vaudeville act. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope concludes the bill.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickhard.—The principal item on a good bill of fare is sustained this week by Carlo and Maie Trio, in their comedy acrobatic and wire pot-pourri act entitled Fun on the Lawn; Jack Belton and Minnie Osborne are lively in their Scotch and Irish tit-bits, duets, and dancing; the Lawsons provide an amusing turn of singing, dialogue, and mimicry; Jack Allison is an expert dancer; and Will Penn, character comedian, and a dramatic picture on the Bioscope are other attractions.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's Cingalee company opened well on Monday. In the title-rôle Miss Florence Watson sang delightfully, encores being numerous; Mr. Jack Crichton as Chambhuddy Ram was particularly droll; Mr. Arthur Cartwright was excellent as Harry, his voice being nicely modulated; Mr. F. W. Ford as peppery Sir Peter made excellent use of his opportunities; the parts of Bobby and Boobhamba were in the capable hands of Mr. Scott Cullen and Mr. Douglas Munro; Miss Ida Ernest as Peggy acted throughout with gaiety and vivacity; Miss Pauline Hague was excellent as Lady Patricia; and as the dancer Miss Sadie Thompson was highly efficient.

Hippodrome.—Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Moullot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben De Frece. The films this week are attractive. The top of the bill is Miss Alice Hoodless, in her art poses; Taree, the musical Australian bushman, is a novel turn; Marco gives a very good exhibition of coin manipulating and sleight of hand; Dalvere and Wallace, comedians, work assiduously as entertainers; Bobbie Burns appears as a Scotch comedian, and Cissie Fredericks as a ballad vocalist.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The Gay Gordons is being presented here under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour. Agnes Graeme is exceedingly well played by Mr. Stafford Dickens; Andrew Quainton is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. Wentworth; Mr. Stanley Maude is well suited as Corporal Smith; Mr. Arthur Woolley is an effective Archibald Speedy; and as Jack MacPrisky Mr. Robert MacGregor is excellent; Miss May Yates as Peggy Quainton is charming and dainty, and as Mary McLeod Miss Leah Howard is good; Mr. Sidney Burt as Nervy Nat and Miss Denny Fitzherbert as Charlotte Siddons keep the house in roars, while Miss Ruby Louis as Victoria Siddons excels.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett. — Brewster's Millions is presented here by Mr. Percy and Miss Emma Hutchison's company. Mr. Percy Hutchison as Monty Brewster is a most jovial spendthrift; Miss Cicely Stuckey a charming Peggy; Miss Lilias Earle a most successful Mrs. Dan de Mille; Mr. Frank Hill a clever Rawles; and Miss Meta Raye is seen to advantage in the part of Janice Armstrong.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—A packed audience on Monday welcomed the reappearance of Mr. Harry Roxbury and his talented company in their sketch On the Track; Mr. Roxbury as Archibald Longfellow keeps the house in roars of laughter; the whole of the company are real artists. The Cattaneo troupe of acrobats perform difficult feats; the Cromwells' juggling act deserves great praise; the Silvester Trio of dancers and vocalists are very smart; Morrin and Cardiff are good comedians and dancers; Miss Amy Sullivan gives a couple of songs in excellent style, and her dancing is dainty. Other contributors to the programme are Rene Challis, comedienne; and Mr. Arthur Reece, light comedian, the programme concluding with a good set of pictures.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. Leigh Lovel's company is here this week with a répertoire of Ibsen's plays, the bill including A Doll's House, Rosmerholm, Hedda Gabler, and When the Dead Awaken. In the first-named on Monday Miss Octavia Kenmore acted with skill and judgment in the rôle of Nora Helmer; Miss Katherine Maynard was good as Mrs. Linden; praise is due to Misses Daisy Race and Gladys Everard as Ellen and Anna; Mr. Leigh Lovel was seen to advantage as Torvald Helmer; Mr. Kenneth Black was commendable in the part of Dr. Rank; and Mr. Arthur McCulloch was adequate as Nils Krogstadt. Mr W. Chalder's direction of the hard-working orchestra is worthy of special mention.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Louis Taylor and company are great in the weird sketch The Adder's Tooth; the Dandies win applause with songs and dances; Joe Elvin is as quaint as ever in Billy's Money Box; Fioretti and Elly give a marvellous spade and barrel act; Effie White is well received in kaleidoscope dances; the Florence Troupe of singers and dancers are first rate; Maud and Sydney Wood give an exquisite dancing scena; Harry Pleon excels himself in a burlesque on The Bad Girl of the Family; Ella Retford is a great favourite in her latest songs and dances; J. P. Ling is capital in a vocal comedy act; Alice Edwards, male impersonator, deserves a word; and the Bioscope pictures are worth seeing.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. George Dance's company is here with the delightful musical comedy Our Miss Gibbs. Miss Effie Vincent is a charming Miss Gibbs; Mr. S. Radcliffe makes the most of the part of Lord Eynesford; Mr. Eustace Burnaby is capital in the part of Hon. Hugh Pierrepoint; Mr. J. P. Durant acquits himself well as Smithers; Miss Lillian Birtles as Lady Thanet shows to advantage in her singing and acting; Miss Ellaline Thorne plays well the part of Mlle. Jeanne; and Miss Amy Singleton as the Duchess is smart and funny.

Hippodrome Theatres, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nicholls.—Mark Sheridan tops the bill here, and is most exhilarating in his comedy; Margit and Lener give a clever show in their act Wet Paint; Hilda De Grey sings sweetly; and other good turns are Yost and York, the military boys; Rose and Challoner, the porter and the singer; Hemsley and Ambrose, in The Fatal Rehearsal; Gerhardi Mohr, jumper; and the Hipnoscope pictures.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—At the top of a good variety bill is the Dayton Family in Le Rendezvous, an acrobatic turn which wins applause; the Three Milfords are clever artists on the trapeze; Will and Roze create laughter in their comedy act, Le Café Magique; the Sisters Ellen, musical and dancing experts, are appreciated; the Spanish Armadas provide a sensational tight-rope performance; Harry Keeble gives a clever ventriloquial sketch; Louise Dott and Jack Williams are clever juvenile vocalists and sand dancers; and Gladys Wells is a charming contralto vocalist. Interesting films on the bioscope conclude.

Albert Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Holden.—Custer's Last Stand, Cruiser in a Rough Sea, The Mexican's Revenge, and Jenkins Joins the Police are among the best of the films shown here. Phil Herman, comedian; Ethel Brailsford, vocalist; and Will Sullivan, patter comedian, also appear.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company is here with The Dollar Princess. In the title-rôle Miss Norah Barry scores a hit, and sings her various numbers in a most charming manner; the part of Freddy Fairfax is very capably undertaken by Mr. Alec Worcester; Mr. Leslie Holland displays his abilities to the full as the American millionaire; and Mr. Sidney Lyndon is a manly Earl of Quorn; as Bulger Mr. W. H. Rawlins keeps the house in continuous laughter, and his songs are as well rendered as they are well received. As Olga, Miss Madeline Seymour acts and sings delightfully; Miss Peggy Primrose is to be congratulated upon her impersonation of Daisy; and Mr. Willie Warde and Mr. Hugh Henson as Sir James Macgregor and Dick both deserve high praise.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes.—Reano and his band are here; Maud Elliston and company find ample scope for their talents in an absurdity entitled Dobson's Day Off; the Kahns are a trio of first-class illusionists; John Henry, Welsh basso, scores a success; Dunning, as a ventriloquist, provides a smart turn; Lambert and Hands appear to advantage in a vocal scena; the Three Warners, lady whirlwind dancers, do much that is entertaining; and George Rapley, comedian, with song and patter, is in every way amusing. Special mention should be made of May Clark, whose contralto songs are thoroughly appreciated. The bioscope, with a humorous film, winds up a well-chosen programme.

DEVONPORT. — Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Chanti, quick-change artist, forms a fine star attraction; Miss Burley and the Funny Little Man are responsible for an excellent tumbling act; the Misses Courtney and Flo Wilton provide an entertaining musical comedy duologue entitled A Marble Flirtation; the Foresters are seen to advantage in a fascinating dramatic tabloid named A Society Sinner; and Archie Pitt is a first-rate comedian. The other contributors, Vi Laurie and N. Delmar, render material assistance to the programme.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—In the well-known musical pantomimic comedy The Swiss Express the Brothers Renard are ably supported by their original company of comedians, pantomimists, knockabouts, vocalists, and dancers. It is one of the drollest pieces ever seen in Devonport.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Messrs. Geo. A. de Grey's and Harry Masterman's company is presenting here The Angel of His Dreams. Mr. De Grey himself is an admirable Rev. Christian Esdale; Miss Effie Bartlett in the part of Hilda Revelle is interesting; Major Ferrars is played in convincing style by Mr. Wallace Campbell; Mr. Robert Hall as Roy Ferrars is responsible for well-studied acting; Miss Edna Earl is an interesting Milly St. Austin; Mr Charles Arnold an excellent Sir Francis Tregarthen; Little Doris Brereton plays Lulu with conspicuous ability; and Bessie Sparkles and Sam Trippett are humorously presented by Miss Etta Turner and Mr. Mayo Stanley.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. B. and G. W. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Jan Rudenyi is the star here this week in The Power of Music; John Grün Marx, "the modern Hercules," performs surprising feats of strength; Juno Salmo is a wonderful contortionist; and a novel jumping act, submitted by Charles Wilson, is well received. Carl Lynn, animal mimic, causes much laughter; Wyllie, the tramp musician, goes well; and Harry Bancroft, actor and chorus vocalist, is also a success. John Partington, the singing mill lad, Emmie Ames, comedienne, and a display of animated pictures, complete.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon; Stage-Manager, Mr. Jack Harris; Musical-Director, Mr. R. H. Riley.—The principal variety item is supplied here this week by Minnie Olive and Bob Owen, who appear very successfully in a musical comedietta, Wayside Tinkers; Willard's Merry Mannikins, an excellent marionette show, is accorded a good reception; Arthur Harris, actor-vocalist, sings a couple of songs in fine style; Lew Towers is a capable vocalist; the Raymond Trio are responsible for a good musical and dancing act; Tom Yorke, character comedian, is smart; Lucy Lynd, "the lassie from Lancashire," goes well; and interesting films are shown on the Harriscope.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd. — Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Frederick Melville's drama, Married to the Wrong Man, is rapturously received here. Jack Gladwin, the hero, receives a vigorous impersonation from Mr. Henry Lonsdale; and Mr. George Arthur, in the rôle of Captain Deering, is exceedingly clever. Mr. Syd Claydon is a piquant comedian; Archie Bird is convincingly portrayed by Mr. K. Marius St John; as the heroine, Miss Mary Pemberton's enactment is thrillingly human and impressive; Miss May Day makes a great success of Dolly Fritter. The scenery is thoroughly effective.

DOVER.—Royal Hippodrome.—An exceptionally strong bill is at the Royal this week, and includes May Lilian Levey, a clever male impersonator, in good songs; Lydia Dreams provides an excellent ventriloquial entertainment; C. H. Charlton completely mystifies the audience in a conjuring turn; Kenneth and Kane appear in the latest success, "Oh, oh, oh!" and Bains and company are warmly applauded for their knockabout turn. Violet Romaine is a charming chorus vocalist; and Edna James, comedienne, is very popular.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Miss Horniman's company is here, under the direction of Mr. B. Iden Payne, in a series of plays. On Monday The Silver Box attracted a capital house, and the play was admirably acted. Mr. Basil Dean sustained the part of Jack Barthwick effectively, and Mr. Ian Maclaren was most successful as Jones. Mr. Muriel Pratt did good work in the character of Wheeler; Miss Ada King gave a very efficient reading of Mrs. Jones; the part of John Barthwick, M.P., was in the able hands of Mr. Stanley Drewitt; and Mrs. Barthwick was cleverly presented by Miss Darragh. Miss Hilda Bruce Potter acted impressively as the Unknown Lady, and as Mrs. Seddon Miss Louise Holbrook filled the rôle in a perfect manner. Mr. Charles Bibby displayed his abilities excellently as the Detective Snow. The remaining parts were well portrayed. Widowers' Houses, Before the Dawn, and Candida are also in the week's bill.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fre'k. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—This is the concluding week of the present Hippodrome season. Miss Margaret Cooper as an entertainer proves herself most accomplished; the McLelland Carson Duo gives a good exhibition of trick and fancy roller-skating; the Selbit Mystery is interesting and amusing; Edward Crossland's Melody Makers provide a capital musical act; Austen Temple, magician, Sam Elton, comedian, and W. H. Webb and Edna Branston, duettists, also appear.

Queen's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott-Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—Here we have Miss Gwynne Warren and Co., in the farcical sketch The Lodger, well played by Miss Gwynne Warren, Mr. Fred Lloyd, and Mr. Herbert Glenville. Miss Dora Kinsella is heartily appreciated for her songs and dances; Keenan and Foy prove Russell; Mr. Sidney Crowe shows to advantage in the part of Wanda Lubinoff; and Miss Netta Mitchell gives a sympathetic performance of Nadine Strogoff.

PALACE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—There is no falling off in the popularity of the B.B. pictures here, and Monday night's large audiences at both houses were delighted with the varied and interesting programme presented. One of the best films is The Honour of His Family, in which a colonel's son shows cowardice on the field of battle, and at a terrible price the old soldier keeps the honour of the family unsullied. Other pictures include A Terrible Punishment, The Adventurers, A Day with Boy Scouts, Playing Truant, The Drunkard's Child, &c., while the talking and singing picture Mona proves a popular item.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. W. Austin.—A capital picture programme is submitted this week, and gives much satisfaction to large and appreciative audiences.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Newman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Noble.—Mr. Newman's programme is, as usual, an excellent one, and includes all that is newest and best in the film line, the clear manner in which the pictures are shown adding much to their enjoyment.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Folly's Fortune is being presented here this week by Miss Maude Western's company. Miss Western as Folly Vaughan and Mr. Joe Ellis as Billy Boyd are highly successful in their respective parts; Misses Maudie Lambert, Ada Hender, and Nellie Lambert, and Messrs. John Levey, James Willoughby, William May, Laurie Lawrence, and Walter Buckstone help the general success. The singing of the Folly's Male Voice Prize Glee Party is much appreciated. The piece is well staged.

DURHAM.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes.—The principal turn of a good programme is Ted Karno and Company's sketch Hotel de Quick, which creates roars of laughter; in a whistling scena Arthur Slater worthily receives a hearty welcome; and the Cecilias, lady instrumentalists, are much appreciated; Fred Gibbon and Marie Bell are encored for a smart acrobatic contortionist act; Johnny Dwyer, in capital form, proves a favourite; Sterling and Casher rouse laughter and are expert dancers; and Hal Crousette scores as an actor-vocalist. The Cathedoscope shows an Anarchical Plot.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Miss Madge Crichton and company are appearing here in The Artfulness of Ada. Miss Crichton as Ada Byron Bruce is delightfully natural, bright, and charming; Mrs. Glynne is played with much cleverness by Miss Valerie Crespin; Miss Kate Kearney does good work as Mrs. Googlie; and Miss Ethel Hart gives satisfaction as Lucy; Mr. Frank Tennant displays refinement and much ability as the romantic actor, Byron-Bruce; Mr. Arthur Armfield is a calm and easy-going Jopling; Mr. Alick Chumley is an individual Tom; Mr. J. F. Knowles a good Fred; Mr. S. B. Farbridge an energetic Governor, and Miss Nellie Shirley a quietly effective McClosky. Auld Robin Gray precedes, and is well played. On Thursday afternoon Mr. George Alexander and his company were billed to appear in The Importance of Being Earnest.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—Heading the bill here are the Ellesmere Troupe of cyclists—two ladies and two gentlemen—who are both daring and smart; Mr. James Stewart, the quaintly humorous and clever tramp at the piano, is again a great favourite; Messrs. Brayne and Lloyd return to achieve much success with the funny sketch, Tree of Truth; Peter Pan patters amusingly, and displays looseness in a legmania act; Mr. Billy French is a capital dancer; the Fitzroys have a very pleasing trapeze speciality; new pictures are shown, and Mr. Jay Barrie, comedian, and Miss Lelia Russell, comedienne, complete the bill.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—We are being favoured with another return visit of the Raynor répertoire company, who have proved such an attraction in the past. The plays for this week are Moths, Jim the Penman, and David Garrick. In the first-named Mr. Rayner as Lord Jura repeated his previous successes, the same remark applying to Mr. Clinton Baddeley as Prince Sergius Zouroff. Mr. Milton C. Curtis as the Duke of Mull and Cantire acted in a thoroughly artistic manner; Raphael de Corrèze had a capable exponent in Mr. Conrad Heywood; Miss Cecilia Dare as the Duchess de Sonnaz is to be complimented on her impersonation; and Miss Dora Dench as Vere Herbert also proved herself a thoroughly accomplished and painstaking actress. The part of Lady Dolly Vanderdecken was in the hands of Miss Frances Waring, who made the most of her opportunities.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company opened a fortnight's engagement here on Monday with Samson and Delilah, not hitherto heard in Edinburgh, and the interest in the production was evidenced by a crowded house. Mme. Zelie de Lussan created a great impression as Delilah, which she interpreted both vocally and dramatically with consummate art; Mr. Joseph O'Mara sang and acted with artistic spirit and effectiveness in the rôle of Samson; Mr. Charles Magrath was suitably fitted with the part of the old Hebrew; and Mr. William Dever made a dignified High Priest; while Mr. Charles Moorhouse did well as Abimelech. Tannhäuser was presented on Tuesday, with Mme. Fanny Moody as Elizabeth, Mr. O'Mara as the hero, Mr. Magrath as the Landgrave, Mr Lewys James as Wolfram, and Miss Kate Anderson as Venus. With this excellent cast, and the chorus augmented by the Edinburgh Grand Opera Society, a thoroughly successful rendering of this popular work was secured. Samson and Delilah was repeated on Wednesday. Miss Bessie Weir and Mr. Philip Brozel taking the name-parts with gratifying success. Faust, on Thursday, gave Mme de Vere Sapio and Mr. Charles Manners an opportunity of pleasing their many friends and admirers, and on Friday the second great attraction of the week was found in the production of La Tosca, with Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. O'Mara in the leading rôles; Puccini's work being preceded by Maitre Seiler, in which Miss Raymonde Amy and Mr. Seth Hughes appeared. A matinée performance of Samson and Delilah, and The Bohemian Girl in the evening of Saturday, Miss Anderson and Mr. Manners taking the rôles of Arline and Devilshoof, completed an excellent programme for the opening week, during which the untiring efforts of the conductors have received well-merited appreciation.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Lewis Carroll's books, "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass" have given pleasure to hundreds of thousands of young readers, and a large audience filled the Theatre Royal on Monday, when a company under the direction of Mr. H. Cecil Beryl began a week's engagement with an adaptation of the two stories. The clever child, Miss Ivy Sawyer, as Alice, displayed in acting, singing, and dancing not only remarkable intelligence, but a finish that would have done no discredit to an actress of riper growth. Mr. Franklyn Vernon was very droll as the Mad Hatter; and the amusing business of Mr. Roland Henry and Mr. Tom Grattan as the Gryphon and the Mock Turtle and as Tweedledee and Tweedledum caused shouts of laughter; Miss Iris Damon as the Queen of Hearts and the White Queen acted with appropriate vigour, and Miss Girlie Le Claire as the Cheshire Cat played with admirable discretion; Mr. Dan Leno, jun., as the Caterpillar and the Red King revealed much of the paternal ability as a dancer, and the First Fairy and the Lily, as acted by Miss Ada Danks, were very sweet and graceful. The piece was mounted with conspicuous taste.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—An admirable programme here is headed by Chung Ling Soo, the marvellous Chinese illusionist, whose feats of sleight-of-hand are as bewildering as they are smartly executed; Miss Amelie de l'Enclos sings with admirable expression and vocal power, and is loudly applauded; Miss Emma Don, fashionably attired in good taste, gives proof of much ability as a male impersonator in her vocal scena, "On the Thames Embankment"; the Sisters St. Julian are capable duettists and dancers, and Queen and Le Brun excite immense laughter by their amusing sketch, The Cockney Huntsman; Mr. Rossi Ashton, a clever artist, draws with rapidity and executive ability pictures to illustrate popular songs; the Brothers Bright are seen in a dashing athletic turn, in which the performers display extraordinary strength; Jakio, a Japanese mimic, imitates with notable fidelity various familiar sounds; and Mr. Tom Lloyd, comedian, Mr. W. Fullbrook and company in an absurdity entitled Astronomy, and pictures by the Bioscope complete the bill.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Muscard.—Mr. Nelson Jackson delights his audiences with a fund of song and story rendered in the happiest style; the Three Sisters Sprightly contribute a characteristically animated and agreeable series of burlesques; the "Vampire Dance," executed by Miss Mildred Deverez, assisted by Tom Terris, is weirdly effective; and Miss Iris Banfield, favourably known as the principal boy in a recent pantomime, has a cordial reception; the Four Eugenes supply an admirable turn of aerial gymnastics; El Tampico's Mexican Troubadours win much approval in their musical and dancing act; Duncan and Brasque appear successfully in a duologue entitled A Society Butterfly; Robins and Collier create diversion in The Lady and the Porter sketch; a noval and thrilling display on a steel wire is presented by the Great Albas; and Will Mitcham shows considerable skill as a vocal and instrumental comedian.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—The Negro Burglar is the outstanding picture in this week's programme, and represents a robbery in which one thief turns upon another in a moment of remorse. The Robbers of Fingal's Creek gives the opportunity for some fine water-effects; and the Indian Wife's Devotion is a dramatically-told story. An Alpine film shows a beautiful series of mountain scenery; and there are good humorous pictures besides. Mr. Dave Summerhill, Scotch comedian, makes a successful appearance.

PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—Buried Alive, On the Reef, and The Sins of the Fathers are all powerful and interesting subjects in the programme here. Servant and Master and Pudding-Back Pincher are pictures of a humorous nature, which serve their purpose of eliciting uproarious laughter from the audience. Ellene and Rose and Rose D'Aulby (a pleasing vocalist) contribute turns in the variety portion of the entertainment.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. A. Austin-Leigh's modern stock company entered upon the last week of their season here on Monday, when Trilby was presented. In the difficult rôle of Svengali Mr. A. Austin-Leigh was seen at his best; Miss Kathryn Collier in the name-part quickly won the hearts of her audience; Mr. Wallis Clark was a capital Little Billee; Messrs. J. B. Fox and Gerard Wynne being excellent as Taffy and Sandy respectively; Mr. Ernest Bodkin made an admirable Gecko; Mr. Walter Bannister an interesting Zou-Zou; and Miss Emmie O'Reilly a successful Mme. Vinard.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident- and Acting-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—The Ten Loonies, in their highly-amusing and original musical sketch, Dotty, head the bill here; Mlle. Tudora introduces her educated ponies; the Lashmars, a comic couple, win popularity; Yolande Noble has some up-to-date numbers; Blair and Allen contribute a smart vocal and dancing act; another popular number being that of the Birkenhead Family, a juvenile troupe.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. H. Leslie Bell's pantomime Cinderella has been the attraction at the Grand this week. Miss Winifred makes a charming Prince, and is well supported by Miss Lilly Pearl in the title-part, and by the other principals. The comedians are a strong feature of the production, and include Yost and Yost and Lew Towers, who contribute some clever speciality business in conjunction with the Kitina Dancing Girls.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—A welcome visit of Mr. John E. Watson's company in The New Boy is attracting well. The title rôle is effectively played by Mr. F. G. Thurstans; Dr. Candy has a capable exponent in Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood acts well as Felix Roach; Mr. Alfred Field Fisher is a humorous Theodore; and as Bullock Major Mr. Leo Lilly is all that can be desired; Miss Phyllis Manners is excellent as Mrs. Rennick; Miss Evelyn Ormonde is a charming and dainty Nancy; and Miss Vera Wallace and Mr. H. F. Wildy are quite good in the little they have to do as Susan and Mr. Stubber respectively. The play is preceded by Mr. Alfred Field Fisher in a humorous sketch, entitled An Afternoon Call.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Lewers and Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The variety company consists of the Two Walonells, acrobats, Miss Daisy Reed, comedienne and speciality dancer, Miss Ethel Colyer, skipping-rope dancer, Leslie Campbell, comedian, and Mr. Edward Jose, who, supported by his company, gives an interesting and clever dramatic sketch entitled The Strike.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local-Manager and Licensee, Councillor Harold Arnold.—The "star" here is Signor Arvi, who, with the Metabliscope, presents some very artistic illusions; the Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers provide an enjoyable turn; Cole and Rags, eccentric jugglers, have several new gags, which never fail to raise a laugh; one of the most successful items on the list is Horace White's ventriloquial turn; Ted Cowan is a quaint comedian; Miss May B. Brilliant is praised for two daintily rendered songs; Dainty Dolly Clyffe, child comedienne, and the Kingscope are also attractive lines.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, in His Real Wife, is here. Mr. J. W. Evelyn is seen to advantage as the farmer Martin Avondale; Mr. Clifford Rean ably sustains the part of Herbert Barton; an excellent Colombe is done by Mr. Chas. Yorke; the comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. T. Edward Ward as Simon Bletherell and Miss Clarrie Yandall as Betty Tuttlebee; and Miss Ward gives a fine impersonation of Rose Avondale.

GLASGOW.—GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company commenced a two weeks' engagement on Monday with an admirable performance of Carmen, under the direction of Mr. Walter Van Noorden. Miss Doris Woodall took the title-rôle, and once again charmed her many admirers here with her vivid portrayal of the wayward gipsy; Mr. E. C. Hedmondt was in excellent voice, and carried through the tenor part in brilliant style; the Escamillo of Mr. Hebden Foster was a dashing performance; Miss Beatrice Miranda was the Micaela, and sang with great purity and grace; the parts of Zuniga and Morales were adequately represented by Mr. Alexander Richard and Mr. Frank Rowe; Mr. Frederick Clendon made a very good Dancairo; Mr. Wm. O'Connor was amusing as Remendado; the parts of Frasquita (Miss Elizabeth Pridham) and Mercedes (Miss Marion Broom) were also fittingly filled. On Tuesday Verdi's tragic opera Destiny (La Forza del Destino) was given for the first time in Scotland, and proved a triumph for Miss Gertrude Vania and Mr. Walter Wheatley, whose singing in the principal parts was worthy of the highest praise; Mr. Frederick Clendon, Mr. Alexander Richard, Mr. Arthur Winckworth, and Miss Douglas Wilson sustained the other leading characters. Mr. Eugene Goossens conducted. Lohengrin, Marriage of Figaro, Fidelio, Tannhäuser, and Il Trovatore complete the week.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. Herbert Vere's company is here in the historic drama Napoleon the Great. The principal part is in the hands of Mr. Vere, who gives a dignified and artistic portrayal of the character. He has the able support of Miss Kate Walfred as Marie Walewska, a part for which she is eminently suited. Mr. Charles H. Lincoln, Mr. Vivian Charles, Mr. Charles Brandon, Mr. Frederick Biron, Mr. George Millard, and Miss Nancy Roberts have a great deal to do with the success of the production. The staging of the piece is excellent and the dresses and uniforms in complete harmony.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Frank Lindo and his company are presenting the romantic play Love, the Conqueror. Brian Norval is effectively played by Mr. Frank Lindo, who brings to bear upon his portrayal experience and ability. As Beatrice Mortimer Miss Marion Wakeford acts with grace and refinement; Mr. Leonard Laurence cleverly sustains the part of the vengeful Count Leon Lascelles, and Mr. Sidney Dench fills the rôle of Sir John Mortimer with signal success; to the character of William of Orange Mr. Eric S. Crowther brings a dognity of bearing and demeanour; laughter greets Mr. Bert Dench as Peter, and in conjunction with Miss Helene Thomson as Susan Shortly he keeps the ball of merriment rolling; Mr. Morton Shields (Captain Armadale), Miss Nellie Benson (Dame Norval), and Mr. Harry Belford (And. Albertee), all play their respective parts with credit.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A good house witnessed the initial performance here of The Eyes of the World, produced by Ethel Van Praagh and J. Edward Whitty's company. From the opening scene the interest is never allowed to flag, and Miss Ethel Van Praagh, who enacted Helene de l'Orme, the wronged wife, had to respond to recalls at the end of each act; Mr. J. Edward Whitty as M. Achille Fanfarade divided the honour of supplying the humorous element with Miss Nellie Garside as Mlle Susanne Pomfleure, a most vivacious lady; Mr. Charles O'Connor, in the ungracious part of M. Hector de l'Orme, carried himself well until retribution overtook him at the hands of the injured husband; Mr. Fred Bentley as M. Gaston de Carnac proved his capabilities, more especially in the final scene when confronted with his wife's guilt; Miss Flora Hastings as Mme. Esme de Carnac looked and spoke the part well; Mr. A. Wilson Wynne as Octave and Miss Elsie Capell as Avice played the youthful lovers to perfection; and Mr. R. Wilton Bedford as M. Paul Roqueville gave a finished study. Mr. Harold Forde acted Brigard (an old servant) as to the manner born. The play was admirably staged in every detail.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—The star turn here this week is Miss Evie Greene, who gives delightfully varied selections from her extensive repertoire; Elsie Roby, dressed as a slavey, actively sings and dances to her own piano accompaniment; Sammy Shields vividly portrays the excitement and humour of the football field; Thora, who poses as a lady ventriloquist, has a dummy page, who sings very pleasantly; Gertie Gitana is a great favourite, and uses her fine voice effectively, being also a graceful dancer; Rich and Rich keep the fun going with witty patter; Sam Mayo's quaintly quiet humour is highly infectious; the Bros. O'Brien do some feats both graceful and daring on the trapeze; G. W. Hunter, comedian and raconteur, Cumminger and Colonna, sand dancers, &c., with the American Bioscope complete a pleasing bill.

PAVILION, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Foster.—Arthur Prince, the nautical ventriloquist, with his amusing dummy, causes roars of laughter; Maude Mortimer is again popular with her well-rendered songs; Harry Ford scores in his new songs; Harriet Vernon gives a clever song-scena; Katie Butler is a comedienne of much originality; and a lively sketch, The Editor's Imp, affords numerous opportunities for Reg Bolton, of which he takes full advantage. The O'Gorman Bros. in a smart turn, Leslie Race, vocal comedian, and Arthur Croxon in an enjoyable item, complete.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Jack and Evelyn, in their latest act, Introductions, create a favourable impression; another member of the O'Connor family, Tim, a younger brother to Jack and Evelyn, has quite a flattering reception for his dancing; that quaint comedy couple Ross and Grayson are much appreciated; Lily Lonsdale is possessed of a capital voice, of which she makes the best use; Ernie Myers is always amusing with his patter; good eccentric work is got through by the Boriskis; the Sisters Terry can always be relied on to put forward a good turn; Dave Carter sings Irish songs with much acceptance; Amy Russell is most successful in the numbers which she contributes; in a musical act W. McNally proves himself master of the dulcimer; and the Palacescope films conclude.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Pleasing variety is lent to a grand picture show by a couple of good variety turns, Sabino, the musical marvel, who delighted the patrons with an entertaining performance on various instruments, and Miss Marie Leslie, descriptive vocalist, in an illustrated Scotch song. The pictures are all new, and, as usual, judiciously selected. The travel subjects—Pekin and its Environs, Scenes in Morocco, and Winnipeg, the World's Wheat Centre—are really interesting and educative. The Biblical series is The Life of Moses. Romance is represented by A Daughter of the Sioux, The Lost Jewel, and The Highlander's Defiance. Fun is provided by Life in the Next Century, The Hero, How a Bad-Tempered Man was Cured, and The Professor and the Cats. The talking and singing picture is a fine one, entitled The Whistler and His Girl. Thursday being St. Patrick's Day, the programme for that evening was distinctly Irish in character.

COLISEUM. — District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Neil Kenyon, after his long panto season at the Grand, is starring here, and contributing those realistic little sketches of life in Dunrobin in his own inimitable style. Herbert Sleath's company appear in a thrilling playlet, The Deputy Sheriff, which is well acted; Tom Costello renders several good songs in his best manner; Heeley and Meely, the American knockabouts, contribute an enjoyable turn; Lily Burnand once more proves a favourite; the Tan-Kwai troupe of acrobats perform some novel and daring feats; Jean and Josie are a couple of clever contortionists.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The Bros. Starr are responsible for a most enjoyable turn, both vocal and dancing; Daisy Dashwood proves a favourite with her catchy songs; Jack Rameay the versatile Scot keeps his audiences in good humour; Alf Vivian's contributions are received with appreciation; Flo Du Barrie's impersonations are good; and the Bioscope films are instructive and amusing.

BOSTOCK'S JUNGLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank E. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. Harry E Tudor.—This capital entertainment is still attracting large crowds of both old and young, and the excellent zoological collection provides an opportunity of spending a very pleasant and instructive afternoon or evening. The arenic performances are all par excellence. M. Gaillard, lion trainer, is to be complimented on his great skill and tact in training the animals to such perfection; Mme. Morelli, the Queen of Jaguars, does a unique performance; Scholz, with his human brained elephant Blondin, is marvellous and most amusing. A number of very amusing interludes are sandwiched between the more serious and exciting turns, while the side shows form a strong source of attraction.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL AND PICTUREDROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Topping the bill is the fine film illustrating Alexander Dumas' famous novel, "Monte Cristo." Other pictures include The Electric Hotel, Saved by a Gipsy, A Romance of Old Madrid, and Birdie in Search of a Husband. Pleasing variety is given by the Lafrasers, in clever singing, dancing, and patter; Miss Evie Hamilton is a charming soubrette and dancer; and Mr. Ernest Wybert is amusing.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Will Smithson; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—A return to the "legitimate" has now been made here, and a clever and talented company opened with Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy invests the part of John Durham with deep interest, and the Hon. Reginald Steighton in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Leigh is most effective. Lord Mountfallon is excellently enacted by Mr. William Calvert, and Mr. Charles Wemyss as Mr. Vallerton is eminently satisfactory. Mrs. Durham is impressively portrayed by Miss Nellie Bonser, and a dignified Lady Mountfallon is presented by Miss Francis Wolviston. The Hon. Margaret Steighton is charmingly enacted by Miss Dorrie Turner, and the same remark applies to Miss Florence Tressilian as Helen Vallerton. Mr. Frank Elton as Arthur Walcombe and Mr. W. F. Chitherow as Ben Versteen appear to advantage; and other characters are well played by Mr. Sydney Bancroft as Mr. Mintborough, Mr. Chas. Phipps as Mr. Lubenham, Mr. John Hartt, Mr. Geo. Lake, Mr. Eric Wynne, and Mr. Bert Gunter.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Hainsworth.—At the top of the bill is Phil Terris, eccentric comedian, who creates much laughter; Harry and Maud score with their duologue; Marie D'Alcourt is popular with her pleasing songs; the Mannikins give an amusing dancing and singing turn; and the up-to-date pictures by the Monarchscope complete a good bill.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Messrs. J. Willard and company appear in the clever dramatic sketch The Ace of Hearts, which finds much favour; Zeta Russell is a bright and vivacious comedienne and dancer; Dan Fraser is a good Scotch comedian; the Baynhams, comedy musical artists, are extremely good; Renee Leyton is well styled the ideal singer of chorus and songs; Bertini, piper and campanologist, is well received for his musical act; and Cash and Clair, comedians and dancers, are a decidedly smart pair.

GREENOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Judith, the Woman Who Sinned, is being presented here by Miss Augusta Tullock's company. Miss Tullock's impersonation of Judith is a particularly good one, and Mr. Edward Vivian as Jack Carrington is also responsible for a clever portrayal. Mr. J. Thornley makes the most of the adventurer's rôle, Eugene Darville; and as Silas Norris Mr. William Kirk displays ability. Sergeant Jones is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Harry King; and Miss Rose Watson as Mrs. Jones does well.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—A Concert Rehearsal, presented by Lady Mansel's Juveniles, is assigned the premier position, and affords delight; Craig, Roze, and Craig, in their gymnastic act, are very clever; Ray, Miles, and Ray are expert comedy jugglers; Edgar Forrest and company, in My Friend, the Enemy, are responsible for hearty laughter; Sophie, a popular little artist, sings and dances well; and others entertaining are Barrie Gilmour, acrobatic comedian, and Jeanie MacIntyre, vocalist; while the Dromoscope shows an interesting series of pictures.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. J. Bennell; General-Manager, Mr. J. B. Lawton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Clayton.—The principal picture shown here this week is The Heart of a Cowboy, which proves highly attractive. The Lyons Mail is also one that appeals to the dramatic instinct of the audience. The comic element is abundant in Foolshead's Crime, Pals, and Accompanied on the Tom-tom. Other pictures are Cozette, The Postman, and Love's Triumph. In the Evening by the Moonlight is given on the Cinephone.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The Woman in the Case is presented by Mr. Herbert Sleath. Miss Winifred Pearson realises in vivid fashion the notorious Claire Foster; Miss Kathleen Russell gives a portrayal of Margaret Rolf that is full of womanly tenderness; Mr. William Kershaw represents Julian Rolf with marked success; Mr. James Lindsay puts in some vigorous and convincing acting in the fine part of Thompson, the lawyer; and others responsible for good work are Mr. Paul Wynter as Jimmy O'Neil, Mr. Sydney Palfrey as Louis Klauffsky, and Miss Mary Griffiths as Mrs. Hughes.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—The bewildering illusions presented by Rameses are occasioning much interest; the act is especially well staged; Adam Tomlinson is a comedian with a rich fund of really good stories which he tells with excellent effect; Benn's Dutch Boys and Girls give an attractive singing and dancing speciality; Hampton and Bauman are a pair of talented coloured artists who sing and dance well; the Austral Trio combine in pleasing style vocal and instrumental music with comedy; Hendrick and Laura sing well and accomplish smart eccentric dancing; and Harriet Rose is a successful comedienne.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessee, Mr. Matt. Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Maxwell Edwardes.—An impressively dramatic picture is the Silent Watches of the Night, whilst the Western Maid is also a subject of much interest; other good films include the Fireman's Wedding, the King Opening Parliament, and an ample budget of comic subjects.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIANS.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week the boards are held by Mr. Frank Weathersby's company in The Shadows of a Great City. Mr. Alec Forbes as Tom Cooper is forcible; Mr. Bert Ellis is sufficiently villainous as George Benson; Mr. Byron Douglass is an effective Abe Nathan; Mr. R. C. Carlton a capable Arkwright; and Mr. C. Allister is satisfactory as Jim Farren; Miss Viola March cleverly hits off the character of Biddy Roonan, and Miss Nellie Murray cleverly sustains the parts of Annie and Nellie.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. George Dance's company is here with Our Miss Gibbs. Mr. Tom Shelford infuses into the part of the Hon. Hughie a refined humour that is infectious; Mr. E. Darrell makes a capital Earl of St. Ives; Mr. J. E. Stevenson is a realistic crook as Slithers; Mr. Theodore Leonard as Timothy Gibbs simply bubbles over with fun; Miss Gladys Ivery is clever as the wilful Lady Elizabeth; Miss Nancy Hervyn is good as Madame Jeanne; Miss Winifred Knightly makes a good Duchess; Miss Jennie Richards is well placed as Mrs. Farquhar; and Miss Kathleen Courtney is a fascinating Mary Gibbs.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Cassie Walmer, eccentric comedienne and dancer, is renewing former triumphs; the Millwards, smart acrobats, introduce quaint bits of humour; the Geni Family, as risley performers, meet with overwhelming applause; May Poulton is an attractive comedienne; Fred Lincoln, character comedian, is very amusing; and Bert E. Edwards, silleur and raconteur; Fyne and Hurley, comedians; and a couple of excellent pictures complete.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Cheebert's Royal Imperial Chinese present a clever acrobatic and conjuring entertainment; the Howard Collinson Trio are responsible for an excellent turn, with A Bit of Dresden China; Zellini is a clever comedy juggler; Slippere, the blind musician, provides an entertaining turn; the Three Langfords are dancers of exceptional ability; and J. H. Ellis, comedian; Gladys Revell, chorus comedienne; and the pictures complete.

HAMILTON, N.B. — HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Musical-Director, Mr. J. Millar.—Frank Elliston and company, in a clever little playlet Long Live the King, tops the bill here, and proves popular; Fred Carr and Ada Rose are accorded a good reception in their vocal scena, "After a Night Out"; Lily Edwards is a dainty comedienne with a personality of her own; Harry Levaine is droll in the extreme; Alik Lukos, vocalist and quick-change artist, is distinctly clever in his mimicry; the Five Whiteleys are a smart troupe of acrobats, who introduce some clever wire walking; George Hirste, Scotch comedian; and Mary and Skila, Scotch entertainers; together with the Bioscope conclude an excellent programme.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in The Earl and the Girl, is this week attracting fine houses. The chorus is magnificently dressed (in Act 2 in Chantecler costumes). Mr. Bert Beswick is capital as Jim Cheese; Mr. H. St. John is successful as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Francis Rayne plays the Hon. Boodle in refreshing style; Mr. S. Lysons as Downham is good; Mr. J. M. East as Bunker Bliss is praiseworthy; and Mr. A. Cassidy, Mr. J. W. Woodbridge, and Mr. G. St. Oude play with success. Miss Lily Gullick is a charming Liza Shoddam; Miss Blanche Astley a delightful Daisy; and Miss Beatrice Hayden as Mrs. Shimmering Black and Miss Anton Laign as Virginia Bliss are well placed.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The chief turn here is Miss Clarice Mayne, a most enchanting lady. The Westbrooks, in a scena, Two Little Maids; Las Manolas Gaditana, in an Andalusian gipsy scene; Jack Barker, in The Birthday Party; Holden's wonderful mannikins, with a clever Salome dance; J. W. Rickaby, in character eccentricity; the Athos Troupe of acrobats; and the Grand pictures are the other attractions of a fine bill.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. Keith Kenneth's company occupied the theatre in the military play The Woman of Kronstadt. Mr. Bernard Copping as Captain Zassulic made an acceptable hero; Mr. Kenneth as Colonel Bonza was acceptable; Mr. Lionel West was an excellent Bassett Holmer; Miss Betty Fairfax a clever Marion Best; and Miss Edith Vogne a dignified Princess Mary, Miss Rosamund Thompson as Mme. de Bellegrande did well.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Mr. Frank Weathersby's company is here with The Best People. Mr. Henry Watson takes the part of the Hon. Gerald Bayle in artistic style; as Lord Emsworth Mr. Charles King is admirably clear and natural; Jackson is well sustained by Mr. Cyril Royce; Mr. Frank Bradley faithfully represents Lord Wynlea; Mr. Edmund Hollick is convincing as James Spofforth; Miss Irene Lavington is a bright and dainty Lady Emsworth; and as the Hon. Mrs. Bayle Miss Dorrie Roberts acts with animation and humour. The comedy is preceded by The Tooth of Necessity.

HASTINGS PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Ben Jackson, the trick soloist and banjoist, heads the programme; Baby Irene Velma is a talented comedienne and dancer; Hugo and Smit are highly amusing in a bar act; a remarkable display of memory is shown by Memora, who answers any questions put to him; Thomas Bentley cleverly depicts characters from Dickens; Winnie Melville is a pleasing vocalist; the Sprees create great fun in a comedy duo; Will Harmony is an excellent mimic; and the clever conjuring of Anthony is one of the most attractive items on the bill.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Durie.—Mr. Dickie Clare and company in the musical comedy Lucky 'Liza are here. Mr. Dickie Clare in the triple rôle of Silas Slim from New York, the Judge, and the French Waiter scores a huge success; Mr. F. W. Benson is a capital Peter Pettitoe; Marie is amusingly rendered by Miss Belle Russell; Mr. J. W. Forrester as Wm. Bullock. For the latter part of the week Messrs. T. C. Wray and Mr. Austin Hurgont's company were announced to appear in The Girls of Gottenberg.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Silver Box is being presented by Mrs. Clement Scott and company. Mrs. Scott plays Mrs. Jones with much pathetic power. A capital impersonation of John Barthwick, M.P., is given by Mr. Clarence Derwent, and Jack is very ably enacted by Mr. Arthur Vezin. Miss Agnes Imlay fills the rôle of Mrs. Barthwick with much effect, and Mr. Orlando Barnett's performance as Jones is followed with much interest. Other striking characters are undertaken by Miss Rita Trekelle, and Messrs. Hampton Gordon, James Geldered, Arthur Baxendell, W. R. Young, and H. E. Herbert. The Silver Box is preceded by Mrs. Hilary Regrets, ably taken by Miss Dulcie Conroy and Mr. J. C. Taylor.

The Royal Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The Bad Girl of the Family is here, Miss Violet Crossley being extremely successful in the principal rôle. Bess Moore is excellently played by Miss M. Tueskie. Mr. W. H. Hargreaves makes the most of Lieutenant Richard Marsh. The characters of Barney Gordon and Harry Gordon are in the capable hands of Mr. Luke Foster and Mr. G. R. Montford respectively. Lord Erskine is embodied by Mr. F. W. Freeman.

The Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Gatley.—Signor Rosi's ballet is an attraction here. Signorina Luisa Patti and Signorina C. Mossetti dance well. Bert Coote is extremely funny in a sketch, The Lamb of Wall Street, and is well supported by Miss Ada Russell and Mr. J. C. Aubrey. The wonderful Lukushimas do a smart performance. Lottie Bellman and Bay Russell prove themselves versatile artists. Harry Bedford is a big favourite, and other good turns are those of Jack Ross and Sue Lewis, Fred Elton, the Three Van Dammes and Jewel St. Leger.

The Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Harry First appears here in an amusing sketch, The Matrimonial Tie. Luis Hardt performs some good strength feats; Leslie and Stevens appear in a good act; and other favourites are Les Supriskis, Charles Woodward, Pete and Juno, Bessie Knight, and Marion Scott.

The Forsyths are excellent musical comedy artistes; Jas. and Jennie Lee appear in a clever cycling and wire act; and the songs and style of Bessie Heins are popular. The Waltons, Carina Sisters, Chas. Russell, and Six White Boys all do well.

The City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—J. W. Hall gets a good reception here with his amusing songs and patter. Other good turns are those of Rosie Bartlett, Rosie Lee, Abel and Welsh, Stuart and Stuart Sisters Albert and Ray, and Lingard.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—Another excellent attraction is presented here with Mr. Frank Curzon's company in The King of Cadonia. Mr. Bertie Wright maintains his high reputation with a very smart delineation of the Duke of Alasia, and Miss Alice Moffat as Princess Marie gives a charming portrayal. Mr. Edward Thirlby creates much laughter as the servant Bran; and other good embodiments are forthcoming from Mr. J. Warren-Foster as Alexis, Mr. Cameron Carr as Captain Laski, Mr. Jack Martin as General Bonski, Miss Mabel Hirst as Militza, and Miss Florence Legarde as the Duchess of Alasia. The play is beautifully dressed.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company is here on a return visit in the drama Life's Sweetest Sins. The various characters are again done full justice to by a good all-round company, and the play proves as interesting as ever.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleugh.—The principal attraction here is the illusionist, Lafayette; Victor Widdicombe and company are very amusing in their comedy episode, Her Devonshire Dad. Mr. Widdicombe as the old farmer, Miss Clara Russell as the daughter Alice, and Mr. Fred Hill as the son-in-law Gerald all playing their parts in first-rate style. Stewart and Morgan make a hit in their vocal speciality; Tony Black is a capital Scotch comedian, whose funny patter creates plenty of laughter; Billy Hobbs is a nimble nigger, who receives plenty of applause for his smart dancing; Rhoda Paul, a capital male impersonator, is also entertaining; and the Bioscope is still a feature.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—Mr. Martin Henry and Miss Irene Ross head the bill with the dramatic sketch, The Silver Medal, a well-written sketch well performed; Jack Warman is a comedian and mimic who thoroughly deserves the applause bestowed; Dorothy Dare is an excellent male impersonator; Hearne and Palmer are good in their comedy acrobatic act, "The Hebrew and the Barman"; Morris and Moore shine in their refined and artistic dancing act; the Sisters Harcourt, duettists and dancers; Lizzie Round, male impersonator; and Harry Bland, comedian, are also entertaining. The pictures this week are very fine, and include Comata, the Sioux, A House Under Repair, and the Ragpicker's Christmas.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The operating-box here has now been finished in accordance with the new law. The two star pictures this week are A Drama in the Far West and A Rural Tragedy. Other very entertaining and amusing films include A Mistake in Addresses, Her First Biscuit, Mine at Last, The Dragoon's Helmet, Mr. Durrant, The Brave Little Organ Boy, The Hand, Mrs. Jones's Birthday, The King's Command, Father's Crime, and Adam II. Miss Lottie Lonsdale is making a farewell appearance here, and is a big hit.

LEIGH.—Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Mr. J. Wright Aitken's company top the bill here with The Battle of Life. Mr. Aitken as John Melville is received with well-deserved applause; Mr. David Fuller, baritone, is highly successful; Henri Bekker is an entertaining conjurer; Wyndham and Kitty give a clever performance on the wire; Fame and Fortune are amusing comedians; Shenton and Chicks have a neat and clever sketch; Fred Walmesley, comedian, finds favour; Vincent, in a novel acrobatic act, is clever; and the bioscope pictures complete.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The latest version of Mr. Hall Caine's Pete is the attraction here. Mr. Austen Gilroy achieves success in the name-part, and Kate Cregeen is effectively represented by Miss V. Malcolm Barnett. Mr. Alfred Gray ably sustains the rôle of Philip Christian; while Ross Christian and Cæsar Cregeen are well characterised by Mr. Frank Stone and Mr. Harry Pitt. The scenery and stage setting lack nothing in completeness. Cinematograph pictures provided during the entr'actes meet with much approval.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—George Edwardes' delightful musical comedy The Dollar Princess is here again, drawing big audiences. It is staged in truly magnificent style, and has a chosen company, all of whom carry off honours. Miss Clara Evelyn makes a fascinating Alice, and wins general favour by reason of her sweet singing and graceful dancing. Mr. Leonard Mackay repeats his admirable performance of Freddy Fairfax and sings effectively; Mr. Eric Thorne, as usual, convulses his audience with laughter by means of his droll Mr. Bulger, which he seems to play in even a funnier manner than formerly. On Monday evening Mr. Howard Cridland, in the absence of Mr. Louis Bradfield, gave a most creditable rendering of the rôle of the multi-millionaire; Miss Daisy Elliston charmingly impersonated Daisy; as Olga Miss Norma Whalley plays with spirit and vivacity; Mr. Paul Plunket does excellently as the Earl of Quorn; and Mr. Percy Davison makes a humorous Sir James.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—The record pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat closes to-night, much to the regret of Liverpool playgoers, who have been thronging the theatre. On Tuesday Miss Carrie Moore, the principal boy, had a bumper benefit.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The attraction this week is A Soldier's Honour, presented in capital style by Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley's company. Mr. T. Arthur Ellis sustains the rôle of Captain Deane most efficiently; Mr. Gordon Ingram acquits himself as Captain Temple; the heavy part of Henry Thornton is ably handled by Mr. Fellowes Bassett; Miss Edie Macklin, in her original creation of Jemima Eliza, earns much applause, and is soon a favourite; Miss Cissie St. Elmo plays strongly as Cora Lee; and a charming Doreen Illingworth comes from Miss Iza Lyndon.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week we are having a welcome return visit of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in Two Little Drummer Boys, which is proving highly acceptable. Mr. Edward Bikker holds his original part of General Kingsley, which he plays in fine style; as the rascally Captain George Darrell Mr. Polson Turner exhibits high powers; Mr. Frank Rogers handles the rôle of Captain Frank Carsdale with much satisfaction; the little drummer-boys are charmingly depicted by the Misses Maggie English and Maud B. Douglas; Privates O'Quirke and Timothy Trimmer find two capital exponents in Mr. Will Percy and Mr. Dick Seddon; and good work is also done by Mr. Wilson Holmes (Jim Barker), Miss Lilian A'Dell (Drunken Meg), Mr. Vernon H. Vayne (Lieutenant Kingsley), and Miss Violet Ingram (Alma Kingsley).

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Delighted audiences are crowding this popular house to witness a capital presentation of The Gay Gordons, brought by Mr. W. A. Seymour's company. As Peggy Quainton Miss Clarice Lockstone pleases everybody; Miss Florrie Groves is distinctly successful in the part of Charlotte Siddons; Mr. William Greene makes a popular Angus Græme, and acts admirably; a deal of comedy is supplied by Mr. Edward Carlton (Nervy Nat) and Mr. W. H. Desmond (Edmund Siddons), and other worthy supporters are Miss Tessa D'Alberti (Mary), Mr. Eric Ford (the Marquis), and Mr. Greville Hayes (Quainton).

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—George Leyton, heading the bill here, is having flattering receptions for his latest military scena The Roll Call, which is affording unbounded delight; Witty Wattie Walton keeps his audience in the best of humours; Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris present a merry turn, The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, which is received with every pleasure; the Tom Davies's Trio go through their sensational act of motoring in mid-air; the Georgia Coons have a neat song and dance entertainment; an all-round excellent show is provided by the Sutcliffe family, who distinguish themselves as acrobats, pipers and dancers; Stanley and Greenop gain loud applause for their really talented work as banjoists; and Will Johnson, comedian; Venie Clements, baby imitator; and Daisy Martell, comedienne, are also in the list.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Cullen and Carthy's funny pantomime, Babes in the Wood, which did excellent business here some weeks ago, is back again, enjoying much public patronage. The principals are Messrs. Arthur Stratton (Baron), Tom Drew (Dame), Little Cluley (Bantam), Cullen and Carthy (Robbers), Miss Bessie Cohen (Robin Hood), Miss Maudie Ford (Maid Marion), and Miss Marie Fern (Fairy Queen).

Royal Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hasan.—A big line here this week is The Flood Tide, from the pens of Cecil Raleigh and E. Heaton Grey, a drama that is ably presented by Harry P. Selwyn's company; W. T. Ellwanger and company have a screaming absurdity, Who Did It?; some smart trick and comedy cycling comes from the Rangers; the Four Vagabonds' Vocal Comedy Quartette gain rounds of applause for their sweet singing; Hayes and Merritt, the bounding trampolinists, are as excellent as ever; a pretty dancing act is submitted by the Three Cunards; Mlle. Pollo shines as a rapid lady gymnast, for which she is loudly applauded; Torti sings several numbers in good style; Kineras-Moulin, assisted by Mlle. Kioki, has a clever equilibristic novelty; and Marcus Boyle, comedian; and Flo Connolly, comedienne, also appear. The Bioscope shows Why Jones Couldn't Sleep.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Only a Woman, from the pen of Percy Ballard, is being presented here this week by the Stock Dramatic Company, the members of which are Messrs. Harry Tresham, Leo Montgomery, Sydney Grant, R. Seath Innes, Tom H. Solly, Cecil Ravenswood, E. D. Allen, and the Misses Gwynne Watson, Lilian Thorne, Gertrude Entwistle, Gertrude Gilman and Lina Nazeby. Brown's Bioscope shows The Sentinel's Romance.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Karno's merry sketch of Perkins, M.P., is here this week, with Albert Bruno as the candidate, supported by Miss Aggie Morris, Herbert Sidney, Tom Nelson, Vera Gilder, and Tim McDonough. The popular Ernest Shand is also prominent, and keeps his audience in continuous laughter with his latest; Archie Goodall, the ex-football player, brings a novel act, entitled Walking the Hoop, which is watched with interest; Charles Santon pleases with his soprano singing; Mabel Mavis presents a neat entertainment of music, etc.; Wood, Wells, and Wilkins have a popular vocal comedy sketch, The Piano Tuner, which is received with evident satisfaction; Tiny Arnold is a juvenile comedienne of merit; and Dacey and Lewis submit a lively show as eccentric acrobats, singers, and dancers.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Billy Merson, who proved so popular on his previous visits here, is again being received with every manifestation of delight; Maud Lordy's dog acrobats and actors please greatly; John S. Leick and Mabel Keith provide a musical turn in which they exhibit high accomplishments; George Hall sings and whistles very ably; some remarkable cycling is shown by the Olympian team, six in number; the Quality Quartette of male vocalists are accorded a hearty reception for their refined singing; Arthur Albert has some excellent points as a light comedian; and Manson and West have a merry dnologue, Telling the Tale.

LLANDUDNO.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arnold Macara.—Zasma tops the bill here in a good gymnastic display on trapeze and rings; Jack Trevor is clever as an ice skate dancer; Florence Carlow contributes some good buck and sand dances; the Haydn Trio gain applause for a musical absurdity; Brinsley Smith does well as an entertainer; and U. C. Ugo is clever in mirthful mysteries. The items are interspersed with some excellent bioscopic pictures.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Andrews; Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Poole's Myriorama is a great draw here, and the pictures are varied and up to date. Varieties are supplied by the clever Banzai Troupe of Japanese jugglers; Inez and Pim, nimble gymnasts; the Cairo Trio, in a good musical act; Sidney Bach, Welsh comedian; W. R. Rowlands, comedian; and the Brothers Conclos, military athletes.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Business-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—The attraction here is Mr. Tom Watt's strong company in East Lynne. The cast includes Miss Laura Hansen as Lady Isabel, Miss Ida Heron as Barbara Hare, Miss Isabel Singleton as Cornelia Carlyle, Miss Alice Moseley as Willie, and Miss Ethel Ray as Little Isabel. Mr. Royson-Cousens is responsible for the part of Archibald Carlyle; Mr. Wilfred P. Mansfield figures as Francis Levisen; Mr. Tom Watt as Lord Mountsevern; Mr. E. Elliott as Mr. Halijohn; Mr. Jerrold Manville as Justice Hare; Mr. Eric Lugg as Richard Hare; and Mr. Clifford Clifford as Lawyer Dill. Mr. Joe Rowland as P.C. Bullock introduces drolleries which serve to enhance by comparison the pathos of this popular old play. The company is a clever one, and the piece well produced.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—Mrs. Frank Bateman's company is providing a rich dramatic treat in The Way Women Love, the company being one of all-round excellence. Mrs. Frank Bateman presents a noteworthy performance as Verene Alabra; and good support is accorded by Messrs. Fred W. Goddard (Captain Howard Tremaine) and Percy Shaw, the last-named winning great applause for his clever whistling and comedy business. The scenery and dressing are good. Sapho and Camille are announced for later in the week.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. W. Alvar.—La Vie is creating a big success in a remarkable series of living statuary; Welida and Wynne introduce a comedy act, combined with clever juggling and sand-dancing; Suzie Dale renders some popular numbers; and Chas. Bradford, who claims to be the original "Billy Muggins," rattles off a number of humorous ditties. The pictures are of all-round excellence.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Fred Granville's company is here with Another Man's Wife. Mr. S. Radcliffe plays with excellent judgment the rôle of Carlos de Vergas; Paul Bernstoff is powerfully depicted by Mr. Alfred D. Adams; Mr. G. Sutherland's impersonation of Gilbert Eardley leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Willie Reid is conspicuous as Sam Smiles; and Mr. L. Marshall makes a capital Andy Bremmer. Miss R. Lonesraine is a charming Lucie de Vergas; Miss L. Radbourne an effective Inez de Castro; Miss Lily Griffin as Maisie Matterson deserves praise; and Lucy and Tibby are pleasingly represented by Miss Phyllis Spalding and Miss Marion Mayne.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire company opened here on Monday, in The Gondoliers. As usual, there was a good attendance, and a capital performance was given, two old favourites, Mr. Henry A. Lytton (the Duke of Plaza-Toro) and Mr. Fred Billington (Don Alhambra), being especially notable in a remarkably clever and well-balanced cast. The central quartet—Marco and Giuseppe and Gianetta and Tessa—found very pleasing exponents in Messrs. Henry Herbert and Leicester Tunks, both fine singers, and Mrs. Arthur Rousbey and Miss Beatrice Boarer; while Miss Bertha Lewis did well as the Duchess, and Miss Mabel Graham acted nicely as Casilda. On Tuesday Iolanthe was given with similar success, and on Wednesday Patience, followed by The Mikado, The Pirates of Penzance (and Trial by Jury), and a matinée of The Yeomen of the Guard. The company remains a fortnight.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heye.—A second week of Cavaliere Castellano's Italian Grand Opera company opened here with a performance of Donizetti's La Favorita, the rendering of which, however, suffered apparently from lack of rehearsal.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Sensational fare is provided here in the shape of Sexton Blake, Detective, which has already received the approval of local audiences. The title-rôle is very effectively filled by Mr. Murray Yorke (assisted by the bloodhound Pedro), and heroic interest is agreeably provided by Mr. Edward McLean as Roger Blackburn, and Miss Elizabeth Watkins as Marjorie Lovell. Mr. Paul Barry Lewers plays forcibly as the villainous Randolph Lovell, being ably assisted by Miss Sinna St. Clair as Philadelphia Kate, and further supplemented in evil-doing by Mr. Sidney Barnes as Simon Faggas, a burglar. In the light rôle of Tinker Mr. Will Glaze is especially prominent, and Miss Betty Seymour makes good use of her opportunities as Euphemia Patacake.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Hearne.—A return visit of Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, in The Old Folks at Home, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Geo. Steel and Miss Maud Warburton are outstanding features as Andrew Ross and Dorothy Robin respectively. Good also are Mr. Frank Liston as the dissolute Lord Kenilworth and Miss Kate Froud as Patricia; while Mr. Vincent Wardle as the dumb hunchback, Jock, is remarkably good, and much acceptable humour is added by Mr. George Scully and Miss Ada Frank. It will be a matter of interest to many to know that Mr. Henry Hearne has returned to the duties of management here.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. A. Chilton Alderson's company are here this week in a very interesting and effective drama, entitled The Coal King. Mr. Henry Deane as Tom Roberts, the mine manager, gives a very natural rendering; Mr. Robert Faulkner is good as the villainous Walter Hartford; Miss Dennis Duncan is capitally placed as Mad Ann; Grace Shirley has a pleasing exponent in Miss Winifred Love; and good work is added by Mr. Frank Dalton as Dick Shirley and Mr. A. W. Norman as Sir Reginald, the title-part. Mr. Sam Roberts and Miss Effie D. Crawford do well in the comic rôles. A feature of the play is the Entombment Scene, which is very realistically depicted.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—The star turn here is Fred Karno's company, in The Dandy Thieves, which loses nothing in brightness and popularity. Also prominent is the Mysterious De Biere, who presents an elaborate sequence of illusions. Another good turn is that of the Mysterious Marriotts, wonderful mind-readers; while Seeley, West, and Rhodesia add some fine entertainment. Other pleasing items are the Martons, in a comedy duologue; Tom Franks, ventriloquist; Layton and Douglas, instrumental soloists; and the Hargreaves Trio, in comedy.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Seldom has this popular hall been so crowded as it is this week, large numbers nightly being unable to obtain admission. This is due chiefly to the joint appearance at the head of the bill of George Formby and Whit Cunliffe; and it would be hard to exaggerate the amount of appreciation each receives in their separate line of work. The other place of honour is occupied by Frank Danby and J. C. Piddock, in a very amusing and picturesque comedy playlet, Cupid's Arms, which is also prominently successful. We have, besides, the Channings, in their refined musical act; Williams and Parker, a pair of entertaining Welsh singers and comedians; the Royal Delomes, expert clog dancers; a promising child vocalist, Catherine Arkandy, aged eleven; Anna Chandler, an American comedienne, who works on novel lines; and Dot Hardy, character comedienne.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—For a second week Seymour Hicks and company are presenting that first-rate adaptation from Dickens' "Christmas Carol," Scrooge, with much success. The Empire Comedy Four are highly amusing; Dion Wade is a vastly funny comedian; Ed. E. Ford scores a big success as a facial artist; King and Benson are decidedly entertaining; Katie Moss plays the violin well and sings nicely; Francis and Alfred, in their juggling act, make a hit; and Frank Couch, the pattering comedian, is capital. Up-to-date pictures complete.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Harry Lauder is making his first appearance here since his successful tour in the States, and his reception nightly is flattering and well-deserved. The Donaldson Bros. are exceptionally good in a clever "animal" act, Sports in a Jungle; the Borghetti Troupe go through a sensational acrobatic performance; Harry Champion sings three songs in characteristic style, and makes a hit; the Gallimore Trio are well received in a smart pantomime act; Walton and Lester, the world's worst wizards, are amusing; Flo Cecil contributes a song with a neat dance added; Clark and Glennie are seen in The Haunted House; and Julian Ross is a good vocal comedian.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Good business is being done here this week, the programme being headed by Maggie May and Frank Haskoll, in musical costume comedy; Ray and Calden give a refined and original comedy act; and Johnny Osborne, comedian, is also a strong item. Other good turns are Fred Herbert, topical vocalist; Hal Brennan, comedian and dancer; Gladys Warren, comedienne; Gilbert's performing dogs; and Revill Hall, a smart entertainer.

King's Theatre, Longsight.—Proprietor, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—Messrs. J. C. Lodge-Percy and Jas. Martin's company is here this week in Forget-Me-Not and Frou-Frou. Miss Henrietta Schrier is exceedingly good as Stephanie and Frou-Frou respectively; Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy is capital in the rôles of Sir Horace Delby and Comte Paul de Valreas; and excellent support is rendered by Miss Nellie Statham, Mr. F. Douglas Howard, Mr. Andrew Money, Miss Marie Ramoz, and Miss Veronica Clinton.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley.—Jennie Johns, the dainty and clever comedienne, is prominent here this week, and meets with a deserved good reception; the O-K-Dians, under the direction of Kenneth Lyle and Percy Tarling, are altogether excellent in a smart pocket musical comedy; Charles Prelia's Bijou Circus introduces clever animals; and Diana Hope, assisted by Monty Bayly, is capital in a modern episode, The Altar of Duty. Other good turns are offered by Phillips and Bristow, fine dancers; Fallows and Beaumont, in amusing vocal comedy act; Herma, heavy weight lifter; and the Three Orros, in act on the silver chains. Bioscope pictures complete.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby.—Mr. Frank Weathersby's company has been playing in the farce The Arabian Nights. Mr. Elliott Bell as Arthur Hummingtop and Mr. Escott Robson in the rôle of Ralph Ormerod have been particularly good; and Mr. Arthur Dennis and Mr. Edward Linley as Dobson have also scored well in their respective parts. Miss Roberta Pulleyne as Mrs. Hummingtop, Mrs. Hanson Blair as Mrs. Gillibrand, Miss Thea Hansard as Rose Colombier, Miss Mabel Hall as Daisy Maitland, and Miss Florrie Richards as Barbara were exceptionally good. The piece has been preceded each evening by a curtain-raiser, A Silent Woman, in which the characters were taken by Miss Florence Richards, Mr. Arthur Dennis, and Mr. Escott Robson.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. Mayall.—The bill is headed by G. Raymond, in his travesty on modern superstition, "A Trip to Spookville," and other illusions. He is supported by an all-round excellent company, which includes Ruby Rayo, comedienne and dancer; Henriette Selina, in a refined musical act; Mart and Pep, acrobats; Gladys Archbutt, chic comedienne; and Lulie and Jean Grossi, in the Vampire Dance.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Alec Hurley, in the sketch Cockneys in Japan, forms an admirable lead to the well-arranged and diversified programme here; Starley Bros. are clever cyclists; and Sandy and Care mirth-provoking comedians. Good turns are also provided by Keg Ewen, character comedian and dancer; the Sewells, in a speciality dancing act; the Luzelias, lady gymnasts; the Dellmars, illusionists; and the Oroscos, in a comedy act Fun in the Barracks.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—An attractive programme is provided here, to which F. V. St. Clair, in chorus and up-to-date songs; the Bros. Ethairien, comedians; Three San Remo Girls, dancers; and Tod Lowen, vocalist, successfully contribute. Biograph pictures conclude.

METHIL.—Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Mr. John A. Thompson's pantomime The Sleeping Beauty opened the second week of its visit on Monday night. Miss Adele Rose as Prince Charming, and Miss Alyce Wyllyams as Princess Beauty earned unstinted applause; Miss Emmie King as Boy Blue and Miss Ethel Broad as Silver Star were popular; the Four Scoreys were warm favourites with a first-class musical turn; and Abex, the Pocket Hercules, and Mlle. Florence, globe-artist, also contributed capital items.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Henry Chattell and Jack Denton's company is presenting Through the Divorce Court. Mr. Robert Purdie gives a thoroughly dramatic portraiture of Lord Penarth; Guzman Mendoza is played with intensity and vigour by Mr. Henry C. Cooper; Mr. John Campling makes the most of the part of Leon di Valdiz; Mr. B. W. Thomas is a capital Peter Pettigrew; Mr. Jack Denton is an interesting Algy Fitzmaurice; Miss Hettie Chappell gives a powerfully dramatic and impressive rendering of Lady Penarth; Miss Edith Cruikshanks forcefully presents Lady Fitzmaurice; a pleasing Rachael Dobbins is Miss Polly Groves; and Little Constance Dagmar is charming as the child Sybil.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—As produced here, The Merry Peasant, from the Strand Theatre, has met with unqualified approval. In the title-rôle Mr. Courtice Pounds is a distinct success; Little Rosalie is very charmingly and naturally played by Miss Mary Glynn, a child-actress with very winning ways; as Lindoberer Mr. William Hindson is very amusing; the characters of Stefan and Vincent are in the able hands of Mr. Percy Carr and Mr. Frank Wilson; Miss Madge Vincent in the part of Freda has opportunity of showing to advantage her fine soprano voice, to the delight of the large audiences; Miss Gladys Gay is very pleasing as Annameri; and Miss Tina Marbini does full justice to the part of Lizi. The chorus and orchestra are worthy of much praise

F. G. Kimberley as the broken-down actor William Clarke is very good; Mr. George Langdon is a powerful Frank Russell; Mr. Henry Rutland a dignified John Norman; Mr. George Keene a capital George Courtney; and as Lillian Norman Miss Constance deserves praise for his careful rendering. Miss E. Beverley makes the most of her opportunities as Mary Norman, and Miss Nita Owen as Sarah Smales and Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Timothy are droll.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—A hearty reception was accorded the performance by Miss Marie Dagmar's company of The Tyrant, by Mr. Fred G. Somerfield. Mr. Percy Tollins as Homedei, the avenger, and Mr. Roy Fortescue are responsible for powerful studies; and Miss Marie Robson as Tisbe, Miss Jean Scott as Lady Catherine, and Miss Lallah Shelton as Eulie play the rôles allotted to them with ability.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Mr. Jack Pleasants, the shy comedian, occupies the place of honour here, and on Monday evening had to respond to numerous encores. A pretty and effective Oriental scena, interspersed with tuneful singing, is provided by O'Hara San and company; an amusing pantomimical farce is presented by Albert and Edmund's company in The Tower of London; Mr. Horace Wheatley, comedian, in delightful patter and quaintly-rendered songs, receives quite an ovation; and another pleasing and varied item is that of the Northern Troupe of speciality dancers. To To, the mysterious musician, presented by Mlle. Lucia, is undoubtedly a mystifying novelty; and Tom Stuart, character comedian and entertainer, Herbert Shelley, protean actor, in Dan the Outlaw, and Kathleen Gray, comedienne, contribute capital turns.

NORTHAMPTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Samson and McNeil, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H Gould; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—The pick of the programme is Peggy Pryde, who is still pre-eminent in her unique style; Harvey's Boys and Girls are here again with increased success; the W. T. Thompson Trio have a screamer in Watch the Chalk; Harry Frisk is a clever comedy juggler; Frank Victor, who deputises for an absent turn, has an excellent voice; the Three Sisters Adare are good dancers; Jenny Wood is a promising young comedienne and dancer; Zera and Zema, Continental equilibrists, give a good turn; and the Palace pictures are up to date.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Secretary, Mr. G. Skempton; Resident-Manager for Andrews' Pictures, Mr. Frank Lyndon.—Animated pictures are still running here, enlivened with songs by Miss Margaret Payne.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company with The Cingalee is proving a great attraction. Miss Isa Bowman makes a charming Nanoya, her excellent singing being much appreciated; Miss Ray Anderson is good as Lady Patricia; Miss Winifred Stone as Miss Pinkerton wins great favour; Miss Florrie Greensmith proves a capital Peggy Sabine; as Harry Vereker Mr. Frank Barclay is worthy of the highest praise; Mr. Hylton Warde cleverly depicts Chambhubby Ram; Mr. Frank Lennard makes a capital Boobhamba; Mr. Grafton Williams shines as Sir Peter Loftus; Mr. Frank Crichton makes the most of Myamigah; Mr. Herbert Franklin in the rôle of Bobby Warren accomplishes good work; and the chorus and augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. W. D. I. Damant achieve good results.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—At the head of the bill here are Blanche and Powell, vaudeville entertainers, who present a clever musical act; the Fernandez Troupe, lady acrobats, singers, and dancers, come in for a hearty reception; Molly Augarde is a pleasing vocalist; Hughes and Allen, comedians, are a decided success; and Will Saunders (eccentric comedian), A. Bokou (in his speciality act), the Sisters Gordon (comediennes and dancers), and the Palace Pictures all contribute successfully to an enjoyable programme.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Golden.—Mr. Howard Scott's company is here in a society play entitled Man and His Kingdom. Mr. Leonard Clarke admirably portrayed the part of Eric, the barrister; Miss Beatrice Burdett played Esther in a charming manner; Mr. John Beech as the ex-burglar scored at every point; and Mr. C. Edwards-Horobin made an excellent Bertie, sustaining the comedy of the piece exceedingly well.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is giving an excellent rendering of the drama Mother with good results. Mr. J. O. Stewart gives an effective portrayal of the old seaman, Duncan Fairweather; Mr. Alexander J. Haviland is very good as Frank English; Mr. Reginald Brown acts well as Stephen Carrington; Mr. Harry Foxwell is successful as Jasper Rawden; and Mr. Ray Gordon as old Crump, Mr. Tom Fuller as Biggs, and Harry James as the Rev. John Strong ably fill their respective parts. Miss Grace Jones deserves high praise as Nellie Fairweather; Miss Amy Wood is excellent as Martha Duncan; Miss Mary Holmes is well received as little May; Miss Phillis Vaughan as Vesta L'Strange, Miss Dora Kelland, and Miss Kathleen Hunt render every assistance; and Mr. Teddy Myles as Tommy Noblets and Miss Elsie Dene as Polly Crumpet are responsible for much humour.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. V. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Heading the bill is Flo Stanley, in the musical comedy The Prince of the Dandies. Miss Stanley appears successfully as Daisy Highclass, and Mr. Arthur Watson as Sprouts, a page, is full of variety and fun; Maxford and O'Neill create much merriment; Carlotta Levey, who meets with a good reception, sings admirably; Charles Pastor is a popular comedian; Gertie Martine is a versatile vocalist; and Fred and Lulu Camplin are up-to-date in their musical comedy act; the Donatos, one-legged acrobats, receive hearty greetings; Levlin is a wonderful Indian club manipulator; and the Hippo. Bio pictures are attractive.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Mr. E. V. Barr's entertainment is still going strong here, and Mr. Tom Taylor's songs are an attraction. Among the special pictures this week are All on Account of the Milk, The Squire's Romance, and The Poacher's Revenge.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr Howard Finney.—Les Cloches de Corneville is given in excellent style by Milton Bode and John Hart's company. Chief interest centres in the Gaspard of Mr. E. St. Alban, who gives the part the necessary weirdness and powerful reality; Miss Vera Dorien plays with charming brightness as Germaine; and the Serpolette of Miss Gurney Delaporte is an agreeably animated impersonation. Mr. Stuart Alexander sings the music of the Marquis in robust manner; Mr. Ovenaley Russell makes a good impression as Grenicheaux; Mr. Mark Lester (the Baillie) and Mr. Alfred Selby (Gobo) are a thoroughly amusing pair; and Miss Lucy Kipling makes a winsome Christophe.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Good houses are welcoming a return visit of The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Mr. Richard Lane makes a gallant Prince Olaf; the villainy of Prince Hildred is well portrayed by Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke; a fine character study of Prince Michael is given by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; while Mr. Robert Noble becomes a warm favourite as Captain Hector. Miss Stella Campbell supplies an emotional interpretation of Monica; and a smart little Camiola is seen in Miss Ethel Patrick. The comedy element comes out strongly in the Lieut. Stromberg of Mr. J. H. Vyvyan.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—A new sketch, Van Biene's Baby, gives the veteran artist another opportunity of introducing his wonderful 'cello playing; the Marco Twins are an eccentric pair; Mlle. Haydee's miniature theatre is a source of delight; Chas. R. Whittle sings acceptably; while the Rohda Bros. show their skill in gymnastic feats. The mimicry of Ray Wallace is clever; the Delevines submit an amusing sketch, Flipp and Flopp; the Twelve Manchester Mites sing and dance in engaging style; and C. J. Johnston, coon singer; and Amy Marsden, comedienne, also deserve praise.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—Lockhart's Elephants are a big attraction, and their tricks are performed with a cleverness that calls forth hearty applause; the vocalism of Miss Alice Hollander well merits the enthusiastic reception accorded; Mlle. Adele Prescott and Mr. T. H. Wood are heard to advantage in the operatic sketch, The Daughter of the Regiment; the patter of Wash and Noel makes for fun; and capital dancers are seen in Captain Ellis and his son. Ridiculous Recco gives an excellent acrobatic turn. Other items are provided by Billy Young and Fred Hallam, and a sketch entitled Binks's Blunder.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainment Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brown.—The Allan Wilkie Répertoire company opened here on Monday with Jane Shore. Mr. Allan Wilkie gave a powerful portrayal of the Duke of Gloucester; Mr. Alexander Marsh presented William Shore in a capable manner; Mr. Eugene Wellesley filled the rôle of Edward IV. with the dignity befitting a king; Mr. Sinclair Neill was successful as Lord Hastings; Miss Carrie Baillie proved herself a clever actress in the title-rôle; Miss Hilda Plowright made a charming Drusilla; and the Queen Elizabeth of Mrs. Allan Wilkie was highly creditable. Two Orphans of Paris, The Sleigh Bells, David Garrick, The Merchant of Venice, and Julius Cæsar are also in the bill.

OLDHAM.—COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The ever-popular Two Little Vagabonds is presented by the Lyceum Tour company. Miss Dorothy Milne as Marian Thornton acts in a manner which quickly constitutes her a favourite; Mr. Frank Beresford as George Thornton gives an artistic delineation; Miss Mabel Cooke as Barbara Scarth acts cleverly; and Miss Helen Grenville as Dick and Miss Ivy Millais as Wally gain much applause. Mr. Renaud Lockwood is a vigorous Capt. Darville; Mr. Chas. L. Ludlow as Bill Mullins is very amusing; and Dido Bounce and the Cough Drop are smartly played by Messrs. Philip Beaufoy and Frederick Archer. Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins is fully capable; Miss Katherine Maude is very good as Sister Randall; Mr. E. Beecher is a clever John Scarth; Job Gargoyle is ably played by Mr. A. Pinder; and the remaining characters are excellent.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Frank M. Thorne's company is appearing in The Woman Pays, and is meeting with much success. Mr. Phil Harper as Sid Armstrong gives a strong and dramatic portrayal; Miss Alice Greenwood acts Madge Armstrong sympathetically; and Roger Marchant is imbued with the due venomous attributes by Mr. Raymond Thomas. Miss Kate Blair as his victim, Nell Morland, plays in forcible and well-balanced style; and Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Treadgold and Mr. Chas. Archer as Dr. Trevor are excellent. Mr. Claremont Gaskell does good work as Nathan Moss; Mr. Dunlop Stewart does well as Luke Morland; and Mr. A. T. Jones makes a good Capt. Holt. Miss Lily Beverley as Polly Stokes, Miss Florence Thorne as Tabitha, and Mr. Joseph Magrath as Micky Moloney are responsible for some smart comedy.

PALACE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Frank and Jen Latona top the bill in their well-known musical act, and receive much applause; Gus Garrick amuses vastly with his music hall tit-bits; Park's Eton Boys and Girls present a new scena, introducing excellent singing and dancing; Carl Howard is smart and clever in his comedy conjuring act; and Marie Gibson sings capitally. Charles Matthews performs his feats of jumping in well-finished style; the Jaunitas are excellent in an acrobatic display; and Goggin and Davies, in a comedy acrobatic turn, do well.

ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The Life of Moses is a beautiful picture, and is well depicted; A Pardonable Lie is a well-acted film; and A Journey on the Gornergrat is a travel picture well worth seeing. Some very amusing films include Up-to-date Imps and The Forgotten Watch, which cause much laughter. Another funny picture is one entitled Lucky Jim, and others are equally good. Mr. Don Cameron sings with his usual success.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—Good houses are being drawn here with a good selection of pictures, the principal one being a capital dramatic military film, The Honour of His Family. A Dog's Thanks is a very good canine film. Included in the bill are some very funny pictures, amongst others being The Worst Boy in School, Setting Back the Hands of the Clock, A Second-hand Clock, and Marvellous Garlands. Mr. King contributes a very good song.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hughes. — A good programme is provided, and includes A Pardonable Lie, A Woman's Treachery (a very vivid picture), Seaside Flirtation (a fine comedy film); Hats, and Grandpa's Wig are very funny, and duets are very well sung by Messrs. Ripon and Sidney.

BROWN'S ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Brown.—The Triumphant Hero is a splendid production, and Villainy Defeated is a good illustration of fiendish impulse. A fine view is given of the Imatra Rapids. Some very amusing films are also shown, making a good programme.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL (SHAW).—Proprietor, Mr. A. Ashworth.—The pictures being shown here are of a highly interesting character, and are very steady. A very good programme is provided, which includes some of the best to be seen. The Golden Spider is a capital trick film; Laddie is a picture of a telling nature; and Wild Birds in their Haunts is very interesting; Pinch of Poverty, House Under Repair, Two Kids on a Spree in Brussels, Three Kisses, and Pseudo Lady's Maid are also in the list, and good business is the result.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—Messrs. Wray and Hurgon's company is drawing crowded and highly appreciative houses with The Girls of Gottenberg, which is proving much more successful than it did on the first visit. Mr. Phil Smith fairly revels in the part of Max Moddelkopf, and keeps the house in a continual roar of laughter, his business being exceedingly clever and funny; Mr. Murray Moore is deservedly a great favourite as Prince Otto; Mr. Harry Clarke is excellent as Albrech; Mr. Charles Berkeley works hard and successfully as Brittl-Bottl; and the parts of the General, the Colonel, the Burgomaster, and Adolph are capably filled by Messrs. L. Yaldwin, P. Claban, R. Forster, and G. Robertson. Miss Nellie Lauraine is highly amusing as Clementine; Miss Nan Stuart is a capable and fascinating Elsa; and Miss Hilda Vining scores a complete success as Mitzi, her dancing and singing meeting with great favour.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Julian Graham.—Miss Lois Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. Edward Neville, is occupying these boards with Nana and The Sorrows of Satan, preceded by the comedietta Two Soft. In Nana Mr. Edward Neville, an old favourite here, gives a smart and clever portrayal of Hector; Mr. J. McGaig fills the rôle of Phillipe very capably; Mr. H. Sisto is effective as George Hugon; and Mr. Frank Wheatley, who also does well in the comedietta, adds distinction as M. Fountain. Miss Lois Esmond exhibits skill and experience as Rose Mignon; Miss Dorothy Dewhurst is attractive as Blanche Fougen; and Miss Rosie Neville negotiates the arduous rôle of Nana with marked success.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Edward Compton opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday, when a fine performance of The Road to Ruin was given by the celebrated company which bears the comedian's name. Mr. Compton gave one of his inimitable impersonations in presenting Charles Goldfinch; Mr. Henry Crocker, submitted an artistic portraiture of Mr. Dornton; as Harry Dornton Mr. Frank Royde distinguished himself by a sound embodiment; Jack Milford was intelligently and capably enacted by Mr. Clifford Marquand; Mr. J. W. Austin was an admirable Mr. Sulky; a capital and well executed study of Mr. Silky was furnished by Mr. Philip Gordon; and meritorious performances of minor characters were given by Mr. Laurence Meade, Mr. Edward Holle, Mr. Frank Snell, and Mr. H. Wetton. Miss Marie Hassell excelled in her delineation of the Widow Warren; Sophia Freelove was refreshingly portrayed by Miss Kathleen Leigh; and Miss Lorraine Stevens gave a good interpretation of Jenny. The comedy was preceded by Hook and Eye, in which Miss Nell Compton made her initial bow to a Paisley audience. The other comedies presented were The Blasé Baronet on Tuesday, and Davy Garrick on Wednesday. For the remainder of the week Mr. John Leopold's company in New Frivolity was announced.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—Mooney and Holbein provide the star turn this week and create roars of laughter; Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, obtain a great reception; Arthur Ferris and Ethel May present a funny musical comedy spasm, Two's Company; Three's ——? A clever exhibition is submitted by the Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists; Regan and Ryan, versatile comedians, are prime favourites; Crissie Cross is a dainty singer and expert dancer; the Farrows (Harry and Louie) present a mirth-provoking turn; Ada Evilo performs smart tricks on the trapeze; and the Bioscope, well up to date, finishes an interesting bill.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. John Leopold's company occupied the theatre for the first three nights of the week with the farcical musical absurdity, New Frivolity. The company, which included the famous original Leopolds, threw themselves heartily into their work, and provided a side-splitting entertainment. For the remainder of the week Mr. Edward Compton and the Compton Comedy Company pay their annual visit.

PETERBOROUGH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—A capital programme is submitted this week. Joe O'Gorman, Irish comedian, heads the bill with considerable success; the Two Countees, duettists, gain applause; Harry Cotton, an amusing comedian, takes well; Hugh and High, musical eccentrics, gave a clever turn; the Romps, in songs and dances, have a good reception; and Colin Carlisle, light comedian; and Amy Burton, comedienne, both contribute acceptable turns.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Sins of Society, as played by Mr. Bolam's company, forms one of the richest dramatic treats witnessed here for some time. As Noel Ferrers Mr. C. F. Collings gives a brilliant rendering of a polished villain; Mr. Bonhote Wilson as Sir Dorian makes a fine manly hero; Mr. Maitland Marler as Hogg is genuinely amusing; Miss Rosamond Burton is admirably placed as Lady Gwendolen; Miss Cissie Carlton is delightfully vivacious as the smart Lady Goldburg; and Miss Grace Leslie is an excellent Lady Marion.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Fred Karno's company, in Yap Yaps, give an excellent representation; Austin Rudd is, as usual, responsible for roars of laughter; Florence Yaymen proves a strong addition to the bill; the Bros. St. Clair perform some brilliant comedy cycling business; and Hunt and Thomas are responsible for a witty and original sketch, entitled The Wire and the Liar. Other strong contributors are the Denaro Bros, equilibrists, Harry Morris, and Maidie Barker.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Manager, Tom Diacoff.—The four Jumels head the bill in a novel musical act; Les De Loime Juvenile Troupe (nine in number) appear in a garden scena, magnificently staged, over three hundred electric lights being used; Sim Maree gives a clever contortion act; the Two Morbois are refined singers and dancers; Miss Edna Cragge as a burlesque artist finds favour, as also does Miss Ella Ray, popular chorus comedienne; Fox and Melville (song illustrators) appear in a speciality, "Vocal Pictures"; and Johnny Dewar (comedian) and the Alexscope, with pictures, make up a pleasing bill.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's excellent company present Leah Kleschna, and its success is marked by crowded houses. Miss Bessie Rignold as Leah Kleschna acts charmingly, and is a big favourite; Mr. William Clayton portrays Kleschna in an exceptionally powerful manner; Mr. Charles Barrett captivates his audience by his pleasing impersonation of Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is a capital Raoul Berton; Mr. Graham Pockett obtains well-deserved applause for his clever portrayal of Schram; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne is clever as General Berton and Valentine Favre; Miss Ethel Russell is good as Madame Berton; and Miss Emmie Wallace well undertakes Clare Berton.

NEW TOWN HALL.—Secretaries, Messrs. H. S. Davies and Phillips.—The Columbia Pictures are having a successful run, and exhibit some very fine films.

PORTH.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pooles, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. W. Bynorth.—The Three Prestons present a screaming absurdity The Liftman's Rise; Bert Maddison is a popular Welsh comedian; Leo and Roland introduce a sensational ladder act; Arthur Royer is a marvellous acrobat and comedian; Curtis Leo and his fighting rooster, assisted by Little Noblesse, give a funny act; Tom E. Finglass sings chorus songs; and the Palascope projects the latest animated pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Preceded by Aunt Rebecca, The Little Damozel was introduced locally on Monday by Miss Ida Molesworth, Mr. Mark Blow, and company. Both in the lighter and the pathetic side Miss Molesworth as Julie sustained her reputation; the cynical Recklaw Poole was a clever sketch by Mr. Frank Lacy; Mr. Geo. A. Brandram portrayed the schemer, Captain Partington, with ability; Mr. Mark Blow's rendering of the Hon. Fitzroy Lock was clever and amusing; Miss Roxy Barton was seen to a advantage in the small part of Sybil Craven; and Messrs. Julian Cross, W. J. Slack, and Reginald Hargreaves were effective.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—The Better Land, presented in Portsmouth for the first time by Fred Granville's Productions, Ltd., is a stirring drama with a strong domestic interest. Mr. Douglas Watson is a capable hero; Miss Margaret Trevosper gives a vivid and realistic picture of Doris; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe plays the villain Hubert to perfection; Miss Bella Moody delineates amusingly the character of Aunt Jemima; Mr. Fred Richards and Miss Kitty Terris as Tom Tadpole and Polly Perkins respectively, deserve praise for their efforts to amuse; and a strong cast includes Mr. Hill Cremer as George Grant, Mr. Paul Milne as Bill Bones, Miss Gertie Moody as little Harry Radcliffe; Miss Madge Trevelyan as Mercedes; and Miss Emily Entwistle as Tessa.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Captain E. H Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The principal turn here this week is a dramatic episode of ancient Egypt, entitled A Royal Rival, with Miss Esther Phillips in the chief part, the Queen of Egypt. She is ably supported by a strong company. The Four Sydney Girls are charming danseuses; the Two Anartos amuse with their witty dialogue; Bert Harrow is a clever eccentric comedian; Ian Colquhoun, a powerful baritone, renders the patriotic song "Mighty Mother England," with fine effect; and an excellent programme also includes Raie Walters, comedienne; Blake and Granby, comedy duologue artists; Charles Ibbotson, America's Black Dame; and Payne's Bio-photoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Harry Fragson is paying a return visit, his répertoire includes "Ladies, we love you all," "By Aeroplane," "John Bull's Budget," "Billy Brown," "Gifts of Nature," and his old success, "The employment agency"; Hebrew mannerisms have amusing exponents in Lowenwith and Cohan; a humorous sketch A Medical Muddle is smartly played by the Edward Marris Trio; Zethus is an expert cornet soloist; the Brothers Werds displayed ability as eccentric acrobats; and Chas. Cardow, Rayburn and Dix, Chris Baker, Dolly and Madge McCalla also appear with success.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner.—The Belle of the Orient is presented her by Joe Peterman and Geo. Ricketts; a laughable sketch The Egyptian Mummy, is humorously played by Sandy McNab and company; a picturesque and artistic scena The Garden of Terpsichore provides Alice Rex and the Xentric Troupe of dancers with scope for the display of their skill; barefoot dancing has an admirable exponent in Lily Belle; George French's rink and football songs hit the popular taste; Sydney Brandon's impersonation of Matthias in The Bells is capital; and Dorothy Sephton, the Warringtons, Garti and Law are good turns.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Alban Newton.—Mr. Ian Robertson is paying a first visit to Preston with The Passing of the Third Floor Back. Mr. Ian Robertson plays throughout with an earnestness that holds his audience spellbound. Mr. Billington as John Wright is admirable throughout; Mr. Woodall-Birde, as the artist Christopher Penney, is excellent; Mr. Tyman is most realistic as Major Tomkins; Mr. Brown a typical Jake Samuels; and Mr. Garthorne a clever exponent of the Cockney "bounder," Harry Larkcom. Miss Delphine portrays the Major's wife realistically, and Miss Everest is to be congratulated on her clever rendition of Vivian. Miss Wills as Miss Kite is another exceedingly clever portrayal; Miss Ripley being no less successful as Mrs. De Hooley. Mrs. Sharpe as enacted by Miss Thomas is a finished bit of acting; and Miss Parsons scores with her clever and natural portrayal of the slavey Stasia. Come Here, by Ian Robertson, precedes, and is ably acted by Messrs. Gedge Tyman, Wilson Blake, and Barbara Everest.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page; General-Manageress, Mrs. M. M. Clarkson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas E. Clarkson.—Hush Money: or the Disappearance of Sexton Blake is the attraction here. Mr. C. Barrington Foote as Sexton Blake gives a vivid and dramatic portrayal of the celebrated detective of fiction; Mr. Ernest E. Imeson is a capital John Shard; and Messrs. Robert Barton and J. H. Darnley as the Earl of Montressor and Lord Walgrave are most capable. Mr. Harry Hartley gives a clever impersonation of Tinker, while Messrs. John Lowther and William Finch display much histrionic ability in the characters of Nathan Finch and Jem Tooley respectively. Miss Theresa Osborne gives a sympathetic rendering of Lady Muriel; Miss Agnes Paulton is a most amusing Euphemia; Miss Lillie White an excellent Mary Woodford; and Miss Annie Wilden an exceedingly clever Auntie Crooks. The remainder of the characters are in able hands, and the piece is realistically mounted.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Mr. William Watson's comic pantomime Robinson Crusoe is proving a good draw. Mlle. de Rose is a sprightly Robinson Crusoe, with some good songs and an excellent stage presence; Miss Hilda Claremont a dainty Polly Parkin; Phil Lestor an exceedingly funny Dame Crusoe; and Billy Watson a humorous Will Atkins. As the Terrible Twins Miss Ettie and Joe Waldron are great favourites and present excruciatingly funny specialities. The Three Royal Temples as the Queen, Princess Pearl, and Prince Pearl contribute some excellent vocalisation, as do also Miss Ruby Carlton, an imposing Wavina, and Cliff Dacre as Wreckeros. Specialities are also supplied by the Three Royal Temples, Bendene (the Crocodile), Lambert and Butler (the Robert and Bobby), Sisters Gaye, and "Vererie." A sprightly chorus, tasteful dresses, and well-executed scenery help to make up a most successful production.

RADCLIFFE (near Manchester).—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Misses Nora Carton and Beatrice Selwyn's company is doing well with Temptation. The impersonation of Hubert Thorne by Mr. Norman A. Overton leaves nothing to be desired; and Sir Charles Tremaine has a strong exponent in Mr. Dudley Wynton; Mr. Arthur Trail enacts the Blind Fiddler to perfection; and Mr. Frank Ayrton keeps the house in good humour as Bob Saunders, and is ably assisted by Miss Madge Seymour as Emily Eighteen. Miss Nora Carton is seen to advantage as Hilda Dundonald; and Miss Beatrice Selwyn is very creditable as the adventuress, Ivra Bright.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Director, Mr. Charles Evans; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Jury's bioscope pictures have constituted the chief attraction at the Palace this week. The films are as amusing and interesting as ever, and there have been large attendances of the public. The varieties are also excellent.

MARINA THEATRE.—There is a fine variety of subjects here, and a capital turn has been contributed by Bonnie Little Alice, child comedienne and dancer.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees the Manchester Electric Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw.—The artists engaged here are: Clarice Mignon, who certainly is a most accomplished executant on instruments of the banjo species; the Maros, who create and keep alive roars of laughter from an appreciative audience, the antics of the performers being both amusing and clever; and Mr. Arthur Bright gives a most enjoyable turn with song and pipe. The pictures are again very good, and include Calino Plays Billiards, An Indian Runner's Romance, The Blackleg's Conversion, Young Lady's Romance, Cherries, Blue Swan Inn, The Sights of New York, and When We Called the Plumber In.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is here with A Royal Divorce. Mr. Keith Fraser gives a fine character impersonation of the Emperor Napoleon, Miss Violet Ellicott makes a very favourable impression as the unhappy Empress Josephine, Miss Winnie Tempest is an excellent Marie Louise. The parts of Stephanie (Miss Dorothy Garth), Marquis de Beaumont (Mr. Charles Sterling), Tallyrand (Mr. J. W. Roberts), and Grimaud (Mr. George Hudson) are particularly well rendered. The play is mounted in complete style. A complimentary benefit was accorded to Miss Violet Ellicott last (Friday) evening.

THE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Druce.—The Child Trio are introduced by Mr. Edward Platt, and display ability as juvenile musicians; the Sisters Gilbey appear in a capital musical and dancing act; the Maningos give an effective head and hand-balancing turn; F. Mozzetto is a dexterous juggler; Jenny Lynwood makes a smart appearance as a Highlander, and sings well; Lytton and Bland present a good sketch entitled A Lesson in Love; Teddy L. Benn is an acceptable light comedian; and Karr and Kooney, the comedians in scarlet, are well received. The Bioscope completes an excellent show.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company is here with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. H. Boehm is highly successful in the part of Uncle Tom, and Mr. A. Hayes is very effective as Phineas Fletcher. Mr. Charles Harrington has a great part as Mr. St. Clair; Mr. David Blair gives a thoughtful rendition of the part of George Harris; Mr. John Gibson scores as Mr. Wilson; Legree is capably enacted by Mr. Victor Gardom; Mr. Reginald Kloof is deserving of mention as Marks; Miss Hero Hathaway is very natural as Eliza Harris; and Miss May Turner is pleasing as Mrs. St. Clair. Miss Helen Douglas is very prim as Aunt Ophelia; Miss Annie Watson is most amusing as Topsy; Miss Gem Lloyd as Little Eva speaks her lines with telling effect; and Miss Hettie Johnson is deserving of mention as Cassy.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. E. Smith; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. R. Hollands.—"George the First," the highly trained chimpanzee, heads the bill here, and Mr. Dandy George is deservedly applauded for his excellent training; the Brothers Ashley are paying a return visit with the boxing sketch, "Next, Please," and cause great amusement; the Sivronis present a very interesting musical burlesque, "Opera Gone Mad"; Wilf. Burnand is well received; Mahatma is a most mysterious act; Queenie May is a pleasing vocalist; Steve Bartle gives a finished concertina selection; and J. H. Wakefield is deservedly applauded. Special pictures by the Hipposcope, A Daughter of the Sioux, are highly appreciated.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—A Fast Life, presented by a competent company, drew a good audience on Monday. Mr. Frederick Garratt made an excellent villain as Sir Oliver Franklin. The hero, John Dixon, was ably sustained by Mr. Walter Steele. Mr. Willie Barratt (Tommy Burk), Mr. Ed. Kingsley (Lord Craven) and Miss Maude Ryder (Juliana) combined effectively in the comedy business. Miss Beatrice Hone as Lady Franklin and Miss Lilian Ross as Mrs. Dixon were seen to advantage. Mr. John Cummins, Mr. James Hamilton, Mr. Thos. Beasley, Mr. Hal Howles, and Miss Violet Douglas were also good.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond.—Brown and Le Clerq with their Black Justice keep the house in roars of laughter. Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arabs get much applause for their skilful acrobatic work; J. H. Carney, in his smart quick-change work and stilt-dancing, is much appreciated; Kittee Rayburn scores with her songs. The programme also includes clever work by Herbert La Martine eccentric dancer; Kitty Jones, comedienne; Willie Garvey, comedian; Tiny and Mite, juvenile artists; Frank Bertram and company in The Chaperon; and Clito Clifford, expert buck and sand dancer.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Boyle.—Messrs. F. Marriott Watson and James Usher's company are presenting the sensational drama The Face at the Window before good houses twice nightly. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe smartly portrays Paul Gouffet; Lucio Delgado is forcibly presented by Mr. Haughton Macauley; Miss Clare O'Sullivan is a charming Marie De Brisson. The comedy business is entrusted to Mr. John A. Stimson as Peter Pottleberry and Miss Nita Imeson. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps (Lucien Cortier), Miss Marie Pemberton (La Pinau), and the other members give good support.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—The Regent pictures include Pardners, a powerful Wild West drama, The Cap of Fortune, The Grandsire, Calino Goes Shopping, A Child's Forgiveness, The Bridegroom's Joke, and A Lesson in Domestic Economy, with songs by Mr. Tom Sherlock.

CENTRAL HALL (Blackfriars-road).—Proprietors, Matt Raymond Co.; Manager, Mr. A. H. Gilb

ladies of the cast, headed by dainty and tuneful Miss Netta Lynde as Christine, were all very charming; and the well-dressed chorus gave valuable assistance.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company received hearty applause on Monday from a crowded house in Mr. C. A. Clarke's very interesting domestic drama, A Broken Heart. The favourite artiste, Miss Sheila Walsh, acted with her accustomed grace and emotional ability as the heroine; Mr. Harry Cullenford, a sound and experienced actor was a powerful representative of the blacksmith; and all the other characters were cleverly played.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The exciting drama, For Honour and Revenge, is being performed here by Mr. Montague Beaudyn's excellent company. Mr. Montague Beaudyn appears successfully in the strong part of James Galston; Miss Irene Munroe makes a handsome and dramatic Maud Desmond; and other characters are well played by Messrs. Chas. D. Pitt, G. E. Dunstan, A. Tomlin, Arthur Cresswell, John Taylor, A. Britton Bernard Dawes, Miss Phyllis Rae, Miss Cora Patey, and Miss Irene Stanhope. Thursday was the "big night" of the year, when the popular and genial manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay, took his sixth annual benefit at the Alexandra.

Empire Palace.—The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A pantomimic sketch of a kind once familiar to pantomime goers is Messrs. Marsh and Jewil's Change; or, The Haunted Castle, in which a series of wonderful mechanical changes are introduced, with cleverly invented rock scenery and startling lighting effects. The Elliott-Savonas, with their brilliantly-mounted musical fantasia, The Palace of Orpheus, are loudly applauded; and the other performers this week are the Siems; Mr. Rich Taylor, ventriloquist; Powell and Vesey, novelty entertainers; Mr. Frank Cass, comedian; Fayre and Manning, in an original act; the bioscope, with new pictures; and Mr. Victor Travers, comedian.

The Hippodrome.—The Thomas Barrasford Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Poole.—A well-staged dramatic episode, Gentlemen, the King! was presented on Monday by a first-class company, headed by the favourite leading actor, Mr. Henry Bedford. Mr. Jock Whiteford was very sucessful in his songs, stories, and dances; and others who were cordially received were that diverting pair, Goodfellow and Gregson, comic duettists; Lloyd and Lane, sketch artists; the Navarros, jugglers, &c.; Mona Colbert, hoop expert; Mr. Tom Lee, vocalist, &c.; a humorous comedy trifle (acted by artists of the Gymnase Theatre) was the bioscope film, and the episodes depicted caused great laughter.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—Miss Ella's Lions top the bill, and give a series of startling and wonderful feats; Wee Madge, in dance and story, is an attractive and clever artist; Bob Stephens is a smart comedian and skilful dancer; the Warners contribute a diverting and up-to-date musical and terpsichorean medley, entitled A Musical Rehearsal; Jessie Star, in Scottish character comedy, merits high praise, her whistling solos being meritorious; while King Leo, with his precocious ventriloquist's dummy, Jerry, vastly entertains. Pictures new and good complete the programme.

SMETHWICK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The Breed of the Treshams, by arrangement with Mr Martin Harvey, is being presented here by Mr. Frank Bertram's company. Lieut. Reresby (called The Rat) is admirably acted by Mr. Sidney Bland; Mr. Alfred Holles does well in the part of Viscount Dorsington; Mr. George Butler gives a faultless impersonation of Clement Hungerford; Mr. George Traill is good as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen; Mr. L. Lingham is effective as Colonel Bagshaw; Mr. Sydney Courtenay is well placed as the cowardly Captain Stanhope; and the young lovers, Cornet the Hon. Francis Tresham and the Hon. Jenkinson; Miss Laurie O'Neill enacts Tom Chickweed capitally; Miss Molly Monaghan is an amusing Mrs. Maloney; Miss Lenna Vernon makes a pleasing Ruth Clifton; the Paul of Little Hettie Hornsby deserves commendation; and Miss Nellie Clyde evokes sympathy with her telling portrayal of Nan County Electric Pavilion.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur E. Melborne.—The pictures at this popular house continue to meet with approbation. The Imatra Rapids, The Triumphant Hero, The Snowstorm, and The Highlander's Defence are all very good, and the comic subjects cause endless merriment.

TODMORDEN.—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Dewhirst.—Mrs. T. Wybert Clive's company, in The Outcast of the Family, opened on Monday to a capital house. Miss Gertrude Morrella gave a pathetic delineation of Ruth, the heroine, and was ably supported by Mr. J. W. Clyde as Harry Thorne, her lover. Mr. Herbert Bentone presented a powerful representation of Stephen Barry, the Village Blacksmith; Mr. Wybert Clive made an ideal Sir Henry Thorne, being well backed up by Mr. Bert Oates as Richard Martin and Miss Maude Leslie Cudd as Grace Redburn. Mr. Ed. W. Cudd played the part of Abram Wasper, the rascally bailiff, to the life; while Mr. Tom Armitage as Joe Bushell and Miss Freda Beckett as Nancy Bray made the audience see the humorous side of things whenever they got the chance. Mr. Herbert Reed as Seth Steeke and Mr. M. Platting as Uncle Sam also played well.

Town Hall.—Lessee, Mr. Andrew Martell.—A splendid series of pictures is being presented this week to packed houses. In Romeo Turns Brigand, a lovely coloured film, the father refuses to let him marry Juliet, so recourse is had to strategy. Romeo and his friends disguise themselves as brigands and seize and bind the father as he is out hunting. Then Romeo rushes to the house, abducts Juliet, and leaves her with the brigands (his friends). The father is then released, and returns home to find his daughter missing. Romeo comes up to press his suit again, and, learning the state of affairs, offers to go with the father and rescue Juliet. This offer is accepted, and they come upon the brigands. Romeo valiantly routs them and restores Juliet to her father, who repents and consents to their marriage. Scroggins Puts Up for Parliament sends the audience into shrieks of laughter, the persistence of the Suffragettes nearly proving our hero's undoing.

Olympia Picture Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Manager, Mr. Chas. Tyers.—A full house assembled here on Monday evening to witness Deerfoot, the Indian Trailer, a capital film; The Adventures of Foolshead as despatch carrier in Africa made the audience shriek with laughter; while The Patient from the Provinces provided some amusing situations. Other good films are Cleopatra, a beautiful coloured picture, and The Light That Came.

TONYPANDY.—Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is here in The Soldier's Wedding. The rôle of Jack Brown is admirably interpreted by Mr. Douglas Cecil; Colonel Jas. Grahame has an able exponent in Mr. C. Matthews; Mr. W. Scott does well as Tommy Spratt; Little Albert makes a vivacious and saucy Nipper; Mr. E. Davey is well cast as John Marks; Miss Dorothy Richardson is excellent as Nancy Lee; the rôle of Lizzie Walker is safely entrusted to Miss Bessie Walters; and Miss Nita Langford does good work as Julie de Beauvais.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Will Stone; General-Manager, Mr. Edgar Harper.—Scoring well here are Cline and Clark, comedy duo; the Reed-Oetzman troupe give a pantomime sketch; Renot, the newsboy mimic, is well received; and so are the Two Pemms. Buster Brown shows how to and how not to, skate. The principal pictures are Redwing's Gratitude and swimming pictures of Miss Annette Kellerman

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter Wright.—Topping the bill here is Charlier, the famous French ventriloquist. Barney Armstrong is a prime favourite, and Rowland Hill gets a good reception. Rob Rossi, Lena Brunton, and Alf Mendies all present highly acceptable items. The recent local disastrous flood, whereby six lives were lost and eleven houses demolished, is shown on the Empiroscope.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing Director, Alderman W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus's company is here this week in The Thief. Miss Georgina Wynter makes a capital Marise Chelford, portraying with great pathos the varying phases of the difficult part; Mr. Bernard Limpus is equally successful as Richard Chelford; Mr. F. Morland as Raymond Leyton and Miss Mary Forrester as Mrs. Leyton both do exceedingly well; and the trying rôle of Harry Leyton is well sustained by Mr. Carl W. Lindsey. Mr. Protheroe finds a clever exponent in Mr. W. Somerset.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Opera House.—Mme. Albani, assisted by Herr Zakvosky (violinist), is having an enthusiastic reception. The company also includes Lilian Rose and Dollie Denton, comediennes, the Bros. Litz, trick cyclists, the Bros. Durant, in an aeroplane burlesque, and Joseph Belmont, a clever silfleur.

WAKEFIELD.—Empire.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.; Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—Paul Conchas, Kaiser Wilhelm's Military Hercules, gives a marvellous performance, juggling with cannon balls and torpedo shells; Tom Child, popular Yorkshire tenor, is warmly applauded; Miss Edie Endon is a dainty and clever dancer; the Gilberts are smart on the tight-rope; Langley's Juveniles, including Miss Mildred Langley, a wonderful child pianist, merit applause; Laurie Leyton, ventriloquist, and Tom E. Dean, comedian, contribute popular items; and Mauritius, handcuff expert, is smart.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Everhart, hoop manipulator, submits a dexterous performance; Miss Minola Hurst and her miniature comedians submit a clever turn; Denby and Dent are amusing in their patter; the Tintos, acrobats, are much enjoyed; Martin Henderson, blind pianist, scores in a musical act; Charles Ulrick, barrel jumper, displays great skill; and W. G. Webber, bass vocalist, sings well.

WALLSEND-ON-TYNE.—Borough Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Duffy.—Molly Seymour is a comedienne and violinist of considerable ability; Percy Curry causes much mirth; the Sisters Belmont prove themselves talented speciality dancers; Griffiths and Carmen score in a humorous skit; and the following also contribute to the programme: Two Vestas, character duettists; J. E. Waldow, top-boot and buck dancer; the Cheers and their performing cats; Geo. Marquis and Grace Truly in speciality act; Will Elliott, comedian; Laura Dale, ballad vocalist; Robinson and Craig, vocalists.

Premier Picture Hall. — Proprietor, Mr. McDonald.—Some excellent films are being featured at this popular entertainment resort, The Cowboy Millionaire, a dramatic film by Essanay, being worthy of special praise. Other pictures of note are The Last Deal, dramatic, by Biograph; The Egyptian Maid, dramatic, by Pathé. Harry Duneo, comedian, is appearing this week.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—The return visit of the popular comedy Are You a Mason? has been welcomed here. Mr. Charles Frohman's company do full justice to the comedy, and the staging is effective. Mr. William Lockhart is specially successful as Amos Bloodgood; and Mr. Guy Leigh-Pemberton as Frank Perry scores. Mr. Archie Selwyn makes the most of George Fisher; and Mr. Stewart Quartermaine as Ernest Morrison is very amusing. Mr. Stanley Arthur as Hamilton Travers is well placed; Miss Agnes Maude as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood introduces many artistic touches into the part; Miss Grace Denbigh-Russell is a charming Mrs. Perry; and Miss Edna Godfrey-Turner as Lulu and Miss Leleth Gabriel as Annie are chic. Miss Peggy E. Yeoman is good as Lottie.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—Harry Meldon has scored a big success here this week, and whether in portraying the jockey Dick Turpin or Stiffy the Goalkeeper he has the house Ashley, Miss Birdie Millstone, and Messrs. Fred Beck, Phil Inglis, and George Tichborne are other prominent members of a hard-working and efficient company, whose efforts are ably seconded by the skilful musical directorship of Mr. Surtees Coyne.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Percy Norman's No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr. A. B. Mackay, is appearing in the domestic military drama A Woman Worth Having, a piece full of striking situations and well staged. Mr. Sydney Barton is admirable as Czar Nicholas; Mr. A. B. Mackay is excellent as General Borinski; Miss Trixie Leighton has a striking part as Lola Kalnovsky; and Miss Margaret Noble is charming as Roma Panioff. On Wednesday night, by special request, Trilby was announced.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. Joe Hastings.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is presenting The Dairymaids, splendidly staged and dressed. Miss Winnie Hall is a charming Peggy; Miss May Casson as Winifred sings admirably; and Miss Nellie Le Breton as Eliza is distinctly good. Mr. Norman Bowyer makes a capital Joe Mivens; and the other parts are excellently sustained.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Granville.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levey and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company are performing Hop o' My Thumb, which is excellently staged, prettily dressed, and replete with sparkling songs, good dancing, and wholesome fun. The title-rôle is undertaken by Little Georgie Harris, a wee mite full of quaintness and precocity; Miss Kitty Trewhitt is a handsome Prince U-No, and her dashing vivacity gains many admirers; as the dame and her husband Mr. Vivian Wakeman and Mr. E. W. Delman are responsible for much fun; Cowley and Rick's delineation of Hebrew character is most amusing. A special feature of the performance is Tommy (the smallest man in the world), and in this part Mr. Harold Pigott, who is twenty-three years of age, 23in. in height, and weighs 24lb, is most amusing; Miss Kitty Rafferty is charming as the Princess, her singing and dancing being prettily done. Specialities are introduced by Vivian Wakeman (clever in character and instrumental imitations), Cowley and Rick, Little Georgie Harris, and Miss Gladys Wyse, the Scotch dance by the latter being particularly neat.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. F. Thompson.—Fatmah Diard, a sweet-voiced prima donna, is again charming her audience with her rich soprano; Les Romanos prove experts in the manipulation of a variety of musical instruments; J. C. Scatter, a Tyneside comedian and dancer, is funny at all times; Guyer and Valle, in an American humorous sketch Wait Till the Finish, introduce some novel dancing; Harry Leybourne at the piano is clever in mimicry; Coram is a skilful ventriloquist, and has some capital patter; Gobert Belling and his four-legged comedians are funny, the Spanish bull-fight provoking roars of laughter.

Palace.—Manager, Mr. G. F. Hill.—Black's pictures, always popular, are filling the house twice nightly with delighted audiences. The principal picture this week is a Biblical subject dealing with the fall of Babylon, the entry of Darius into the city, and the slaying of Belshazzar. It is a splendid film of considerable length, perfectly steady and clear and well acted. A capital picture of camp life in Alaska is entitled Pardners, and is very interesting. There are, of course, many humorous subjects, and these are immensely enjoyed, especially so The Past, Weary Willie Gets a Job, and the Professor and the Cats. Variety is contributed by the Velvees and their educated pony, and Randolph Slater, who presents some clever impersonations of music-hall stars and a well-conceived burlesque sketch, She of the Smart Set.

WEYMOUTH.—Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. R. Wallis. — A strong variety company occupies the boards this week. Morelli and Moore (Frank and Gertrude) appear in their comical and musical absurdity; a fine turn is provided by Creagh and Cruikshanks in the duologue entitled Her Return; Dan Daly, a parody vocalist, scores an instantaneous success; the Avalos are successful in their clever gymnastic and juggling act; Mr. E. is a successful entertainer; Miss Edie Anderson a pleasing and charming comedienne; and Miss Gertie Mason popular in her effective songs and dances. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope projects some fine pictures.

WHITEHAVEN.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Falconer Jacques.—Mr. William Pardoe's pantomime company is here in Dick Whittington. Miss Lottie Holland makes a dashing principal boy; Miss Nellie Rose is a pleasing Alice; and Mr. George Hyam's performance as Idle Jack is most amusing. The specialities include Mr. W. Pardoe, Miss Lottie Holland, the Edgendale Trio, the Sisters Volbecque, and the Pauletti Troupe of acrobatic cyclists.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Thos. Swinton.—Miss Hook of Holland made its début here on Monday, and is being presented by Messrs. T. Dudley Bennett and Wray's company. Miss Biddy O'Brien played Sally Hook to perfection. The love affairs of Sally and Captain Paap and Bandmaster Vuyt created many diverting situations, and in all Miss O'Brien gave entire satisfaction. Mr. Frank G. Dunn conducted his band and love affairs with positively dazzling success; and Mr. Charles Simms deserves a special word of praise for his clever portrayal of old Hook.

Co-operative Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Hamilton and Hughes.—The programme presented here this week consists of peasant variety. Miss Zelda, musician, introduces many novelties; Mr. Wal Owen is a diverting humorist; Mr. Bobby White a versatile entertainer at the piano; and Messrs. Fred Cedar and George Elgar are refined comedy entertainers in Ye Dayes of Olde. The pictures include some good films.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—For Love and the King is being presented here by Mr. C. Watson Mills' capable company. Mr. Mills gives a powerful portrayal of Gerald Meredith; Mr. Alfred Maurice supplies a skilful impersonation of the Miser Michael Obrenovic; Miss Joan Ellis makes a charming Natali; Miss Rosalind Tate as Edith Meredith; Miss Marie Danvers Smith as Grazia; and Miss Laura Munro as Princess Milania also render excellent service. The mounting of the play is picturesque.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—Premier position on the bill is occupied by Mr. Barnold's smartly-trained canine celebrities, who cause endless laughter; May Henderson is loudly applauded for her coon songs; the Gascoignes are expert jugglers, who introduce a humorous element into the exhibition; Tom Gott proves to be an original comedian; the Leotard Bros. hat throwers, are very popular; a graceful equatic performance is given by Kirk and Saraski; the songs of Miss Emmie Crewdson are much appreciated; Olive May is loudly applauded for her illustrated songs; the Sisters Keeble sing and dance themselves into favour; and Hillman and Russell are good.

WISHAW, N.B.—Pavilion.—Sole Proprietor, Mr E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse.—The Selbonians, in their novel juggling act, are topping the bill here this week. Miss Addie Dorina, protean artist, in her act "Dr. Spot's Patients," is clever; Bert Weston, breezy and bright, in song and story, has an excellent reception; the Creedons, in a sporting act, do some double-club and double-ball-punching business; and Dorothy Dundas is a pleasing vocalist. The Bioscope shows some excellent new films.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis M. Chapman.—Mr. James E. Lewis's company with The Welsh Maid, a musical play, is here. Both Miss Zeta Murdock as Jenny Jones and Mr. Laurie H. Stuart as Jack Francis have pleasing voices, and sustain their respective parts with ability. The cast also includes Mr. Victor Cannon as Carodic Howell, Mr. Herbert de Ville as James Seymour, Mr. William Peru as Dafydd Thomas, Mr. Norrington Lewis as Owen Evans, Miss Theresa Spencer as Mrs. Jones, and Miss Madge Raymond as Sally Davis.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Monday marked the advent here of a new departure on the part of the management, the first house commencing at 6, and the second at 8.30 p.m., instead of seven and nine as heretofore. This gives patrons the opportunity of witnessing a fine series of animated pictures prior to the ordinary variety programme. Carlisle and Willmon, in an original novelty musical act, head the bill, and their duets on two grand pianos are given with pleasing effect; the Four Panamas appear in The Delineator, which affords two members of the troupe opportunities for displaying their acrobatic agility; M. Rauschle presents clever impersonations of celebrities; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, has two good chorus songs in "Mr. Poverty" and "Autumn Time"; Helen Martin's voice is heard to advantage in "Down the vale"; Vera Rochdale has a voice which is quite refreshing to find in a comedienne; and Frank Seeley is also here.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Evans.—A first visit of the latest and greatest of musical comedy successes, The Arcadians, is arousing enthusiasm. Mr. Chas. A. Stephenson is inimitable as the ubiquitous James Smith, and subsequently as Simplicitas; Miss Gertrude Aylward as Mrs. Smith undertakes a difficult part with much success; Mr. Alfred Beers is great as the jockey, Peter Dooley; as Jack Meadows and Eileen Mr. Arthur S. MacDonald and Miss Molly McIntyre are an interesting pair of lovers; and Mr. Horace Nye is very comical as Time. Miss Violet Roberts (Cryssa) and Miss Sybil Traneredi (Sombra) are the charming leaders of the picturesque band of Arcadians, who include also Astrophel (Mr. John Montagu), Strephon (Mr. Arthur Tregonwell), and Damœtas (Mr. Robt. Lampriere).

WORKINGTON.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, in A Girl's Temptation, is drawing good houses here. As Guy Warren, the prodigal, Mr. Frank V. Fenn plays with dramatic force, and is ably supported by Miss Gertrude Gilbert as Kate Stirling, another "prodigal." The villainies of Mark Klaw, as presented by Mr. Clifton Earle, are as devilish as art can make them; Mr. Charles Herbert plays the millionaire father with talent and feeling; and Mr. Tom Handley as the Hon. Charles Cade is also good. Mr. Freddie Bentley as Sniggles is droll, and the acting of Miss Blanche Lee as Annie Brown leaves nothing to be desired.

Carnegie Hall.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—The pictures are very good this week, including The Honour of the Family. May Knight is an ideal singer; R. C. Note gives some clever vocalisations, and Daisy Devonport is a charming comedienne.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Mac.—The film Who Swallowed the Sponge? is a laughing success. Miss Nancy Renshaw sings clever coon songs, and Mr. Clifton Hall is a first-class baritone.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Adolf Seebold.—The Co-operative Variety Artists' Federation has arranged for the bill here again this week, it being the last of the four weeks' contract. Excellent audiences have attended the various performances. The principal item on the programme is provided by Sid Bedford and company with The Second Mrs. Chester. Other turns include Morton and Elliott, paper manipulators, harmonica players, and vocalists; a novel comedy act is given by Farley, Rennie, and Farley, entitled Fun at a Railway Station; an excellent comedy character-study of Lancashire life is introduced by Rousby and Rene; and some clever whirlwind dancing by the Czar's Royal Troupe of dancers. Other acceptable items are provided by Halter and Ray, American comedy artists; Tom Garland, a clever ventriloquist; and Harry Maynard,

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, MARCH 9.—A Son of the People, a drama in three acts, by Sophus Michaelis, was produced at the New Theatre on the 28th ult. Earlier in the season it was produced at the Irving-place German Theatre, under the title of A Revolutionary Wedding. In the original Danish it was first performed in Stockholm on Oct. 10, 1908, and is said to have been well received in several European cities. The rehearsals were conducted under the supervision of the author, who is visiting New York during a tour around the world. The drama deals with a fictitious episode of the French Revolution. Ernest des Tressailles joins the Royalist forces in their last rally. He is in love with Alaine, daughter of the Comte de l'Estoile, and has been engaged to her since childhood. Alaine is a woman of strong character, while he is weak and vacillating. These two are married in the chapel of the Fortress Condé, and Ernest prepares to leave his bride of a few hours in order to join the Royalists. The time is April, 1793, the scene is a salon in the Château Trionville, and the action takes place within thirteen hours. A spy sends word to the Revolutionists that the young Royalist may be caught, and immediately after the wedding we hear the strains of the "Marseillaise," while shots are heard, and the Revolutionists appear in the courtyard. Colonel Marc Arron is in command, and when his soldiers invade the château they recognise the bridegroom as a nobleman. He is arrested and condemned to die; but the Colonel intercedes in his behalf with Montaloup, Commissioner of the Convention, and the aristocrat is allowed a few hours more in order that he may pass them with his bride. Then he is sentenced to be shot at six o'clock in the morning. The condemned man is overcome with fear. Alaine tries to comfort him, but he pays no heed to her, and in desperation she finally sends for Colonel Arron, and offers to give herself to him in exchange for her husband's life. He consents, and the aristocrat dons the officer's clothes, receives the countersign, and escapes. Alaine now refuses to carry out the compact. She has intended to trick the Revolutionist; but his behaviour in the face of danger, contrasted as it is with the cowardice of her husband, arouses her admiration, and for the first time in her life, when she understands the situation, her affections are awakened. For what he has done Colonel Arron will have to take the escaped prisoner's place before the firing-party in the morning. This "son of the people," however, is not only a soldier but a philosopher, and he accepts the inevitable. Until six in the morning he will sleep. But Alaine has yet to understand the full extent of the sacrifice he is making. Montaloup, the leader of the court-martial, pleads with Arron and tries to save him. The one glories in his resolve, and the other deplores it, yet rejoices in Arron's bravery, while Alaine, unobserved, stands by and overhears. When the soldier's courage and the depth of his devotion are made clear to the high-spirited girl, she keeps her word, and surrenders herself to him. So Colonel Arron enjoys a few brief hours of happiness, and pays the penalty in the morning, when the soldiers send half a dozen bullets into his body.

With Mr. John Mason and Mr. George Fawcett representing Marc Arron and Montaloup respectively, the performance of this play could hardly fail to give intense satisfaction. The two characters, in fact, are admirably realised, and the stirring scenes of the drama are enacted in a powerful and vivid manner. Miss Katherine Kaelred, Mr. Walter Hale, and Mr. Thomas McLarnie play prominent parts well.

"THE TURNING POINT," a play in three acts, by Preston Gibson, was produced on the 28th ult. at the Hackett Theatre. After a trial performance of the play in another city, the accusation was made that many of the epigrams it contained had been taken word for word from Oscar Wilde's An Ideal Husband. On the opening night in New York Mr. Gibson appeared before the curtain and made a speech, in which he said that any similarity in expression or sentiment to the work of another author was "the result of uniform human experience," and that if there had been any "unconscious absorption" he hoped the audience would agree that it was a "creditable mental process." Parts of the dialogue have been published, however, side by side with extracts from Oscar Wilde's play, and the plagiarism is as plain as a pikestaff.

The story deals with the efforts of an unscrupulous financier, Frederick Ferguson, to obtain possession of a mining property in Virginia from its owner, Brent Breckenridge, who knows nothing of its value. A company is formed, and Ferguson persuades his friends to invest their money. The property is useless, however, unless a certain right of way is obtained along with it. In the meantime, Aline Anderson, a friend of Breckenridge, persuades him not to sell the piece of property that will afford the right of way, advising him to form a company of his own, and dig for the coal that has been found there. Breckenridge is in love with his fair adviser, but has decided not to marry until he has become a rich man. He acts on her advice, and prospers, while Ferguson fails. But Aline's mother has invested not only her daughter's money, but other funds entrusted to her care, and unless she can bring about a marriage between her daughter and Ferguson there seems to be nothing but bankruptcy and disgrace before her. Aline agrees to marry Ferguson, in spite of her love for Breckenridge; but the latter intervenes, and presumably marries her himself.

The play has proved fairly successful. Miss Grace Filkins as Pansy Parr, the young society widow responsible for most of the epigrams, plays the part delightfully. The character she portrays has little to do with the story, but her vivacity and wit prove irresistible. Messrs. Charles Gotthold, Edward See, and Cuyler Hastings acquit themselves well in important rôles.

"BRIGHT EYES," a musical comedy, for which the various authors of Three Twins are responsible, was produced on the 28th ult. at the New York Theatre. The latter piece was a musical version of an old farce entitled Incog., and it proved enormously successful. In the new comedy, another farce, entitled Mistakes Will Happen, by Charles Dickson and Grant Stewart, has been subjected to similar treatment, and the happiest results have been obtained. A blending of fun and music sometimes proves enjoyable even to intellectual playgoers when the artistic proprieties are preserved, and this essential has not been overlooked by the authors of Bright Eyes.

The story of the play may be told in a few words. Tom Genowin, a comedian, has written a play called Bright Eyes, and John Montague, manager of the Morality Theatre, has undertaken to produce it. When the curtain goes up the scene represents a rehearsal, and this is conducted in a highly diverting manner. Montague is a "tough" specimen, who wants no married people in his company. So when he bullies Dorothy Mayland, the leading lady, and Tom defends her, it comes out that Tom is her husband, and the irate manager discharges the pair of them. Out in the cold world, with no visible means of support, seems to be the prospect before the young married pair as they sit on their boxes behind the scenes and prepare to depart, but before they leave the theatre Hunter-Chase, the proprietor, a very susceptible elderly gentleman, calls to see the manager, and takes a great interest in Dorothy from the moment he casts eyes on her. Mrs. Hunter-Chase, who accompanies her husband, is stage-struck, and Tom willingly undertakes to make an actress of her by giving her a part in Bright Eyes, the play that was being rehearsed when Tom and his wife were discharged by Montague. In order to help her husband to get his play produced for the entertainment of the Hunter-Chases and their friends, Dorothy humours her elderly admirer, and as Mrs. Hunter-Chase makes an appointment with Tom to be taught the whole art of acting, it comes about that the two couples have to dodge each other upstairs and downstairs and through trap-doors in approved farcical fashion in the Hunter-Chase carriage-house. The entire second act is taken up with this scene, and the rest of the play is made up of the usual ingredients of musical comedy.

Mr. Cecil Lean and Miss Florence Holbrook, a well-known vaudeville pair, are the principal players, and to their cleverness the success of the piece is largely due. Of the musical numbers the most popular are "Bright Eyes," a pleasing refrain that crops up at frequent intervals; and "Mrs. Casey." Miss Holbrook's humorous rendering of the latter song makes a big hit. Mr. Percy Lyndal is very good as the frisky Hunter-Chase; and Mr. Arthur Conrad, as a Cockney coachman, contributes some capital dancing. The piece, as a whole, provides excellent entertainment for musical comedy lovers. The book was written by Charles Dickson, and the music by Karl Hoschna.

THE notable engagement of Mr. E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe at the Academy of Music came to an end last Saturday, but on the 21st inst. they will return to fulfil another engagement at the same theatre. Particularly successful was their recent revival of Twelfth Night, with Miss Marlowe as Viola and Mr. Southern as Malvolio. Public appreciation of these eminent players was shown by the fact that the Academy was crowded at every performance.

"AS YOU LIKE IT," in which Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe have never before appeared together, will be produced during the return engagement. Prominent members of the company that supported Mr. Sothern last season in Richelieu and Our American Cousin appear in important rôles in the Shakespearean revivals, these including Messrs. Rowland Buckstone, Sydney Mather, Frederick Lewis, William Harris, Albert S. Howson, and Malcolm Bradley.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM began an engagement at the Broad-street Theatre, Philadelphia, on Monday, the 7th inst., and received a hearty greeting from a representative audience. The play was The Mollusc, by Hubert Henry Davies, and all reports state that it went splendidly. After several curtain calls at the end of the second act, Sir Charles addressed the audience, and expressed himself as being immensely gratified by his reception. It was twenty years since he had last appeared in Philadelphia on the same stage.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD fulfilled a return engagement at the Plaza Music Hall last week, and received a hearty welcome. His songs went better than ever, for the Plaza has its regular following, and the audience had thoroughly "caught on" to all the good points of Mr. Lashwood's melodious offerings—knew them all by heart in fact, and supported him more vociferously in the choruses than they did when he first opened there.

MR. PERCY G. WILLIAMS is about to open a new vaudeville theatre in Brooklyn, with special conveniences for the comfort of animal actors. There are to be baths, drinking-troughs, and other accessories.

MISS ADELINE BOYER, a California girl, who is said to have made a reputation as a dancer in London and Paris, appeared with great success at the American Music Hall last week. Her act is called A Princess of Israel.

MR. NORMAN AND REPERTORY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As there is much talk nowadays about repertory theatres and repertory companies, perhaps I may be permitted to state that for over twelve consecutive years I have run practically the only repertory company in existence in the English provinces (assuming a repertory company to be a company that produces all styles and types of plays). I have produced Shakespeare, modern, and costume plays and comedies, and modern farce. The living authors whose works I have endeavoured to interpret include Ibsen, Pinero, Henry Arthur Jones, H. V. Esmond, and Oscar Wilde amongst others, and I have produced a considerable number of plays by lesser-known authors whose work has appealed to me. Amongst these productions I might mention Count Hannibal, by Freeman Wills and Frederick Langbridge, who were the authors of the first dramatised version of Stanley Weyman's novel. At the present time over twenty actors and actresses who have fulfilled engagements with me are playing prominent parts in West End theatres. Mr Robert Hilton, for example, whose season at the Strand has ended so disastrously, was a member of my company for years, and played Richelieu in my production of Under the Red Robe, and no less than four parts, at various times, in my production of David Garrick.

A repertory company of this description has not met with very much support from the resident-managers of theatres. I continually read reports of speeches deploring the decline of the drama, and glowing with benevolence, that have emanated from the mouths of various managers, who have privately stated that there is no necessity for a repertory company, and have declined to hold out a helping finger (let alone a hand). Of course, there are exceptions, or my humble efforts would not have lasted as long as they have, but the usual attitude has been indifference. This is a mistake. A properly-run company of this description will always command a fair measure of support, in the country as well as in London. The only other similar company I can recall of late years was run by Mr. Ben Greet. But where is Mr. Ben Greet now? In America. Had Mr. Greet been, for example, a German, a Frenchman, or an Italian, he certainly would not have gone to another country to carry on his work. There are hundreds of playgoers at the present day asking what has become of Mr. Ben Greet, and why they never see his productions. If certain prominent managers of theatres would combine artistic with financial interests, the works of the best living and dead authors could be put before that section of the public that desires other food besides musical comedy and melodrama—there is such a section—in an adequate, if not an elaborate, manner, and without financial loss. Also the young actor and actress would have an opportunity of gaining very valuable experience. In my own company, Miss Beatrice Wilson (my leading lady) has played between thirty and forty of totally dissimilar characters, ranging from Lady Macbeth to Kitty in The Marriage of Kitty. My stage-manager, who has been with me for over seven years, has helped me to produce over forty plays also of totally dissimilar character.—Yours faithfully, NORMAN V. NORMAN.

THE means which made Germany a musical nation were suggested by Dr. F. G. Shinn in his address to the London members of the Incorporated Society of Musicians on Saturday night on the subject of "The Treatment by Bach of the Chorale in Organ Music." Dr. Shinn attributed the musical prominence of the Germans to the singing of chorales, which were mixed up with the national life. A large number were used in domestic services, and he believed there were families who sang daily chorales with the same regularity that we had breakfast. When Germany was only a collection of countries, as yet not jointed together into one Empire, it was the chorales that knit them together. Sir George Grove once told him that he believed the musical greatness of Germany was, to a large extent, due to the chorales having got into the nature of the people and made them what they were musically.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. PATRICK KIRWAN.

Mr. Patrick Kirwan was born in Ireland of Irish parentage on both sides. He made his first public appearance at Brighton on the platform, having taken up the work of public reading as Brandramm had done before him and Clifford Harrison was then doing. After touring the provinces, he came to London, and gave many public readings from Shakespeare and other dramatists at the Steinway Hall, St. James's Hall, and the Royal Albert Hall. Among other schemes, he launched an interesting one of "Three Centuries of English Literature, Drama, and Music," showing, by typical selections, the growth of the three arts. After becoming one of the few leading names in dramatic reciting, Mr. Kirwan gave several seasons of recitation at the Royal Albert Hall. He then turned his attention to stage-training, and, besides giving much private tuition, became Professor of Elocution and stage production at the Lyric and Dramatic Academy. In an open competition organised by the late London School Board he was elected Specialist Lecturer on the Speaking Voice, and was re-elected five times in that capacity. He also gave lectures upon this subject at Hailebury, Wellington, St. Edmunds, and other Colleges.

Mr. Kirwan made his first appearance on the professional stage as Drega, the warder, in Alfred Calmour's play Cyrene at the Avenue Theatre—now the Playhouse—afterwards playing for Mr. George Grossmith, jun., through the run of Gulliver at the same house. All this time Mr. Kirwan was continuing the teaching and study of expressive speech, and subsequently went to Paris, where he had the pupils of the Conservatoire passed under his examination, making a thorough investigation into the system of teaching.

In 1904 Mr. Kirwan formed his own company, under the title of "Patrick Kirwan's Idyllic Players," and gave his first season of pastoral plays at the Royal Botanic Gardens in Regent's Park, producing Shakespearean selections, and his own plays, A Dream of Old Versailles and Priscilla, as well as complete Shakespearean plays and Fletcher's Wild-Goose Chase. The following year Mr. Kirwan added to his open-air Shakespearean productions two original presentations—his own adaptation from the French, entitled La Marquise, and John Lilly's Gallathea, now produced for the first time since the days of Queen Elizabeth. During the following years Mr Kirwan continued his open-air plays at the Royal Botanical Gardens in London, in addition to touring in Birmingham and other towns, and giving pastoral performances each year at the Hurlingham Club and at Devonshire Park, Eastbourne.

In the spring of 1909 Mr. Kirwan joined Sir Herbert Tree's company, playing for him at His Majesty's Theatre during the run of The Dancing Girl, and afterwards in the Shakespearean Festival at that theatre. Mr. Kirwan transferred his open-air plays last season to Leighton House, Kensington, where, under the patronage of Sir Herbert Tree, he produced a new and unpublished Greek Masque—Achilles in Scyros—by the Poet Laureate, in addition to Tennyson's Foresters, A Midsummer Night's Dream, The Tempest, Gallathea, &c.

Among the characters which Mr. Kirwan has played may be mentioned Bottom the Weaver, Prospero, Caliban, Benedick, Malvolio, Sir Toby Belch, the Sea Captain, Mirabel, Gringoire, Falstaff, Jaques, and Captain Loddra.

A CORRECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I should like to correct a little mistake in Mr. Lester Collingwood's "Recollections." He mentions "that fine old comedian Fred Yarnold," &c. Evidently he refers to my late father, George Yarnold. I never had the pleasure of being engaged at the Charing Cross Theatre—it was a little before my time; but as a youngster I often saw my father play there. I believe it was during W. H. C. Nation's management, under whose banner he also fulfilled successful engagements at Astley's and the old Holborn Theatre, then renamed the National. I may be pardoned for adding my father was a general favourite on and off the stage. Thanking Mr. Collingwood for his kind appreciation.—I am, yours faithfully,

FRED YARNOLD.

A BENEFIT was accorded on the 11th inst. to Mr. Edwin Garth, the popular Mrs. Crusoe of the Bristol Theatre Royal pantomime, and was a regular "bumper." The production itself was somewhat curtailed, for among the attractions were Mr. Horace Mills and Mr. Charles Harvey, from the Prince's Theatre; Miss Irene Rose, who received a warm welcome; Mr. Dave Jenkins, who sang a new number; and the Sisters Albert, Messrs. Bennett and Martell, Harry Marks, Jack Percival, Ross and Yorks, Frank Maynard, Miss Judith Espinosa, and Mr. Frank Dunlop.

MISS IDA MOLESWORTH and Mark Blow's company opened their second week's engagement at the Opera House, Cork. As Prince Julian Mr. Douglas Murray invested the character with forcefulness and spirit; Miss Elizabeth Dundas as Vera, the slave, expressed tenderness and emotion with much refinement and effect; as Princess Claudia Miss Agnes Verity filled the part admirably. Mr. Charles E. Johnson as Bordoni portrayed the villain impressively; Mr. Ernest Clarke was an acceptable Lieut. Alexis; Mr Harry Benson as Patrick O'Brien created hearty laughter by his antics; and Mr. J. C. Cuthbertson as Otto was very good. The minor parts were well filled.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

On Thursday evening, March 10, a pianoforte recital was given by the pupils of Mr. Norman P. Cummings before a large audience. The programme commenced with Scherzo (Brahms) carefully played by Miss Eva Revell. Miss Amy L. Parsons had a hearty recall after her performance of Arensky's Study in F, and a very youthful pupil of Mr. Cummings, Miss Sally Widenbaum, gave an effective rendering of "Roumanian Dance" (Strelezki). Miss Dora Soper was much applauded for her finished playing of Serenade and Allegro Giojoso (Mendelssohn), while an advanced student, Miss Clotilde Hart, A.G.S.M., was very successful in Chopin's Ballade in G. Miss Dorothy Edmonds gave Bach's difficult Prelude and Fugue in B flat, and later in the programme an excellent performance of the first movement from Beethoven's Concerto in G. In the second and third movements of Sterndale Bennett's Concerto in F, Mr. Arthur Duley greatly distinguished himself. Mr. Duley's second piece was Scherzo (Tschaikowsky). A graceful Valse in G flat (Chaminade), played by Mrs. Florence Edwards, and Chopin's Fantaisie by Mr. Stuart Welch concluded a recital that reflected great credit on the pupils and their professor.

The pupils of Mr. John Francis Barnett gave an interesting pianoforte recital on Friday afternoon, March 11. There were some fifteen items in the programme, including three compositions by Mr. J. F. Barnett. Miss Ethel Bolus played Bach's Prelude and another selection, and Miss Frances Cox was successful in Schumann's Humoreske, Op. 28. Miss Dorothy Axtell neatly executed Chopin's Nocturne in F sharp, but her best effort was in Moszkowski's "En Automne." A graceful Liebeslied, by Mr. J. F. Barnett, was ably played by Miss Gladys Mills. The first performance of a Sonata in A minor (M.S.), by Miss Beatrice Dunn, was a pleasing feature of this recital. Miss Dunn, who is a pupil (for composition) of Mr. Barnett, displayed considerable promise in her Sonata, of which the cleverly-written Andante Con Moto and lively Allegro Molto Vivace were the most attractive movements. Miss Beatrice Dunn, who was much applauded, admirably performed her own work. Two clever pupils, Miss Jessie Attwell and Miss Dorothy Axtell, second pianoforte, were heard in a brilliant performance of the striking first movement from Tschaikowsky's Concerto in B flat minor, while Miss Margaret Gray deserved praise for her skilful rendering of Mr. J. F. Barnett's pleasing "Musical Landscapes," "Wild Flowers," "The Forge." In Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 13 (Liszt) Miss Dorothy Ellis displayed considerable technical ability, and Miss Muriel Kingsbury played Field's Nocturne in G flat and Mendelssohn's Lied ohne worte in C, with good expression. Other clever pupils were Miss Lily White, who gave Mr. J. F. Barnett's charming Nocturne in G flat, No. 2; Miss Bethwin Foss, heard in Chopin's B minor Scherzo; and Miss Greta Dunlop, who played the same composer's Fantaisie Impromptu. The programme concluded with Capriccio in B minor (Mendelssohn), performed by Miss Edna Burston and Miss Bethwin Foss, second pianoforte.

At the students' orchestral concert on Wednesday afternoon, in the hall of the City of London School, Dr. Cummings included in the programme four works of Dr. Arne in honour of the composer's two hundredth anniversary. Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne, born in 1710 in London, was the son of a furniture dealer. Educated at Eton, he was destined for the law; but, showing great musical talent, his father yielded to his desire to become a musician. In 1733 his first opera (Rosamund) was produced at Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre, his sister, the famous Mrs. Cibber, singing the principal part. In 1736 he married Miss Young, the singer, and died in 1778. Dr. Arne wrote thirty operas, two oratorios, and many glees and songs. "Blow, blow, thou wintry wind," "Where the bee sucks," and, above all, "Rule, Britannia," are his best known airs and Artaxerxes (1762) his most celebrated opera. "Where the bee sucks" is at the present day still popular in our concert rooms, and while England does rule the sea the composer of "Rule, Britannia" will not be forgotten. There is a certain old-world charm in all Dr. Arne's music, and a good performance of his Overture to Artaxerxes was secured by the orchestral students under Dr. Cummings. Miss Elsie Short (pupil of Madame Armstrong) cleverly executed the florid music in Dr. Arne's song "The soldier tired," from Artaxerxes, and sang recit. and air "Ah me, what fears oppress" and "Guardian angels," from Alfred (1740) with considerable vocal charm. The last example of Dr. Arne was the recit. and air "The star that bids the shepherd fold" and "Now Phœbus sinketh in the west" (Comus, 1750), most artistically sung by a talented pupil of Mr. Bantock Pierpoint (Mr Bevington Rosse), who possesses a really fine baritone voice. Sterndale Bennett's Pianoforte Concerto No. 4 in F was skilfully played by Mr. Arthur O. Daley, who deserved praise for his earnest playing of that exquisite musical gem the second movement of the concerto. Mr. Daley, who is a pupil of Mr. Norman P. Cummings, was warmly applauded. Miss Jenny Hyman was the accompanist, and the concert ended with the orchestral performance of the Overture to Francesca von Remini (Goetz).

MUCH to the regret of his numerous patrons Mr. Hy. Hearn has, we learn, resigned the management of the Borough Theatre, Wallsend-on-Tyne.

MR. SYDNEY ROSENFELD is writing a play, entitled A Divorce Colony, and in search of "local colour" is going to spend a few days in Reno, Nevada, where the divorces come from.

"CHANTECLER" costumes, styles, suggestions, songs, dances, jokes, and imitations will permeate musical comedy and vaudeville in New York during the next month or two.

FORTY years' service in the cause of music stands to the credit of Mr. John Hedley, the secretary of the Royal Choral Society, who is about to retire from the post in which he has been responsible for the organisation of practically every concert and musical festival held in the Albert Hall under the auspices of the Choral Society. Last week Mr. Hedley was honoured by the King in the form of the membership of the Victorian Order. Born at Woolwich some seventy-seven years ago, Mr. Hedley has seen active service in the Crimea. He can claim the distinction that he never missed attendance at a rehearsal, concert, or an examination of candidates for admission to the choir. During his connection with the Society he has tried from 17,000 to 18,000 voices.

MR. DE WOLF HOPPER, the "lengthy comedian," is fulfilling an engagement at the Forrest Theatre, Philadelphia. He is appearing in a new musical comedy called A Matinée Idol, this being an adaptation of Molière's comedy Le Médecin Malgré Lui, prepared by Armand Bernard, with music by Silvio Hein. Mr. Hopper impersonates an American actor, who arrives in Normandy expecting to teach elocution and dramatic art at a young ladies' seminary. When he reaches the place, however, he finds that the post has been secured by another. The principal of the school has a son who pretends illness to avoid being sent back to college, a little love affair requiring his presence at home. The actor turns doctor, aids and abets the young fellow in his adventures, and gets himself into all sorts of trouble, until he is finally exposed as an impostor. According to the local newspapers, Mr. Hopper has a rôle that is well suited to him, and he is still making the witty entr'acts speech that the audience looks for at every performance.

THE CREWE THEATRE FIRE.

The fire which broke out in the Crewe Opera House shortly after midnight on the 11th inst., and which we briefly reported in our last issue, was extremely disastrous. The theatre was closed as usual shortly after eleven o'clock, and the acting-manager, Mr. Ambrose Fischer, was engaged in his office over the entrance portion of the building until about an hour later. He was on the point of leaving when he detected a smell of burning, and going along the corridor leading to the left wing of the building he was amazed to find the male dressing-room beneath the stage on fire. He immediately ran to the fire station and gave the alarm. Returning, he attempted to get under the stage, where there are several hydrants. He seized a fireman's hatchet, and burst open the door, but was overcome by the smoke and flames, and had not a fireman rescued him he would have perished. He was unconscious for some time afterwards.

The Brigade, under Captain Harding and Lieut. Roberts, were promptly on the scene, and when the stage door was burst open they found the place was blazing like a furnace. It was seen from the outset that all attempts to save the building would be futile, and the firemen concentrated their efforts on safeguarding the valuable shop property by which the theatre is surrounded on three sides. Quite recently the lessee, Mr. Dudley Bennett, had fitted the stage with an asbestos fireproof curtain, and for a time this confined the fire to the stage, but eventually the archway above succumbed to the devouring element, and the curtain doubled up and fell. With this obstruction removed the fire made great headway in the auditorium, and the woodwork and fittings, consisting largely of pitchpine, became a ready prey to the flames. The brigade were summoned at 12.30, and by one o'clock the whole building was one great conflagration.

The Crewe Works Brigade came and offered their assistance, and, under Captain Earp, they played a prominent part in helping to restrict the fire to the theatre buildings. The roof eventually fell in, and, with its disappearance, the flames subsided somewhat. The fire, however, continued its work until every rafter and beam had been brought down. After two or three hours' hard work the fire was got under, (although the Corporation Brigade did not consider it safe to leave the premises until 3.30 on the Friday afternoon—after being on duty fifteen hours. The theatre had been entirely gutted, and only the bare walls and the iron supports and charred woodwork of the dress circle remained.

The theatre consisted of a very large stage—one of the best to be found in provincial theatres—pit, dress circle, and gallery. The dress circle was cosily furnished with easy chairs upholstered in plush, the front rows consisting of patent folding stalls, and it had only recently been fitted with patent gas radiators for heating purposes. All these perished in the fire, besides a large quantity of valuable scenery and the complete wardrobe of the Dick Whittington pantomime company, who were fulfilling a week's engagement. In addition to their stage clothes members of the company lost a quantity of private clothes, valuable jewellery, and some expensive saddlery, estimated to be worth £25. The only portion which was saved was the bar, but even the walls and doors of this compartment was badly charred. A number of valuable musical instruments, including two drums and a violoncello, were sacrificed, and the majority of these were not insured. The damage is roughly estimated at between £7,000 and £8,000. Mr. Dudley Bennett, since he took over the theatre, has spent hundreds of pounds in improvements. The origin of the fire has not been ascertained.

Much sympathy was naturally felt for the Dick Whittington company, and efforts were at once set on foot by Mr. Wallace Lumb, Mr. Henry Taylor, and others, to raise funds for their benefit. Mr. Lumb personally made a collection in the town on their behalf, and on Saturday afternoon and evening the company gave entertainments in the Town Hall (kindly placed at their disposal free of charge), which received a large measure of patronage. In the evening the Mayor (Councillor Wooldridge) attended, and Mr. Dan Thomas, who had met with such a big reception during the week in the rôle of Betsy, the cook, sang several character songs.

The name of Mr. Henry Taylor is closely associated with the history of the Crewe Theatre. In 1881 Mr. Taylor, who settled in Crewe in the 'sixties, took an active part in amateur dramatic performances. In the old chapel in Heath-street, which had been vacated by the Catholics for more commodious premises, Mr. H. Taylor established the old Lyceum Theatre. The gallery hitherto occupied by the choir was converted into the circle, and at the other end a stage was erected. Miss Bateman, Mr. F. A. Scudamore, and Mr. Frank Fayre were the heads of some of the first companies who occupied the boards, and the enterprise met with such support that Mr. Taylor set his mind on securing a larger and more suitable building. He accordingly approached the leading townsmen, and the result was the formation of the Lyceum Buildings Company, and the erection in 1887 of the theatre which was destroyed on the 11th inst. Mr. Taylor was appointed lessee and manager, and retained that position until some twelve months ago, when he disposed of his interest to Mr. H. Dudley Bennett, of the Shakespeare Theatre, London.

Before commencing his sermon at the Hightown Congregational Church on Sunday evening last, the Rev. C. J. Barry referred to the theatre fire, and expressed sympathy with the artists, on whom, he said, he had called. He had promised to forward any donations that might be entrusted to him to Mr. Dan Thomas. He (Mr. Barry) was giving 10s. himself.

We understand that the Lyceum Buildings Co., Ltd., have not yet considered the question of the reconstruction of the theatre.

MUSIC lovers in London over the Easter Holidays are promised excellent musical fare on Good Friday afternoon and again on Easter Sunday afternoon at Queen's Hall. On Good Friday afternoon the Queen's Hall Orchestra will perform some of their most popular numbers, including the "Pathetique" Symphony (Tchaikovsky), Prelude to Lohengrin and Good Friday Music (Parsifal), and the Overture, Leonora, No. 3. Miss Amy Evans, the new Welsh soprano who has so rapidly sprung into fame, will be the vocalist. On Easter Sunday the Queen's Hall Orchestra will again be heard in a programme consisting exclusively of excerpts from Wagner's works, the vocalist on this occasion being Miss Edith Evans. Mr. Henry J. Wood will conduct both concerts.

MR. FRANK ADAIR'S powerful company, in The Heathen and the Christian, is here this week at the Empire Theatre, Fleetwood. Mr. Adair takes the exacting rôle of Li the Avenger, and does not spare himself, giving a fine interpretation of a difficult part. He is ably supported by Miss Louie Adair as Mira Sampson, her intensely dramatic rendering of a heavy part being excellent. Mr. Ellis Carlyle as George Berresford is decidedly good, while Lieut. Lord Allandale has a capable exponent in Mr. Gerald Shirley. Hung Li is portrayed by Mr. Fred Withers in first-class style. Miss Stanley Burt is a sweet and winsome heroine. Becky Fibbins could not be in better hands than those of Miss Eva Reeve, who is a comedienne far above the average. Her songs and dances invariably receive encores.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 14, the Play, by Wilson Barrett, entitled

"THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

The crowded and interested houses which nightly applaud the late Wilson Barrett's engrossing story of the struggle for supremacy between the Pagans and the Christians in the days of ancient Rome amply prove the wonderful vitality of The Sign of the Cross, even after an existence of nearly fifteen years. Apart from its relationship to the Church, the plot is so dramatic as to enthral any audience who keenly follow the martyrdom of the early Christians. Mr. William Greet's company has not been allowed to deteriorate, but it is now as complete and efficient as in former years, a fact which the King's audiences have keenly appreciated. Mr. Lawson Butt gives a masterly performance of the Prefect Marcus Superbus, whose conversion from Paganism to Christianity is admirably represented. An excellent portraiture of the Emperor Nero is given by Mr. W. Mayne Linton, and Mr. Charles Aldred makes much of the tyrannical Tigellinus. Mr. Frank Woods' Glabrio is characteristically humorous, and Philodemus is well played by Mr. Harry Jones. Powerfully enacted is the Servilius of Mr. H. Thurston Harris, and Mr. Martin Palmer renders good service as Strabo. Mr. J. Wetherall's Lycinius is neatly represented, and Viturius is in the safe hands of Mr. Phil Ellis. A very impressionable performance is that of Favius, the Christian, by Mr. Walter Fleet, who receives able support from Mr. Henri Raymond as Titus. The boy Stephanus is well played by Miss Winifred Delevanti, her youthful intensity appealing directly to the sympathies of the audience. A brilliant success is attained by Miss Evelyn Hope in the part of Mercia, her extremely able acting eliciting vociferous applause. Miss Beryl Hamilton is an efficient Poppæa, and Miss Esme Lee is a bright and diverting Dacia. The revengeful Berenice is most picturesquely personated by Miss Dorothy Lart, an actress who should be heard of again. The scenery and appointments are completely effective, and the costumes are in excellent taste.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 14, the Drama entitled

"THE BEGGAR GIRL'S WEDDING."

Patrons of the Marlborough have nightly crowded the house to witness Mr. Walter Melville's strong drama, which has been followed with intense interest and heartily applauded. The piece is effectively staged, and a strong company present it in a manner that commands the attention of the audience from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Mr. Otto Minster ably undertakes the onerous part of Jack Cunningham. His performance is sincere and genuine, and he well deserves the encomiums lavished upon him. As the villain, Gilbert Lindsay, Mr. Herbert Morgan is decidedly good, imbuing his part with a callous realism that brings into prominence all the malignity of a brutal nature. Mr. Charles Brucester materially contributes to the success by an admirable rendering of the rôle of Norman Marsh, and Mr. Herbert Goddard is suitably reserved as the solicitor, Robert Grimshaw. A character sketch of much merit is submitted by Mr. Harry Playfair as Joe Webster, a thief trainer, and as the Dodger, one of Webster's pupils, Mr. Horace Kenney portrays the part in a highly-efficient manner. As the eccentric physician, Dr. Milbank, Mr. Charles Barclay is in every way commendable, and Messrs. G. Vernon (P.C. Phillips), D. Cartwright (Vicar) intelligently interpret their respective parts. Miss Marie Duncan as Bessie Webster, the Beggar Girl, gives an artistic and pathetic rendering. Miss Olive Warne's excellent performance as Maud Villiers stands out with marked prominence, every phase of the part is handled with skill. Miss Lily Dunker acts in a quiet and telling manner as Elsie Cunningham. Miss Anita Playfair causes amusement as Lizzie, and Mr. Herbert Lloyd as the warm-hearted retired greengrocer supplies abundant cause for laughter.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, March 14, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled

"THE BONDMAN."

Prior to the closing of Mr. Robert Arthur's Notting Hill Gate playhouse during Holy Week, when certain improvements and renovations will be carried out, under the supervision of the energetic and capable resident-manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore, The Bondman is on a return visit. Mr. Hall Caine's poignant and powerful play is admirably staged and mounted, the scene at Sulphur Mines being a miniature marvel of realism and mechanical ingenuity. Mr. Philip Darien, a fine figure of a man, as the muscular, high-minded Jason, acts and speaks with impressive dignity and pathos. It is a fine character finely interpreted. Mr. Stanley Harrison, as his more psychical half-brother Michael Sunlocks, acts as a good foil, and earns the pity and esteem of the audience by an excellent all-round embodiment. Mr. W. H. Rotheram, in the parts of the old grandfather (played by the late Lal Brough) and Father Ferrati, displays versatility. Miss Violet Macaree is exceedingly good as Greeba, a performance full of latent strength. Miss Madge Lanerton does good service as the time-serving Mrs. Ruth Fairbrother, and Misses Ethel Hartman, Dorothy Radcliffe, and Florence Owen act well. Nor must we forget the dear little girl Mona, as acted so prettily by Miss Beatrice Maud Hughes, and the precocious Master Danny of Master Walter Neville. As Doctor Boni and Governor Testa Messrs. Fred J. Waller and Alfred Fisher are duly saturnine and heartless. Other small parts too numerous to mention are satisfactorily rendered. Mr. F. C. Pool is business-manager, and Mr. Reginald A. Hunt is stage-manager.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14, the Romantic Play, entitled

"THE PROUD PRINCE."

Dalstonians have this week the opportunity of seeing The Proud Prince, which, coming as it does direct from the Lyceum, is charged with all the attraction of a West End production, and is therefore being witnessed by full houses. The scenery, by Mr. E. C. Nicholls and his assistants, is much admired, the best work of the artiste being noticeable in the sets representing the mountain top, the cathedral at Syracuse, and the arena. The duties of stage-manager are undertaken by Mr. George Martin; while the special music composed by Mr. H. Sullivan-Brooke is rendered by an efficient orchestra under the direction of Mr. Arthur Robey. The acting of the piece is of that vigorous kind which is bound to please the playgoer who delights to see the characters positively alive. Mr. E. Vassall-Vaughan, who appears as King Robert of Sicily, sets the lead in this respect, in fusing into the part a degree of vitality which, judging by the excellent tone of the presentation, is infectious. Mr. Frederic Sargent has a striking part as Count Hildebrand, the ruthlessness and ambitious characteristics of the personage being forcibly delineated. As Diogenes, the Court fool, Mr. Frank Ward gives an effective rendering of an amusing creature. The difficult task of suitably presenting the Archangel is admirably achieved by Mr. Cowley Wright, who succeeds in embodying the part with the necessary degree of awe-inspiring mystery. As Thereon, the executioner, Mr. Terence O'Brien impresses everyone with his power; whilst Mr. Ernest Stidwell acts Hieronymous, the priest, sympathetically. Mr. R. Leigh Ellis avails himself of all the opportunities presented by the part of Sigurd, Captain of the Guard, and Mr. R. Boult is dignified as the Archbishop of Syracuse. Miss Eileen Kerin as Perpetua is quite captivating, and Miss Vashti Wynne, in the totally different rôle of Lysabetta, Queen of the Courtesans, proves herself an actress possessing considerable power. The efficient cast also includes Miss Esther Whitehouse, Miss Lilian Dacroy, Miss Nora Jones, Miss Ethel Miller, Miss Georgina Milne, Miss Doris Reynolds, and Miss Kitty Wilson.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14th, the Comedy entitled

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Mr. Brandon Thomas's company is composed of an excellent assemblage of comedians, who are able to invest the lines of this well-known play with interest, humour, and pathos; and the laughter of the audience is as genuine and sustained as ever. There may be other plays which claim to have had the longest run in the century, but surely there is no other comedy from which so many well-known catch-phrases have been taken and which will live so long in the memory of the playgoers of this century. Mr. Theo MacCausland Stewart as Col. Sir Francis Chesney gave an excellent account of himself as the elderly lover and fond father, although his rapid speech was at times difficult to follow. As Stephen Spettigue, Mr. Roy Byford was splendid, his sonorous voice and vigorous acting causing roars of laughter, and the fun never flagging while he was on the stage. Mr. John S. Woolley made a manly Jack Chesney, not too boisterous, but a typical 'Varsity man; and his love scenes were prettily conceived. Mr. Robert Burnett as his companion, Charley Wykeham, was full of fun, and looked very smart in his college colours and boating clothes. As the hero Mr. Stanley Cook gave a very finished performance, never degenerating into vulgarity, and in the last scene, where he meets his old sweetheart and has to lay aside the broad humour of the first part of the play, he was excellent. As Brassett, the scout, Mr. Sydney Compton was very good, as he has acted this part for some considerable time now. Miss Audrey Stafford appeared to great advantage as Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez, her stately figure and excellent voice making the part stand out as a thoroughly good performance. Miss Ruth Henton as Kitty Verdun was sweet and ingenue as could be well imagined, and acted cleverly and naturally. Amy Spettigue was efficiently enacted by Miss Phyllis Back, and Miss Bertha Wilson as Ella Delahay was simple and sweet as the ward of Donna Lucia. Mr. Lionel Gauthier's orchestra discoursed some exceptionally good music, including an overture entitled "One Summer's Day," which introduced many well-known old English ballads, cleverly arranged and linked together by the conductor.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14, the Farce, entitled

"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

The varied programme that Mr. Fred Melville is presenting to his clientèle weekly receives every encouragement, and on Monday evening a capital house assembled at the cosy theatre on Brixton Oval to enjoy the fun of Charles Marlowe's farce, so excellently presented by Mr. James Welch's company. The artists seem to revel in their respective parts, and continuous laughter prevails throughout the evening. As the irrepressible Sir Guy de Vere, Mr. H. Langdon Bruce deserves warm eulogy. His drolleries and witticisms are irresistible, and draw forth delighted applause. As Isaacs, Mr. Charles Lloyd ably sustained the character of the rich Jew. Barker, the old retainer, is in the hands of clever Mr. E. R. Holloway, and he faithfully depicts the trials of that worthy. Whittle is most plausibly played by Mr. Lionel Brocknor; and Mr. H. Winton, as the humorist and jester, the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, caused much merriment. Mr. Colin Johnston is a capital Dean, and acts with admirable weight, solidity, and unction. Mr. Gerald Venning does his utmost with the despicable Sir Brian Ballymote, and Mr. Herbert Ransom ably fulfils the rôle of Herald. Miss Ernita Lascelles is an ideal representative of Lady Rowena—handsome, haughty, and dignified; Miss Isla Glynne is also to be warmly commended upon her skill in depicting Sarah Isaacson; Miss Adelaide Grace is admirable as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; and Lady Millicent, Lady Marjorie, and Miss Kate Pottlebury find charming representatives in Misses Elspeth Oliphant, Marjorie Carton, and Peggy Bremba. Miss Ethel St. John is an attractive Alice. When Knights Were Bold is picturesquely mounted and dressed, and is preceded by Millie's Mother, in which Mr. H. Winton, Mr. E. R. Holloway, Miss Adelaide Grace, and Miss Elspeth Oliphant are seen to advantage. Mr. Newman Maurice sees very efficiently to the comfort of Mr. Fred Melville's patrons.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Charles Darrell, entitled

"WHAT A MAN MADE HER."

Rupert Wogan Danescombe, Earl of Saxon Royal ..... Mr. Edward Rawlinson
Sir Ernest Cavendish ..... Mr. C. Hartopp
Dr. Mark Haven ..... Mr. J. M. Olivert
Lewis Emmanuel Gunnerstein ..... Mr. Barnett Lando
Evans ..... Mr. Syd Davies
Lord Tarporley ..... Mr. J. W. Lindsay Ellis
Lady Gorrinking ..... Miss V. Thomas
Nurse Arden ..... Miss K. Murgatroyd
Deborah ..... Miss Tessa Myers
Elfrida, Dowager Countess of Saxon Royal ..... Miss F. Russell Spiers
Lady Thora Danescombe ..... Miss Stella Carmichael
Janet McAllister ..... Miss Renee Glendower

Circumstantial evidence is the potent factor of What a Man Made Her, which is this week making its first appearance within the four-mile radius, its original production having taken place at the Albert Theatre, Brighouse, on Sept. 20 last. Mr. Charles Darrell is an author of wide experience, and his latest work gives proof of his ability to appeal to an audience with melodrama of a sensational kind, and with sentiment that goes straight to the heart of the populace. There is no lack of either in What a Man Made Her, and a house packed in every part was alternately thrilled with emotion and excitement, and moved on occasion to hearty laughter.

The "man" in the piece is no less a personage than a peer of the realm, who, when he was plain "Dr. Mark Haven," took to wife an artist's model. The lady used to officiate at the studio of Rupert, Earl of Saxon Royal, who had to relinquish his title and estates when it was found that the doctor was the real earl. Rupert looks with disapproval on his kinsman's marriage, and sets about making trouble. Owing to an over-indulgence in "bridge" Lady Danescombe is in difficulties, and Rupert promises to help her out with a cheque for her gambling debts if she will sit once more for a picture of Pygmalion and Galatea, upon which he is engaged. He cunningly contrives that Sir Ernest Cavendish, a rejected admirer of Janet's, shall also be present to impersonate Pygmalion, and brings the Earl on to the scene just when the pair have assumed the scanty clothing appropriate to the characters. As a result, the Earl obtains a decree nisi, with the custody of their baby.

The child is the cause of another exciting incident in the piece, for Lady Thora, Rupert's sister, wants to marry the Earl, who, however, declares that the child shall never have a second mother. The only course open to Lady Thora is to put the baby out of the way, and she accordingly makes her appearance at the cottage, where the Earl's divorced wife is living, and administers a deadly drug to the sleeping infant, so that when the father enters to claim possession of his child, it is to find it lifeless.

Various clues have been left behind by Thora, who is made to confess her crime and to bear witness to Janet's innocence, ere she succumbs to frequent injections of morphia and goes mad. Husband and wife are reconciled, and the villainous Rupert puts an end to his life with a revolver shot.

Admirable exponents of their various parts were found in the members of Miss Renée Glendower's company. That lady herself played the much-maligned heroine, for whom she won abundant sympathy, acting and speaking with telling effect. Miss Glendower looked very smart in various stylish dresses, and received repeated recalls at the end of each act. The upright character of the young Earl of Saxon Royal was convincingly suggested by Mr. J. M. Olivert, who delivered his lines with every effect. A drawling and aristocratic villain was the Rupert Danescombe of Mr. Edward Rawlinson, who realistically suggested the evil nature of the character; and Miss Stella Carmichael submitted an artistic study of the drug victim, Lady Thora, whose malignity and spite were so well suggested as to rouse the audience to a high pitch of resentment. Excellent, too, was the Dowager Countess of Saxon Royal of Miss F. Russell Spiers, an actress of undoubted ability, whose delivery of many scathing lines obtained for them the utmost effect. Mr. C. Hartopp was pleasingly unaffected and sincere as Sir Ernest Cavendish, a former suitor to Janet, and a sterling friend of the newly-made pair. Mr. Barnett Lando was the conventional Jew money-lender, with a tendency towards comicality which was received with roars of approval; and as his daughter Deborah Miss Tessa Myers made a prepossessing young Jewess, and was responsible for some bright scenes. Mr. Syd Davies acquitted himself creditably in the smaller part of the Earl's servant, who does service at the studio, and the other rôles were efficiently played. The piece was handsomely dressed and mounted, the atmosphere of high society being well caught

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14, the Musical Comedy entitled

"MISS HOOK OF HOLLAND."

That delightfully fascinating young lady Miss Hook of Holland has been re-visiting Kennington Theatre this week, and her charms have proved as fresh and ingenuous as when she first made her curtsy to a London audience four years since. Mr. George Dance's strong and well-balanced company has been on the road for a long time now, with but little alteration in its personnel, and, consequently, the performance goes with a tremendous swing. Full advantage is taken of the quaint humour of Paul Rubens and Austin Hurgon, whilst the bright and sparkling melodies of the first-named are effectively rendered by a remarkably good chorus and orchestra, under the baton of Mr. C. Locknane. The staging is well up to Mr. Dance's standard, the electrically-illuminated ballet in the distillery scene being an exceedingly pretty effect, while the dresses of the Dutch girls and the uniforms of the mounted artillery blend picturesquely in a series of gay and festive stage pictures. In the title rôle Miss Marie Studholme gives one of the most attractive performances that have been witnessed in the realm of musical comedy for a long time. She is as bewitching a Sally as can well be conceived, being the embodiment of a pretty, light-hearted, high-spirited girl. Her singing and dancing leave nothing to be desired, and she wins all hearts from the moment that she first trips on. Mr. Alfred Wellesley is a wonderful Mr. Hook, full of genuine humour and keeping the house in roars of laughter. His impersonation of the fuddled distiller in the second act is one of the cleverest things imaginable. Mr. Frank H. Crimp makes a dashing and impulsive soldier-lover to the life as Bandmaster Van Vuyt. He is an artist of genuine merit, and should go far; his singing is excellent and wins hearty applause, whilst he also dances very smartly. Mr. Frederick Hobbs is a stalwart and soldierly Capt. Paap, a part he plays with considerable success. As Simon Slinks, the loafer, Mr. Fred Lyne gives a lively study of the Dutch ne'er-do-well, and merriment reigns throughout the house whenever he is about—which is most of the time. The Van Eck of Mr. Len Neville will also take a lot of beating. Miss Maud Denny makes a big hit in the part of Mina; she is vivacity itself, and the brilliant manner in which she sang "A little pink pettie from Peter" on Monday won her a treble encore. Miss Lillian Constance is an attractive and energetic Gretchen, and Mr. Charles Ross is happily placed as Schnappe, the faithless lover of Gretchen. Miss Hilda Gordon and Miss Lina Imperial are a couple of interesting figures as the orphan girls Freda and Clara Voos, and Miss Violet Ashley does well as Thelka, the market girl. Others who deserve mention are Miss Cora Engleton, the old market woman, Mr. F. de Lane (Hendrick), Mr. Burford Thorp (Hans Maas), Mr. J. W. Rose (the Policeman), and Mr. Lacey Mills (Lieut. de Coop). More than a passing meed of praise is due to the remarkably fine way in which the exceptionally able chorus both sing and dance, for everybody works with real vim; whilst the introduction of the full artillery brass band for the famous "Tra-la-la" number in the first act was one of the greatest hits of Monday's performance.

THE BRITANNIA.

The attractions here this week are varied, and consist of two dramatic plays with interludes of comedy. The first item on the programme is an episode entitled The Chinaman's Revenge; or, A Dash for Fortune. The interest of the piece centres in the theft of a "charm stone" from Hankow Monastery, on Nikola, who has set himself the task of obtaining possession of the stone, and on the High Priest of Hankow, who is also seeking the charm. Mr. J. M. Jones enacts the part of Nikola in his usual dramatic style; and Mr. Bob Hutt, an old favourite here, is well received as the High Priest. The remaining male parts are undertaken by Mr. Fred Terriss as Jack Attras, Mr. Raymond Dudley as Lol Calvert, Mr. Arthur Ricketts as Jack Casterton, and Mr. Harry Turner as Charley Hawtree. Miss Henrietta Polini is good as Nalga, and able support is rendered by Miss Hettie Dare and Miss Cora Valli.

The Park Keeper, a "comedy interlude," by Raymond Dudley, causes much merriment. Mr. Fred Terriss as General Chutney (retired) is very humorous; Mr. Raymond Dudley as Philip Courtney makes the most of his opportunities; and Mr. Harry Turner as Peter Parkins, the park keeper, whose one aim in life is to collect pennies for the use of chairs, causes much laughter. Miss Henrietta Polini and Miss Cora Valli complete the cast.

Mr. George Hillaud and company are responsible for a smart little comedy act entitled On Sentry. Mr. Hillaud, a very droll comedian, established himself as a firm favourite during the run of the pantomime here, and his excellent fooling, tumbling, and banjo playing are much applauded.

The entertainment concluded with the romantic drama The Dumb Man of Manchester. As on the previous occasion when this piece was performed here, Mr. J. M. Jones takes the part of Edward Wilton, a convict, and Mr. Bob Hutt impersonates the Dumb Man, his acting in the Court of Justice scene being very dramatic. Mr. Arthur Ricketts ably represents a lawyer, Mr. Harry Turner Welter plays a shoemaker, Mr. C. Barlow the Lord Chief Justice, and Mr. N. Bianco the Chief of Police. Miss Hetty Dare as Wilton's wife, Miss Cornell as Mrs. Wilton, and Miss Cora Valli as a milkmaid are also excellent.

THE FULHAM.

On Monday, March 14, the Farcical Comedy, by Mark Ambient, Alban Attwood, and Russel Vaun, entitled

"OH! SUSANNAH!"

This piece from the Royalty is full of absurd situations and complications, and has at least one striking piece of character drawing. Mr. Woodhouse and his company put plenty of energy into their work, even if their efforts seem at times to lack conviction, but they get many a hearty laugh. Mr. Woodhouse plays the unfortunate doctor with great spirit; Mr. F. Kingsley also keeps up the pressure as the mercurial Lieutenant Merry, to whom Mr. Eric Williams as Waverly Vane, with his sedate manner, provides an excellent contrast; Mr. Alfred Ibberson is emphatic and humorous as a remarkable type of solicitor; and Mr. T. H. Smith provides much low comedy as the Buttons. Miss Eve Mansell made an imposing Aunt Susannah, and Miss Frances Carlyle plays up well as Flora. Miss Mabel Leatham and Miss Ethel Marsden do satisfactorily as Ruby and Pearl, and the latter has the saving sense of humour well developed. But Miss Adie Boyne carries off the palm for ability and humour in her work as the love-sick servant Aurora. It is quite a remarkable character sketch, and Miss Boyne revels in it and gets all her points home.

The farce was preceded by Dream Faces, by Wynne Miller, in which Miss Eve Mansell and Mr. Ibberson get good chances of showing their talents in more serious moods.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, March 14,

"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke's admirably-selected company is appearing here with conspicuous success this week. Mr. Henry Wolston is a capital John Storm, and impersonates this fine character (one of the finest ever conceived by Hall Caine) in a manner to give great satisfaction to the audience, who follow the development of the story with unabated interest to the end. Mr. Fred Morgan is a clever actor, and his performance of Lord Robert Ure is excellent in every way. Mr. Wilfred Noy plays well as Drake; Mr. C. E. Dering is a dignified and polished Archdeacon Wealthy. Parson Quayle has a capital representative in Mr. Arthur E. Maskell; Mr. Thomas Barry makes a success as Father Lamplugh. Other male parts are well filled by Messrs. Royce Milton (Lord Storm), W. S. Carter (Bert), Bernard Wilson (Rosenburg), Louis R. Fergusson (Buckley), Edgar Hart (Paul), W. Welch (Cowley), Edwin Ross, Badnitt, and Frank Hayes. Miss Gladys Purnell is a delightful Glory Quayle, vivacious and yet sympathetic, with all the necessary force demanded by the later scenes. Miss Gladys Vernon is a pleasing and clever Polly Love. Miss Harriett Russell presented a fine character portrait of Mother Kent; Miss Molly Hayden is very good as Mrs. Callender; Miss Lizette Cardozo is excellent as Black Meg. Other female characters are well played by Mesdames Millicent Patrick (Betty Belmont), Lydia Bland (Letty Belmont), Gertrude Maxwell (Lady Robert Ure), Alice Lee (Jennie), Nellie Wyndham (Rosa Ray), and Florence Harland (Liza). The staging and costumes left nothing to be desired.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

Music-lovers are well catered for at the above house this week, and large audiences are giving keen attention to the numerous operas which are being presented to them for their delectation by J. W. Turner's company. Commendation must be bestowed upon the various artists, whose talents ensure for them a very hearty reception. The operas performed during the week include Faust, The Bohemian Girl, The Daughter of the Regiment, The Lily of Killarney (on St. Patrick's night), Satanella, Maritana, and Il Trovatore—surely a menu to satisfy the greediest musical gourmet.

The week opened with Faust, and an excellent representation was given to the satisfaction of everyone. In the title-part Mr. F. J. Hargrave is heard to advantage. He possesses a fine tenor voice, which he uses with skill, and he gains considerable applause for his rendering of "All Hail!" and in the duet, "The hour is late," with Marguerite. The latter character is capably undertaken by Miss Jeanne Jeune, who is a gifted singer, and has strong claims on the public favour. Her numbers are rendered in good style, and meet with warm expressions of approbation. Mr. Tom Griffiths maintains a strong hold as Mephistopheles, and deserves praise for his singing of "The calf of gold" and many other contributions. Mr. Frank Clarke achieves distinction in the part of Valentine, and is highly appreciated; Siebel has a clever representative in Miss Jessie Dennis, who does ample justice to the "Flower Song," which goes well; and Martha is ably portrayed by Miss Beatrice Hill. A word of praise is also due to both the chorus, which is a large one, and to the orchestra, which fulfil all requirements.

Mr. William Collier has announced his intention of playing Bob Acres in The Rivals. Mr. Collier's sister, Mrs. Helena Collier-Garrick, will join him in London to appear as Mrs. Malaprop, when he fulfils his engagement there.

At the Manchester Bankruptcy Court on the 11th inst. Sydney Herbert Shaw, professionally know as Ian Maclaren, was examined by the Official Receiver as to the causes of his financial difficulties. Mr. Shaw became an actor, he said, about fourteen years ago, and was engaged for the first nine months with various touring companies under the late Sir Augustus Harris, Mr. F. R. Benson, and others. About five years ago he undertook the production of a play called The Fatal Crown with a touring company under his own management. The play ran for about twenty-six weeks, but the venture was a failure, and he lost about £400 by it.

Soon afterwards he purchased for £50 a melodrama called Prince of Rogues, with which he toured the United Kingdom for about fifteen months, and produced sufficient to pay the expenses of the tour and provide him with a living salary. In the summer of 1905 he rented a theatre at Ilkeston at £60 for six weeks, and there produced a number of pieces, including Shakespearean plays, but lost about £140 by the venture. About February, 1906, he began to tour with a Shakespearean company for the production of classical plays, and continued until Easter, 1909, when he gave it up. His failure was mainly due to losses incurred in connection with this tour. In May, 1909, he produced a comic opera at Swansea, but lack of funds compelled him to close the season in a week.

Since August he had been a member of Miss Horniman's company at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, at a salary of £12 a week, out of which he had to provide his own costumes and numerous other things and pay his own travelling expenses. His liabilities expected to rank for dividend amounted to £1,598 12s. 5d., but of this sum £600 was in respect of printing done to his order but not delivered. His assets were of the estimated value of £23. It was his intention to apply to the Court for his discharge, and ask for it to be granted subject to his consenting to judgment to be satisfied out of his future earnings or income for such sum as he could reasonably pay, and which might be agreeable to the Court. The examination was closed.

"HER PATH OF SORROW."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Produced for the First Time in London at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, on March 14.

Richard Burfield ..... Mr. Charles Draycott
Guy Lowther ..... Mr. Frank Eaglesfield
Lionel Heathcote ..... Mr. Frank Etheridge
Markham Ferrars ..... Mr. Theo. Balfour
Farmer Rayne ..... Mr. Charles Reyne
Tommy Onions ..... Mr. Will Hook
Jack Smith ..... Mr. Hubert Laurence
Dr. Simms ..... Mr. Allan Sethwyn
P.C. Bridge ..... Mr. Wilson Saunders
Detective Williams ..... Mr. Eric Winstanley
P.C. Robinson ..... Mr. T. Wheeler
Warder Jackson ..... Mr. Wilfred Eckhart
Mlle. Lucille ..... Miss Nellie Freeland
Polly Green ..... Miss Daisy Carlton
Nellie Rayne ..... Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne
Pauline Ferrars ..... Mrs. Chas. Draycott

This domestic drama is from the prolific pen of Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, who is the authoress of The Power of the King, Was She to Blame? and many other noteworthy and successful plays now touring the country. The drama under notice is well spiced with exciting situations and telling incidents so beloved by a popular audience, who are ever ready to bestow their sympathies upon the weak and oppressed, to applaud chivalrous deeds, and to pour out their execrations upon the luckless heads of the evil-doers. The story centres in the tribulations of Nellie Rayne, who lives with her father at an old farm in the country. Farmer Rayne, who is an old, hard-hearted man, insists on his daughter marrying his assistant, Richard Burfield, who he has raised to a post of trust. Richard, who is a true and honest man, offers his hand to Nellie, but she refuses him, and eventually confesses that she has had a secret intrigue with another man, named Guy Lowther, who has promised to marry her. But Guy has quite different ends in view, and in a painful tête-à-tête, he informs her that he intends, for financial reasons, to wed the wealthy Pauline Ferrars, the daughter of the somewhat weak Markham Ferrars, who was the friend of Guy Lowther's father in their younger days, when they were clerks together in the same firm. At that time a theft was committed by the elder Lowther, but the suspicion fell upon Ferrars, and now the young Guy, being acquainted with the episode, maintains a powerful hold over the old man in order to further his own schemes. Ferrars, to keep matters quiet and prevent a scandal, promises Guy his daughter in marriage. In the meantime Nellie has been driven from her home by her father, and is left to face the world alone, but on hearing of this, Richard also quits the farm and goes in search of her, determining to make her his wife and thus save her honour. Pauline Ferrars, who, although her love is given to Lionel Heathcote, eventually listens to the entreaties of her father, gives him up, and consents to marry Guy to save her father's name. On the morning of the wedding day, and previous to the wedding, Guy, finding his future bride so unresponsive, flirts with her French maid Lucille, and is caught in the act by Lionel, who threatens to shoot him. However, the wedding takes place, and on the return from the church, Nellie, in rags and tatters, makes a sudden appearance. Her intention is to inform Pauline who and what her future husband really is, and that he is the father of her child, but she arrives too late to stop the ceremony. Pauline, on hearing of the misdeeds of her husband, snatches her veil from her head, throws off her wedding ring, and tells Guy that in future she is only his wife in name. Nellie, who is living in a bare garret, and unable to support herself, endeavours to minister to the wants of her ailing child, but becomes crazy, and poisons it. Richard, who has been in search of her, arrives and finds her in a swoon with her dead child. He takes the guilt of the murder upon himself, and gives himself up to the police; but Nellie, at the instigation of Pauline, confesses to the crime, and Richard is released. Guy sends a forged telegram to Pauline, asking her to meet her former lover in the wood at midnight, so as to incriminate her, but the scheme fails. Nellie, who has been undergoing a term of imprisonment for the murder of her child, is released at the expiration of her term, and Pauline goes to the prison to meet her; but Guy has been before her and taken Nellie off. She is eventually discovered by Pauline and Heathcote, and brought home to the old farm, which is now occupied by Richard, Farmer Rayne being dead. Guy, finding everything going against him, first shoots his accomplice Lucille, who had attempted to stab him, and finally commits suicide.

Mr. Charles Draycott displays distinguished capability as Richard Burfield; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield maintains a strong hold on the audience as Guy Lowther; Mr. Frank Etheridge makes the most of his opportunities as Lionel Heathcote; Markham Ferrars has an able exponent in Mr. Theo. Balfour; Mr. Charles Reyne gives a suitable rendering of Farmer Rayne; Mr. Will Hook, who is responsible for the comic relief, affords much amusement as Tommy Onions, and is ably assisted in his efforts by Miss Daisy Carlton, who, as Polly Green, contributes a lively impersonation; Miss Fay Garnet-Vayne supplies a clever and pathetic delineation of Nellie Rayne; Miss Nellie Freeland is distinctly good as Mlle. Lucille; and Mrs. Charles Draycott contributes an excellent study of Pauline Ferrars.

A new play by a Servian author, Mr. D. Janitsch, will be given for three special performances at the Strand Theatre on March 29 and two following days. The author is a hairdresser, of Air-street, Regent-street, and his play is to be produced in aid of the Parisian Hairdressers' Flood Victims' Fund. All the scenes of the play, which is entitled The Raven's Cry, are laid in Turkey. A company of London artists, including Mr. Philip Cunningham, will appear in it.

Unruly undergraduates were the cause of a disturbance at the Cambridge Theatre on Monday night, when a large party of students invaded the house and interrupted the performance of A Thief in the Night. The undergraduates took the circle by storm, and began ragging as soon as the curtain went up. There was such a din that the audience could not hear. That the "rag" was organised is evident from the fact that some of the students were provided with motor horns and bird warblers, on which they performed at intervals. Popular songs were shouted, and buns and oranges were hurled on the stage.

On the entrance of each actor the undergraduates yelled some more or less appropriate remark. Loud and deep cries of "Ha! ha!" greeted the appearance of the villain; and when the hero attempted to speak with a stage peeress with his hat on, a stern command shot out of the stalls to "Take—that—hat—off." The "funny man" of the piece was told to "run away and play."

The gallery had by this time become thoroughly annoyed by the students, and showed their displeasure by throwing down everything they could lay their hands on, nuts, oranges, cakes, programmes, caps, and other missiles being used. As a result of the disturbance John Eric Horniman, twenty, of Christ's College, was fined at the local Police Court the following day £5 and costs for obstructing the police, and Aubrey Cohen, eighteen, of Jesus College, was fined 10s. and costs for using obscene language.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held on Tuesday, March 15, at 32, Regent-street. Present:—Mr. Cyril Cattley (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. F. J. Arlton, Robson Paige, Langford Reed, E. Morgan, Murri Moncrie, and Lewis Casson, and Miss Joan Pereira, Miss Rose Cazalet, Miss Beatrice Chester, Miss Vita Spencer, and Mr. D. Young (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted as amended.

With reference to Mr. Marcus Draper's letter re an insanitary theatre, the secretary was directed to thank Mr. Draper for his letter, and to ascertain from members visiting the theatre mentioned whether they could confirm Mr. Draper's complaint, so that further action might be taken.

The secretary read the following letter from Mr. H. Nelson Morey, of the Actors' Society of America:—

"Dear Mr. Young,—I received your welcomed communication of the 10th ult., in which you introduce Miss Ida Sweetland Sala. I am very glad to be able to welcome our friends, the members of your Association. I am glad that you have heard such good reports of our organisation, which I am proud to be able to say is as you have heard. I am also glad to be able to tell you that your members also give me grand reports of your work. Trust that it will long continue, and assuring you of our very best interest—I am, yours very sincerely, H. NELSON MOREY."

Mr. CATTLEY reported his interview with Mr. Vedrenne, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Washburn Freund, and ask him to be good enough to provide the council with a copy of any Act in force in Germany covering the question of "bogus management."

The secretary reported the result of the conference of the Sunday Defence Committee, and the resolutions adopted by that committee were ordered to be entered in the minutes as approved. The finance committee's report was read by Mr. Morgan, and adopted.

The hon. solicitors reported that they had interviewed three members and advised them. The question of the late fiasco at the Strand Theatre was again before the council, and the solicitor received further instructions.

It was agreed that the number of engagements made through the agency should be reported to the council each week and included in the published minutes.

It was decided that the rooms of the Association be closed on Good Friday and Easter Monday, and be opened on Saturday, the 26th inst. (for letters only) between the hours of 10 and 2.

The following resolution was unanimously carried:—"That the council of the Actors' Association draw the attention of members to the deplorable practice of artists giving their services for nothing in trial performances of sketches. The council point out: (1) That the practice enables music hall managers to fill up their programmes at the actors' expense; (2) deprives working artists of paid work; and (3) directly encourages bogus sketch management."

The council considered the advisability of taking serious notice of repeated instances of this kind on the part of members as being detrimental to the welfare of the Association and injurious to the theatrical profession generally. The secretary was instructed to write to the secretaries of the V.A.F. and the Sketch Artists' Association, drawing their attention to the matter, and asking them if they would consider the advisability of taking steps for united action.

Elections: Alfred Wiltshire, Enid Edoni, Marie Leonhard, Frank K. Cooper, B. V. Mendl, C. J. Harron, Francis Holland. Reinstatement, Gertrude Scott. Nominations: C. Everard, K. Lang, E. Lang, Aubrey Percival, A. E. Holland, Robert Lawrence, Nellie Morris, H. C. Barnard Stacey.

The secretary reported twenty engagements through the agency.

"THE CHRISTIAN" AT THE BRITANNIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I shall feel greatly obliged if you will kindly publish the following facts which occurred at the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, during the visit of my No. 1 company of The Christian last week. I negotiated a date some weeks ago with the Amusements Development Syndicate, Ltd., the managing-director being Mr. Humphrey E. Brammall, who signed the contract with me on behalf of the aforesaid syndicate for the production of my No. 1 Suburban Company of The Christian for the week commencing March 7. Having had great difficulty prior to opening in getting hold of anybody in authority to advertise the visit, the theatre being closed and the local management not being able to be found, I decided to have the week out, and, of course, would have had to pay my company a full week's salary, as there was no time to give the customary fortnight's notice. On the Saturday preceding the opening date I was informed on the telephone that unless I fulfilled my contract at the Britannia proceedings would be taken against me for breach of contract. I therefore wired to all the members of my company on the Sunday, and told them to be in readiness to open on the following day. Hearing that we might have some difficulty with the local management, I instructed my representative to collect my share of the house receipts nightly, and also wrote a personal letter to Mr. Humphrey E. Brammall informing him of what I had done, and telling him that I should require a cash settlement to balance the Saturday night's house receipts. This was agreed to. My share was paid nightly up to Friday night, when there was a deficiency in the cheque that my manager presented on the Saturday morning. The theatre opened on Saturday evening to £75, and Mr. Humphrey Brammall informed me that he would make a cash settlement at ten o'clock. When that time arrived he wanted to hand me a crossed cheque in part settlement, which I naturally refused, and demanded cash, telling him that if he did not pay me I would not ring up the last act of the piece. He then instructed his commissionaires to lock myself and my representative in the office, and kept us prisoners. On hearing this we forced a window open and blew a police whistle, bringing an inspector and two officers into the building. The curtain had by this time been down some forty minutes, and the audience were naturally getting very restless and could not understand why the performance was not going on. Finding that it was impossible to draw my share, which amounted to over £44, I went in front of the curtain and addressed the audience, explaining to them that it was no fault of mine that the performance could not go on, and that the responsibility rested with Mr. Humphrey Brammall. I was more than surprised to find the manner in which such a vast audience took the serious information, and left the theatre practically without any trouble whatever, having seen only three acts of the production.—Yours faithfully,

WENTWORTH CROKE.

MME. ADELINA PATTI, who is at present staying in Rome, is enjoying the best of health, and recently attended a ball, at which she danced a waltz with her husband. Mme. Patti will still continue to sing at concerts, but it will always be for some charitable purpose. She thought that English audiences were the most intelligent and best to sing to in the world. Mme. Patti declared herself an ardent admirer of Tetrazzini.

A Sicilian sword duel is the feature of the new play which our interesting visitors from the South presented to London on the 11th inst., when a large audience highly appreciated the production, not the least enthusiastic among the fashionable gathering being Miss Ellen Terry, who from a private box applauded heartily. The duel referred to proved a very exciting affair, the native weapon, a formidable clasp-knife, with about a foot and a half of gleaming steel, being brandished about in the most startling fashion. The combatants were a couple of coachmen, named respectively Cola and Prazzitu, the latter of whom had been carrying on a liaison with the other's wife, who manages the village inn. Cola, on discovering the intrigue, discards his wife, and in order to avert any scandal sends Prazzitu about his business, with the admonition that he is not to mention a word of the affair to anybody.

What is Cola's indignation subsequently to learn that Prazzitu is going about bragging of his misdeeds, and declaring that Cola's failure to revenge himself is due to cowardice! That is more than the coolest Sicilian blood can stand, so Cola accordingly waylays his rival, and kills him after a terrible fight. Then he walks off calmly to the police-station, bidding the onlookers follow and give evidence.

Acquitted by the authorities, Cola returns home, and finds his wife in the last stages of consumption and calling vainly for forgiveness. Suddenly there rushes in the brother of the dead Prazzitu, who makes for Cola, only to have his knife snatched from his hand. Then Cola tells the would-be avenger why he killed his brother, with the result that the pair kiss and become friends, and it is at his former assailant's earnest solicitation that Cola forgives his wife ere he closes her eyes in death.

Fewer opportunities for the display of the volcanic fury which distinguishes his acting is given to Cavaliere Grasso, who, however, was as kaleidoscopic in his movements as ever, and kept the house engrossed. His suggestion of suppressed passion when he confronted his enemy and traducer was really artistic. The best effort of Signora Bragaglia as the erring wife was in the display of agonised suspense which Maria suffers when her sin is found out, and she waits to learn what form her husband's revenge will take. Here her emotional qualities stood her in excellent stead. The death scene was also admirably done, the ashy countenance and stony glare of the fast-sinking woman being realistically assumed. Signor N. Viscuso again made an effective villain, alike in Prazzitu's tempting of the wife and his craven fear of the injured husband. The braggadocio of the part was also well assumed, and for his share of the duel scene he divided honours with Signor Grasso. Praise must also be awarded to Signora Spadaro, who played with natural vivacity and a real sense of humour as the innkeeper's assistant, to whom the outraged husband turns for consolation. The customary skill in keeping the interest at the highest pressure was manifested by the rest of the company, and the piece was mounted in realistic style, the fireworks of the feast day which gives the piece its name being let off at the wings, and other celebrations being duly provided.

A full house on Wednesday thoroughly enjoyed the performance of Juan José, which figured in the programmes of two years ago. The piece serves as an admirable medium for the special attainments of the company, and provides Signor Grasso and Signora Bragaglia with congenial characters. In the part of Vanni, a village workman, Signor Grasso is again the humble, but honest, lover, whose sweetheart is sought after by a richer and unscrupulous rival—no less a personage than Vanni's employer, Don Vincenzino. Vanni calls on his sweetheart and finds her singing to the Don, and in an access of rage orders her out of the house and defies the Don to hold her back. Vanni pays with his situation the price of his temerity, and later is seen starving with Rosa, who so taunts him that he strikes her, but repenting with tears, rushes off determined to get money by any means that may present themselves.

Thrust into prison for theft, Vanni eventually escapes, only to find Rosa living in luxury with Don Vincenzino. Vanni bids her give up the shameful life and go with him, but Vincenzino's step is heard approaching. Rosa calls for help, and in the endeavour to keep her silent Vanni clutches her throat so tightly that he chokes the life out of her.

The trying scenes were admirably depicted by the two principals. Signor Grasso threw himself with his usual feverish energy into the part of Vanni. His rage on discovering his sweetheart singing to the libertine Don burst forth like a tornado, and it was only by sweeping the pots and pans from the shelves and clearing the table at a bound that Vanni was able to relieve his feelings. At the last, when the distraught man catches sight of his distorted features in the mirror, which he throws through the window, and then, realising that his beloved is dead, casts himself upon the corpse, Signor Grasso was profoundly moving. Signora Bragaglia had in Rosa a part in which she was allowed smiles as well as tears. In both phases of the character she was equally sincere, being really charming in her lighter moments. She carried out her weeping fit realistically, hysterical cries giving way to convulsive sobbing in easy modulations. The part of Angelo is allotted in the cast to Cav. A. Musco, but the actor impersonating it seemed to be Signor Viscuso, who has been accustomed to play the villain. On Wednesday he proved to have a distinct vein of comedy, causing hearty laughter by a finished rendering. Angelo's fiancée was sympathetically played by Signora G. Balistrieri, and Signor P. Fiorio was a duly sinister Don. Signora R. Spadaro invested the rôle of an old woman with a wealth of comic suggestion.

MR. ERNEST SMITH took the chair on Saturday night at the house dinner and smoking concert of the Press Club, Wine Office-court, Fleet-street. The Sicilian actor, Signor Grasso, made a speech of thanks for his cordial reception in England, and gave a sketch in dumb show and a short scene from Feudalismo. Among the other artists who contributed to the entertainment were Mr. Percy French, Signor Persichine (mandoline), Mr. George Snazelle, Mr. Stuart Debnam, Mr. J. A. Bovett, Mr. John Bardsley, Mr. Noel Fleming, Mr. Bernard Turner, Mr. Alfred Steed, Mr. Walter Tilbury, Mr. Murray Ashford, Mr. Frank Tebbut, Mr. Claude Anderson, Mr. Walter Montague, Mr. Norman Leonard, Mr. Herbert Plater, Mr. Albert Holland, Mr. Rome Attewell, Mr. Frank Partridge, Mr. Brian Rochford, Mr. Charles Davies, Mr. J. Chilcott, and Mr. Harrison Hill. Mr. Sinclair Mantell and Mr. Alfred Smythson were the pianists.

YOUNGEST THEATRICAL MANAGER.

The distinction of being the youngest theatrical manager in the country is held by Mr. Reginald Pareezer, of the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, who, although only in his twentieth year, bids fair by the abilities he already displays, to take his place, in time to come, in the foremost rank of successful managers.

Asked how he came to launch into the business, Mr. Pareezer replied that he had always had a taste for it, and that even in his schooldays he took a delight in helping his father, Mr. B. Pareezer, who now directs not only the New Royal Theatre at King's Lynn, but also the Empire Theatre at Southend, the Hippodrome, Sheerness, and the Marina, Lowestoft, the last-named of which he both owns and manages.

Young Mr. Pareezer was educated at the Grammar School at Welshpool, where he was a boarder for four years, and thence he went to the Aberystwith School, where he completed his education.

"How long," queried The Era representative, "have you been in the theatrical profession?"

"A little over four years. On my father leaving Wales to take the reins of the New Royal Theatre, King's Lynn, I was given a position in the office, and now that my father is acquiring other theatres, and has taken up his residence at Lowestoft, he has left me in sole charge of the Lynn Theatre, which I took over at the beginning of this year. This will leave him free to give his new ventures at Lowestoft, Southend, and Sheerness his personal attention and supervision."

"And how do you feel now you have this responsibility?"

"Oh, all right. As a rule I find touring managers are exceedingly nice."

"Do you experience any trouble with people who stroll in and waste your time?"

"Well, I should hardly have expected this question from you." And Mr. Pareezer laughed merrily.

"I twig, and I won't be long. What is your greatest ambition?"

"In time, to have control over a number of theatres."

"Any of your family on the stage?"

"One. My younger brother, Archie Pareezer, is in Mr. Norman V. Norman's répertoire company, and assists Mr. Norman in the secretarial part of the business."

MR. REGINALD PAREEZER.

Our representative was proceeding to put still another question in spite of young Mr. Pareezer's hint, when the telephone bell rang, and with a hearty handshake and a mutual expression of good wishes the interview ended.

AN ACTOR INJURED.

An action for damages for injuries received during a stage performance was heard by Judge Emden at Lambeth County Court on Wednesday, when Bernard Liell, an actor, of Grosvenor-avenue, East Sheen, sued E. Hill Mitchelson, also an actor, of Saltoun-road, Brixton, to recover £15 damages for injuries received through the alleged negligence of the defendant in allowing a rifle and bayonet to be used and handled by an incompetent person. The plaintiff was engaged by the defendant to play the part of a Chinaman in a piece called Who is She? at the Ashton-under-Lyne Hippodrome. In the piece the plaintiff had to make an attack on the defendant, who enacted the hero of the piece. The plaintiff made a rush up the stage, and two "supers" fired on him according to stage directions. The plaintiff continued his "rush," and the "super" attacked him with the bayonet, which struck the plaintiff under his left eye, causing considerable injuries. In the extrication of the bayonet from the plaintiff's cheek the "super's" rifle went off, and the charge entered the plaintiff's wrist.

The defendant, in giving evidence, said he was an actor-manager of thirty-five years' experience. It was safe to use the rifles on the stage, and the two men were accustomed to them.

His honour gave judgment for £12 damages, with costs.

FACT AND FICTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On Friday, Feb. 25, I produced at the Theatre Royal, Darwen, a play in one act by Mme. Annie Möller, entitled The Prodigal's Welcome, which was duly noticed in your issue of March 5. Several friends have sent me newspaper cuttings similar to the following:

A tragedy almost without parallel is reported from the province of Galicia. A Polish emigrant named Przenikowski returned to his home in the village of Zielony after ten years' absence in America. His parents did not recognise him immediately, so Przenikowski pretended to be an intimate friend of their son's. He asked for a night's lodging. The old couple gladly consented to keep him for a night, and plied him with questions. Przenikowski told them that their son had prospered in America, and said that he himself had £250 in his pocket-book, the result of his savings. After he retired for the night the old couple decided to kill him and steal the money. They strangled him in bed, and then went through his papers. They were horror-stricken to find a passport bearing their own name, and, after examining other documents and certain marks on the body of the dead man, they discovered that they had killed their son. Overwhelmed with remorse, Przenikowski's aged father wrote a letter informing the authorities of the circumstances, and then he and his wife hanged themselves. Their bodies were found next morning by a servant suspended from a beam in the living room.

This is from the People of Sunday last. To those of your readers who remember your kindly notice, the similarity between the plot of Mme. Möller's play and the story of the tragedy happening shortly after will be startling.—Yours faithfully, J. PITT HARGACRE.

"THE TRUTH ABOUT DE COURCY."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, by George J. Hamlen and Alfred Wareing, Produced, for the First Time, at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on Monday, March 14.

Gaston de Courcy	MR. MILTON ROSMER
Ethel Carmichael	MISS MURIEL POPE
Mr. Carmichael	MR. CAMPBELL GULLAN
Arthur Graham	MR. CECIL BROOKING
Bella	MISS LOLA DUNCAN
Mrs. Blair	MISS ALICE MANSFIELD
Lucile de Courcy	MISS NORAH DELANEY
Miss Millar	MRS. M. MILTON
Miss Gibb	MISS EUGENIE FRANCKLYN
Mary	MISS ETHEL EVANS

When given at a copyright performance on Nov. 26 last, in the same theatre, this new play was announced as by George J. Hamlen. The name of Mr. Alfred Wareing is now added, so presumably the manager of Glasgow's Repertory Theatre has been giving the benefit of his experience to the development of the play. Mr. Hamlen shows a keen eye for character, all his types being wonderfully true to life, and there is a simple but telling and effective plot. The truth about De Courcy is that he is not a De Courcy at all, but having been befriended in his boyhood by a bohemian old musician of that name, and through the latter's good offices saved from the clutches of a cruel stepmother and her vindictive daughter, the young man in gratitude adopts the name of his benefactor, who had started him in a musical career, and finds that the romantic name and a hint of old French descent are of more use to him in securing pupils than his abilities as a music teacher. The original De Courcy being dead, the young man considers himself secure in possession of the name, but the long arm of coincidence brings him as music master to the house of a Mr. Carmichael, whose daughter Ethel is struck by his romantic history. Unfortunately, a parlour-maid, Bella, in this very house, is the step-sister of years before, and, to crown all, a newcomer in the district, Mrs. Blair by name, has a niece, Lucille De Courcy (a daughter of the original owner of the name), and these ladies insist on adopting the young music master as a nephew and brother respectively.

Though willing to go a certain length in deception, for business reasons, the young musician is averse from continuing it to the extent of living in Mrs. Blair's house as a near relative, and regarding Lucille as a sister, the audience soon realising that a more tender feeling for that young lady has a lot to do with his conscientious scruples. The astute Bella does her utmost to induce him to take advantage of the assumed relationship, and even to have her position assured as a foster-sister of "Gaston," but it is her over-reaching ambition which finally solves the question. After a veiled confession made by the young man to Lucille as to his humble origin, some awkward facts are blurted out by Bella, with the result that the whole story is made clear to Mrs. Blair and her niece. Both ladies have, however, taken a liking to their supposed relative on his own merits, and though he wishes to leave at once and carve his way to fortune elsewhere, the entreaties of the old lady, and the loving appeal of the younger, induce him to change his mind, and on this rearranged prospect the curtain falls.

The story is worked out in clever style, and the dialogue is crisp and effective, with numerous bright and telling lines, which were heartily enjoyed. The audience were generous in their applause throughout, and gave Messrs. Hamlen and Wareing a hearty call at the finish. Mr. Milton Rosmer made an excellent Gaston De Courcy, and from first to last carried the sympathies of the audience with him. Miss Lola Duncan as the vindictive and vulgar Bella gave an extremely clever bit of acting, realistic and convincing in every scene. Miss Muriel Pope was a charming Ethel Carmichael, and another enjoyable performance was the Lucille De Courcy of Miss Norah Delaney. Miss Alice Mansfield revelled in the part of the good-hearted Mrs. Blair, and her slightly malaprop remarks were neatly given without undue emphasis. A most entertaining study of character was the landlady, Mrs. Simpson, of Miss Elspeth Dudgeon, and her motherly interference in the affairs of her young lodger, Gaston, was excellent comedy. Mr. Campbell Gullan as Mr. Carmichael, Mr. Cecil Brooking as a somewhat snobbish young man, Mrs. M. Milton and Miss Eugenie Francklyn as two gossipy visitors, and Miss Ethel Evans as a servant completed the cast.

The comedy was preceded by a grimly realistic play in one act, by W. B. Maxwell, also given for the first time, entitled

"THE LAST MAN IN."

Mrs. Judd	MISS ELSPETH DUDGEON
Mr. Billett	MR. PERCEVAL CLARK
Mr. Judd	MR. LAURENCE HANRAY
The Last Man In	MR. NORMAN MCKEOWN
The Doctor	MR. LYTTON

The scene of this is laid in a Tavern in a poor street of a country town, and the landlord, Judd, and his wife, are expecting home from abroad a ne'er-do-well son, who has been away for eleven years. Meanwhile, the customers round the bar are discussing the details of a brutal murder committed in the open streets near the docks by a sailor on a steamer from Monte Video, the victim being another member of the crew. In the corner sits "the last man in," and as he is not known to any of the regular customers, they feel his presence acting as a restraint on their conversation. Closing-time comes, and the landlord and his wife are glad to be rid of the unwelcome guest, when they suddenly discover that he has hidden behind the door and remained when the others left. He demands a night's lodging, and on this being refused, reveals the fact that he is their son, and just home from Monte Video. Their worst suspicions that he may be the murderer are almost confirmed, when he falls asleep, after asking them "not to let him dream." His mutterings become more incriminating, and as they are unable to wake him up, the husband rushes off for the nearest doctor. The ravings of the stranger take the form of enacting the murder, before the horrified gaze of the mother, and he falls exhausted just as the doctor enters. A moment's examination enables the latter to say that "he will never wake again," and with a fervent "Thank God" from the mother the play ends.

The acting of Mr. Norman McKeown as the prodigal, whom brutal ill-treatment at the hands of a bosun or mate on the ship had led him to take revenge on his tormentor, was powerful to a degree, and held the audience enthralled. Mr. Lawrence Hanray as the publican and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as the horror-struck mother of the murderer lent excellent support. Mr. Perceval Clark as a talkative customer, Mr. Billett, contributed a clever sketch of character.

ON the invitation of the Countess of Essex, a meeting was held at Cassiobury Park, Watford, on Saturday to support the movement to establish a national Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. An interesting feature was the production of the Hon. Maurice Baring's new duologue, Calpurnia's Dinner Party, played by Mr. Atholl Stewart and Miss Madge McIntosh.

THE Queen paid a surprise visit on Monday afternoon to the Japan-British Exhibition, which is now approaching completion. Her Majesty made a thorough tour of the extensive grounds, and expressed her pleasure at the way in which the Japanese and British workmen appeared to fraternise.

"WAT."

A Play in Three Acts, by Walter Savage Cooper, Produced at the Cripplegate Institute on Monday, March 14.

Queen Elizabeth	MISS SYDNEY KEITH
Lord Trevor	MR. DASHWOOD CARTER
Lady Trevor	MISS EDITH ELLSWORTH
Alice	MISS MILLICENT COOPER
Sir Roland	MR. SIDNEY GOWLETT

An Officer	MR. B. BRISTOW
First Gentleman	MR. J. SAVAGE COOPER
Second Gentleman	MR. CYRIL CHEFFINS
Sue	MISS E. FITZSIMMONS
Tom	MR. GEO. FORBES
Dick	MR. W. SHIPHAM
Wat Underwood	MR. W. SAVAGE COOPER

Ladies of the Court: Miss ETHEL STROULGER, Miss IDA COOPER, Miss DORA PLOWMAN.

Gentlemen of the Court: Mr. JAMES BARLEY, Mr. JOSEPH BARLEY, Master C. CONNERY.

One is always inclined to be indulgent with the amateur, but there are times when to deal lightly with a trashy and childish attempt at production would be a mistaken kindness. From a perusal of the cast printed above it will be found there are five members of the Cooper family included in it, and there must have been ten times that number of the Cooper family's relatives in front on Monday night last when Wat was presented on the stage of the Cripplegate Institute, or the feeble efforts of the players would not have been so generously treated. A section of the audience in a polite way quietly guyed the show from start to finish, and thoroughly enjoyed the evening's entertainment. Yet another section of those in front, amongst whom the writer is included, there were who marvelled at the effrontery that could possess even an amateur in expecting a playgoing public to waste both time and patience in sitting through such a show.

Mr. Walter Savage Cooper, on reference to the programme, we find is the author of Wat. He also plays the part of the Elizabethan forester, and undertakes the management of the stage, as well as the arrangement of the costumes. He was hard put to it on Monday night to carry out either one of the tasks successfully. There is but one scene—the grounds of Lord Trevor's mansion—and three acts. The printed programme was nicely got up, and led one to expect great things. In fact, a perusal of it before the curtain went up gave all the students of the Tudor period present pleasurable anticipations of Maypole songs and dances, stately measures, pavans, jester's quips and songs, and barcarolle.

The story of Wat may be briefly recorded. My Lord Trevor is expecting to be honoured by a visit from Queen Elizabeth, and his rustics are preparing the gardens for the royal visit and the dances that are to follow. Lord Trevor's daughter Alice is in love with naughty Sir Roland, and poor pa, of course, has forbidden him the house. So, aided and abetted by Kitty, the dairymaid, who is betrothed to Wat the Forester, Sir Roland is disguised as one of the yokels who will be present at the afternoon's revels. Queen Bess arrives, and as she enters the grounds her horse bolts, and Wat in saving her Majesty gets his arm sprained. Of course, the maiden monarch hears of this, and commands Dame Sarah—well versed in simples—to attend to the hurt. The old lady sets about curing the arm and breaking the heart of the woodman simultaneously. She tells him that Kitty is untrue to him, and points out that his ladylove will disregard his wishes that she dance with the jester in the afternoon, and will foot it with a stranger instead. Dame Sarah's "snip" comes off, and as the revels are progressing Wat turns rusty and denounces Sir Roland, who is credited with being mixed up in certain matters of which Queen Bess cannot be expected to approve. But all comes right in the last act, and the curtain falls to everybody's relief.

There was an orchestra of four—and a conductor. That gentleman was very vigorous with his baton. He could have strengthened the net result considerably had he brought a violin or even a tin whistle with him, and played either instrument. As it was, the stick-waving did not contribute much to the harmony.

Of the twenty-one individuals in the cast only one can be mentioned as possessing ability to act. That one is Miss Hilda Foster, who played the part of Kitty, the dairymaid. This young lady spoke her lines very well, walked the stage with perfect ease, and her voice got over the footlights, which cannot be recorded of many of the other characters. Miss Sydney Keith as Queen Elizabeth was next best as the imperious monarch, and many of us would cheerfully have applauded her if in reality she could have ordered the jester and one or two more off to instant execution. Oh, that jester! He was the naughtiest boy in the crowd. Not a quip, not a jest, not a smile from him the entire evening. He insisted on singing a drinking song that sounded more akin to a dirge than anything else, and then presumably retired to and wept in the wings.

The Maypole was planted in a kind of flower-pot, and in getting it to the centre of the stage the supers all but wrecked the scene. Then the lads and lasses danced the most melancholy measure ever seen in merrie England. This for some unforseen reason came to a sudden termination. The programme tells us that there was a "stately measure and pavan" included in the afternoon's revels. This may be so, but it was hard to distinguish it from the many mournful melodies which we patiently endured.

Mr. Cooper would do well to bear in mind when presenting his next play that the services of a professional producer would aid him greatly in skilfully putting before the public anything he may have written. As it was, Wat was badly presented, vilely stage-managed, ill-dressed, and the acting all round was the most pitiable spectacle we have witnessed for many a long day.

GARBED in the picturesque array of white towels, a number of men have for some time been seen perambulating the streets in various parts of London. They are intended to advertise the merits of the Savoy Turkish Baths, which are situated in Jermyn-street, Piccadilly; York-street, Jermyn-street; Savoy-street, Strand; Caledonian-road, King's Cross; Brixton-road; Railway Approach, London Bridge; and Denman-street, London Bridge. The baths have recently been taken over, and are now controlled under one management, and to celebrate the event about 150 members of the Press lunched in Sheraton Hall, in Lyons' Popular Café, on Tuesday last. Afterwards the party adjourned to view the bath, 92, Jermyn-street, recently redecorated, sumptuously furnished, and fitted with every modern improvement for providing every kind of bath. Many of the features of the establishment were explained, and great admiration was expressed at the luxurious appointments for the comfort of bathers. This bath is open day and night, and thus affords opportunity for visitors who are unable to spare time in the day to indulge in the pleasures and undoubted physical benefits of Turkish, &c., bathing on their road home at night, however late.

MR. BEN GREET and his company recently appeared in Macbeth and The Merchant of Venice at the Garden Theatre, New York. Following an old custom, it is said, Mr. Greet divided Macbeth into three parts, naming them "Ambition," "Realisation," and "Retribution."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Herbert Tree is busy at His Majesty's with rehearsals for the coming Shakespeare festival, which includes The Merry Wives of Windsor, Twelfth Night, and Julius Cæsar, in which, in addition to Sir Herbert Tree as Mark Antony, Mr. William Havland as Cæsar, Mr. Lyn Harding as Brutus, and Mr. Henry Ainley as Cassius, Miss Evelyn Millard will be seen as Portia, a part in which she has already appeared at His Majesty's. Miss Elinor Foster will be the Calphurnia. Sir Herbert Tree's Portia in The Merchant of Venice will be Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, and in Mr. Arthur Bourchier's production the part will be sustained by Miss Dorothea Baird.

Sir John Hare will shortly leave England on a visit to Lord Grey in Canada. He has accepted the invitation of the Governor to act as judge in the great dramatic and musical competition which is to take place in Toronto. His judging will be strictly confined to the dramatic side of the competitions. Some hundreds of students belonging to various dramatic societies of Canada and America will take part in the contest, but Sir John will not be called upon to examine the histrionic qualities of each competitor. The great body of the students will be pruned down to perhaps half a dozen possible prize-winners from each society or school. After his week in Toronto he will visit Ottawa, and subsequently New York, but only to call on friends.

Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Martin Harvey are organising a complimentary matinée at the St. James's Theatre on Friday, May 27, for the benefit of Mr. H. J. Loveday, for many years stage-manager to Sir Henry Irving and later on in the service of Mr. Martin Harvey. Mr. Loveday has done excellent work in England, Canada, and America, but a short time ago he met with an accident which incapacitated him from following his profession. References to him are constantly cropping up in Mr. Bram Stoker's excellent biography of Henry Irving; and it was a matter of common knowledge that, but for the loyal and able support of his two lieutenants, Irving would never have achieved such magnificent results as he did in the way of production and management.

The Stratford-on-Avon Commemoration season starts on April 22 with an afternoon performance of Hamlet, Sir Herbert Tree taking the name-part. The prize of £300 for the best play has been awarded by the Duke of Argyll, to whom were submitted the two plays chosen out of 315, to a four-act play The Piper, in which the Pied Piper legend is treated. The writer, to whom the prize will be presented on the stage after the first performance of the play on the evening of Thursday, May 5, is an American lady, Josephine Preston Peabody, or in private life Mrs. Lionel Marks, of Cambridge, Mass., U.S.A., who is well known in American literary circles. Mr. Benson will enact the Piper and Miss Marion Terry will be in the cast.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Harvey were the principal guests at a reunion in connection with the Glasgow branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society held in the Charing Cross Halls, Glasgow, on the 11th inst. The Rev. Dr. M'Adam Muir, Moderator designate of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, presided. The Chairman said it was not very long since the Glasgow branch was founded, and it now numbered 270 members. One or two Shakespeare reading circles had been formed, and he hoped there would be many more.

Mr. Martin Harvey, who delivered a short address, said Shakespeare in a way was like Nature. Scientists would tell them that Nature only revealed her secrets to those who sought for them after the most persistent efforts to unearth them, and so it was with Shakespeare. Shakespeare did not yield his meaning to readers or to students easily. They had to think and ponder and weigh every word. One of the most astonishing things about Shakespeare was that the more they thought and pondered and weighed every word the more wonderful his meaning was and the more they were forced to the conviction that only those words were right in that exact place and no others could possibly have expressed the exact shade of meaning that Shakespeare intended to convey.

Another point was the marvellous character which Shakespeare contrived to throw into the diction of each of his characters. It was not sufficient for him to give his characters beautiful words to speak, but in every instance they found that the character had used the words which were characteristic of himself and no one else. Mr. Harvey went on to say that the question of the National Shakespeare Memorial Theatre was very near his heart. They were all of great hopes that that idea might mature, and the time might come when he would ask them to help the funds. He was sure they would all be very proud people if in five or six years, on the occasion of the tercentenary of Shakespeare's death, they could point to a building and say they personally helped to erect it.

Mr. Fred Terry was inclined to make Holy Week the excuse for a well-earned rest, but so great has been the demand for seats for The Scarlet Pimpernel that he has decided to play through that week, with the exception, of course, of Good Friday. The fifth revival of this wonderfully successful play bids fair to rival its predecessors.

Mr. Forbes Robertson has accepted the invitation of the Governor-General of Canada to visit Montreal on April 11. Earl Grey will attend the performance of The Passing of the Third Floor Back in the Princess Theatre on that evening. Mr. Robertson will visit Ottawa, Kingston, Hamilton, London, Quebec, and Toronto, and return to England on May 11.

The annual meeting of the subscribers of the Royal General Theatrical Fund will be held in the saloon of Terry's Theatre, by the kind permission of Mr. Edward Terry, on Tuesday at 1 o'clock p.m. The business will include the presentation of the annual report.

We beg to condole with Mr. Robert Pateman, whose only child, Miss Robbie, died on Thursday morning. She was only twenty-four, and it is a little over two years since her mother died. All Mr. Pateman's friends will sympathise with him in his second sad bereavement.

Miss Pateman attended a dance only a few days since, and had accepted an invitation for another party on Thursday. She was suddenly taken ill at the beginning of this week, and for three nights Mr. Pateman hoped for the best. In spite, however, of the best medical advice being secured, Miss Pateman died on Thursday morning at half-past two of heart failure.

Mr. Charles Hawtrey has secured a new three-act comedy, by George Paston, with the attractive title of The Naked Truth, to succeed The Little Damosel when a change is necessary. The rôle of the hero—a real "Hawtrey part"—is that of a glib liar, who, when wearing a certain ring is compelled to speak the "naked truth," which leads to many amusing complications.

Mr. Weedon Grossmith, who is this week appearing at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, will next week take a five nights' vacation, and open on Saturday for the Easter week at the Royal, Bournemouth. Mr. Preedy and the Countess is awakening the same amount of enthusiasm as that which it aroused throughout its long run at the Criterion, and it is no uncommon thing for the chief performer and his company to receive a dozen curtain calls at each performance. Mr. Weedon Grossmith, it may be added, recently received the glad news that his own play, The Night of the Party, had been produced in Australia, and scored an instantaneous success under the management of Mr. George Willoughby.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, after a very successful engagement at the Colonial Theatre, New York, recently appeared in the Russian playlet Expiation at the Orpheum, in Brooklyn, and subsequently is at Keith's Theatre, in Philadelphia, playing to packed houses. "Mrs. Campbell's art is superb," says one of the leading newspapers of the "Quaker city" in reviewing her performance.

Mr. Oscar Asche, who has been scoring socially and artistically in Australia, added to his laurels on the cricket field a few weeks ago, when he headed a team of Shakespearean actors against the pantomime artists from Her Majesty's, Melbourne, captained by Mr. E. J. Tait, the manager of the theatre. Mr. Asche, who went in third wicket down, made a clean drive for six with the first ball he received, and made top score with a dashingly played innings of 33.

The Shakespeareans won on the first innings by a total of 111 to 76. Mr. Asche's team acquitted themselves as follow:—T. Elliott, l.b.w., b Quintrell, 22; G. Relph, c Sheehan, b Kennedy, 0; T. Hickey, run out, 5; W. Russell, c Kennedy, b Quintrell, 4; Oscar Asche, b Menere, 33; C. M'Clelland, b Kennedy, 20; E. Brook, c Burns, b Menere, 0; A. Trantom, st Burns, b Menere, 4; J. Fritz-Russell, b Kennedy, 10; B. A. Meyer, b Salisbury, 1; Tripp Edgar, not out 0; extras, 12. Total, 111.

In the remaining hour's play each side batted for half the time. Pantomime scored 41, of which Sheehan made 28 not out. Melbourne saw Mr. Asche in a new rôle, and spectators watched his wicket-keeping with interest. The second innings of the Shakespeareans saw the downfall of the star, for Mr. Asche was bowled without scoring. Mr. Ewan Brook accomplished four capital fours in his total of 30 not out. Hickey made 21 not out, and the total for half an hour was 56.

Mr. Edward Compton gave a supper to the members of his company at the Globe Hotel, Paisley, on Tuesday, in celebration of the twenty-ninth anniversary of the Compton Comedy Company. After the loyal toast, Mr. J. H. Savile, Mr. Compton's first manager and the proprietor of the Paisley Theatre, where the company are appearing this week, made a few remarks about the early days of the C.C.C., and thanked Mr. Compton for all his kindnesses to him when a member of the company, adding that he had always found Mrs. Compton the friend of the younger members of the company, always willing to help them, always glad to do them any service. He also alluded in flattering terms to Miss Nell Compton, Mr. Compton's second daughter, who is Mr. Savile's god-daughter, and is making her first appearance at his theatre.

The health of Mr. and Mrs. Compton and family was drunk with great gusto, after which the company sang "For they are jolly good fellows." Mr. Compton replied, and thanked Mr. Savile and those present for all their good wishes. After supper a very enjoyable evening was spent, various members of the company contributing songs, recitations, &c., Mr. Compton being called upon for no fewer than four selections. About 4.30 the party held hands and sang "Auld lang syne," and Mr. Compton led the company in "A wee doch-an-doris."

Sir John Bigham, who has been raised to the peerage, took his farewell of Bench and Bar in the Probate and Divorce Division on Monday. In the course of an address, characterised by sincerity and good taste, he said:—"There is one person to whom on this occasion I undoubtedly ought to refer. It is my clerk, Mr. Arthur Dones. Thirty years of faithful service from him has helped me most materially during my career, and I thank him for it with all my heart." Mr. Dones is the father of Misses Zena and Phyllis Dare.

Saturday evening last saw the final fall of the curtain on the eminently successful pantomime Mother Hubbard at the Princess Theatre, Bristol. There was a full house, and the pantomime went well, the audience joining heartily in the choruses and anticipating some of the "gags." All the ladies of the company had abundance of floral offerings. Mr. G. H. Elliott had a handsome gold-mounted walking-stick presented to him by the Bristol University students, and Mr. Fred Conquest (Fido) a silver cigar-box. The final scene was very impressive, numerous baskets and bouquets adding much to the artistic grouping of the principals, ballet, chorus, and extra ladies and gentlemen.

In the interval Mr. Chute appeared to make his accustomed speech, and after sincerely thanking the audience for their generous patronage during the pantomime's run of over eleven weeks, said that Mother Hubbard stood third on the roll of their pantomime successes. That gratifying result might, he thought, be attributed to the excellent story so well devised by the author, the admirable service rendered by the ladies and gentlemen of the company, Mr. Armstrong's novel electric effects, and the loyal co-operation of the local staff. To one and all he tendered hearty thanks and congratulations. Mr. Chute added that he had commissioned Mr. Hickory Wood to furnish for next Christmas an original pantomime entitled Jack Horner.

Mr. Percy Harris, M.P., has introduced in the House of Commons a Bill to amend the law relating to licences for music and dancing in the administrative county of London as contained in the Disorderly Houses Acts, 1751 and 1818, and the Public Entertainments Act, 1875, in order to enable the London County Council (which is the authority to grant such licences in the county) to grant them at any time during the year, instead of being limited, as at present, to the annual licensing meeting now held in November. A similar amendment of the Act of 1751 has been sanctioned in respect of the administrative county of Middlesex, and the council, under the Theatres Act, 1843, already possesses, with regard to licences for stage plays, power similar to that now sought in respect of music and dancing licences. The Bill seeks to enable the council to make a small charge for licences for music and dancing, and in this respect also follows the precedent of the Theatres Act, 1843.

The American tenor Riccardo Martin is at present singing at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Mr. Martin was born in Kentucky in 1878, and has studied in France, Germany, and Italy. He is a composer and an accomplished linguist and his repertory at Covent Garden includes Madama Butterfly, La Bohème, Manon Lescaut, Carmen, Mefistofele, Il Trovatore, and Andrea Chénier.

Mr. Percy Hutchison is completing arrangements for his production of Arsene Lupin, which makes its début in the provinces at the Opera House, Blackpool, on Boxing Day. An excellent spring tour has already been booked, and Mr. Hutchison will himself play the title-rôle. Negotiations have been entered into with an eminent London actor to play the part of the Detective.

King Edward, it is stated, has announced his intention of visiting the Passion Play at Oberammergau this year. The visit will take place on his Majesty's return from Marienbad.

Mr. J. M. Chute, proprietor and manager of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, is an enthusiastic golfer, and recently encouraged the comedians of his pantomime by offering a prize for competition. A handicap was arranged, and the final took place on the 9th inst., when Mr. Chute beat Mr. Horace Mills on the nineteenth green. Having won his own prize, he put it up again for a stroke competition (handicap) the following Friday, when Mr. Charley Harvey proved the winner. The prize took the form of an amber cigarette-holder and a silver cigarette case, bearing an appropriate inscription.

"Amsterdam; or, the Mystery of the Black Tulip," Mr. John Tiller's brilliant production, commences a spring tour of the principal towns and cities at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Monday, travelling from Manchester Central station by Midland special train. The company, numbering 116, is under the management of Mr. E. P. Morgan. There is a ballet of fifty, the excellence of which is guaranteed by the name of Mr. John Tiller. The principals include Miss Lulu Valli, Miss Nancy Hearne, Miss Dorothy Firmin, Miss Enid Erroll (solo dancer), Miss Florrie Page, Mr. Joe Nightingale, Mr. T. W. Volt, Mr. Arthur Stigant, Mr. Sidney Vincent, Mr. Chas. V. Sandford, Mr. Chas. Verno, the Superba Serenaders, and the Twelve Forget-me-nots from the Drury-lane pantomime. The musical-director is Mr. Peter Flitcroft, who will take ten instrumentalists to augment the local orchestras.

Mr. Sholto Dennistoun, who recently returned from a long engagement with Mr. Leonard Rayne in South Africa, is now stage-manager for Mr. Frank Bertram, in The Breed of the Treshams, which is enjoying such a successful tour of the provinces.

That enterprising actor-manager, Mr. Percy Hutchison, has again come out with a surprise for his patrons in Southport, where he is the lessee and manager of the Opera House, having arranged with Sir Herbert Tree to pay a visit to Southport on May 23. The enthusiasm which the announcement has aroused in the town can well be imagined.

Mr. Hutchison is also able to announce that immediately on his return from America Sir Charles Wyndham will pay a visit to Southport. Among the attractions for the near future at the Opera House are the London companies of The House of Temperley and The Brass Bottle, the Moody-Manners and Carl Rosa Opera Companies, The Dollar Princess, The Merry Widow, The Whip, and a return visit from Mr. Martin Harvey.

Mr. Henry Miller, at the Grand Opera House, New York, recently appeared for the first time in that city as the Drain Man in The Servant in the House. This part was played by Mr. Tyrone Power when the play was running at the Savoy Theatre.

The twenty-sixth annual dinner of the Playgoers' Club will be held at the Hotel Cecil to-morrow. The president, Mr. E. Marshall Hall, K.C., M.P., will occupy the chair, and will propose the toast of "The Drama," and Mr. H. B. Irving (who will be accompanied by Miss Dorothea Baird) and Mr. J. W. Comyns Carr will respond. Mr. W. Pett Ridge will propose the toast of "The Visitors," to which Mr. Justice Darling and Mr. Theobald Mathew will respond. Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., will propose the toast of "The Playgoers' Club," to which Mr. Chas. E. B. Kibblewhite (vice-president) will respond.

The Grand Opera season at Covent Garden, which begins on April 23, will have a most attractive programme, and the subscription list is the largest on record. Mme. Tetrazzini, who arrives on April 20, will probably appear on the first night with Mr. John McCormack in La Traviata. Mme. Melba returns to London a few days later. Many new and famous artists will join the company for the revival of old favourite and modern operas, such as Charpentier's Louise and Debussy's Pelléas et Mélisande.

M. Louis Lestelly, principal baritone at the opera houses in Lyons, Bordeaux, Nice, Marseilles, and Brussels, may be heard in Pelléas et Mélisande, Habañera, Madama Butterfly, or Don Giovanni. Another baritone singer, M. George Baklanoff, was born in St. Petersburg some twenty-eight years ago. At the Moscow Imperial Opera House he has appeared with success in a variety of rôles. M. Franz, the French tenor, made his début at the Paris Opéra in February, 1909, and has sung there in Lohengrin, Samson et Dalila, Sigurd, Faust, Roméo et Juliette, Tannhäuser, and other works. Two new German tenors, Herren Statz and Sembach, and Herr Fönss, a bass, are to be heard in The Ring. Mme. Edvina will probably appear as Mélisande, and other artists who will be heard during the season at Covent Garden are Herr Cornelius and Mme. Saltzmann-Stevens.

Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's comedy Dolly Reforming Herself, originally produced at the Haymarket Theatre, will be played at the Grand Theatre, Croydon, on Monday, when Miss Henrietta Watson will make her first appearance as Dolly. The company includes Miss Vera Beringer, Mr. Tom Mowbray, Mr. Leonard Shepherd, Mr. Geoffrey Besant, and Mr. Bertram Forsyth, and is under the management of Mr. Walner Gregory.

The curtain at Birmingham Theatre Royal was on Saturday night rung down for the last time on the most successful pantomime that has been produced there during the five years in which the new building has been open. The audience called for Mr. E. T. Steyne, the producer, who said that the galaxy of talent he had had at his command assured success. There were many presentations during the evening, and Mr. Rodway, the general-manager, in thanking his patrons, announced that next year's pantomime would be Aladdin, and the leading comedian Mr. Harry Tate. Mr. George Robey and Miss Ada Reeve also spoke, and thanked the public of Birmingham for their enthusiastic appreciation of their work.

The repertory of Mlle. Hélène Demellier, the celebrated soprano, from the Paris Opéra Comique, where she made her début in 1905 as Louise, includes the principal parts in such operas as Werther, Mignon, Habañera. An English débutante is Miss Amy Evans, the young soprano who recently made such a success in Fallen Fairies at the Savoy Theatre. Mlle. Jane Bourgeois, contralto, is a Belgian, and made her first operatic appearance at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, Brussels, in 1905. This is her second season at Covent Garden. Miss Alys Mutch, who was born in Leicestershire, studied at the Royal College of Music, and has sung at many concerts, is another newcomer to the opera stage.

Mr. Robert Arthur has arranged that Mr. Hall Caine's play The Bondman shall be played at his Kennington Theatre for Holy Week for five nights, and matinée on Thursday at 2. On Good Friday, in conjunction with Mr. H. Bernhardt, Mr. Arthur is giving a grand concert at eight o'clock, and amongst a long list of artists are Mrs. Lewis Waller, Miss Sybil Arundale, Miss Mabel Green, Mr. Richard Green, Mr. Charles Pond, and the Russian Imperial Singers.

"The Blue Bird" will be played for the 150th time at the Haymarket Theatre on Monday, when all the members of the original cast will take part in the performance. The Haymarket Theatre will remain open during Holy Week (except on Good Friday), and Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday matinées will take place as usual. Mr. Trench has arranged for two special matinées of The Blue Bird on Easter Monday and Easter Tuesday, in addition to the ordinary Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday matinées.

During the pantomime season just closed Mr. Philip Rodway, who has ably managed the affairs of the company controlling the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, was promoted by his directors to the position of general-manager. Recognising the honour bestowed upon one of the best-known men in the city, managers of other places of amusement and a few personal friends decided to make a presentation to Mr. Rodway, and surprised him at the close of the performance last Saturday evening. Mr. Edward Foster, the manager of the Grand Theatre, was the spokesman, and said all persons identified with the theatrical world in Birmingham were proud of Mr. Rodway, and were pleased that the Theatre Royal directors had rewarded him with promotion for hard, careful, and successful work in the past.

"You, Mr. Rodway," concluded Mr. Foster, in jocular vein, "remind me of a prisoner in the dock. You are found guilty of being a real good sort, and the sentence of your friends is that you wear this ring for the rest of your natural life." Mr. Foster then handed to Mr. Rodway a handsome diamond ring. Mr. Harry Lewis, chairman of the directors, spoke in eulogistic terms about Mr. Rodway and his work, and the latter suitably replied and expressed his thanks.

The Shakespeare National Theatre movement was fully debated at the annual conference of the British Empire Shakespeare Society held last week at Seaford House, when a resolution was carried to the effect that the Society would give no official recognition to the scheme in its present form, and that a copy of the resolution should be sent to all the branches throughout the country.

At the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Birmingham, the final performance was given on Saturday night of Jack and Jill, which, after a record run at Sheffield, was played in the hardware city with considerable success for a fortnight.

Miss Frances Rose, of Mr. Beecham's English Opera Company, was married on Wednesday to Mr. Theodore Konrad, of Cologne, at the registry office, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, in the presence of the necessary witnesses and a cousin of the bride. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Konrad left London en route for Berlin. Miss Rose, who appeared as Chrysothemis when Strauss's Elektra was produced at Covent Garden, will appear this evening in Les Huguenots at the Berlin Opera House. Mr. Konrad, who is now in business, was formerly a vocalist, having appeared at the same theatre.

Lady Beerbohm Tree has forwarded a gift of £100 to the Church Army. She had promised to appear at the concert in aid of the Church Army's funds, recently organised by Mrs. Willie James, at The Dome, Brighton, but was prevented, and therefore she has sent this sum instead to the Church Army.

Mr. Matheson Lang, who returned to England on Tuesday morning from New York, where he has been appearing at the "Millionaires' Theatre," will, with his wife, Miss Hutin Britton, sail early in April for Australia, where they will tour for six months.

Mr. Charles Frohman and Mr. Arthur Chudleigh have settled on Tuesday, the 29th inst., for the first performance at the Comedy Theatre of the new play Alias Jimmy Valentine, with Mr. Gerald du Maurier and Miss Alexandra Carlisle in the cast.

Mr. George Tyler, the American manager, is in London looking out for a theatre at which to produce Mrs. Hodgson Burnett's play The Dawn of To-morrow, which is still running in the United States. Should Mr. Tyler be successful in his quest, Miss Gertrude Elliott will play the part of a street waif, a cheery creature who leads the hero away from the thoughts of suicide which have beset him.

Mr. J. M. Barrie's comedy, What Every Woman Knows, was played in Hungarian at the National Theatre, Budapest, on the 11th inst., with complete success.

Mr. Cyril Harrison, who has played Captain Gara, his original character, in The King and the Unknown Woman for 300 nights, is re-engaged by Mr. Mitchelson for the autumn.

The versatile actress-authoress Miss Ella Erskine has been specially engaged by Mr. H. Bernhardt for his Good Friday concerts, and will appear in the evening both at St. James's Hall and the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, in a new monologue by Sabben Clare, entitled A Moment of Doubt.

Miss Dot Stephens and company, in A Child of the Streets, should prove a strong attraction at the Broadway next week. Miss Stephens, it will be remembered, is enabled to appear on the stage through a marvellous piece of surgery. Whilst travelling in a corridor coach to Glasgow she fell through one of the doors, was hurled on the track, and a passing train crushed both her feet. No one imagined that she would ever be able to appear on the stage again, but the Wolverhampton Hospital staff rose to the occasion, and she was fitted with artificial feet so wonderfully made as entirely to escape detection. Miss Stephens's impersonation of the chief part in the piece named has gained widespread admiration.

Miss Dorothy Firmin, who played Princesse Sosh so charmingly in Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, has been re-engaged by Mr. John Tiller to play Gretchen in his grand production Amsterdam, which will open at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on March 21.

Mr. W. V. Garrod will send The Prodigal Parson on tour again in August, starting at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, on the Bank Holiday. Despite its twelve years' touring, the piece is practically booked up for fifteen months. This will in no way interfere with Mr. Garrod's tour of A Country Girl in London, which is also booked into the spring of 1911.

"The Angels of the Heavens," by Sivori Levey, will be performed to-morrow (Sunday) at 3 and 8 o'clock at the Queen's Theatre, Shaftesbury avenue. The dresses are by Miss Meinhardt and D. Levey and the properties by Miss Male Hoey.

Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd., have a very successful report for the Tyne Theatre and Opera House, Newcastle-on-Tyne, during the twelve months which ended with February, the profits for the year permitting of a 10 per cent. dividend being paid on the ordinary shares. In view of the trade depression which has troubled many districts, and especially Tyneside, such a result must be very gratifying.

In front of The House of Temperley at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday will be produced a new one-act play by Mrs. Caleb Porter entitled The Marauder, in which Miss Dorothea Desmond will appear as the heroine. Other characters are allotted to Mr. Wernham Byott, Mr. Stanley Turnbull, Mr. J. Byron, and Miss Katherine Kennedy. The scene is a room in a flat at midnight. Miss Lydia Bilbrooke will undertake the part of the young girl in The House of Temperley next week; and while Mr. Charles Rock is at Drury Lane for the revival of The Whip Sir John Hawker will be played by Mr. Murray Carson, by kind permission of Mr. Weedon Grossmith.

Miss Marie Brema's revival of Gluck's Orpheus will take place at the Savoy Theatre on April 12. Miss Brema has personally selected and trained the chorus of fifty. The costumes have been copied from famous Greek works of art, and the dances in the famous ballet of the third act have been arranged by Miss Margaret Morris. Mme. Brema will impersonate Orpheus, and the cast will include Miss Pearl Ladd as Amor and Miss Viola Tree, who will make her début on the operatic stage as Eurydice.

Last Saturday afternoon Sir Francis Vane (who is President of the British Boy Scouts), the 1st Walworth Company of British Boy Scouts, and Lady Vane's own troop of Girl Guides of Brixton, witnessed that stirring military drama, The Fighting Chance, at the Lyceum Theatre.

Owing to an unfortunate attack of laryngitis Miss Enid Ross has been compelled to relinquish her engagement with Mr. Millar Anderson. She is now deriving much benefit from her rest in Margate.

Mr. Leonard Pagden has been engaged by Mrs. Brown-Potter to play Louis Fleuriot (the husband) in Madame X., the tour of which starts at Easter.

The Gaiety Theatre will be closed next week, reopening on Easter Monday night, the 28th inst., when the run of Our Miss Gibbs will be resumed. Seats which have been booked can be exchanged on application at the box-office.

The career of Robinson Crusoe at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, was ended on Saturday, when the house was packed and the audience very enthusiastic. Numerous bouquets were presented to the ladies of the company, and the grouping of the final scene was imposing. At the close Mr. H. C. Alty, the resident-manager, appeared and thanked the audience and artists for their support on behalf of Mr. Fred Carpenter, who has taken up the work of the late Mr. Ernest Carpenter. It is Mr. Alty's sixth pantomime at the Royal, and he felt that Robinson Crusoe had proved the happiest of the six. He announced that Dick Whittington would be the subject of next year's pantomime.

Mr. Alty was presented with an illuminated address, together with a handsome silver tea and coffee service by some of the patrons of the theatre. The presentation was made on the stage by Mr. Manny Epstein. Mr. Alty was also the recipient of a fitted dressing-case from the stage staff of the theatre, and of other presents from different artists and members of the pantomime company. Mr. Edwin Jacobs, the conductor of the orchestra, also received presents. "Auld lang syne" brought down the final curtain on Robinson Crusoe.

The first meeting of the newly-elected London County Council was held on Tuesday, when Mr. W. Whitaker Thompson was appointed chairman. Both Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Walter Reynolds, re-elected by overwhelming majorities, were present.

Applications for dates for the merry musical farce Miss Lancashire, Limited, have come in so rapidly from various parts of the country that Miss Florence Baines' North company has no vacancies till well on in the autumn, while the South company has almost completed booking arrangements for the summer tour. It is probable that after this year Miss Baines will start on another voyage to Australia and New Zealand, where she recently met with such success.

A comedian who is making a name in the provinces is Mr. Arnold Richardson, who, during the past season has refused many tempting offers for pantomime and the variety theatre Mr. Richardson has for the past two years been playing the principal part in that successful sketch Ferdie's Ma-in-Law. Mr. Ernest Dottridge, who has the claim on him up to December next, has now fixed him for three more years, and Messrs. Dottridge and Longden have secured him for four seasons to appear in their pantomimes. They have also secured for a similar period the services of Mr. H. Flockton Foster and Miss Rita Vincent. Mr. Foster, who is such an able producer and author, works so well with Mr. Richardson in pantomime that the fun is assured from start to finish.

Miss Ada Champion received a hearty welcome last week at Cardiff, where she was playing Jess, the leading part in Mr. Fredk. Melville's Her Road to Ruin company. Miss Champion is well known at Cardiff, and was the recipient of some beautiful flowers and chocolates.

Messrs. Jay and Mann have arranged with Messrs. Daniel and Weathersby to provide a stock season of West End comedies at the Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton, commencing on Easter Saturday. Operations will be begun with Alfred Sutro's Garrick Theatre success Making a Gentleman.

Mr. Montague Beaudyn has taken the Theatre Royal, West Bromwich, and will run the same from Easter onwards as a popular-priced drama house twice nightly. The opening attraction under Mr. Beaudyn's management will be his own company in Send Him Victorious. The theatre will be entirely redecorated.

Mr. C. W. Standing, who has recently been playing Prince Olaf in The Prince and the Beggar Maid with Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company, has been re-engaged by Mr. Herbert Sleath for the rôle of Julian Rolfe in The Woman in the Case.

The Stage Society will produce three new plays by Felix Salten at the Shaftesbury Theatre to-morrow, under the stage superintendence of Mr. William Haviland. In the first, entitled Count Festenberg, Mr. Douglas Gordon, Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Mr. E. H. Brooke, Miss Helen Haye, Mr. Leon Quartermaine, and Mr. Reginald Dane will appear. In Life's Importance, translated by Mr. Hugh de Selincourt, the characters will be sustained by Mr. Alfred Bristowe, Miss Gwladys Morris, Mr. Clifton Alderson, and Mr. Charles Quartermaine; and for The Return Miss Mabel Harrison, Miss Margaret Bussé, Mr. Philip Leslie, Mr. Reginald Dane, Mr. Arthur Wontner, Mr. Norman Page, and Miss Aimée de Burgh have been engaged. The stage-manager will be Mr. Val Cuthbert.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Good Old Times.

MRS. JOHN BILLINGTON, who is eighty-five years of age, has been giving her reminiscences in Lloyd's Weekly. She says: "Some of the young ladies and gentlemen who now go on to the stage from society and earn apparently remunerative salaries from the start, will be interested to hear that when I commenced my artistic career I received a stipend of 5s. a week! Out of this sum I had to provide my own dresses! However, the costumier did not play such a part in the drama at that day as is the case now. Cotton stockings were dyed to represent silk; and unbleached calico, trimmed with braid, was a wonderfully adaptable material.

"My husband, Mr. John Billington, has given some interesting details of his experiences. 'I was engaged for general utility,' he wrote, 'as it is called, at the salary of twelve shillings a week and find my own properties. These I was told, must include russet boots, tights, and feathers—articles of attire which were essential to the dramas which were then in vogue. As to their supply—well, the manager came to the rescue. Certain left-off "props" of his own were at my disposal at what drapers would have called an alarming sacrifice. They consisted of a pair of russet boots, ditto gauntlets, ditto worked tights, three white ostrich feathers, and a diminutive tab jacket. I was told that I might have the lot for a couple of pounds, and I eagerly closed with the offer.'"

How to Advertise.

BILLINGTON was afterwards sent to school at Doncaster, where he well remembered seeing Ira Aldridge, "the African Roscius," give a mixed programme, including scenes from Othello, passages from The Padlock and The Virginian Mummy, intermingled with such African ditties as "'Possum up a gum tree." Mr. Aldridge had hit upon various novel and successful methods of advertising his shows. He posted from town to town in a yellow postchaise, with a retinue of a white Iago and a black page-boy, and always went to church with great solemnity twice every Sunday, attended by the black page, who solemnly carried his Bible and Prayer-book.

The Macready Touch.

IT was the sight of the great Macready himself that finally decided John Billington to go on the stage. He and a friend, hearing that Macready was playing in Manchester, took the mail there from Bradford, and fought their way into the pit to see the great man, who was playing The King of the Camerons, a play founded on Scott's "Lady of the Lake." Mr. Billington described the impression made on him as very deep: "I sat in a dream of fascination to the end of the play. One feature I well remember, and that was the transforming charm of 'the Macready smile,' of which I had often heard. When it came it seemed to light up and give warmth to the entire house. Two women behind us were fairly overcome. Exclaimed one tearful dame to the other, 'Eh! Sarah, my lass, it's worth all t' brass to see yon man smile!'"

A Flunkey's Costume.

"DURING the rehearsal of the first act of a play in which I was to appear at the Theatre Royal, Preston," said Billington, "it was found that the part of the servant, who had to announce the names of a number of the French nobility, had been forgotten, and I was asked to oblige the management by 'doubling' the parts of gaoler and lackey. But I had no dress for the lackey. However, the manager came to the rescue. 'I'll arrange it for you, my boy. I have a friend, the footman at the Town Hall, whose uniform is just the thing. I often give him an order, and I am sure he will lend you his clothes.' Well, at the very last minute that evening the clothes turned up, of a size suited to their owner, who was six feet high and stout.

"WITH kind consideration for their comrade in distress, two of my fellow-actors, with pins obtained from the ladies' dressing-room, proceeded to tie and pin me up; but when the moment for my entrance came, and I stalked through the centre doors on to the stage—oh, horror!—certain of the pins gave way, and the right leg of my breeches dropped down to my ankle. This unrehearsed incident was naturally received with a roar of laughter; and every time I reappeared the laughter broke out again.

Walking the Plank.

"I was miserable, but I still hoped to retrieve the disaster when I appeared later as the gaoler. The scene represented an interior of four compartments, the entire floor of that which I had to enter consisting of a narrow plank, which sprang up and down with my weight upon it. When my cue came and I rushed on, it went up and down so violently that I feared I should fall off. Also, my black beard was tied on so tightly that my jaw was locked. I had to tear it away before I could deliver my hasty message; then as I turned to make my exit, the plank swayed to such a disturbing extent that I departed much in the manner of a beginner on a tight-rope."

Mr. George Grossmith, Jun.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH, JUN., has been describing to a Pall Mall representative his experiences in Paris. "I confess I was frightened—never felt so scared," he says, "on the first night. It is an awful ordeal, you know, in another language. When I am on at home and anything slips—as happens to the best and worst of us at times—I can casually remark: 'Well, as I was saying.' You can't do that in French; it is not a language you can hum and haw in. I tried to give my masher drawl in the idiom, but, bless you, it cannot be done."

The Troublesome Souffleur.

INCIDENTALLY, Mr. Grossmith remarked that the "souffleur" annoyed him—not the man, but the institution. "It is awful," he said, "to hear him mutter over the whole thing, no matter how many times it has been played. French artists cannot get on without the 'souffleur,' but he is most distracting to me. In England, of course, we only have the prompter the first few nights. And then the 'compère' and the 'commère' are always on the stage, whether they have anything to do with the picture or not; they spoil it for me. I wanted them to go away whilst I did my dance, but the management told me the public would miss them."

Internationalised Art.

MR. GROSSMITH has ideas on the internationalism of art. He feels that the artist, either on the "legitimate" stage or in musical comedy, should be cosmopolitan in his education just like the singers in grand opera. "One of the greatest Hamlets England ever saw was Fechter, a Frenchman. Then the Dutchman, Devries, at the Haymarket, four or five years ago, was wonderful. He played as many as seven parts in a night—astonishingly versatile—and he learned to speak English perfectly. Fred Wright, playing in Vienna in Our Miss Gibbs, has so good an accent that a German friend of mine went to the theatre the other night, and was half an hour before he realised that Wright was not a German. One gets fresh ideas in travelling. It is necessary always to freshen up one's work if one is a comedian. I make a point, for instance, of playing for six months in America every three years or so."

"THE TOYMAKER OF NUREMBERG."

New and Original Play, in Three Acts, by Austin Strong, Produced at the Playhouse at a Matinée on Tuesday, March 15.

The Toymaker ..... MR. CYRIL MAUDE
The Sergeant ..... MR. J. D. BEVERIDGE
The Old Actor ..... MR. FRED LEWIS
The Stranger ..... MR. A. HOLMES GORE
The Boy ..... MR. SHIEL BARRY
The Boy's Friend .... MASTER BOBBIE ANDREWS
The Employer ..... MR. CHARLES ALLAN
The Lamplighter ..... MR. M. WETHERELL
The Street Cleaner ..... MR. C. B. KESTON
The Sentry ..... MR. A. G. ONSLOW
The Auctioneer ..... MR. DANIEL MCCARTHY
The Mother ..... MISS ELSIE CHESTER
The Girl ..... MISS MARGERY MAUDE
The Cook ..... MISS EMMA CHAMBERS

Mr. Austin Strong's pretty play has a flavour of Dickens, when the sentimental stop was out; and Mr. Strong almost out-Dickenses Dickens in the supreme simplicity of some of his characters. But the system of trusting to the sympathy of an audience with the weak and affectionate, with the poetical and the improvident, is generally successful; and it certainly was so on Tuesday afternoon, when many present at the Playhouse were "visibly affected," and pocket-handkerchiefs were freely used during the sad scenes. Mr. Strong has done his work very cleverly. He has given Mr. Cyril Maude a splendid part; and he has contrived a little pathetic poem with great ingenuity. By placing the locality of his piece in Nuremberg, a city of associations, he has added to the effect of his poetic inventions; and the expedient by which he saves his simple folk from the results of their foolishness is excellent.

An old Toymaker has been all his life making dolls, when his employer, who is only the middleman between the maker and a big toy merchant in Kansas City, who is known as the "Teddy-Bear King," wants the old man to leave off making dolls and do bears. The Toymaker at first refuses, but yields when he learns that his son is in love with the Employer's daughter. Of course, when the Employer hears of it, he denies his consent; and when two of the Toymaker's friends, an old Sergeant and an elderly Actor, pawn their most cherished possessions to raise funds to enable the young couple to elope, the Employer flies into a furious rage, denounces the Toymaker—who has refused to be a party to the elopement scheme—and takes away his "job." Then, in the last act, just as the Toymaker and his son are preparing to go out to America and make their fortunes, who should arrive from Kansas City but the great Teddy-Bear King, who is the Toymaker's elder son, and the "boss" of the Employer, and soon sets matters right. And so, after a couple of hours of charming, amusing unreality, the piece ends.

Mr. Cyril Maude's old Toymaker was a perfectly irresistible creation, so charming, winning, and pathetic that it rendered severe criticism of the play impossible. The Toymaker is described as the best-loved man in Nuremberg; and we can easily imagine this, so delightfully is he portrayed by the actor. The indications of senility were supplied with Mr. Maude's famous technical skill; and the sweet, amiable nature of the old man, his fine poetical view of life, and his quaint, enduring patience made him a most amusing and affecting personage. Mr. Maude has seldom done anything better than this in his long gallery of portraits of old age. The rôle of the Sergeant could hardly have had a better representative Mr. J. D. Beveridge, whose deep mellow tones and fine figure were very appropriate to the representation of the veteran. The bluff vigour of the soldier was admirably assumed, and the touches of pathos were put in with all the assurance and effectiveness of ripe experience. A rich, mellow, and humorous representation of the Old Actor was given, with a fine touch of Turveydropian deportment, by Mr. Fred Lewis; and Mr. A. Holmes Gore played the Stranger with boldness, energy, and alertness. Mr. Shiel Barry's Boy was treated in a truly-poetical spirit, the musical notes of the Boy's voice, his gentle and innocent nature, and his ardent imagination being shown by Mr. Barry with imaginative skill. Master Bobbie Andrews enacted the Boy's Friend very neatly and smartly and naturally; and an excellent embodiment of the Employer was given by Mr. Charles Allan. Mr. Allan was admirably made up, and assumed, with his usual ease and ability, the air of the prosperous, patronising, but not altogether unreasonable, worldling. The different inflexions of the character, its cautious moderation, its obstinacy, and its angry, overbearing tyranny were developed with the practised hand of a long-tried and resourceful artist. Very touching in its simple sincerity and womanly devotion was Miss Elsie Chester's Mother, a performance that rang true from beginning to end, and was quite convincing in its pathetic loyalty and quiet truth. Nothing could have been sweeter, simpler, and more exquisitely ingenuous than Miss Margery Maude's Girl. The innate modesty and delicacy of the Girl, her budding love, and her artless innocence, were depicted by Miss Maude with a natural grace and intelligence which quite won the hearts of the audience. We congratulate Mr. Maude on the complete success of his daughter's début, and on his judicious selection of a part for the purpose. The small parts of the Lamplighter, the Street Cleaner, the Sentry, and the Auctioneer, had careful, considerate, and clever exponents in Mr. M. Wetherall, Mr. C. B. Keston, Mr. A. G. Onslow, and Mr. Daniel McCarthy; and Miss Emma Chambers was very energetic and authoritative as the Cook. Much of the success of the performance was due to the scenery, the set for the first act being very romantic, and the old toymaker's room, with the great Nuremberg clock seen through the window, being very picturesque.

The Toymaker of Nuremberg was preceded by a wordless play, performed for the first time in England, and entitled "A Happy Mistake." Pierrot returns home intoxicated, explaining that he has lost all his money at the gaming table. His wife becomes angry, because he has promised to take her to the ball for which she has prepared her costume. She is putting the finishing touches as it hangs on the dressmaker's dummy. Pierrot asks for more drink, and Madame Pierrot, infuriated, throws her wedding ring at him, declaring that all is at an end between them, and leaves the room in disgust. Half drunk and dazed, he mistakes the dressmaker's dummy covered by the costume for her. In his drunken rage he seizes a knife and stabs the dummy. This sobers him, and imagining that he has killed his wife, he is filled with despair and has horrible visions of being arrested by the police and hanged as a murderer. The wife re-enters, Pierrot is overjoyed to discover his error, and there is a reconciliation. M. Thalès, a clever mime, depicted Pierrot's passions powerfully, and Mlle. Massilia made a comely and expressive spouse.

LYCEUM'S GOLDEN SONG.

A BOX-OFFICE TUNE THAT IS NEVER TEDIOUS.

"The Fighting Chance will, we have every reason to anticipate, be in the bill at the Lyceum until the autumn," Mr. Henry B. Smith, the Lyceum's energetic director, informed an Era representative. "Then we shall send it on, it is to be hoped, a long and successful tour just as it stands—scenery, dresses, everything.

"You are right when you say it is the most ambitiously mounted play we have yet put on. We know it to be so, and that opinion is held, too, by the leading critics. Better still, the box-office is singing its golden song in splendid style, which, of course, is a source of the greatest satisfaction to my company, and the bookings are the finest we have yet had—certainly for this time of the year.

"So you see, although we have several more shots in the locker, so to speak—and by that I mean at least half-a-dozen strong plays ready to put on—there is no necessity to produce them yet awhile.

"As most people are aware, four years ago I conceived the idea of running drama in the West End at popular prices. My scheme was laughed at by many, but several other managers have thought it wise to alter their tactics and their prices, again proving the truth of the old adage that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

"My father it was who introduced me to Mr. Ernest Carpenter at the Grand Theatre, Brighton. My scheme appealed to him. It was after his own heart, and so we formed a company, with what results you know. Her Love Against the World was our first success, and that proved there was a public which had been waiting and wanting a West-End theatre with popular prices. Now look at the huge masses of people who visit the Lyceum daily, and who are only called upon to pay for their seats at prices ranging from sixpence to five shillings. Even our Shakespearean season, which everybody said was to be our Waterloo, was a financial success. To-day, we have four companies on the road, all doing well. These are a No. 1 and a No. 2 Pete, The Two Little Vagabonds, and The Proud Prince.

"The death of Ernest Carpenter was a very serious loss to us. Yet his work was so perfect that it will be the simplest thing in the world to carry out the plans he made in conjunction with myself before his death, and it affords me the greatest gratification to say so.

MR. H. R. SMITH.

"That our theatre holds a position in the front rank in the West End is evidenced by the fact that I have had the honour of receiving Her Majesty the Queen no fewer than three times during the past two years. The last occasion was on Tuesday night, when Her Majesty, together with H.R.H. Princess Victoria, witnessed the performance of The Fighting Chance, and was gracious enough to say that she was delighted with the piece. Sir Dighton Probyn was also present on this occasion.

"Our company is as near the old stock system as it is possible to obtain to-day. We have brought many good provincial actors to London, and we adopt the system whenever possible of having the same people back as frequently as is advisable.

"The public, we find, love the old faces. To give you an instance of this I may state that one night when Fred Ross was playing in The Two Little Vagabonds, on his first entrance somebody in the gallery called out: 'Lord, if it ain't our Freddy!' and a big round of applause immediately greeted the actor."

Both Mr. Fred Carpenter and Major Jones, the Lyceum's stage-manager, are full of good stories and incidents concerning their productions.

Mr. Fred Carpenter recounts that many out-of-work actors and supers have seized on the title of the drama to apply for work, and beg to be given "a fighting chance." But unfortunately there is not room for everybody, even in a big theatre like the one in Wellington-street.

There are many military men and ex-soldiers in the cast of The Fighting Chance. Major Kinnaird, who plays the part of Captain Fraser, was actually an officer in the Gordons, the regiment represented in the play. Several of the other actors have seen service, and in the march past sixty privates of the Scots Guards come from Wellington Barracks daily. In addition, the drum and fife band of the Coldstream Guards are to be seen on the stage.

The game of poker played in the first scene was one of the greatest difficulties, it seems, to get right. All those participating were experienced players, but it was found extremely difficult to present the game in such a way that the audience might follow the play and, at the same time, enable the actors to accurately fit in the dialogue. But it was managed after quite a record number of rehearsals.

Mr. Ed. Ferris, who, with Mr. B. P. Matthews, is one of the authors of The Fighting Chance, took an active part in the production of the latest Lyceum drama. For three solid weeks rehearsals were in progress nearly night and day. The start was made as early as eleven in the morning, and on more than one occasion dawn was just breaking before the tired actors and actresses went home. Mr. Ferris tells how he originally intended that Sergt. Bartleman should be the first character to be shot in the last act through the treachery of the Afghans. But one of the leading ladies took the "assassination" of this soldier so much to heart that he listened to her entreaties that one of the Gordons should meet this fate instead, and altered the incident accordingly. Whereat the sergeant promptly said, "Thank you, sir; you've saved me life!"

COUNT ENRICO BRINELLI, a grand opera singer, who slipped on the slope at the Leicester-square tube station and injured himself, was awarded £10 damages at the Westminster County Court last week against the Piccadilly Tube company.

Lady Blakeney ..... MISS MIRIAM LEWES

Since its first London performance at the New Theatre on Jan. 5, 1905, The Scarlet Pimpernel has been a warm favourite with the playgoing public, and it has only to be revived to be again applauded and to draw full houses. In the first production Mr. Fred Terry played the Prince of Wales, Miss Julia Neilson was the Lady Blakeney, and Mrs. Walter Edwin the Comtesse de Tournai. Several of the members of the original cast were happily available for the revival of the piece at the New Theatre on Saturday, including Mr. Alfred Kendrick, Mr. Malcolm Cherry, Mr. Horace Hodges, Mr. Walter Edwin, Mr. J. Carter Edwards, Mr. George Dudley, and Mr. Hermann Griffiths. The central figure, of course, is Mr. Terry, who easily predominates as Sir Percy Blakeney. The concealment of Sir Percy's real character under the mask of tipsy foolishness gives Mr. Terry opportunities in the first act of some clever comedy-acting, which is heartily enjoyed by the audience; and the quick, resolute, and ready-witted individuality of the "Scarlet Pimpernel" is depicted by Mr. Terry with brisk alertness and excellent energy and force. The difficult part of Lady Blakeney is sustained with admirable skill and feeling by Miss Miriam Lewes. The warring emotions of the woman, her vivacious and sensitive temperament, and her remorseful sufferings are portrayed by Miss Lewes in very artistic style; and she makes a picturesque appearance in some pretty dresses. The important part of Chauvelin has a competent exponent in Mr. Horace Hodges, who endows his creation with all the necessary smoothness and sharpness. The polish and finish of Mr. Hodge's performance is remarkable. The fine gentlemen of the piece are embodied with all the necessary style and ease by Mr. Philip Merivale, clever and characteristic as the Prince of Wales, Mr. Alfred Kendrick bright and gallant as Sir Andrew Ffoulkes, Mr. Malcolm Cherry effective and able as Lord Anthony Dewhurst, and Mr. J. L. Dale entirely efficient as Lord Grenville. The French noblesse are equally well represented, Miss Claire Pauncefort making a delightful old Comtesse and realising imaginations of the old régime; Miss Eileen Beatrice being fresh, natural, and girlish as Suzanne de Tournai; Mr. H. Humbertson Wright making a good Comte de Tournai, Mr. R. Easten Pickering giving a neat and bright comedy-sketch as the Vicomte de Tournai, and Mr. Maurice Elvey playing Armand de St. Just with much delicate sentiment. Mr. Walter Edwin is excellent as Hebert; and Mr. J. Carter Edwards's ripe experience is evident in his Brogard. A mellow and genial reading of the rôle of Jellyband is supplied by Mr. Frederick Groves, who exactly realises the landlord of the last century; and Miss Dora Jesslyn is a neat and attractive Sally Jellyband. Miss Marion Sterling's Mère Brogard is full of character; and Miss Stuart Innes is quite commendable as Lady Portarles. Valuable assistance is rendered by Mr. Norman Yates as Jimmy Pitkin and Mr. Guy Cunningham as Harry Waite; and minor rôles are effectively sustained by Mr. Hermann Griffiths, picturesque and powerful as the Captain of the Guard, Mr. George Dudley as Mr. Hempseed, Mr. Goodwin Nock, Mr. Knott Cumming, Mr. Walter Armstrong, Mr. Broughty Ferrie, and Mr. Hughbert Dane. The scenery is first-rate, and the revival has had a most enthusiastic reception. The Scarlet Pimpernel may always be relied on to draw good houses.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

MR. THOMAS BEECHAM'S SEASON.

"CARMEN."

Opera by Georges Bizet, Revived (in English) on Monday, March 14.

Don José ..... MR. JOHN COATES
Toreador ..... MR. ROBERT MAITLAND
Frasquita ..... MISS BETTY BOOKER
Mercedes ..... MISS PAGE
Remendado ..... MR. BYNDON-AYRES
Dancairo ..... MR. ALBERT ARCHDEACON
Micaela ..... MISS GERTRUDE RENNYSON
Zuniga ..... MR. STEWART GARDNER
Morales ..... MR. R. CHIGNELL
Carmen ..... MISS FRANCES ROSE

On Monday night Carmen was performed at Covent Garden by Mr. Thomas Beecham's company. In Bizet's masterpiece Miss Frances Rose appeared as Carmen and Mr. John Coates in the part of Don José. Miss Frances Rose, so excellent as Chrysothemis in Elektra, hardly realised the ideal gipsy heroine of Prosper Merimée in her acting, although, of course, the music of the part was finely sung. Mr. John Coates's Don José is familiar, but his performance on Monday night certainly surpassed any previous effort made by this distinguished artist. "The Flower Song" was beautifully rendered, and in the great duet with Carmen Mr. Coates sang with admirable passion and fervour. Excellent also was the Micaela of Miss Gertrude Rennyson, who gave a most artistic impersonation of the character and much vocal charm to the delightful music. Mr. Robert Maitland as the bull-fighter sang and acted well, and gave an effective version of the famous "Toreador" song. Of the rest of the cast, Miss Betty Booker and Miss Page successfully sang the music of Frasquita and Mercedes; Mr. Byndon-Ayres and Mr. Albert Archdeacon ably filled the parts of Remendado and Dancairo; and Mr. R. Chignell that of Morales. All the principal artists deserved great praise for clear enunciation. Mr. Hamish McCunn conducted, and the chorus and orchestra were equally efficient.

An immense audience were present at Covent Garden on Saturday night, March 12, when Dr. Richard Strauss conducted his opera Elektra. The cast was the same as on the first night, Miss Edyth Walker as Elektra, Mme. Mildenburg as Klytemnestra, and Miss Frances Rose as Chrysothemis. The Queen and Princess Victoria were in the Royal box. Dr. Strauss had a most cordial reception, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed after a very fine performance of the opera

MISS MARIE HALL has just completed arrangements for a tour through South Africa, beginning in August. The guarantee is stated to be £10,000, which is the largest ever offered to a violinist.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 17.—The interesting event this week has been the production—I might almost say the resurrection—of Balzac's five-act comedy, L'Ecole des ménages, which, strangely enough, has never before been given on any French stage. In 1837 Balzac wrote the scenario of the work, which then bore the title of La Première Demoiselle, subsequently changed into La Demoiselle du Magasin. Balzac sent the sketch to his friend, Mme. Hanska, who replied that she did not care for the plot. Balzac, discouraged, locked the MS. in a drawer, but, after a while, he once more started work, and finished the plot in 1838, with the intention of offering it to the Théâtre de la Renaissance, then managed by Anténor Joly. Balzac, eager to have it received at that house, showed it to Lassailly, author of Les Roueries de Trialph, an experienced dramatist, who gave Balzac some excellent advice in view of altering one or two scenes. But Anténor Joly refused the Ecole des ménages, and accepted Alexandre Dumas' l'Alchimiste, which contained a splendid rôle for Frédéric Lemaître. A year later, at a soirée at the house of the Marquis de Custine, Balzac was asked to read his play, when the Prince de Metternich advised him to change the end. Sick of all these suggestions Balzac once more put the MS. away, yet with the secret hope of seeing the work produced some day. That day, however, never came; and when in 1858—eight years after the famous novelist's death—Arthur de Beaupian brought out at the Odéon a comedy in five acts bearing the same title as Balzac's work, L'Ecole des ménages, chances of ever seeing the footlights seemed to have dwindled down to nothing. Balzac was not a playwright, and, after the second act, the story becomes so intricated that it is impossible to give a clear account of it, but the man's genius makes itself felt throughout, and M. Antoine did well to add the work to the répertoire. One scene especially created a profound impression. The heroine, Adrienne Guérin, is employed in the shop of M. Gérard, who has fallen desperately in love with her. Mme. Gérard, jealous of Adrienne, takes advantage of her husband's absence to discharge the girl. Adrienne then implores Mme. Gérard to let her remain in the house. She does not ask this from selfish motives, but in the interest of her employer's wife and daughters. She knows that her presence in the house is a safeguard; that it is she who makes her employer remain faithful to his home, and that were she to leave he would at once follow her. She also knows that as long as she is in the house Gérard will fight against his love for her—a love which she shares—but that she will no longer be mistress of her feelings if her departure will make the man wretched.

WHILST at our Opéra La Forêt and other productions of the ultra-modern school send the public to sleep, the Théâtre de la Gaîté has revived Martha, and has scored such a success with it that the old-fashioned opera seems booked for a long run. It was to be foreseen. The worm—I mean the long-suffering public—has turned. For many years it has been bored, and now it wants to be amused. I am not an antediluvian creature. I admire Debussy and other great men, who have created a new formula in music, which, like the impressionist school of painting, may surprise and charm us, and yet not be accepted as the future form of art. But I object to the "followers" of these masters; men who imitate the latter without possessing their talent, and who hide their shortcomings behind an avalanche of discordant and meaningless notes. It really was quite touching to watch the people at the revival of Martha. They behaved like children at a pantomime, clapping their hands, and indulging in all kinds of demonstrations to show their delight at hearing once more a melody. And during the entr'actes the well-informed people told their friends that Martha, although of German origin, was brought out in Paris. Thus we also heard that when the work made its appearance in 1844 it was called Lady Henriette, and that no less than three musicians had collaborated at it—i.e., Flotow, Burgmuller, and Deldevez. The names of the two latter disappeared, and that of Flotow alone survived, probably because he had the good sense of infusing a little more life into the libretto, so that when it returned to France in 1847 it met with a splendid reception at the Théâtre Lyrique, and afterwards at the Théâtre Italien.

"TU BLAGUES!" is the title of a new revue brought out at La Cigale, the joint effort of MM. Jacques Bousquet and Georges Arnould. At curtain rise we are in Athens, whither the authors have gone to engage Aristophanes, who acts as "compère," whilst the rôle of commère is undertaken by the Muse of Montmartre. The two quaint companions then visit Paris, where they see many celebrities, among whom the Mme. de Vaughan, who has to pocket a large share of chaff. After a scene illustrating the recent inundations, we have a bright tableau, wherein Spanish dancers, Neapolitan singers, and English dancing girls make their welcome appearance. Next comes a skit on the present educational system. A family of bourgeois, who object to the tuition of the up-to-date school, have decided that their little girl is to be educated at home. Her aunt, a cook, teaches her arithmetic—i.e., to buy an article at a shilling, and put it down in the book at 1s. 6d. Her uncle, a butcher, lectures on zoology, and instructs the child the anatomy of the ox. "The animal," he says, "is composed of cutlets, steaks," &c. Next comes a skit on Chantecler. The Cock comes forward, and informs us that he is the author of the play. He starts reciting the famous hymn to the Sun, when a lady among the audience interrupts him. It is Mme. Rostand, who, also of a literary turn insists on her verses being read. The Cock obeys, and recommences his hymn; but he is once more interrupted by his son, who wants the public to listen to the verses he has just finished. In this way he is constantly stopped by his relations in the gallery—uncles, aunts, cousins, nephews, and nieces, who all claim to be heard. This amusing scene had a tremendous success.

OWING to the damage caused by the floods, the Théâtre Michel was compelled to give its performances at the Variétés. The management has once more taken possession of its house in the Rue des Mathurins, and has given us a very good programme. The successful play Le Rubicon is still on the bill, and two novelties have been added, one a trifle by MM. Darantiè and Mazamey, and L'Agence Léa, by Zamacois, wherein the principal feature was the exquisite dancing and singing of Mlle. Berty, whose Spanish song and imitations of the Montmartre style proved the hit of the evening. She was ably supported by that clever artist, M. Harry Baur, and by M. Bidouche.

THE Dowager Empress of Russia took the Czarevitch and his sisters to an afternoon performance of the fairy ballet The Hunchbacked Horse at the Imperial Marie Theatre on Saturday. Neither the Emperor nor the Empress has entered a St. Petersburg theatre for several years past. The Imperial children were delighted with the performance, which they repeatedly applauded.

THE Queen and Princess Victoria went to the Playhouse on Tuesday afternoon to see the production of The Toymaker of Nuremberg. At night they were at the Lyceum and witnessed the performance of The Fighting Chance.

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

3,764½ SHILLINGS.

We are again making an appeal on behalf of the Music Hall Home Era Shilling Fund, and with that appeal we have very great pleasure in associating the name of Miss Vesta Tilley, who will for the next few months act as a sort of fairy godmother to the fund. "I think," said Miss Tilley, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "that the Music Hall Home is a very deserving charity and a very excellent thing. Something of the sort was certainly wanted for the poorer professionals. Every week of my life I give pounds away at the stage-door to numbers of the profession who call upon me for assistance. Now this year I want to create a record in the matter of collections for the fund, and I personally shall work my very hardest for it. In everything I wanted before the profession has always come forward very generously, and I hope that they will help me all they can now. I have a number of private friends who are going to work for me, too. I think, however, that most of the support should come from the professionals themselves. Outside people have their own charities to look after. I have asked my husband if he can arrange special matinées at each of his halls for the benefit of this fund, and he thinks that he will be able to do this. A great deal in that case will rest upon the artists, and if they would turn up we should be enabled to augment the funds of the Home very considerably. Wherever I am now appearing I am fixing up cards so that members of the same company for the week may put their names down for a subscription. I also hope by the sale of autograph postcards in the front of the house to collect a still further sum for the same purpose."

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

LONDON citizens will figure as actors in the Pageant of London, which will be the central feature of the Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace this summer. Men from Camberwell will portray "The Norman Conquest," with King Harold marching south to meet William the Conqueror, who enters London in triumph. Shoreditch will represent "Civic Freedom," citizens receiving from Prince John that oath to the Commune which gives them a municipality of their own. Marylebone will illustrate "The Age of Chivalry," in which a tournament will be held before Queen Philippa and Edward the Black Prince. Poplar will exemplify "The Trade with India," with the return of the first expedition of the East India Company. Sydenham will show "The Beginnings of Empire," and the settlement of Virginia, our first Colony. Woolwich and the Canadian Club will typify "Mourning Triumph" on the receipt of the news of the fall of Quebec and the deaths of Wolfe and Montcalm. Stoke Newington will illustrate "The Canterbury Pilgrims" by a scene at the Tabard Inn, where Chaucer's Canterbury Pilgrims are assembled before starting on their journey to worship at the shrine of St. Thomas; and Westminster, in "The Triumph of Conquest," will depict the return of the young King Henry from Harfleur and Agincourt.

FOUR one-act plays will again figure in the Play Actors' programme at the Court to-morrow (Sunday) evening, when the production will take place of The Gulf, by Alfred Scott, in which Miss Rita Taubius and Miss Vita Spencer will appear; Miss Tassey, by Elizabeth Baker, in which the character will be sustained by Misses Ada Hatchwell, Adah Barton, Esmé Hubbard, Jess Dorynne, and Kitty Lofting; The Frame, by Ronald Macdonald, in which Mr. H. A. Saintsbury, Miss Lucy Wilson, and Miss Clara Quet will appear; and Cupid in Clapham, by Elizabeth Baker, in which the cast will consist of Mr. Richard Lambart, Miss Rosamond Mayne-Young, Master Eric Rae, Miss Catherine Rivers, and Miss Winifred Mayo. Miss Baker, who is responsible for two of the plays, is, it will be remembered, the author of Chains, the clever piece produced by the Play Actors, and which now has a place in Mr. Frohman's repertory.

AT the annual general meeting of the Incorporated Society of Authors, held yesterday at 20, Hanover-square, W., Mr. G. B. Shaw stated that in the capacity of playwright he had been recently called upon to read an agreement proposed by a leading London manager. It was the most monstrous agreement he had ever seen on paper. It was outrageous. He had been able to get it quashed by informing the manager that unless he withdrew the agreement the society would advise dramatic authors to have nothing to do with him.

THE Milan theatre was in 1822 the scene of a very tragic event. The play was the Antigone of Alfieri. At the end of the piece the actor, Lombardi, who played the character of Edmon with all the warmth and truth possible, after having killed his father, was to turn against himself the parricidal weapon and appear to kill himself. Either, however, from the effect of the agitation of his mind, or from his tunic having become entangled with his arm, he plunged his sword into his breast. He fell on the stage covered with blood, and entirely insensible.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

J. H. MORTON.—We consider you are only responsible for accidents occurring to members of touring companies visiting your theatre when such accidents are occasioned by your negligence.

I. X. L.—Mr. Alec Hurley, in his early days on the stage, did sing in evening dress. The song "Friends" was sung years ago by Miss Minnie Cunningham. The music was by Alan Macey. It was published by Broome and Co.

MRS. MALLETT (Cheddar).—Your lines scan much better than the usual run of comic songs, but they strike us as only mildly humorous. Write to any of the publishers advertising in our columns and ask for an album of the comic songs of the day. You can then judge of the style to be adopted to suit the methods of some of the stars, and write accordingly.

HERBERT WHITE.—Agents, as a rule, do not arrange trials for amateurs, but they are often present at them. Opportunities for appearance, as you know, are now given by the Macnaghten Circuit and others. If you wish to try your luck in this way, write to Mr. Fred Baugh, Foresters', Cambridge-road, London, E. You will find the names of several reputable agents in our advertising columns, but most of them are too busy booking legitimate talent to worry themselves about amateurs.

To mark the close of the pantomime season, the principal artists in Robinson Crusoe at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, had a very enjoyable supper on the 16th inst. at the Crown and Dove Hotel. Mr. H. C. Alty, the manager, with whom was Mrs. Alty, presided, and was supported by most of the lady and gentleman artists, and the visitors included Mr. Horace Livermore (manager of the Palace Theatre), Mr. F. S. Green (acting-manager, Prince's Theatre), and Mr. George R. Chapman (musical director, Prince's Theatre). The professional company included Miss Kitty Upton, the Sisters Albert, Miss Ada Jacobs, Miss Maude, Mr. E. Jacobs (musical director), Mr. Edwin Garth, Mr. J. R. Bennett, Mr. Frank Dunlop, and Mr. Dave Jenkins.

Mr. HORACE LIVERMORE submitted the toast of "The Bristol Theatre Royal," specially referring, in doing so, to the honourable connection of Mr. F. W. Carpenter with that historic house. The chairman suitably acknowledged Mr. Livermore's compliments. Mr. Frank S. Green, in commendatory terms, submitted "The Pantomime Artists," to which Mr. J. R. Bennett (Bennett and Martell) responded. "The Ladies," proposed by Mr. S. Stringer, were answered for by Miss Kitty Upton and "Mother" Garth. Mr. E. Jacobs gave "The Visitors," to which Mr. Geo. R. Chapman replied; and "The Chairman" was well handled by Mr. Scott-Barrie, who emphasised Mr. Alty's good qualities and excellent judgment in theatrical management.

BY invitation of Mr. J. M. Chute, the boys of the Clifton Industrial School paid their annual visit to the pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on the afternoon of the 10th inst. Headed by the school band, the boys marched to the theatre, and on entering each was presented with an orange. For three and a half hours the happiness of the visitors was complete, the choruses being enthusiastically taken up in the intervals of hearty laughter. Three hearty cheers were given for the management.

AT Bow-street Police Court on Thursday, before Mr. Curtis Bennett, John Arthur Harrison, of Leicester-square, was summoned, as the landlord of the Strand Theatre, for authorising a distress to be levied on a piano belonging to Messrs. Chappell and Co., Ltd., of 50, New Bond-street, contrary to the provisions of the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908. The defendant was a well-known theatrical costumier, and lessor of the Strand Theatre, of which Mr. Robert Hilton was recently the lessee. On Jan. 22 Mr. Hilton telephoned to Chappell and Co. for a piano for use in the theatre, where he was about to produce a play called Richelieu, and an instrument was sent in the ordinary way. On Feb. 16 Mr. Harrison caused a distress to be levied. Messrs. Chappell and Co. contended, however, that there was a custom among manufacturers to lend pianos to theatres and music halls without charge, and that therefore the landlord was wrong in reputing ownership of the piano to the tenant. The magistrate said that in this case Messrs. Chappell and Co. got no advertisement, and it could not be supposed that people would lend pianos without receiving a quid pro quo. To his mind, the custom failed, and the landlord was entitled to distrain. The summons would therefore be dismissed, with £10 10s. costs. Notice of appeal was given.

"THE THEATRICAL MANAGERS' HANDBOOK" is a neat and compact booklet, issued by Mr. Fred Bulmer, giving the Monday of each week for five years ahead, with a blank space for a brief note, and indicating each public holiday. The movable holidays for the remainder of the first quarter of the present century are also given, and a table of percentages adds to the utility of the "Handbook," which Mr. Bulmer will be happy to send to anyone on receipt of a stamped envelope.

THE Queen and Princess Victoria were present at Covent Garden on Saturday night to hear Elektra. The Queen wore creamy lace about the shoulders with a black dress, and a black feather and diamond wings in her hair. Also present were the Russian Ambassador, the Rance of Sarawak, Princess Munster, the Marchioness of Ripon, the Marchioness of Tweeddale, with Cora Countess of Strafford, Sybil Marchioness of Queensberry, Baron and Baroness de Meyer, Countess Fritz Hochberg, Lady Cunard, Lord Charles Beresford, Lord Claud Hamilton, and the Hon. Lady Musgrave.

IN the Court of Chancery Division on Tuesday an application was made that the case of Leveaux v. Hall Caine should not come on until May 2. Counsel explained that this was an action for an alleged breach of contract in regard to the writing of a play. The matter had been standing over for some time owing to the illness of Mr. Hall Caine and his residing abroad. It was now pending until the first day of next sittings. Unfortunately Mr. Hall Caine had been ordered by his doctors not to take part in any Court proceedings for some weeks, as he was still ill. The other side had agreed that the case should stand over until May 2. The application was granted.

IN order to perpetuate the memory of Shakespeare in South London, Mr. Richard C. Jackson, chairman and warden pro tem. of London's national memorial to Shakespeare, has written to the Southwark Borough Council offering to present and plant publicly in the borough a red hawthorn tree raised from seeds gathered on the occasion of the visit of the Mayor and Corporation of Southwark to Stratford-on-Avon in 1903. The offer is receiving the attention of the General Purposes Committee.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1910.

THE MINIMUM WAGE.

The Actors' Association has never been in a better position for usefulness than it is at present. The Association has for a time been misled by counsellors whose advise, in our opinion, has been unwise. Eloquent but unpractical, they have fed the Association up with words, with fiery speeches advocating impossible action, and with arguments which everyone of experience has known to be empty and delusive. But these wanderings in the wilderness have not been entirely without benefit. There was, indeed, something admirable in the earnestness and enthusiasm which were played upon so easily by the demagogues and doctrinaires of the Association. For some time we must have appeared almost antagonistic to its aims. But we were unable to conceal or disguise our opinions in order to curry favour with the members of the Association, or to encourage them in a course which would only lead them up a cul de sac.

The idea of turning the acting profession into a trades union was, as everyone with experience and commonsense saw when the wild plans of the reformers were loudly and excitedly proclaimed, an absurdity. The conditions which exist in trades which are strongly unionised do not exist in the case of the dramatic profession. In the one case, we have definite mechanical concrete work, the value of which is exactly known, which has to be prepared for by a special apprenticeship, and has no attraction in itself. In the other, we have an art in which the exact value of the work done is uncertain, in which there are a number of influences which interfere with a purely mercenary view of the question, and in which the artists themselves present the greatest obstacle to combination and keeping up salaries.

The chief difference between a trade and an art is that the one is pursued as a task without enjoyment, and the other is its own reward, the wages being really a secondary consideration to the artist. A bricklayer would greatly enjoy a "rest," provided he were receiving his pay; but an actor or actress would almost rather take half his or her usual salary studying. The actor and actress, therefore, do not stand in a strong position in striking a bargain with the commercial manager. It is not only the fear of want that makes the artist accept a lower salary. It is the sense that the loss of an engagement will certainly mean the loss of enjoyment and the loss of opportunity to improve.

And added to this obstacle is another, also created by the attractiveness of the profession. There has been a great deal said about the "amateur" who brings down the trade; but it must be remembered that to become an actor or actress practice on the stage is absolutely necessary. And a beginner, with talent, and wanting experience badly, may reasonably expect to pay his or her apprenticeship fees in the shape of accepting a merely nominal payment.

Between the love of the work and the competition of the "paying amateurs" the thoroughly-trained actor and actress are being ground as between the upper and nether millstone; and the worst of it is that there is no bold and active policy which can be advised. Patience is a poor doctrine to preach to people out of work; yet it is the only one which is reasonable. Yet, eventually, matters will right themselves. The provincial managers will get tired of booking companies chiefly composed of paying amateurs and cheap incompetents. The provincial public has already, in many cases, transferred its patronage from the drama, which has, in the case of many companies, been "watered down" until it is flat, dull, and uninteresting, to the music hall, where individuality is at a premium. On the principle of the survival of the fittest, only the best-managed theatres and travelling companies in the provinces will survive; and there will be a return to business principles and sound, strong companies and performances.

We are glad to hear, however, that the return of the leading London managers to the Association is likely to have one most beneficial result. We understand that the leading London managers may consent to sign an agreement not to pay any member of their companies less than £2 a week. This, of course, in the cases of gentlemen like Sir HERBERT TREE and Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, will be merely a matter of form, as they would never think of offering any actor or actress a less sum. But the proclamation of such an agreement must have the effect of an excellent example, and must draw the attention of others to the proper course. It is also likely to nerve the hard-working provincial actor and actress to stand out for a "minimum" wage in their transactions. The difficulties of the question are many, and are not to be overcome by frothy declamation or excited eloquence. It is in the development of firmness, resolution, and self-respect in the individual actor and actress that hope lies; and now that the Association has purged itself of its "idealogues" there is hope that this may be realised. It cannot, at any rate, be said that the policy of excluding the managers and endeavouring to coerce them has not had a fair trial. The conditions under which the modern actor and actress labour are admittedly unsatisfactory. The dramatic schools, excellent as they are, do not supply quite the same training as did an apprenticeship in one of the old stock companies; the "fashionableness" of the profession attracts hundreds of people to the stage who have neither histrionic gift nor artistic enthusiasm; and this outside competition brings down salaries and keeps experienced artists idle. But, since we cannot put the clock back, the only thing to be done is to make the best of the situation, and hope that in the natural course of things matters may mend.

"LADY BETTY."

Comedietta, in One Act, by F. E. French, Produced at the Royalty on Monday, Feb. 14.

Lady Betty Fountaine ....MISS MAY CONGDON
Pamela .....MISS EILY MALYON
Eustace .....MASTER WM. H. BROWN
Lord Altringham .....MR. DOUGLAS GORDON

Those unconscionable fathers of the eighteenth century who were limned in the novels of Fielding, Fanny Burney, and Richardson, and in the comedies of Sheridan, were always so anxious to assure the matrimonial future of their daughters and sons that one is tempted to ask whether any of them ever thought that Cupid could be held in leash by clauses in wills or by parental contumacy. The joining of family estates was often a pretext for the betrothal of children, and though a journey to Gretna Green of two runaway lovers oft upset the expectations of ancient families, the romance incidental to the elopement formed the basis of many a legitimacy trial and many a comedy. It is the eighteenth century atmosphere that tinctures the slight imbroglio of Lady Betty, produced on Monday at the Royalty. The lovers in this case are sisters' children, who have been betrothed from an early age. They are not to see each other again until of age, and then if each takes a fancy to the other a marriage will be arranged. Lord Altringham, who is a strategist apparently in love affairs, tries to hide his identity by assuming the character of his manservant, Miles Wentworth. But my Lady Betty's page soon exposes the deception, and his mistress, in a temporary fit of pique, passes herself off as her maid, Pamela. This pretty little game of cross purposes cannot last long, and my lord is more attracted by the new maid's simplicity of manner—natural to my lady—than by the assumed disdain of the masquerading Pamela, who affects a liking for the excitements of town life, which is quite foreign to Lady Betty. Mutual confessions end the misunderstandings, and the little piece ends in the conventional manner.

The trifle gives good opportunities for acting, and the demeanour of a young gentleman of the eighteenth century was well realised by Mr. Douglas Gordon, who played Lord Altringham with all the grace and refinement demanded. Miss May Congdon looked attractive enough to justify any amount of romantic devotion, and acted with engaging simplicity throughout. Miss Eily Malyon realised the discreetness of the maid and the overdone haughtiness of that maid masquerading as the mistress. Master William H. Brown scored a success as the page Eustace, and sang an unaccompanied song with good taste. The Way the Money Goes provides an excellent entertainment, the acting throughout calling for the highest praise.

The Language of Opera.

"CERTAINLY," writes Dr. Strauss in the Morning Leader, "an opera is most enjoyable when performed in that form in which it was cast by its creator. Wagner himself has proposed that foreign operas should be sung in the tongue for which they are written. I cannot bear to hear Italian operas sung by German artists. I have heard them too often in Italy. These operas and their cantilena especially are cut out for Italian speech and Italian throats. They lose very much in temperament, too, when sung in a foreign tongue by a foreign artist. Besides, the singer's art deteriorates when he has constantly to make the running through different styles, and the best Italian singers, as a rule, sing but half a dozen rôles. But there are a number of operas which should be done in the vernacular, in good translations which preserve the style and spirit. Most translations are so senseless that no intelligent singer likes to sing them. Such operas which should form the stock are, for instance, Carmen, Falstaff, The Barber, Joseph in Egypt, by Mehul, and others."

They Liked It.

DR. STRAUSS, when recently rehearsing Elektra at Covent Garden, rapped with his bâton. "Don't play like gentlemen," he implored of the orchestra, "play more like wild beasts." "So," says the Express, "they played like wild beasts. The man who lashes the whips on the drums during the sacrificial procession never lashed harder than he did under the eye of Dr. Strauss. At first they were halting, but when Herr Karlisch, the translator of the libretto, acted as interpreter and explained the interruptions of Dr. Strauss they gripped the spirit of Elektra and let themselves go. 'Blow four hundred strong,' he said to the trumpets—there are but four of them. They blew. Dr. Strauss rapped again. 'That's only two hundred strong,' he said, scornfully. They blew again. They blew as they had never blown before. At one o'clock Dr. Strauss stopped. 'Would you like to go to lunch?' he asked. 'Oh, no!' chorussed the orchestra; 'we like it.'"

LONDON LICENSING BILL.

The object of the Bill, introduced on March 9 into the House of Commons by Mr. Percy Harris, member for Paddington, is to effect an amendment of the law relating to licences for music and dancing in the administrative county of London in order to enable the L.C.C. to grant licences at any time during the year.

A similar amendment of the Act of 1751 has been sanctioned in respect of the administrative county of Middlesex, and the Council, under the Theatres Act, 1843, already possesses, with regard to licences for stage plays, power similar to that now sought in respect of music and dancing licences.

The Baths and Washhouses Act, 1896, also furnishes a precedent, inasmuch as the Council is empowered under that Act to grant licences for music and dancing at public baths at any time during the year. The Bill seeks to enable the Council to make a small charge for licences for music and dancing, and in this respect also follows the precedent of the Theatres Act, 1843. It further proposes, as a matter of public convenience, to repeal certain parts of the obsolete Disorderly Houses Act of George the Second and the whole of the Public Entertainments Act, 1875, so far as they apply to London.

1. In this Act the expression "the Council" means the London County Council; the expression "the county" means the administrative county of London; and the expression "premises" means a house, room, garden, or other place.

2.—(1) Premises in the county, whether licensed or not for the sale of wines, spirits, beer, or other fermented or distilled liquors, shall not be kept or used for public dancing, singing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind, without a licence first obtained from the Council for the purpose or purposes for which the same respectively are to be kept or used.

(2) The Council may grant licences, to such persons as they think fit, to keep or use premises for all or any of the purposes aforesaid, upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such restrictions, as they by the respective licences determine.

(3) The Council may transfer any such licence to such person as they may think fit.

(4) Any person to whom the Council may have refused to grant or transfer a licence to keep or use premises as aforesaid shall not be entitled to again apply for the grant or transfer of a licence in respect of the same premises within three months from the date of such refusal, and the Council may refuse in any case to consider, at any meeting other than an annual licensing meeting fixed by the standing orders regulating the proceedings of the Council, an application for the grant or transfer of a licence, unless the applicant can satisfy the Council that there are special circumstances justifying the consideration of the application at such other meeting.

(5) Subject to the provision hereinafter contained as to the revocation of a licence by the Council, every licence granted at an annual licensing meeting as aforesaid shall be in force for one year, or for such shorter period as the Council on the grant of the licence shall determine, and every licence granted at any other meeting of the Council shall be in force until after the annual licensing meeting next ensuing after the grant thereof, or for such shorter period as the Council on the grant thereof shall determine.

(6) There shall be affixed and kept up, in some conspicuous place on the door or entrance of premises so kept or used and licensed as aforesaid, an inscription, in large capital letters, in the words following: "Licensed in pursuance of Act of Parliament for . . ." with the addition of words showing the purpose for which the same are licensed.

(7) Premises so kept or used, although licensed as aforesaid, shall not be opened for any of the purposes aforesaid except on the days and between the hours stated in the licence relating thereto: Provided that no such premises shall be open for any of the purposes aforesaid after midnight and before the hour of noon, but if on any special occasion an occasional licence of exemption shall have been granted under section twenty-nine of the Licensing Act, 1872, in respect of premises licensed under this Act, no penalty shall be incurred on account of such premises being kept open for any of the purposes aforesaid on such special occasion from midnight until the hour specified in such occasional licence as the hour for closing.

(8) The affixing and keeping up of an inscription, and the observance of the days and hours of opening and closing as aforesaid, shall be inserted in and made a condition of every licence.

3. There shall be paid, in respect of the grant or transfer of a licence under this Act, such fees as the Council may fix, not exceeding—

(a) For the grant of a licence for a period not exceeding three months, five shillings for every month or part of a month for which the licence is granted:

(b) For the grant of a licence for a period exceeding three months in respect of premises accommodating—

Not more than 500 persons One pound;
More than 500, but not than
1,000 persons ..... Two pounds;
More than 1,000 persons .. Three pounds:
Provided that in no case shall the fee amount to more than five shillings for every month or part of a month for which the licence is granted:

(c) For the transfer of a licence, five shillings.

4.—(1) In the case of any premises kept or used for any of the purposes aforesaid without a licence for such purposes first obtained, the person keeping or rated as occupier of the same shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds for every day on which the same are so kept or used.

(2) In the case of any breach or disregard of any of the terms, conditions, or restrictions upon or subject to which a licence was granted, the holder thereof shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, and in the case of a continuing offence to a further penalty not exceeding five pounds for each day on which such offence continues, and such licence shall be liable to be revoked by the Council.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in any other Act all penalties recovered under this section shall be paid to the Council.

5. Nothing in this Act shall extend or be construed to extend to the theatres royal in Drury Lane and Covent Garden or either of them, nor to such performances and public entertainments as are or shall be lawfully exercised and carried on under or by virtue of letters patent, or licence of the Crown, or the licence of the Lord Chamberlain.

6. The powers by this Act conferred upon the Council shall be in addition to and not in derogation any of the powers of licensing now vested in the Council.

7. This Act may be cited as the Music and Dancing Licences (London) Act, 1910, and shall come into operation on the first day of November nineteen hundred and ten.

8. From and after the commencement of this Act sections two, three, and four of the Disorderly Houses Act, 1751, and the whole of the Public Entertainments Act, 1875, shall be repealed so far as relates to the county.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales witnessed the performance of Tantalizing Tommy at the Playhouse on Saturday.

"THE BAD GIRL OF THE FAMILY."

100TH PERFORMANCE.

The name of Melville has been for many years associated with the production of suburban and provincial melodrama, but it has been left to the brothers Walter and Frederick, the present distinguished representatives of that family, to storm, as it were, the citadels of the "superior person" in the heart of theatre land, and to bring from all parts of London the masses of the unsophisticated to applaud, to laugh, and to cheer. A few years since West End and East End playgoers met together at the Adelphi, when The Worst Woman in London, by Brother Walter, drew the carriage folk from Belgravia as well as the toilers from Whitechapel and Walworth, and now we have The Bad Girl of the Family packing the pretty Aldwych Theatre for 100 performances.

Bess Moore, the "bad girl," has had most of her experience of the world before the rising of the curtain, and it is her business throughout the piece to prevent the good girl, Gladys Erskine, the daughter of a peer, from falling into the clutches of the villain, Harry Gordon, the chief of a large drapery establishment. She prepares a perfect Chat Moss of disaster when she disguises herself as the bride, and is married to the callous libertine. But the amazing scene of the piece is the pillow fight in the dormitory of the girls living-in at Berry and Robertson's Drapery Stores. Here the police are baffled in their attempted arrest of Bess. Incidentally, we may mention that the author frames a serious indictment against large drapery firms, and their complete indifference to the physical and moral well-being of their employees. Much the same thing was done in Diana of Dobson's, of which the dormitory scene in the Aldwych play strongly reminds us.

Miss Violet Englefield is at her best in the passages of the play in which Bess pours out the vials of her contempt and sarcasm upon the man who has wronged her. She is especially effective in the scene between bride and bridegroom immediately following the "bad girl's" extraordinary wedding. Of the burden of the dramatic work a full share falls to Mr. H. Lane Bayliff, who makes light of the most villainous schemes of Harry Gordon, and talks of murder as if it was just an ordinary business transaction. Mr. Bayliff is really a gentlemanly scoundrel, and makes Gordon quite plausible, especially so in the scene of the proposal to Gladys Erskine, a part to which Miss Maud Lindon gives much interest by her charming personality. Mr. Rothbury Evans puts all the necessary hauteur into the part of Lord Erskine; and a clever contrast to the superior manners of the impecunious aristocrat is the amusing vulgarity of Barney Gordon, the money-lender—a part played with a real sense of humour by Mr. Herbert Landeck. Sammy Snozzle, clerk and valet, forces the fun at every opportunity, and by familiar devices that keep the gallery and pit in a state of mirthful excitement. Sammy's appearance is hailed with shouts of laughter, and Mr Pat Waddock, who clowns the part for all it is worth, shows remarkable energy and even acrobatic alertness in his droll business. In his principal scene he is partnered by Miss Marie Wright, an actress with genuine comic methods. Miss Wright puts an immense amount of "business" into her part, and she should certainly not be lost sight of by West-End managers, for she is a comedienne of considerable gifts. Mr. D'Arcy Kelway, in the semi-pathetic character of the cracksman, Jerry Holmes, tackles a difficult part with decided success. Miss Marie Clavering as Honour, the sister of Bess, is thorough-going in her expression of hate and contempt for the prodigal of the family; and Miss Madge Stone shows cleverness and quiet strength in the part of the mother of Bess. The parts of the two clergymen are effectively handled by Mr. Henry Johnson and Mr Lionel Browne; and Mr. Dennis Byron may be credited with good work as John Moore. Miss Daisy St. Clair, Miss Jenny Baxter, Miss Elsie Broom, and Miss Kate Ernest are capable representatives of the girls employed at Berry and Robertson's. The stage-management is particularly smart, and the sets are capital examples of the scene-painter's art.

"MISS PLASTER OF PARIS."

A New and Original Musical Comedy, by Henry Wardroper and Henry L. Osmond, Produced at the Pier Pavilion, New Brighton, on Monday March 14.

Numskull Nubbs, Esq.., Oliver Cromwell ..... } MR. CHARLES TOLCHER
Widow McKay ..... }
Tom Flubbs .....MR. WILIFRED E. BRANDON
Alexander .....MR. HARRY ED. RAY
Medea Hamilton ....MISS WINIFRED CHALMERS
Margery Mayfair .....MISS IDA CONROY
Mizpah Mills .....MISS MAY WYATT
Gertie Fownes .....MISS GERTIE BRACE
Lottie Golightly .....MISS EDITH LESLIE
Polly Slapcabbage .....MISS MABEL HALL
Tina All Mark .....MISS MADGE FRANKS
Mrs. Nubbs .....MR. SID DEAN
Eliza Plaster .....MISS CELESTINE BRANDON

There is very little plot in Miss Plaster of Paris and what there is is hardly worth description. Young Flubbs and Old Nubbs find themselves at a village inn, and one falls in love with the manageress and the other with the barmaid. Nubbs's wife turns up; and some forged letters, written by a jealous waiter, complicate matters. The effect of the performance is attained by the special numbers and "gags" introduced. The company saved the piece by playing smartly and freely embellishing the dialogue. Mr. H. E. Ray scored a success as the melancholy waiter singing and dancing in good style. Mr Charles Tolcher as Numskull Nubbs also made a favourable impression, and acted in an easy manner; Mr. W. E. Brandon gave point to all his lines, and his performance was convincing; Mr. Sid Dean, in a sort of pantomime dame character, did his best with scanty materials. Miss Eliza Plaster was represented by Miss Celestine Brandon, a lady full of "go," and a smart and graceful dancer; Miss Winifred Chalmers as the manageress of the Red Lion looked her part to perfection, whilst the chorus of barmaids helped to brighten up all the scenes in which they appeared. The musical arrangements were excellent, and the band was conducted by Mr. Fred R. Wyatt. The comedy was played from beginning to end in a very commendable style, and if the authors revise and rewrite a portion of their libretto, and a few more good songs and dances are introduced, Miss Plaster of Paris should have a satisfactory tour.

MRS. CHARLOTTE STOPES writes in the Athenæum stating that from a search in the Record Office she finds that Shakespeare's company, being appointed Grooms of the Chamber, would follow the King in his state procession. "In L.C. ix. 5," says Mrs. Stopes, "there is an account of the progress of James I. through the streets of London on March 15, 1603-4, within a year after his accession. Among the groups of those who received their liveries in order to appear were the King's players. The name of each is written in full, not in the order of the patent of May 17 in the previous year, but in the order, apparently, of the King's favour, and Shakespeare's name is spelt in the way it always is at Court, the way he had it printed in his poems. 'The King's players, William Shakespeare, Augustine Phillipps, Laurence Fletcher, John Hemminge, Richard Burbidge, William Slye, Robert Armyn, Henry Cundell, Richard Cowley.' We can picture him, then, in the procession from the Tower through the streets of London, and be sure that 'the glorious vagabonds had horses to ride on' in the national pageant."

The author wrote some time ago a serious play entitled The Monks of St. Bernard, which had the merit of being very dramatic, and met with a very cordial reception. Unfortunately, there is a great falling off in his latest piece, and its reception was anything but what the author had either desired or anticipated. The word "streber" means a striver, and is usually employed in an ironical sense. Herr Ohorn evidently intends to be very crushing towards pushing ambition. His "streber" in this particular play is a young Government clerk—the scene is laid in a small provincial town of a German principality—who is dissatisfied with his superiors in office, as, indeed, they are with him. The young man's name is Gilbert; his father is head-master of the grammar school, and a man held in high esteem. When Gilbert, jun., finally gets his dismissal he goes and joins the social democrats, in whose midst he can give vent to his pent-up feelings. This step causes a revolution in the family. After a bitter discussion, in which the son, owing to sheer brute force, comes off victor, Gilbert, sen., shoots himself. It was this scene that aroused the disapproval of the audience more than any of the others. There are incidental episodes in plenty, but it is superfluous to relate them. The play will hardly occupy the bill for any length of time. In the chief rôles the acting was satisfactory, but the artists evidently were at few pains to make running for a piece which was doomed from the outset.

When Knights Were Bold was produced at the Neues Theatre on Tuesday night, with quite unprecedented success. Its German title is a happy one—the result of many sleepless nights, as I am assured. Die Goldene Ritterzeit is as descriptive as anyone can wish. The translation is the work of Herr Siegfried Lutz, who has already adapted so many English plays for the German stage with success, and not a point of the original fun has been omitted. The house roared from beginning to end, and applauded enthusiastically, so that a long run may be predicted with absolute certainty. All possible pains had been spent on cast and mounting. Herr Georg Baselt, who went across to London to make a special study of the rôle of Sir Guy de Vere, was perfect. His well-known humour was seen to capital advantage, he carried his audience with him, and was frequently applauded by open stage. The whole of the cast was good, and those deserving of special commendation were Herr Neuss (Isaacson), Herr Schwaiger (Barker), Herr Andresen (Peter Pottlebury), and Fräulein Meta Jaeger as Lady Rowena. When we remember the fiasco which An Englishman's Home made on this stage exactly a year ago, the success of another English piece is all the more gratifying.

The Royal Schauspielhaus revived The Taming of the Shrew last week. It was doubtless a labour of love, but it was not a success from a Shakespearean point of view. Whereas in the Deutsches Theatre the immortal comedy was given like a circus burlesque, on the Imperial boards it went to the other extreme, and was a stilted, goody-goody performance. The golden medium is nearly always lacking in the performance of this one play of Shakespeare, while the more serious works of the Avon Bard are usually splendidly done here.

At the Residenz Theatre to-night Das Nachtlicht, three-act farce by Miquel Zamacois—German by Bolten-Beckers—will be produced, breaking the long run of Im Taubenschlag. Frau Agnes Sorma, an old Berlin favourite, commences a season at the New Schauspielhaus to-night.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Schütt's Trio for pianoforte, viola, and 'cello, Allegro Moderato, was the opening item in the programme of the concert on Monday afternoon. The executants were Miss Edith K. Bird, Miss Kathleen Lawler, and Miss Kathleen Thompson, members of the Chamber Music Class. Miss Mabel Hardy sang "Hear ye, Israel," from Elijah, and Miss Gladys M. Pearce in her piano solo, 'Reflets dans l'eau," made a praiseworthy endeavour to realise the poetic spirit of Claude Debussy's music. Apart from a certain amount of vibrato, Miss Margaret Bohane's singing of "Le parlate d'amor," from Faust, was not without merit, while Miss Bertha Tomlin was fairly successful in Sullivan's song, "Orpheus with his lute." In her violin solo Miss Ruby Deane Powell displayed promise, but is as yet hardly advanced enough to undertake such music as Mendelssohn's Allegro Molto Apassionate from Concerto in E minor. Miss Constance Halton gave a spirited performance of Scharwenka's Polonaise et Mazurka for piano, and Miss Olga Corrigan proved herself an able executant in a violin solo of Wieniawski. The concert ended with Henry Leslie's vocal trio "Memory," sung by Miss Mary Witty, Miss Gertrude Wallis, and Mr. Eric Cooper.

Mr. Redfern's Vigilance.

Recently two members of Magdalene College, Cambridge, dressed as ladies, attempted to attend a performance at the New Theatre of the musical comedy Dear Little Denmark. Tickets for a party of five in a box were purchased in the name of a well-known Cambridge resident. Just after the performance commenced two "ladies," accompanied by three undergraduates, drove up to the theatre in taxi-cabs. The ladies were dressed in white silk with richly-embroidered cloaks. Over their crisply curling tresses white lace theatre-wraps were drawn and bunched up loosely at the throats. Their skirts, daintily held clear of the ground by white-gloved fingers, revealed glistening high-heeled patent leather shoes and the slim lines of neat ankles and shapely insteps, veiled with black silk open-work stockings.

"Her" Voice Betrayed "Her."

ALL had gone well so far. The disguise was perfect. In the vestibule the manager of the theatre, Mr. W. B. Redfern, had been passed within a few feet. It was only by accident as the "ladies" were ascending the staircase that the hoax was discovered. Mr. Redfern, who happened to be following in the rear of the party, heard one of the "ladies" as she tripped on her skirt, give vent to a short, sharp exclamation of annoyance in one syllable. "Her" voice was an unmistakable bass voice. The manager stepped in front of the party at the top of the stairs and declined to allow them to enter the box. The "ladies," turning in retreat, took the stairs with very mannish strides two at a time. In the vestibule the party managed to evade a proctor who entered the main entrance of the theatre as the "ladies" and their male friends dashed out of a side entrance and scrambled into two taxi-cabs which were in waiting.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Walter De Frece, in his talk with The Referee interviewer, referred to that Variety Theatres Controlling Company of which we wrote last week. Mr. Walter Gibbons joins the board of that company, and completes the trio of directors, the other two, as already stated by us, being Mr. Alfred Butt and Mr. Walter De Frece. Mr. Butt returned to London on Tuesday from Berlin, and immediately attended a board meeting.

In speaking of provincial and London halls and of the special study of the needs of each town in the way of booking, Mr. Walter De Frece makes the mistake of lumping the London halls together. In various parts of outer and inner London audiences radically differ, and we have been present in Shaftesbury-avenue at the chilly reception of a great star whose act the previous night had gone with a roar in the Strand. Walter is building a new house in Bristol, the Palace directors one at Glasgow, and Mr. Gibbons is responsible for the Palladium, so that, with the Barrasford halls coming in, the Co-operative Company, is growing apace in England. In America it has a working agreement with the American firms, Keith-Proctor, Percy Williams, and Meyerfield and Beck.

Miss Decima Moore, with her customary kindness, recently went down from town to the King's Theatre, Southsea, to assist at the matinée for the Veterans' Fund. She produced with great success a little farce entitled A Black Mark, which was received with continual laughter by a packed house.

Mr. Huntley Wright and his company, who are appearing at the Coliseum in The Little Father of the Wilderness, gave a special performance of that interesting costume playlet on the 11th at 5, Grosvenor-place, where the Prince and Princess of Wales were dining with Lord Iveagh. The piece was played in the Louis Quinze drawing-room, and as that is the period of the play, no special set was necessary to illustrate it.

Mr. George Edwardes, in an interview in the Referee, states: "I think that music hall artists of all kinds number some of the very cleverest people one can find." This is an endorsement of the opinion held thirty years ago by John Hollingshead, who in 1870 engaged the Dancing Quakers from the Oxford to enliven a Palace scene in a Gaiety burlesque, illuminated by the talents of Nellie Farren and John Lawrence Toole.

A St. Louis woman recently succumbed to the attractions of Mr. O'Grady, the "human ostrich" in a dime museum. She is said to have fallen in love with him while he was eating tacks at one of his exhibitions. "I thought I would like to cook for a man like that," confessed the blushing bride. "He can't be fussy about his meals." So the happy couple were united by a justice of the peace.

Among the passengers arriving by the Cunard liner Lusitania at Fishguard on Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Luck (Miss Hetty King). The popular male impersonator has just finished a most delightful engagement in the States, where she has increased in the most marked manner her popularity. In the various cities visited Miss King's fame had preceded her, and packed houses have greeted the favourite "boy," whose immaculate suits have been the envy of the b-hoys in front.

Harry Randall, who has been adding largely to the number of his admirers as the chief pantomime Dame at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, has been enjoying himself at golf on the breezy links of New Brighton. Here he was partnered by Mr. Robert Selby (of The Hook of Holland company), the pair playing Messrs. Phil Ray and Dave Carter—he of the top note. Ray and Carter won by 7 up and 6 to play. The win was all the more creditable because Mr. Phil Ray was not in the best of health.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who left England for a three months' tour in America and Canada, has met with such unqualified success with his impersonations, that through the courtesy of Mr. Oswald Stoll, he has arranged to remain another three weeks. He has already visited the chief cities of the United States and Canada, and has returned to Winnipeg to open a new theatre. The enthusiasm which has greeted him on all hands is yet another proof of how the American admires his Dickens portraits. Mr. Williams returns to England about the end of April.

Miss Gaby Deslys, who made her London début at the Gaiety as the charm of Paris in The New Aladdin in September, 1906, before she became an Alhambra favourite, is by way of making a welcome return to the Leicester-square house on Easter Monday in a sketch dealing with Bohemian and social life in the Paris of the present day. The two popular ballets, Our Flag and The Polar Star, with Mlle. Britta as première danseuse, remain the greatest attractions of the fare provided by Mr. Alfred Moul.

Mr. George Elliott, on his last night at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, had a reception that was more than enthusiastic—it was demonstratively affectionate. After singing "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," the Bristol University students presented him with a beautiful black ebony walking-stick, with a beautifully polished pebble hook handle, and massively silver mounted. It is inscribed: "To Chocolate, from the Bristol University Students, March, 1910."

Although Mr. Elliott tried to keep the time of his departure from Bristol a secret, hundreds waited all day at the station, and when he left at 7.55 p.m. on Sunday police and porters had to clear the way for him to get to the train. There was a great crush round the door of the compartment to get a handshake from the popular chocolate-coloured coon. The crowd on the platform cheered loudly as the train steamed out.

There was a farewell in the theatre pit lounge and bar on Saturday night. Mr. Chute, in a conversation with Mr. Elliott, expressed the hope that he would come back to him some day. At Birmingham this week he is having such receptions as only the loyal Brum folk give to their first favourites. Mr. Conrad Fry, of Bristol, has made Mr. Elliott a present of a gold-mounted brown walking-stick with tortoiseshell handle, inscribed with the initials "G. H. E." It was sent on to Birmingham from Bristol, and handed to the artist on Tuesday night after his turn.

The leading London dramatic and variety agents have very properly objected to certain statements in a series of articles which has been appearing in M.A.P. on the White Slave Traffic, the articles in question containing serious accusations against agents as a body. Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who had no knowledge of, and no responsibility for, the article, at once insisted on an apology being made, declaring that if it were refused he would cease his connection with M.A.P., and the apology which appeared last week contained the following passage:—"It is, perhaps, hardly necessary to state that our strictures in last week's issue do not apply to the best theatres any more than to the best agents."

Mr. Hyram Travers, son of the famous "Pearly King," is now stage-manager at the Glasgow Coliseum. He has occupied a similar position in many of the best halls, notably at the Edinburgh Empire.

At his benefit at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Friday, March 11, Mr. Robey announced that he had been engaged by the management of that house for no less a period than five years.

Mr. W. F. Frame is immediately starting his thirtieth tour in the North of Scotland with his vaudeville one-night visits, and is due in the capital, Inverness (so near Culloden Moor), on April 23. The run is for five weeks.

Mr. J. Craig Paterson, who has been appointed under manager at the Pavilion, Glasgow, is another instance of forsaking the legal for the variety profession, he having received his training in the office of a well-known firm of writers in Glasgow.

Mr. Harry Burdette, who was till recently manager at the Coliseum, Glasgow, was entertained the other evening at the Lansdowne Restaurant by his many admirers at a little sing-song, and presented with a purse of sovereigns as a token of their esteem. Mr. G. M. Wells, of the American Roller Rink, presided.

Mr. Burdette thanked the chairman for the kind remarks made, and also the subscribers for the handsome testimonial. Several prominent Glasgow gentlemen also spoke, and a pleasant afternoon was brought to a close by the company joining hands and singing "Auld lang syne."

Mr. Fred Barnes is at the Empire, Bradford, this week, and is causing the usual furore with his scena, "The Scapegrace; or, the Black Sheep of the Family." The latest success secured by this artist is from the pen of Mr. Glover Kind, and published by Feldman and Co., entitled "I'd rather be beside the fireside." This song has immediately caught on, and is sung and whistled all over Bradford and every town visited.

Mr. Harry Boyd, having resigned the acting-management of the Hastings Hippodrome on account of ill-health, occasion was taken on Saturday evening by Mr. Fred Ewing, on behalf of the staff, to present him with several handsome gifts, including a silver engraved matchbox, a compass, and cigar-case; also a silver-mounted umbrella to Mrs. Boyd. In a brief speech Mr. Boyd feelingly responded, thanking the givers for their kindness and loyalty to him during his term of management.

Few comedians enjoy greater popularity than Mr. George Robey, evidence of which was forth coming abundantly at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Friday night (11th), the occasion of his benefit. The house was crowded, and the enthusiasm unlimited. A number of artists appearing at the local houses of entertainment contributed turns.

Miss Dorothy Ward, whose success at the Prince of Wales pantomime was so marked, slipped away from the Gaiety to render vocal help and personal testimony to a brother artist. Apart from Mr. Robey, advantage of the occasion was taken by the audience to show their approval of other members of the company in view of the approaching conclusion of the pantomime, and Miss Ada Reeve in particular was singled out to be the recipient of a large number of floral tributes.

A distinctly up-to-date novelty will be produced at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, next week in the shape of a farmyard fantasy, Cock-a-doodle-do; or, The Bluest Bird of the Family. The characters in this humorous episode are the Rooster, the Broody Hen, the Poodle Dog, and Arabella, a tender duck, described as "a billious excuse for the consumption of green peas." Mr. Peter Davey has a reputation for charming productions, and the beautiful poultry dresses and props used in this skit are absolute "creations." The characteristic music has been specially composed by Mr. Hugo Rignold, and the elaborate farmyard scene is painted by Mr. Betts. The bookings for this seasonable novelty are in the experienced hands of Mr. Tom Shaw.

Miss Henriquette Maude, the little New Zealand travelling girl, was sued in Liverpool County Court o Wednesday by Mr. James Fioni, a Liverpool theatrical agent, for £17 8s., commission at 10 per cent. on a Moss-Stoll tour extending over a year. The plaintiff's case was that in November, 1907, Miss Maude appointed him her sole agent for three years to procure engagements, and she was anxious to be booked on the Moss-Stoll tours.

In November that year he secured for her two trial engagements at the Empire in Liverpool and the Empire in Birmingham, and a further week at Manchester in March, 1908. He also secured engagements for her at various music halls in different parts of the country, and in September, 1908, he received from the Stoll office contracts for a tour.

When he sent on the contracts for her signature Miss Maude wrote him that she had forwarded them unsigned to Mr. Stoll, saying they must go through Mr. Tom Claxton to whom she had given her sole agency. She signed the contracts through this agent, but plaintiff claimed that the engagement was due to his introduction and to his persistent applications on her behalf, and that he was entitled to his commission.

Cross-examined by Mr. Goldie (instructed by Messrs. Fox and Bradley), the plaintiff admitted and identified a letter he had written to Miss Maude in April, 1908, after her complaints that he was not securing enough engagements for her, in which he stated, "I will release you from your contract."

Miss Maude said she paid Mr. Fioni commission on all the engagements he procured for her, but in March, 1908, having received nothing from him for twenty-seven weeks she became dissatisfied. Then he wrote releasing her from her contract, and she secured engagements as best she could. As a result of her own letters Mr. Stoll personally visited her performance at a London hall, and then offered her the tour. She had then given her sole agency to a London agent, through whom she made the contract which was in no way due to Mr. Fioni. The tour was for three weeks longer than the contracts plaintiff offered, and she had paid the commission on the bookings to the London agent.

Judge Thomas, after hearing further evidence, held that the letter of April, 1908, terminated the sole agency contract, and that the plaintiff afterwards was entitled to commission only upon engagements procured through him. The plaintiff had to prove that the engagement was procured through his agency, no matter whether Miss Maude had bound herself to pay commission to another agent or not. In the absence of Mr. Stoll or any evidence from London to support his claim, his Honour said he was bound to say plaintiff had not proved his case, and there must be judgment for the defendant, with costs.

The absence from town next week of so many members of the fraternity has necessitated the postponemenwt of the Rats' ball, which had been originally fixed for Thursday next.

Will the energetic collectors for the Music Hall Home Shilling Fund kindly send in their collecting cards, so that amounts received may be announced? The collection closes on Thursday, March 31.

The offices of the M.H.A.R.A. will be closed on Good Friday and Easter Monday. Members must put their names on the list at the London offices (also at the provincial branch offices) by Thursday afternoon.

Messrs. Richard Warner and Co. desire to inform their clients of the resignation of Mr. Charles Chapman, and to say that in future all communications should be sent direct to the firm.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Richard Lawson (professionally known as Anderton), who acted for some time as musical-director to his brother, John Lawson.

As we are going to press we are informed that Will Oliver has been served with a subpœna to appear in the Courts at Edinburgh on Monday in a libel case, in which George Reeves is plaintiff against a Scottish newspaper.

Mr. Malcolm Scott left Liverpool on Wednesday on the R.M.S. Mendi for a three months' holiday in the Canaries, taking with him as guests Miss Theresa Foote, Joe Grise, and Arthur Ballard. A number of friends assembled on board to see him off, and at New Brighton, where he is a special favourite, guns were fired and flags dipped as the Mendi left the Mersey.

Amongst Mr. Scott's special friends who came to see him off and wish him bon God-speed, we noticed Miss Harriet Green, Miss Amy Stavordale, Miss Ethel Warne Richardson, Messrs. Eric Thorne, Bernard Stavordale, Joe Dale, B. Merrington, Thos. Cookson, and Howard Innes.

Miss Dolly Harmer, whose engagement in Australia was prolonged for two weeks, was due home on Friday (yesterday), per R.M.S. Ophir.

Miss Millie Payne terminates this week a most successful run of London engagements, including two months at the Oxford and Tivoli. She now leaves town to fulfil three months starring engagements on the Moss-Stoll tour, returning to town in May to again open at the Tivoli.

Owing to the noise of a crane used in the construction of the Palladium in Argyle-place, Mr. Plowden adjourned the court at Marlborough-street on Tuesday morning, but, notice being given to the foreman of works, the noise ceased and the sitting was resumed.

Maggie Bowman and Tom J. Morton are making their first West-End variety appearance at the London Pavilion on Monday next in the potpourri, Mixed Pickles. Following their engagement in Piccadilly-circus they will have a run round the syndicate suburban halls.

Mr. Harry Lauder makes his reappearance at the Tivoli on Easter Monday after his successful American tour. Mr. Lauder will sing three new songs, "Queen among the heather," "The Picnic," and "Breakfast in my bed on Sunday morning." During his tour Mr. Lauder calculates that he has entertained 1,437,000 people and has travelled 22,000 miles in America alone.

Believing in the good luck that has followed so many introductions to the Canterbury, Will Oliver is presenting another on Monday in the Six Manchester Boys. "Spot" has taken good stock of their capabilities, and has every confidence that those managers who take the trouble to see the act will find something very suitable to their patrons.

Owing, it is said, to the mistake of a stage-hand, who, intending to lower the fireproof curtain, turned on the "sprinkler" by mistake, the orchestra at the South London on Tuesday night were deluged by an impromptu shower. The unexpected bath did not damp the ardour of the musicians, but it caused considerable hilarity in the large audience. The stage was swamped.

Mr. Ben. Woodger, secretary, desires to thank Capt. Fred Slingsby and Marcus Boyle, of the M.H.A.R.A. Office, Manchester, for Music Hall Home box collection of 9s.; to Mr. Nelson Barry (per A. Trussell), Hippodrome, Manchester, box collection of £1 10s.; Mr. Harry Blake, V.P., for parcel of clothes, boots, and games for the inmates; and many thanks are also due to Mr. Alan Macey (Oldfields and Co.) for his kindness to the Home Fund. Will collectors for The Era Appeal Fund kindly send along their cards now?

No report was presented by the Theatres and Music Halls Committee at the first meeting of the new London County Council on Tuesday. The Building Act Committee recommended the Council, on the application of Messrs. Wylson and Long, to consent to the retention of four electric arc lamps and a projecting sign in front of the London Pavilion, as shown on a plan dated Nov. 8, 1906, such consent being subject to the usual conditions. The recommendation was agreed to. Mr. W. Whitaker Thompson has been elected chairman of the Council.

At the Tivoli on Easter Monday will be produced a sensational Polish petite mimedrame, by Lee Ephraim, music by Mr. Raoul Moreau, entitled She Pays the Penalty. The story relates to the "eternal three," husband, wife, and lover. The guilty woman is killed by a thunderbolt, a tragic event that follows the death of the husband at the hand of the lover in a duel. The wife is to be played by Mlle. Margaretta Carolee, who is said to be a fascinating dancer, the husband by M. Ernest Goslar, and the lover by M. Antoine Pascual. The scene of the sketch is laid in Warsaw.

Mr. George Mozart, who has been secured by the management of the Empire Theatre, appeared for the first time at that house on Monday. George is in strong contrast to the Empire dumb shows, in that he is a persistent, insistent, tireless, and incorrigible talker. He will utter more nonsense in five minutes than a Parliamentary orator can hope to do in five hours. George is not to be compared to any other comedian. He is quite himself; and in comic instrumentalism, in burlesque of drama, or in caricature, he is refreshingly original. Empire patrons have taken him into favour, and their unanimous approval of his act is as wonderful as it is well-deserved.

On behalf of the committee, Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, begs most gratefully to acknowledge the following:—Miss Flo Banks (collected at Halifax), 4s.; Mme. Li Chang Hi (collected from Mr. C. Elderton's Aladdin pantomime company, Grand Theatre, Byker), 8s.; Miss Edna Branston (Webb and Branston), result of hoop-la, 6s., at the Palace, Bath; Mrs. James Horne (given and collected), 12s.; Mrs. J. Colthard (donation), 2s. 6d.; Mr. Alec Barish, another parcel of men's boots and socks; Miss Lottie Albert, babies' bonnets; Alfred Keeping, Brighton, collection of old miniature cartoons; and parcel of clothing (Anonymous) from Oldham. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed.

Mr. Charles Collette, supported by Miss Joan Derry, the clever boy impersonator, will appear during next week in H. P. Sargent's successful farce duologue Pyjamas at the Ealing Empire.

Mr. Charles Hartley and Miss Ethel Gordon Paull have returned from the Madeira and the Canary Isles.

Mrs. Driver, proprietress of the Alexandra Theatre, Pontefract, was granted an occasional stage play licence to produce a pantomime during the week of March 21, by the West Riding magistrates on Saturday last.

Mr. Leo Dryden points out that in his successful song, criticised by us at the Euston last week, he does not refer to women as "false gods." Our mistake. Goddesses or ministering angels would be much nearer the mark!

Mr. Edward Thane's sketch The Mask Torn Off, produced at the Empress, Brixton, this week, is quite a success, and first-class bookings to top the bill are coming along in an increasing stream as a result of the perfect staging and excellent acting.

The Lorch Family conclude to-day their most successful sixteen weeks' engagement at the New York Hippodrome. After that they will go a few weeks on the Keith circuit, and will open their second season with the Ringling Bros. Circus on April 7 at Chicago.

The 651st meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday at the offices, the following being present:—Messrs. Arthur Rigby (in the chair), Jack Crawley, H. Herald, Alf. Herald, J. H. Milburn, T. C. Callaghan, Albert Schafer, and Jack Crawley. The weekly statement showed fifty-two new members and a cash total of £65 3s. 6d.

On Friday (11th) the football match between Harry Weldon and George Robey's teams in aid of the Birmingham Football Club drew a good crowd to St. Andrew's Park, Birmingham. Miss Ada Reeve kicked off. Weldon's proved the superior side and led at half-time by four goals to nil. Miss Dorothy Ward kicked off in the second half, when "Stiffy's" boys added another two goals to George Robey's eleven's nil.

At the Jubilee Masters' Lodge held last night (Friday) at the Hotel Cecil, Bro. Ernest De Vere was invested as Inner Guard for the forthcoming year. This is a great honour, as there are over five hundred brethren to choose from. He had as guests Bros. Fred Higham, Will Oliver, Felice Napoli, and D. Cohen, the two first-named being nominees for membership of this lodge, to which only Grand Officers and Past Masters of London lodges can belong.

On Monday night Mr. Chesney, acting in Fred Moule's sketch The Annexers at the Bedford, sprained his foot, and on Tuesday midday he wired saying that the doctor forbade him appearing again during the week. At five o'clock Mr. Moule found Mr. Edward Avinal, who was acting at Sadler's Wells, gave him the scrip, arranged times, and at 6.35, one hour and thirty-five minutes later, Mr. Avinal played the part dead-letter perfect.

Considerable interest will be attached to the appearance of Mlle. Clary's police dogs at the London Hippodrome on Monday. These dogs were trained with others used by the Paris police for purposes of defence and arrest. Demonstrations will be given of attacking an Apache and of defence against an armed member of that notorious coterie of criminals. Watch-dogs will show how they work, and interest will centre in one dog in particular, who has to be muzzled on account of his great strength. He weighs 175lb. Max, the champion police dog, is a fine jumper, and clears 8ft. 10in. with ease.

Another great attraction will be that fine animal impersonator, Mr. George Ali, direct from Drury Lane, and his company, in the comedy sketch Papa's Day Out, which was seen last year at the Coliseum.

Swan and Vesta are meeting with tremendous success on the Gibbons' Circuit with their latest production, The Coster's Prize, founded on the popular competitions now appearing in Answers weekly. On Friday night the proprietors of Answers presented them, in their character sketches of Bill and 'Liza, with a magnificent donkey and equipment on the stage at the Hippodrome, Camden Town. They will appear next week at the Ealing Hippodrome. They have placed their business in the hands of Tom Shaw and Co.

On Monday, March 7, as recorded in last week's Era, was produced at Sadler's Wells Fred Moule and Pete Murray's Winkels. In this merry-maker Mr. Moule plays Ananias Gunn, a sailor. On the Thursday following smart and up-to-date Robert Whyte, jun., was singing in the new Savoy production, "Have you heard of Ananias?" But in the interest of accuracy it should be stated that if King Paul, at the Savoy Theatre, is the original Ananias. "Anamias Gunn" was an earlier reproduction, and Baron Munchausen was the forerunner of both.

David Bliss, managing director of the United Counties Theatres, Ltd., appeared at Bow-street on Tuesday to a summons charging him with wilful and corrupt perjury in an action tried in the Westminster County Court in July last. It appeared that the company was plaintiff in an action for breach of contract, which resulted in a verdict for £25 and costs against Messrs. Mack and Ferguson, variety artists. Counsel for the prosecution said it would be proved that certain portions of the evidence given by Bliss in that case were false. The hearing was adjourned.

The new revue Hullo, London! is nightly drawing audiences to the capacity of the Empire Theatre, and the new political and other topical allusions are being enthusiastically received. The latest introduction is a travesty of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, which, in the very capable hands of Mr. J. F. McArdle and Miss Millie Legarde, is intensely droll. Another skit shortly to be introduced will be on the subject of Dame Nature. The "Chantecler" Trio, with its charming music, witty lines, and beautiful costumes, is proving itself an attraction of great magnitude.

Mr. Percy Harris, M.P., has introduced in the House of Commons a Bill to amend the law relating to licences for music and dancing in the administrative county of London as contained in the disorderly Houses Acts, 1751 and 1818, and the Public Entertainments Act 1875, in order to enable the London County Council (which is the authority to grant such licences in the county), to grant them at any time during the year, instead of being limited, as at present, to the annual licensing meeting now held in November.

A similar amendment of the Act of 1751 has been sanctioned in respect of the administrative county of Middlesex, and the Council, under the Theatres Act, 1843, already possesses, with regard to licences for stage plays, power similar to that now sought in respect of music and dancing licences. The Bill seeks to enable the Council to make a small charge for licences for music and dancing, and in this respect also follows the precedent of the Theatres Act 1843.

Mr. John Lawson will produce a new Chantecler episode about Easter week.

Miss Florrie Gallimore was married on Feb. 26 at the Brixton Registry Office to Mr. S. Naylor (brother to H. O. Wills). The popular artist has been the recipient of many hearty congratulations.

The educated ape, Consul, who will be remembered by thousands in London, died on Wednesday of pneumonia at Dallas, Texas. Consul was insured for £10,000. His body will be embalmed and shipped to England.

Mr. Charles Gibbs, a popular coon artist, died suddenly on Tuesday, after being in Lambeth Infirmary only one hour. The funeral arrangements will be carried out by Messrs. S. Tull and Co., of London-road, S.E.

Among the new-comers to the Coliseum on Monday are Gus Elen, the famous coster singer; Gwennie Llewellyn, the girl with the phenomenal voice; Arthur Kenny, a daring cyclist; the Brothers Egbert, the King's comedians; Moran and Wiser, boomerang throwers; Harry Conlin, comedian; Herbert Darnley's company, in The Skirmishers; and the versatile Katie Moss, who will recite, sing, and play the violin.

A dramatic suicide occurred on the White Star liner Adriatic on aSturday, just before the vessel sailed for England. A man, afterwards identified as Edward Ettridge, shot himself in the cabin of Mr. Alfred Burgess, an actor, whom Ettridge was seeing off. Ettridge was connected with the stage, his stage name being Ettridge Beppo.

Our Gravesend correspondent writes:—"Ettridge Beppo was very well known in Dartford, where he had resided for some time. He lodged with a Mrs. Popple, at 36, Orchard-street, and was a very affable and cheerful companion. He was the ringmaster at Messrs. Transfield's Hippodrome, and was an adept in the art of sleight-of-hand and jugglery. On the dissolution of Messrs. Transfield, Beppo is believed to have turned his attention to the variety boards, and his untimely death in New York has been a great shock to friends in Dartford."

Mr. Charles E. Chapman is resigning from the firm of Richard Warner and Co., Ltd., after a term of service of twenty-four years. He is leaving on quite friendly terms, his only reason for resigning his position being that he wishes to make a change. He commences his duties on Monday next with Paul Schultze's theatrical, variety, and circus agency of Cranbourn-street and Berlin. Mr. Chapman intends to devote the first two weeks of each month to London, the third week to the provinces, and the fourth to the Continent, with a view of finding novelties for English managers. Mr. Cyril Gilbert will work in conjunction with Mr. Chapman.

The directors of the Empire Theatre again obtained from the Aintree Racecourse Company the sole and exclusive right to take Bioscope pictures of the Grand National. In order to secure for their patrons a complete record of this most popular steeplechase event sixteen cameras were placed throughout the whole length of the course, thus enabling the Bioscope to present on the screen at the Empire a complete record of every incident in the struggle from start to finish. Arrangements have also been made to obtain a fine series of pictures of the University Boat Race on Wednesday next.

The Princess d'Aryaba, who made her début at the Oxford on Monday, is a dark beauty of Aryan descent, whose fine dancing illustrates scenes of dramatic import. As the inmate of a seraglio the Princess is much moved by her reading of a novel, which draws an alluring picture of the freedom of the Western woman in countries where monogamy is imperative. Thoughts of a less monotonous life give rein to the odalisque's imagination, and she abandons herself to the whim of the moment in a dance, which has something of mauresque significance. As she is about to run away, her eunuch gaoler arrests her progress, and this action leads to a solo of feverish energy, full of sinuous movement, of which a miniature sabre combat forms part.

The next dance by the Princess is in association with the danseur, playing the part of the gaoler, and some daring acrobatic movements and wonderful twisting remind one of the danse tourbillon, of which the exponents are mostly French. This is quite the tour de force of the finely-illustrated episode, and at once stamps the Princess as a dancer of suppleness, skill, and grace, possessing, too, a volcanic energy that deeply impresses the house. She is very dramatic in the final dance of anguish, where the Princess is supposed to die of terror when unable to get clear of the clutches of a monster.

Mr. Alfred J. Carter (manager, Palace, Manchester) and Mr. Harry Cotton were initiated into the mysteries of the Terriers Order on Sunday last. The ceremony was performed by Terrier George Cooper, P.W.T., assisted by Terrier Harry Bent, P.W.T. Terrier Arthur Were officiated as Organist. Messrs. Harry Slingsby, Louis S. Sterling, and Cliffe Owen successfully passed the ballot for membership.

A ladies' concert was held at the Three Stags Hotel, on Sunday last, and, as usual, was very successful. Terrier George Cooper was in the chair, and was supported by Terrier Harry Bent, as vice-chairman. The following artists contributed to the programme: Terrier Tom Packer, "Charlie Brown"; Terrier T. C. Callaghan, "When my ship comes in"; Terrier Ernest D'Almaine, "Good-night beloved"; Terrier Charles Clark, "I've signed the pledge"; Terrier Ernest Ball, "A parson and a man"; Miss Carlotta Lunn, "Where the water lilies grow"; Terrier Andie Caine, "My Novelette" and "Sparrows"; Terrier Harry Bent, "Imitations of popular comedians"; Terrier Harry Brown, "Winter time" and "Nobody"; Mr. Harry Vernon, "Barbadoes"; Mr. Walter Adams, "He started in a very small way"; Mr. Arthur Lloyd, jun., "You know, you know, you know"; and Mr. Leslie Ross, "The Playwright." Terrier Tom Packer acted as musical director, Terrier J. Charles Moore was an efficient accompanist, and Terrier Arthur Were looked after the comfort of the audience.

All Terriers in town on Sunday are particularly requested to attend the annual general meeting of the Association, which will be held at the Three Stags Hotel, at 6.30 p.m. The chief business on the agenda paper is the election of officers and the passing of the balance-sheet. An interesting discussion is expected on the question of instituting a new degree for meritorious services rendered by members.

An order has been issued that the Juvenile Court at Bow-street shall, commencing with April 4, be held on Monday and Thursday in each week in lieu of Tuesday and Friday. The Order provides that at the Juvenile Court held at Bow-street on Monday in each week the magistrate shall have jurisdiction to hear applications for licences for the employment of children, under Section 3 of the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1904, arising in the divisions of the Metropolitan Police Court district other than that assigned to the Bow-street Juvenile Court, if such application cannot conveniently be made at the Juvenile Court for the divisions in which they arise. The new Order is the result of the timely and well-considered action of the V.A.F.

SONGS, WRITERS AND SINGERS.

IN these days of rumours of change and of fresh shufflings of the cards in the world of variety, when every turn of the entertainment wheel, every shifting of the music hall kaleidoscope shows fresh combinations of syndicates, circuits, and interests, it is pleasant and encouraging to note that one great combine, which has been in existence for very many years, still pursues the even tenor of its way and, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, altereth not—the great combine of originality, pathos, wit, humour, and melody embodied in the ceaseless output of all that is brightest and best in the world of popular song and dance that emanates from the house of Francis, Day, and Hunter.

IT is pleasant, as proving the truth of the axiom anent the "survival of the fittest" (and Britons always like the wisdom of their own country's wise sayings proved to the hilt), and encouraging because the thousand and one artists in every line of business who are followers of Francis and devotees of Day can rest assured, as heretofore, that their separate and individual welfares and interests are synonymous with the interests and welfare of the big firm, which, like some good-humoured Triton, complacently watches the minnows who try practically to emulate the historic feat of the frog in the fable.

AT the Grand, Birmingham, Mr. G. H. Elliott, the "chocolate-coloured coon," has been nightly receiving ovations from thronged houses for his refined and artistic rendering of tuneful and well-contrasted numbers. Two songs of the absolute first-class which Mr. Elliott has acquired are "Mister Owl," by A. J. Lawrance, and "Little Luna Lou," by Bert Lee and A. J. Lawrance, and these two items, in addition to the magnificent one specially written for him by the author and composer of his "Sue, Sue, Sue" and "I used to sigh for the silvery moon," which is entitled "There's a little Black Cupid in the moon"—will form this fine artist's répertoire during his forthcoming tour. For "Mister Owl" special scenery will be employed, and further triumphs are assured for this "fixed star." Messrs. Francis and Day publish all three.

THAT charming ballad "If I had the world to give you" is becoming more and more a prominent item on all programmes where daintiness and refinement are in demand, and that celebrated combination "The Dandies" are singing the song and meeting with the hearty applause which is the right of cultured artists. It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

"DOWN PARADISE ALLEY," Miss Queenie Leighton's latest song, specially written her by Alf Ellerton—whose "Little bit of parsley" for the same premier artist will be remembered—has been accepted for publication by Mr. David Day's firm. Alf Ellerton, jun., has supplied the music.

AMONG the numerous pieces of dance music about to be placed by Messrs. Francis and Day before the world of buyers of this important branch of the trade will be found a lovely waltz, entitled "Fidelès," by Moritz Würm, the celebrated musician whose music and whose band are centres of attraction when and wherever heard.

MR. LOUIS LA RONDELLE, who keeps the librarian of his fine orchestra at the London Coliseum ever busy, as he strongly believes in giving the myriad patrons of the monster house something fresh to listen to, has found time to compose a charming morceau that will be published immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day as the "Aviation Waltz." In honour of the Feast of St. Patrick Myddleton's fine Irish selections has been the pièce de résistance during the week at "intermission" time at the Coliseum.

HENRY E. PETHER, who has received the congratulations of many brother musicians on the fine music he has provided for the new sketch Cupid's Arms, written by Albert E. Ellis, and produced at the Oxford matinée last Saturday by Mr. Frank Danby and Mr. J. C. Piddock, has just composed the music of a charming song, entitled "Mother's sweet necklet of love." Leonard Cooke's lyric is worthy of the composer's flowing strains. Messrs. Francis and Day have it in the press.

GILBERT WELLS, who has naught "dour" about him, though he hails from beyond the Tweed, has disposed of, to Messrs. Francis and Day, the rights of publication of a characteristic song, entitled "Down at Blankton-on-Sea." The name of Will Terry is associated with the ditty.

THE three clever pons of Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford have been lately employed on a ballad, entitled "Framed in my heart." It will be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day in the near future.

FOLKS who like a mournful song and happen to buy, on the strength of the title, "Sad are the tidings I bring," a new number that Messrs. Francis and Day are producing immediately, will be sorely mistaken when they peruse the song, which is sung by that arch-joker and good comedian, Mr. Bernard Russell. It is by Edward Elliott and Linton Nevett.

A PRETTY song is always worthy of a charming title, and such has been given by F. V. St. Clair to one of his latest efforts, which is named "Where the bell bine clusters around the window." Messrs. Francis and Day have it in the press. Messrs. Fox and Melville are also to be congratulated on being connected with this song.

MR. GEORGE LASHWOOD, at the Argyle, Birkenhead, has scored a great triumph with his new song "There's another fellow looks like me," and opines that it will rank as a compeer with his many noteworthy previous successes. It is by Fred W. Leigh, who has just completed for the eminent comedian a song, entitled "The Railway Guard."

THOUGH little green was to be observed in their eye, the members of Messrs. Francis and Day's staff bore a remarkably verdant appearance about the coat buttonhole on St. Patrick's Day, thanks to the annual consignment of the "chosen leaf of bard and chief" received from Mr. Josef Collins, of Dundalk.

MR. BEN ALBERT has had to put his favourite pony, "Tommy," in lavender for the week, the number of halls being worked by the dry and droll comedian necessitating the use of a motor. At the Royal Standard, the Metropolitan, the Islington Empire, and the London Pavilion Alf Ellerton's "My inventive kiddie" and George Arthurs and F. W. Leigh's "What's the use of sighing?" have been acclaimed two of the funniest songs of the day. Messrs. Francis and Day publish both.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT, at the Hippodrome, Brighton has been repeating her triumphs of the week prior when at the Camberwell Palace and elsewhere she simply convulsed her audiences with, among other numbers, Henry F. Greenfield's song, "The Great Invasion Play."

MR. HARRY RANDALL, who concludes a successful pantomime engagement at Liverpool this (Saturday) evening, will shortly be heard in Joe Burley and Maurice Scott's "I'm using Sunday language all the week."

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr. Henri Gros's offer of the management of the Metropolitan to Mr. William Bailey has enabled that gentleman to return to a position that he filled with much distinction and credit some nineteen years since, under an older proprietorship, and on Monday Mr. Bailey received the congratulations of some of the old patrons of the house, as well as of a number of friends in and out of the profession. Mr. Leslie Gooch, the son of a former owner of the Metropolitan retains his position as acting manager.

A highly artistic turn in the early portion of the bill is that of Savori, a boy violinist of considerable ability. He plays with a command of difficulty and a finished technique that augur well for his future. The prevailing east winds have adversely affected Miss Marguerite Broadfoote's vocal cords, and on the night of our visit she sang with some difficulty a pretty musical love story of the Pyrenees, where a lover basked in the sunshine of a dark señorita's smile. Miss Broadfoote's pot-pourri of Scotch song is quite a happy thought on her part, as her choice falls on some rare gems of melody from over the border. "Of a' the airts," "When the kye came hame," "Maggie Lauder," and "Comin' thro' the rye" are among the selections, which are highly popular with both gallery and pit. The Sisters Macarte present a very pretty entertainment, entitled The Land of the Lotus, in which they appear as Japanese girls in a fascinating dance. Then they take to the wire, on which they do many remarkable tricks. One sister standing on the slackened filament of steel plays the guitar, and the show generally is much liked.

Mr. Hal Forde's light behaviour and reckless disregard of the conventionalities mostly observed by the married householder and ratepayer are vigorously applauded, and the burden of the tuneful melody that enables him to sing with such apparent glee "It's my night out to-night" is taken up by the "gods." Cribb and Cribb, who call themselves "Idle fellows with idle thoughts," invest their patter with considerable originality, and their turn throughout is fresh and amusing. They appear as a couple of tramps with an undying hatred of work. That capital comic singer Mr. Ben Albert has a philosophic song on "to-day and to-morrow," and also sings with much comicality of the perplexities caused by the inventive genius of a boy who is a perfect marvel. Other turns include Dennis and Morris, comedians and dancing experts, and Dardinis, who are the exponents of what is termed on the bill "America's greatest comedy juggling act."

"Makers of History," a series of living statues that is paying a second visit to this house, gets above the heat of party politics in the selection of subjects, especially when it presents the seated figure of Henry Irving and Lord Clive. The audience is less unanimous over the merits of John Burns and Lloyd George; but the exhibition, which is the work of Mr. Albert Toft, is generally well received, and the well-rounded periods spoken by Mr. C. Lilford-Delph are attentively listened to.

The final item of the bill is the burlesque drama That Dreadful Detective, the hero of which is subject to the conditions of an extraordinary will, which makes it imperative that he shall marry within a certain time on pain of losing his inheritance. He has a sweetheart in the Princess Christine, who is also loved by a bold, bad Chief of Police. The latter adopts the familiar trick of stowing stolen diamonds in the hero's pocket, in order that he may be imprisoned and lose his girl. The humour, of the most extravagant kind, keeps the house in a continuous roar of laughter, and Miss Ada Frank and Mr. E. D. Nicholls score most unmistakably. The name of Miss Madoline Rees is also on the bill.

THE BEDFORD.

There is no lack of variety in the excellent bill which Mr. B. P. Lucas puts forward at his popular hall this week, and on Monday evening when we visited it there was not a seat vacant, and standing room was also at a premium. Fred Karno's company of comedians in their delightful absurdity, Mumming Birds, is the chief feature of the programme, and this screaming burlesque never went better. Several new items have been introduced into it, and the inebriated swell remains as droll as ever and is most cleverly played, while the mischievous youth who plays such pranks with the artiste keeps the fun going splendidly. Both actors are to be highly complimented upon their performance, and it is only due to the fact that the programme does not provide them that we omit their names. The sketch is capitally staged, and scored heavily.

A big favourite in Camden Town is Arthur Rigby, who has a couple of excellent songs. His first appearance is in that of a curate, who sings "Oh, Brethren, Oh," and causes much laughter, while his second song, "Mother Eve," fairly brought down the house with its droll patter and racy remarks on married life. Miss Frances Delaval is an actress of much ability, and in the sketch Through the Valley she has ample opportunity of showing her talents. It is a dramatic work, a trifle too long perhaps for the halls; however, it is well written, and, though it deals with a somewhat unpleasant side of life, it cannot fail to grip its audience, and Miss Delaval and her company, who give her admirable support, made an emphatic success. Baby Wolfe is a clever youngster, whose imitations meet with appreciation, and she also dances extremely well. Norris and Morgan provide a lively turn with songs and patter. A new Scotch comedian to us is Scott Bruce, who made an immediate hit; he has a good song, and knows how to sing it, and we shall look forward to seeing him again. The Gellings are clever acrobats, the younger member especially being a very neat and agile tumbler.

Kitty Colyer is always sure of a hearty welcome here, for she always is smart and captivating. Her present song, "I'll be your gipsy man," is a very pretty number, and she again delights all with her clever dancing. Bromley and Fontein, with their Man Behind the Music Stand, are as entertaining as ever, the comicalities of the conductor are indeed ludicrous, and compel laughter. Kimberley and Melbourne are a couple of eccentric fellows, whose turn keeps all in a fine humour. A pleasing feature of the programme is the turn given by Gibson's Five Gordon Girls, who provide a lively time with their songs and dances.

Fred Moule and Pete Murray's company appears in the sketch The Annexers, and a most entertaining little farce it proves to be. The story of the effeminate husband and the friend who elopes with his wife, only to be brought to bay by a burglar is amusingly told. The burglar, whose presence plays such a large part in the story, is a very diverting character, and the whole sketch is thoroughly amusing and exceedingly well played by all concerned. The Bioscope concludes. Mr. A. L. Edwards, the resident-manager, is always at his post to offer a welcome to all friends.

WILLESDEN HIPPODROME.

An excellent programme is presented at Mr. Walter Gibbons's fine hall here this week. Miss Vesta Victoria, the domestic comedienne, whose clever character comedy has made her world-famous, sounds a note of eccentricity in her songs. She is called upon to sing three selections, and each is given with great success, especially that droll number "Skating." Zona Vevey, accompanied on the piano by Herr Maxerrard, with a pretty scene My Lady's Bower, sings the following items: "Have you seen Wee McGregor?" "Down by the old water-wheel," and as a country yokel in a smock, "Near the church across the way." Herr Maxerrard, who plays a march of his own composition, is excellent at the piano. Dave Samuels, the Hebrew comedian, causes continuous merriment, the byplay and sallies being delightfully fresh. His act includes clever parodies on the songs "Somewhere," "If the man in the moon were a coon," and "Has anyone here seen Kelly?" Jack Smiles, one of the cheeriest of jokers, wears a costume reminding one of the popular poster "It's so simple," and is singing his famous number "I don't suppose he'll do it again for months and months and months." Jack, who is most deservedly popular, concludes with a fine exhibition of clog dancing.

Miss Lois Du Cane and company present a real dramatic sketch, entitled The Russian Princess, written and produced by F. Maxwell. The piece is admirably mounted, and the parts are all well filled. The story is that of a Russian Princess, whose lover (Prince Karl) has been confined in a fortress for two years. The latter escapes and goes to a house known as the Gatehouse, where he finds the Princess. General Dragenoff and his soldiers come to search the place, but fail to discover the fugitive. The general's suspicions are allayed by the Princess, who pretends she loves him, and the soldiers are dismissed. Some loyal adherents of the Princess seize the general and kill him. The soldiers break in and find Prince Karl disguised as the general, and allow him to depart accompanied by the Princess.

Miss Daisy James, a great favourite at this house, appears as a Salvation Army lassie to sing "Charlie banged the big drum," and causes great amusement with some byplay with the drummer in the orchestra. Dewson has a breezy style, and his imitation of a church organ, on the piano, and the singing of "Ladies beware!" a song of his own composition, call for special mention. Johnson and Bert have a clever tumbling act, entitled "A queer customer"; and also appearing are Rose Cabani in a song "Absence makes the heart grow fonder"; Dari and Denvil, in a comedy duologue; the Four Amaranths, with an acrobatic-dancing speciality; and Woolmer Young, with song, "My mother's stories," all greatly add to the pleasure of an enjoyable evening, which concludes with Ruffell's Bioscope pictures.

THE GRANVILLE.

As is usually the case, good business is being done here, and in Mr. R. W. Duce Walham Green folk have a variety caterer who thoroughly understands their needs, and who accordingly receives ample support from amusement seekers of the vicinity.

Bernard Mervyn and company top the bill in an exciting miniature melodrama, in three scenes, entitled Nick Carter, and the authors have put some very telling lines into this little playlet, with the result that the audience listen with rapt attention throughout. As the man from Pinkerton's Mr. Bernard Mervyn is quite at his ease, carrying all before him, and his fine physique, coupled with his excellent delivery, quickly conveys to all the excellent reasons American wrong-doers had in fearing such a renowned crime investigator as Nick Carter. Ample support is given by Mr. John F. Traynor as the scheming rascal Richard Morgan; Mr. W. E. Moss, an enthusiastic Ned Westerton; and Mr. Ivan P. Gore, a faithful Bully Bunce. Miss Mamie Rendle does her best as Milly Gray; and Miss Phyllis Dailley enacts Ilma D'Arvois with cheerful abandon.

Those quaint Hebrew delineators Jordan and Harvey are pronounced Granville favourites, and their Jewish yarns, so ably told, ensure their popularity. "A little bit more" and "Abraham" are two numbers divertingly rendered. Miss Camilla Feo is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Mr. Archie Glen, who tells a few tales forcibly, is the possessor of an up-to-date ditty in "Scouting." Mr. Marriott Edgar, the man in red, is a striking turn who should make much headway; Mr. Norman Holt, the musical Lancashire lad, ably manipulates the concertina; and Miss Aida Martini dances well.

Shirley and Ransome figure in a crisply-written comedy duologue, Jim's Pal, and this popular pair of artists have secured in this trifle a homely sketch well suited to their methods. It is received most cordially. The Kirbys are also billed, and some very clear films on the cinematograph conclude the entertainment, which during the evening is enlivened by some excellent music by the orchestra under the skilful bâton of Mr. Frank Thomas.

POPLAR HIPPODROME.

The usual order of things prevails here—a first-class programme and a crowded house. After the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Smith, have given a careful rendition of Myddleton's "Shamrock," those clever wooden-shoe dancers Devon and Earle introduce a number of new and difficult steps, and quickly prove themselves favourites with the house. Joe Archer is decidedly humorous. His first contribution is "An Englishman's Home," but he is seen to better advantage in his latest success "Kelly's gone to kingdom come," a song with a rollicking and taking chorus. He has a style distinctly his own, and rattles off his stories, quips, and cranks in amusing fashion.

A rousing reception is accorded the Norman-Leonard Trio in their clever and humorous musical skit The Itinerant, which combines high-class music and legitimate nonsense. Briff, Braff, and Broff present their comedy acrobatic mélange, and are applauded repeatedly for difficult feats neatly executed, one of the trio in particular being singled out for approbation. They are quite the best acrobatic turn we have seen here for a long time. Yvonne Lamor, billed as an anecdotal and topical comedienne, was deputised for by Grace Langley, who sings of "My bonnie Jean" and "Spooning," and concludes a dainty turn with some smart dancing. Geo. D'Albert gives "You can't blame me for that" and "Do as you like." Rose Atherton and company are presenting here the skit Murphy's Affinity, which still retains its popularity and proves laughable.

A large portion of the evening is taken up by Andrew Emm's company in

"THE DIVER'S LUCK."

Martin Faber ..... MR. W. LAWRENCE
Barney Bawn ..... MR. H. WHITE
Tom Hall ..... MR. B. WOOD
Snowball ..... MR. HARRY REX
Peggy Maloney ..... MISS MAY DAVIS
Helen ..... MISS MAUDE MELLISS

The sketch, which is in four scenes, has the following for its story. Martin Faber and Tom Hall, both divers are in love with Helen, who shows a decided preference for Martin. This fact rankles in the mind of Tom, who determines to do serious harm to his rival at the first opportunity. A boat has gone down with a very valuable diamond necklet on board, and both Martin and Tom volunteer to try and recover the gems. Whilst under-water Tom, after a struggle with Martin, manages to hack through the latter's air-tube, and then leaves his rival for dead. However, Barney, who has also gone down, comes across the body of Martin, and promptly signals for both to be hauled up. On reaching the surface Martin speedily recovers, and relates the story of his attack, to the discomfiture of Tom. The sketch, which has new and elaborate scenery, was very well produced.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Mr. Walter Gibbons' control of this house continues to be marked by excellent programmes, which are winning back to the Palace the patrons who for months past have had to seek their amusement elsewhere. The beauty of the house is much commented upon locally also, and Mr. Jack M. Hart is quickly becoming known and popular in Hammersmith. Angela's Living Works of Art are proving a great draw. On the night of our visit ten subjects were represented. Some studies of Swiss peasants were heartily applauded, and well-known paintings, such as "Venus," "The Female Slave," "Nymph's Drolleries," "Bacchanals," &c. (the representatives being artistically draped), were greatly admired. Some charming pictures of Switzerland were also shown on the curtain. Dan Lipton's company, including Miss Eva Kelland, in Songland were well received. Miss Kelland's sweet voice was heard to great advantage in "At Gretna Green," "Take me back to Pompeii," and "In my bouquet." Special scenery was provided for each song, the electrical effects for the last being most effective. Miss Gladys Soman sang "As long as the world rolls on" delightfully, the audience loudly demonstrating their approval.

Fred Maxwell and company in the sketch The Girl I Love were decidedly good. The Brothers Horne in the old friend The Biter Bit raised as many laughs as usual. Some wonderful balancing was performed by the Zanfrellas—quite as clever a turn as we remember seeing in the "equilibrist" line. Vera Wootton is a lively little comedienne, and sang pleasingly "You look a picture in your picture hat, Louise" and "Never let your left know what your right hand's doing." The two Sandow girls, Hammon and Wyatt, rendered a duet "Hail to the toreador" beautifully. Frank L. Street sang one of R. G. Knowles' songs, imitating that popular comedian's style. Frank Frayne sang well, and was really excellent in his step dance. Graham's Premier Juveniles were also on the programme, and the 'Varsity Girls tunefully rendered several songs and part songs. The Bioscope showed a humorous film, and the orchestra, under Mr. J. Cleve, do their part exceedingly well. The Hammersmith Palace is going strong.

THE KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, DUNDEE.

The first anniversary of this beautiful theatre was celebrated in suitable style on Tuesday evening, the United County Theatres Co. presenting several extra turns along with the usual programme, which this week is an exceptionally brilliant one. The building was beautifully decorated with palms and other ornamental plants, the vestibule and staircases presenting the appearance of a botanic garden in miniature. The boxes were also tastefully bedecked with flowers and flags. Both houses were packed, and the audiences showed marked appreciation.

At the first house Councillor A. W. Paton presented Mr. Simon McIntosh, the popular manager, with a massive gold appendage as a token of esteem and gratification from several of the influential patrons of the house. Councillor Paton said the responsibilities of a theatre manager were great, and Mr. McIntosh had fulfilled his responsibilities in the most satisfactory and courteous manner. Mr. McIntosh, in reply, thanked the subscribers for their handsome testimonial so kindly presented. As manager he had done all in his power to further the interests of his directors. He also thanked the audience for their staunch support, and had to submit to musical honours.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. can boast a strong list of songs and singers for the forthcoming Easter campaign at headquarters, as London may fitly be termed, numbering, among others, the following:—"The garden of roses" (Arthur Aldridge); "I'd rather be by the fireside" (Fred Barnes); "By the light of the silvery moon" (G. H. Elliott); "Playing the game in the West" and "I put on my coat and went home" (George Formby); "I am longing for someone to love me," "Georgie took me walking in the park," and "Come over the garden wall" (Miss Clarice Mayne); "I do like to be beside the seaside" (Mark Sheridan); "In the Army" (Miss Ella Shields); and many others featured by the leading members of the variety profession.

Among the many famous artists who are exploiting the Feldman songs this year may be mentioned that inimitable songstress Miss Ada Reeve, in whose hands that famous ballad "Somewhere" was a perfect revelation this season in pantomime in Birmingham. Miss Reeve is producing immediately "Nobody knows—nobody cares," and a humorous new song entitled "Foolish questions," both of which emanate from the Arthur-street firm.

Returned to town after her pantomime engagement, Miss Ella Retford opened at the Oxford and Croydon on Monday, and at both houses has been scoring with "A girl up North" and "Molly O'Morgan," both of which are published by Feldman and Co. Miss Retford is now busily engaged in rehearsing some new numbers belonging to the same enterprising firm.

At the Hippodrome, Peckham, during the current week a pronounced success has been achieved by Chas. K. Harris's beautiful new ballad "I'm longing for one sight of you" and Harrington and Godfrey's delightful song "Won't there ever be any wedding bells for me?" the choruses of which are sung to the echo in every "house." Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. publish both numbers.

At the Oxford this week Miss Lily Eyton is eminently successful with Arthurs and Tate's tuneful number "If I could lock you in my heart," one of the best of the recent Feldman publications, and one which should undoubtedly enjoy an enviable vogue with seaside entertainers.

Mr. Jack Smiles has discovered a worthy successor to his other hits in his new comedy number "Fish Sauce," which he is singing (by permission of Mr. Chas. H. Whittle) at the Hippodrome, Willesden, this week. The talented "Jack" is a notable addition to the list of star comedians already singing Feldman songs.

Mark Sheridan continues to convulse his audiences all round his provincial tour with his quaint rendering of John A. Glover-Kind's funny song "I do like to be beside the seaside," and despite the vogue of this song in pantomime recently, the original singer is rewarded with plaudits loud and long for his interpretation. Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. have in "Seaside" one of the most popular items in their catalogue.

From the Ardwick Empire, Manchester, Mr. George Formby has this week written Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., speaking most enthusiastically of the manner in which the Mancurians have received his two songs, "Playing the game in the West" and "I put on my coat and went home," which have nightly been cheered to the echo by the huge throngs attracted to the hall by the presence of the popular comedian. Messrs. Feldman have other big songs of the same artist in the press.

At the Paragon this week Mr. Arthur Aldridge is repeating his London Pavilion and Canterbury success with his artistic rendering of "The garden of roses," in which Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. are confident they possess one of the potential ballad successes of the year.

Leonard Thel is scoring a big success at the Oxford and Canterbury this week in a new dame song by Gilbert Wells, entitled "The Manhater."

Florrie Gallimore produced at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, on Monday, a new song, entitled "Mary Green," by Tom Moy, which proved an enormous hit, and is undoubtedly one of the biggest numbers Miss Gallimore has had for some time.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

An original burlesque, The Queen of Polaria, the music of which was specially composed by Mr. Charles Norton, was produced at the Islington Empire last Monday. Strictly speaking, the little piece is more of a pantomime than a burlesque. It is very entertaining, well dressed, and briskly played by all concerned. We should have liked to have given a word of praise to each and every one of the principals, but the cast is omitted from the programme, and we regret our inability to compliment and name the principal boy and girl, both pretty girls who are as bright as it is possible to be. The Dame is a capital one, and his fun, whilst on broad lines, is always enjoyable. He makes up as a very fine woman—in every sense of the term. There is scarcely a story at all to The Queen of Polaria, but the thirty minutes allowed the turn is well filled in with tuneful numbers, lively dances, and good gags.

The Moxon Family contribute a good turn, their upside down sand-dance being especially good. Ben Albert has two good songs in "He's a wonder" and "So what's the good?" Ben at all times is a clever, tactful entertainer. Pride of Regiment, noticed in these columns last week, has a place in the Islington Empire bill, and is heartily received. The Szarvasi Ferenz Troupe of Hungarian singers, dancers, and acrobats, and the Zigeuner Quartette, with their refined musical entertainment, are a couple of foreign turns, whose ability the audience is more in love with than the jaw-fracturing names they sail under.

Fred Keeton is the comedian who's not supposed to know what he's about (vide programme). But Fred does. He knows how to make audiences put their hands together. Frank Harwood tells a good story about a burglar's visit to an old maid's bedroom. It is funny without being vulgar. Harry Thurston claims to be "the bad boy of the family," and he might have added "the blue one, too."

Kitty Upton, Maude May Murray, and Lyster and Cooke are very pleasing entertainers indeed. A most enjoyable programme, Mr. Adams.

The season at San Sebastian is now in full swing, the Casino filling rapidly, and the first of the Grand Concerts was a brilliant success on the 20th inst. M. Alvarez, the celebrated tenor of the Opera, Paris, has been engaged for a concert which takes place on April 3. Engagements are being arranged with other stars of the musical world.

A fair correspondent writes:—"I am given to understand that in a great many musical and operatic companies women choristers get paid five shillings a week less than the male chorister, in spite of the fact that both are called upon to do equal work and have the same hours of attendance. I should be glad if you or some of your readers could tell me more about this; also the reason, if any, for this different scale of payment."

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS MARIE JONES.

Born in London, this talented little lady commenced her professional career at the early age of nine, when she appeared under the banner of the late Mr. Andrew Melville, at the old Standard Theatre, Shoreditch. After this she was continually engaged either in the East or West for the whole category of children parts in the various dramas, &c., produced at that time. The work experienced in these early years proved of incalculable benefit to the young artist, and helped to give form and character to her impersonations.

After touring for some years in such dramas as Lights o' London, Prodigal Daughter, Million of Money, Two Little Vagabonds, Two Little Drummer Boys, and some of the Melville woman dramas, Miss Jones conceived a desire for protean work, as presented by Mr. R. A. Roberts, and for the past six or seven years has been winning golden opinions, both in London and provincial vaudeville houses, as the most versatile protean actress of to-day. In her latest production, Wanted, the Co-respondent, a playlet of a highly humorous character, she essays a bigger range of character than any lady has before attempted. In the male characters she appears as an office boy of fifteen and also as an old pensioner of seventy, to say nothing of the young and blushing curate, while her female characters range from the sturdy and defiant suffragette to the coaxing woman of the world. Each change of character and costume is completed in less than five seconds.

THE FOUR NETHERLANDS.

The Four Netherlands, who, by the way, are real sisters, started their professional career nine years ago, their first engagement being in Manchester, with Mr. Richard Flanagan. Subsequently they were connected with From Scotland Yard, McKenna's Flirtation, The Prodigal Parson, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man company of Mr. Arnold Bell, to whom they owe their first start in the music hall world. The Netherlands claim to have been the first in the field with a Dutch act with scenery, and made such a success that they were booked to star in America, where they toured for forty weeks. They are continually being invited to return to the States, but bookings on this side will not permit.

The latest act of the Netherlands, The Shocking Tale of the Stockings, is making a bigger success than was anticipated, and offers are being received from all parts of the world, France, Russia, Germany, Spain, and South America being a few of the places that are anxious for their services. The sisters write and produce all their scenas, and design and make all their stage dresses. They will shortly produce on an elaborate scale a new scena, in which a fifth sister will appear.

Mr. Percy Mayr, who contracted a cold and throat trouble at Openshaw last week, was unable to finish his engagement there. He has been compelled to relinquish immediate dates, and is at his home in Birkdale, Southport.

Last Thursday evening at the Alexandra Palace, Morley, both performances were set apart for the joint benefit of Messrs. Tom Diacoff, general-manager, and Arthur Izon, resident-manager. In addition to the capital company engaged, several special "turns" motored over from Leeds, Wakefield, Pontefract, and Dewsbury music halls, and two excellent programmes were provided to crowded audiences. The Palace is now very firmly established, and the utmost capacity of the hall is frequently taxed.

PAUL CINQUEVALLI.

AN APPRECIATION.

By One Who Knows Him.

"Now do I sit like a conjurer within my circle."—Beaumont and Fletcher.

The elegance and refinement of Cinquevalli are the first things the observant would notice and accurately appraise, then come his incomparable ease, lack of apparent effort, his quiet, subtle sense of pantomimic humour—his little bits of side-play are inferentially delicious. When he does some unexampled, miraculous feat of conjuring, he will give a half-glance at his attendant, rich enough in sly suggestion to make the fortune of a Criterion light comedian. Like every great artist, this many-sided gentleman makes an adjunct of thoroughness. His completeness, his perfection in everything he undertakes constitute his greatest professional attributes. His motto might appositely have been "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," for his march of triumph through the wide world of entertainment is a magnificent object-lesson to those who aim at, but never touch, the bull's-eye he has pierced unerringly over and over again.

Cinquevalli's home life is as completely enviable as his professional environment. Graced by the presence of his clever and charming wife, he need well be content in the comfort and reposeful seclusion of his quiet Brixton residence. No easier or more desirable a host could the most exacting Bohemian imagine. Cinquevalli knows full well the true art of entertaining without ostentation. He can conjure delightful melodies from a piano; from his ever-ready active and fertile brain he can conjure anecdotes that would make a stoic laugh; he can conjure into your mouth the most fragrant cigar; he can conjure from his cellar the best of good wine. He can conjure you into the belief that you are the best of good fellows; he can conjure you into the conviction that life is worth fighting for. He can conjure up pleasant recollections, bright thoughts of the present, and sanguine anticipations. He can conjure you into the ardent desire to secure and maintain his good will, and he can conjure you into seeing such a lot of good and so little bad in this human Empire of Varieties.

It is by way of being a "bit of a teazer" to write anything absolutely fresh about Paul Cinquevalli, for has he not in his all-conquering tour of the hemispheres been talked and written of as much as a Royal traveller? and one would have to invent adjectives to properly describe the art, fascination, achievements, and unique personality of this most remarkable man. Cinquevalli speaks of his own work modestly but impressively thus:—

"I suppose it is popularly thought that I can master any one of my tricks in quite a brief space of time? No greater mistake could be made. Most of them I have laboured at for years. It took me two years, working over an hour every day on the average, before I was able to put the finishing stroke on that little trick of tossing a billiard ball in the air and catching it unfailingly in the pocket fastened on my back.

"For seven or eight years I practised the balancing two billiard balls on the end of a cue, and the cue, in turn, on a ball placed in a cup which I hold in my mouth. Once or twice I felt inclined to 'throw up the sponge,' but I have a nasty bull-dog-sort-of-way of setting my teeth and holding on to any trick I once lay hold of, so I stuck to my guns, and, like a good actor, I didn't mean to lose my cue, and, you see, I won through.

"While I was learning the way to catch the 48lb steel ball which I throw in the air and balance on my neck I had one or two narrow shaves. One fine morning the ball got tired of the job, and when I persisted in prolonging the rehearsal, it got nasty and finished up by knocking me senseless. I lay unconscious for over an hour. Did I cave in? Not a bit of it. I meant to show that ball that I was the master. It now recognises its inferiority, and a more docile ball you wouldn't wish to meet."

"CUPID'S ARMS."

A Musical Comedy Playlet, Produced at the Oxford on Saturday, March 12.

The Showman .....Mr. J. C. Piddock
The Lady .....Mr. Frank Danby

A thoroughly enjoyable sketch, well and briskly played by the two gentlemen concerned, Cupid's Arms last Saturday afternoon, on its presentation at the Oxford, got an excellent reception from a crowded matinée audience. Mr. Piddock, dressed as a showman of the type Dickens has endeared us to, arrives with his Punch and Judy show at a country village, and "pitches his camp" outside the local hostelry, yclept "Cupid's Arms." There, to quote the grandiloquent phrasing of the stroller, "dwells a maid beauteous to behold, with orbs of cerulean brightness, and a figure—ah, what a figure!—the immortal bard fails me for a simile." The "maid beauteous" is represented by Mr. Frank Danby—enough said. The showman, posing as the proprietor of the portable Theatre Royal, is not sparing of his blandishments on the "fair maid of the inn," and orders "threepennyworth of the best October." In due course the "fair maid" arrives with the ale, and the showman, not having the necessary money to pay for it, resorts to strategy. A most amusing five minutes ensues, the "tourist" doing all he can to gain possession of the "foaming beaker" and the "fair maid" being very firm as to the "threepence please," before she hands over the flagon to the thirsty one. At last the showman confesses that his funds are at low water mark and suggests "an account." But "Peachblossom" declines to do business on the lines suggested, and goes off with a very poor opinion of the theatre proprietor—and the beer. Left to himself the showman discourses anent the cruelty of fickle fortune, and taking off his "outer garment"—an overcoat that has admittedly seen better days—resolves to consign it to the care of an uncle whose coat-of-arms has "three brass globules" argent. But, alas! a callous relative will have none of it. "This is a pawnshop—not a ragshop," quoth he. In the absence of the showman the lady of the inn has been "reflecting and ruminating concerning the handsome stranger," and, luckily for him, has come to the conclusion that he is a baron in disguise, with probably castles in Spain or elsewhere. So when he returns she is quite in a mind to be made love to, and the stroller is quick to avail himself of the opportunity offered. He makes ardent advances to the ancient damsel—who has already been twice married, by the way—is accepted, and when we last see the happy pair they are locked in a fond embrace. Mr. Piddock has never done a better thing than this particular study of a type of showman—"lofty of soul and lofty of speech" in the most trying moments of his adversity. He is in excellent voice, and has two numbers to render which are extremely good. Never once does he allow interest to flag in his creation. Mr. Frank Danby is quite at home, too, with what is best described as a dame part. He works very briskly and dances well; but we could wish that some of his patter was missing. All in all, however, the partnership is a good one, and Cupid's Arms deserves pride of place in any bill. Mr. Albert E. Ellis has made a study of his subject, and in the main his dialogue is well written. Mr. Henry E. Pether's music is good, and two of the numbers are especially bright.

The dearth of good Sunday evening concerts, at which the finest orchestral works and the best possible singing can be heard, is, alas, only too marked. But Mr. Quinlan, Mr. Thomas Beecham's manager, has decided to inaugurate during the coming autumn season at Covent Garden a series of Sunday evening concerts, at which the Beecham orchestra and the artists engaged in the various operas will interpret programmes of first-class music.

The report issued by the Brighton Aquarium Committee to the Town Council shows that the recent musical festival resulted in a loss of £361 18s. 1d. The income amounted to £964 18s. 10d., and the expenses were £1,326 16s. 11d. While regretting that the financial result did not come up to expectations, the committee argue that the artistic success of the venture and the consequent advertisement of Brighton more than balance the deficit, and they will ask for authority to consider arrangements for holding another festival next January.

Miss Louisa Peach has been at Barnard's, Chatham, this week with her successful American episode, The Settler's Daughter, which has gone as well as ever. Next week she returns to Mr. Raymond's hall at Walthamstow, for the fifth time since November. She is appearing in a double bill, A Night of Terror (a costume dramatic episode) and her comedy sketch Taming a Husband.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

Empress R.S.C. Half-Mile Race.
THE members of the Empress Club decided a novices' half-mile handicap at the Empress Hall, Earl's Court, last Tuesday. The result was a win for H. B. Cook, the captain, who, from scratch, in the final beat F. Saunders, also from scratch, with E. Thompson, 25 yards, third. Time, 1min. 50sec.

Crystal Palace Skaters.
STRIKING costumes were seen in the skating carnival at the Crystal Palace last Wednesday. The prize for the most correct British Empire national costume was won by Miss Child (Irish Colleen), the gentleman's prize being awarded to Mr. Sand (Indian Prince). Other effective costumes were those worn by Miss Easton (Purity), Mr. Norman Davies (Halley's Comet), Mr. Finn (Frog), and Miss Brown (Bottle of Champagne). The waltzing competition was won by Mr. and Mrs. Willcox.

Brixton Rink Injuncted.
As a result of the litigation against the Brixton Skating Rink, Limited, the company has been given until April 5 to make experiments for abating the noise. An injunction was granted on Thursday by Mr. Justice Eve, but suspended until the date named. His lordship said that the plaintiffs had made out their case in regard to Nos. 5 and 7, Josephine-avenue, that the reasonable use of the houses was interfered with by the noise of the skating rink. With regard to No. 9, he did not find that there had been shown the existence of an actionable nuisance. He granted an injunction, not against carrying on the business altogether, but against carrying it on so as to occasion a nuisance by noise to the owners of Nos. 5 and 7. Some reasonable time must elapse in order that experiments might be made to see how far the nuisance could be abated by alterations. Mr. Ingpen, K.C., for the company said his clients were prepared to spend a substantial sum on alterations.

Mile Handicap at Lava Rink.
LAST Tuesday the Lava S.C. held a mile handicap. Heat 1: Little, 45 yards, 1; Marston, 40, 2; Rainbott, 65, 3. Time, 3min. 51 3-5sec. Marston (fastest loser), 3min. 51 4-5sec. Heat 2: Bussey, 15, 1; Swain, scr., 2; Barker, 35, 3. Time, 3min. 53 2-5sec. Barker ran into Swain in the eleventh lap, both men coming down, Barker retiring. Heat 3: Casey, 20, 1; Watton, 65, 2; Marshall, 15, 3. In the final Casey retired in the fourth lap. In the twentieth lap, during an attempt by Bussey to take first place from Marston, both men came to the ground, Little falling over them.

Merrymaking at London's Oldest Rink.
LAST Thursday evening a carnival was held at Lava Rink, Denmark Hill, S.W., which was attended by over 800 people. Exhibitions of fancy skating were given by Leslie Brown, and fancy and trick skating by Master Sid Martin. The function was a sight worth seeing. The first prize was given for the costume worn by Mrs. B. Short, of Denmark Hill, "Queen of Egypt"; gentlemen's best, Mr. Beal, second. Ladies original, Miss Biggs. Gentlemen's original, Mr. Woodburn. Ladies' Irish costume, extra smart costume, Miss Night. Best advertisement was won by Miss Turner ("Dolly Dye"); best comic character, Mr. Williams. The judging was well carried out by Misses Jesse Sparrow, B. Chapman, Mr. Freeman, Mr. Stack, musical conductor, and Mr. Night. Several well-known expert skaters joined the merry party during the evening.

Five-shilling Carnival.
A CONFETTI carnival will be held at Cricklewood Rink next Monday. One of the prizes is for the lady who wears the best dress, costing 5s. or under in the making.

New London Rink.
A NEW rink is being built adjoining Hammersmith Metropolitan Railway station. The entrance will be opposite Hammersmith Town Hall.

Ilford v. Aldwych Team Race.
AN inter-team match between Ilford and Aldwych was decided at the Ilford Rink last Tuesday, the result being a draw of 20 points each. In the circumstances, a final was run off between the leading men of each team, and Aldwych won by 2 points.

Stanton Lifts Richardson Cup.
THE amateur roller figure-skating championship of Great Britain in the international style was held at Maida Vale Rink last Wednesday before a large attendance. The compulsory figures were held in the afternoon and the free skating in the evening. In the compulsory figures Mr. W. Stanton, of Lava and Devonshire Park F.S.A., scored highest points, 170, Mr. P. Ward, of N.S.A., being second with 127.5 points; Mr. D. Resta, of N.S.A., third, 120 points; Mr. M. Garcia, N.S.A., fourth, with 117.5 points; Miss J. Robertson, of Crystal Palace F.S.C., fifth, with 104.5 points. In the free skating Mr. Stanton kept his position, and won, but Mr. Ward was placed well down the list, the final result on the aggregate being as follows:—Mr. Stanton, 282 points; Mr. Resta, 210 points; Miss Robertson, 199 points; Mr. Garcia, 188.9 points; and Mr. Ward, 180.2 points. There were nine competitors, three ladies being amongst the number. At the conclusion Mr. Hayes Fisher presented the Richardson Challenge Cup to the winner.

M.P. Congratulates Stanton.
MR. STANTON gave a wonderful exhibition on the rollers, notwithstanding the fact that his duties as hon. secretary of the N.S.A. roller committee have prevented him from taking time to train. The next pair—D. Resta, the ex-cyclist, and Miss Robertson—gained their positions through a fine exhibition in the Free Skating. Resta, whose methods are modelled on those of Stanton, gave a good show throughout, but Miss Robertson started rather poorly in the compulsory figures. Had she put as much energy into them as into the Free Skating, she might have been a good second. P. Ward, who took second place on the school figures, gave a weak show in the evening session, displaying but little initiative. The lad, Leslie Brown, gave a wonderful show for his age (thirteen), but his strength did not carry him through the more difficult figures. Mr. Hayes Fisher, M.P., in referring to Mr. Stanton's victory, said that the N.S.A. might congratulate themselves upon the success of their first roller figure-skating championship, which had gone far towards showing the public the possibilities of roller skating. The high standard which the competitors had set up was very encouraging, and he was confident that this form of competition had come to stay. In Mr. Stanton, the first winner of the Richardson trophy, the N.S.A. had a most enthusiastic worker.

Five Miles N.S.A. Championship.
ATTENTION is drawn to the five miles champion ship race on March 30 at Maida Vale Rink. This is the first occasion upon which the National Skating Association have held a championship event at this distance, and in view of the fact that they have no authentic figures at any distance beyond one and a half miles, arrangements are being made to take the time of the leading competitor at intermediate distances in order that the times accomplished may be accepted as records. The time standard of 17min. 30sec., which was originally adopted, has now been considerably modified, and now stands at 18min. 15sec., and this should enable the majority of the best class men to secure the coveted certificate.

Child Skaters at Stamford.
DURING the last few evenings the notable feature at the fine skating rink at Stamford Hill, controlled by Mr. F. K. Albright, has been the wonderful skating of two young children. These mites (the boy is only five and the girl a year older) fly round the rink, their cleverness being amazing. The spectacle of these two children dancing on wheels like fairies in a palace of light (there are 500 lights hanging from the roof) has proved an immense attraction.

New Manager at Canadian Rink.
MR. L. G. PARRY has been appointed manager of the Canadian Rink, Tottenham.

Tottenham's Skating Carnival.
A "SURPRISE NIGHT" was held at the Canadian Skating Rink, Tottenham, to celebrate St. Patrick's Day on Thursday evening, when a big crowd of wheelites turned up to enjoy the many good things the management provided. The rink was gaily decorated with multi-coloured flags, festoons, and lanterns, and presented a picturesque scene as the merry skaters rolled round. The "surprise" took shape in a pretty presentation to each skater, who received a silver-plated souvenir. Revelry, rendered the more enjoyable by the many beautiful and novel lighting effects provided, ran well on to midnight, when a thoroughly satisfied throng dispersed with a good opinion of Tottenham's Canadian Rink.

Professional Waltzing Competition.
A NOVELTY in the form of a professional waltzing competition will be held at the Wandsworth Skating Rink on April 6. A prize of £3 will be given for the best effort made.

Martine to be Bioscoped.
MARTINE, "the filleted marvel," who has been presenting his speciality at many of the rinks in London, has undertaken to perform his act for the British and Colonial Kinematograph Company for the purpose of reproduction on a film.

Anthropoid Ape Starts Gliding.
THE evolutions of the celebrated "Consul," the man monkey, on the roller rink at Beverley-road, Hull, have created the greatest interest. Consul, garbed in the silk hat of convention and dark suit, cut a droll figure as he went round, his little light-coloured covert coat-tails flying as he managed to balance himself on wheels. At first he was conducted round by his guardians, and then he was allowed on his own. The ape did not desire that his portrait should be taken, and he was as whimsical as a fashionable beauty. The little animal stamped his feet, and gave convincing proof that he is the possessor of a hasty temper. Mr. Tuttle now takes the oversight of the Hull rink.

Mammoth on Wheels.
A ROLLER-SKATING elephant has been introduced at the Paris Hippodrome by Mr. C. P. Crawford.

Bert meets Bruce.
AN interesting event took place in the Arcade Rink, Aberdeen, last week, when, in response to a challenge by the management on behalf of Master Bert, the champion boy roller-skater of Scotland, to forfeit £10 to any boy or youth who could emulate his performance, Master Bruce, a local boy, appeared in acceptance. There was a large crowd at the rink, and much interest was evinced in the contest. The boy champion appeared first and performed the spread-eagle, giant stride, Dutch rolls, and two-step movements, doing the evolutions backwards and forwards in each case. Master Bruce then endeavoured to go through the same movements, and although his was a really clever performance, there was no mistaking the superiority of Master Bert, who was acclaimed winner of the contest. Master Bert concluded his performance with a series of amazing cycling tricks while he was shod with roller-skates.

The Aberdeen Rink.
A MEETING of the creditors of the Aberdeen Skating Ring Co., Ltd., was held on the 14th inst., at the office of Mr. R. R. Daly, Liverpool, when Mr. Daly and Mr. Sands, solicitors, Aberdeen, were appointed co-liquidators.

Floor to be Relaid at Ayr.
THE management has decided to close this popular skating rendezvous on Saturday, April 2, in order to have the floor relaid and several other improvements made for the summer season. A confetti battle is to take place on the closing night.

30 per Cent. per Annum.
THE Olympia Skating Rink, Ltd., Peel-street, Barnsley, has just declared an interim dividend of 15 per cent., making 30 per cent. on the year's working.

Open Once More.
THE Borough Council of Croydon has at last granted a music and roller-skating licence to the American Roller Rink, adjoining East Croydon Station. The rink, it may be recalled, was closed by the local authorities for one week. It is now open again, and attracting even larger crowds than before.

Male "Beauty" Gets Chaffed.
BUSINESS at the Alexandra Rink, Derby, continues to roll merrily on, and the latest attraction—a ladies' and gentlemen's beauty election—drew a crowded house last week. The prizes were captured by Miss Gathers and Mr. Secretan respectively. Needless to say, the gentleman was subjected to a lot of good-natured chaffing.

An Irish Barn Dance.
THE new Barn Dance on Roller Skates, introduced by Mr. and Mrs. Anslow, professional skaters, at the Olympia Rink, is enjoying great popularity in the Dublin rinks.

Eastbourne Final.
ON Wednesday evening the final skating carnival of the season was given in the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne. The maple floor will now be removed, and from Thursday, March 24, onwards the concerts and dramatic entertainments will be resumed. The outer lava rink is being relaid, and the balconies and refreshment rooms are being improved and extended.

Round the Glasgow Rinks.
GOOD business is being done at the West-End Roller Rink, Kelvin-grove. For the forthcoming fancy-dress carnival Manager H. S. Cameron is making the usual elaborate preparations, and with a large array of handsome prizes this function should reach the pinnacle of success in gatherings of a like nature. "Time cannot wither nor custom stale" the infinite charm of roller-skating as pursued at the American Roller Rink in Victoria-road. The energetic promoters of this rink are much gratified with the generous response which the public ever since the hall opened have made to their efforts. Another "Evening of Sports" is to be held at an early date. The King's Park Rink continues to be well patronised, and it seems as if rinking was more on the boom now than it was a year ago. The Govan Rink maintains its popularity. A "Chantecler" sports gala was held on Tuesday last. At the Ibrox establishment the management arranged a topsy-turvey evening last week, which was much appreciated by the visitors.

Allie Moore in Jersey.
THERE was a very large and enthusiastic attendance at the Olympia Rink, St. Helier's, Jersey, on Wednesday, when Allie Moore again delighted and thrilled his audience with his really smart and clever performance as a trick skater. Shortly before Allie Moore's "turn," a gentleman skater received somewhat serious injuries to his leg as a result of falling while skating round the rink in company with a lady. Temporary assistance was rendered the gentleman, after which he was conveyed to his home in New-street.

Monohan There, Too.
MR. G. S. MONOHAN, billed as the "Great Monohan," has arrived in Jersey also, and made his first appearance before local audiences at the Premier Rink this week. The attendances have been splendid. Though not "great" as far as physique is concerned, Monohan is great in ability. He is slim built, well proportioned, and remarkably graceful. Undoubtedly his drawing powers to the box-office are "great."

Events at Leicester.
The members of the Elite Club at the Empress Rink this week organised a fancy and evening dress carnival for the benefit of the Leicester Guild of the Crippled. Mr. A. E. Court, the manager, gave his assistance in furthering the laudable object, which was a splendid success from both a financial and social standpoint. At the Boulevard Rink, Mr. Ernest A. Holdsworth, the manager, continues to put forth inviting events. The competitions for the Noble Cup are taking place this week. At the Belgrave Rink Mr. L. H. Cockram has his usual enticing list of events, which include a ladies' hoop-trundling competition, a punting competition on the rink, a backward race (won by A. Burton), and a cycle and skating race between T. Moody and C. Burgess.

One Mile Race at Leicester.
As several of the entrants for the one mile race at Leicester have withdrawn their entries, the management of the Empress Skating Rink, Leicester, has declared the race void.

At Limerick and Waterford.
MR. EDWARD KIDD is managing-director of both the Limerick Rink and the Waterford Skating Palace. Both rinks are doing extremely well.

Northern Mile Championship.
THE preliminary heats in the Northern Counties one mile amateur speed championship will be decided at the Premier rink, Renshaw-street, Liverpool, on April 11 and 12; the Palace Rink, Old Trafford, Manchester, on April 13 and 14, and for the benefit of competitors from a distance, on the afternoon of April 16. The final will be decided at the Palace Rink, Manchester, on Saturday evening, April 16. Competitors may train on April 4 to 9, inclusive, between 6 and 6.30 p.m. Entries close March 29. The first, second, and third men in the final will respectively receive the Association's gold, silver, and bronze championship medals, and also certificates. Time certificates will also probably be awarded to unplaced competitors doing the distance in 3min. 30sec.

Coming Carnival at Mansfield.
THE fancy dress carnival which was such a success at the Mansfield Rink some weeks ago will be repeated on the 30th. The rink still finds a big place in public favour, and is having a most successful season.

Rinks in the Open.
ROLLER-SKATING in the streets by Newcastle children has become so popular by the juveniles that at a meeting of the City Corporation Town Moor and Parks Committee last week it was decided to ask the City Engineer to prepare a report regarding the provision of open-air rinks in the parks, together with an estimate of the cost.

Chantecler Hat at Penzance Carnival.
THE second fancy dress carnival and gymkhana took place at the Palace Rink on Friday, the 11th inst., and was highly successful, a very large attendance being recorded. Both instructor and floor manager (Mr. H. Willis) and instructress (Miss Rogers) gave exhibitions of fancy skating, and were ably assisted by Mr. E. Willis and Miss Fido from the Truro Rink. A Chantecler hat was noticed on the rink.

The New Porth Rink.
A SYNDICATE of local gentlemen has just opened a splendid rock maple roller skating rink at Porth. The accommodation consists of lounge-room, smoke-room, cloakrooms, and vestibule, and ring accommodation for nearly 600. There will be three sessions daily, and no extra charges. Instruction will be given free. The season was opened on Wednesday night last by a hockey match between Weston-super-Mare and Treorky.

Wheelbarrow Race at Stourbridge.
THURSDAY evening saw the usual crowd on the rink here. The weekly competitions always draw. Mr. Tim Rutland was the winner of the wheelbarrow race, which had to be skated off in six heats owing to the number of competitors. The manager, Mr. Wharton, is busy getting ready for his Easter carnival, which promises to be a very fine function.

New Rink at Watford.
THE New Palace Rink at Watford was opened last Thursday under the management of Mr T. M. Sylvester (for the Watford Palace Theatre and Skating Rink Co., Ltd.) by Mr. R. A. Thorpe, chairman of the Watford Urban District Council. The building adjoins the Palace Theatre, is of pleasing design, and has cost over £4,000. The first fancy-dress carnival is fixed for April 1.

N.S.A. at Yarmouth.
THE Easter Monday roller-skating races, which will take place at the Wellington Gardens, Yarmouth, under the auspices of the National Skating Association rules, promise to be attended with every success, which will be increased providing the weather is at all favourable—and it ought to be. However, there is plenty of time yet. The great three mile race, open to the whole of the Eastern Counties, for the twenty-guinea silver cup, is an event which ought to gain distinction all on its own.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR AGED JEWS.
A concert was given at the Home for Aged Jews, Nightingale-lane, on Sunday evening last. The arrangements were in the hands of Messrs. Lazarus and Harris, of the firm of H. Lazarus and Son, of Great Eastern-street. For three hours a feast of mirth and music was provided for the 130 old people at the Home, who were also regaled with refreshments during the interval by the kindness of Mr. H. Lazarus. The artists who contributed to the programme were Miss Beatrice Colman, who brilliantly played a pianoforte solo; Miss Victor gave a humorous recitation; a song entitled "Sympathy" was rendered with good effect by Miss Clara Jones; Miss Bessie Joel, a little lady in her teens, surprised everybody by the volume of tone she possesses in a soprano voice of exquisite quality; a musical comedy song, "Dresden China," was daintily sung by Miss Louie Belrose; while Miss Bessie Boncher warbled sweetly about the nightingale. Miss Rosie Lyons accompanied herself on the piano while singing "Sally in our Alley," and Miss Halliday played a pianoforte solo with telling effect. Other contributors to the programme were Mr. F. W. Pedgrift, baritone, who sang "Son of mine"; Mr. Bertie Friedman (tenor); Mr. Lea (comedian), who humorously described the trials he had with "that beastly eye-glass in my eye"; Mr. Reginald Thomas (baritone); Mr. Ronald Green (tenor); Messrs. J. G. Wolff and Probert, who sang duets; Mr. Joe Sparling (comedian), Mr. G. Beyfus (comedian); Mr. Harry Harris, who gave a turn entitled "Music at the Piano"; and Master and Miss Davis, who entertained with a very humorous dialogue. Mr. J. Halliday performed the arduous duties of accompanist incident on a very long programme, whilst Mr. Lionel Colman saw to the stage management. A number of Mr. Lazarus's friends were, by the courtesy of the superintendents, Mr. and Mrs Malin and Mrs. Levey, shown over this admirable institution, the gift of Lord Wandsworth. Every up-to-date arrangement which could possibly be conceived has been made for the comfort of the old people. The inmates and the visitors accorded a hearty vote of thanks to the givers of the entertainment, Messrs. H. Lazarus and Harris

MR. ALFRED BUTT, in conjunction with Mr. Charles Urban, joint inventor of "Kinemacolor," will exhibit for the first time on Monday next at the Palace Theatre, a most picturesque series of life-motion scenes lately photographed in the actual tints of Nature, and depicting Arab Life at Biskra, Algeria. Not without considerable difficulty have these films been taken, for the roving Moor, with "the eye and temper of a hawk," is not yet quite in touch with the bioscope. Nevertheless some splendid pictures of present-day features in the Barbary States include the Arab Market at Maison Carre, Bedouin Girls, Moorish Merchants, Scenes on the Road to Mustapha, and the Orange Harvest, full of life and colour, at Boujarik.

"THE MASK TORN OFF."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Ward Bailey and Edward Thane, Produced at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, March 14.

Seaton Bennett ..... MR. EDWARD THANE
Frank Howard ..... MR. JOHN DENNYS
Adolphe ..... MR. STUART CLEVELAND
Sylvia ..... MISS HELENA MILLAIS

A strong, well-acted sketch that fulfils all the requirements of a music hall piece, The Mask Torn Off is winning the entire approval of audiences at the Empress this week. The situations are dramatic and well-knit, and the dialogue terse and neatly rounded. The part of a 'cute detective might be a little more plainly defined, but so much is compressed within the limits of half an hour that it is difficult to indicate where room could be made.

In pursuit of his investigations of a forgery case the police-officer takes service as a butler with Seaton Bennett, a reputed wealthy American, who with his wife is staying at Monaco. Bennett has been losing heavily at the gaming table, having thus squandered the whole fortune of his young wife, whom he had recently married. He has, moreover, forced her to encourage the attentions of a young Englishman named Frank Howard, who is competing with his motor-boat in the races in the Bay, in order that he might "fleece" him at cards. Sylvia, however, revolts at the idea of acting as a decoy, and reveals the scheme to Howard, telling him at the same time of her unhappy life. The young man protests his love for her, and his attempt to kiss her is only prevented by the entry of the husband. That gentleman contents himself with inviting Howard to return later and spend the evening at cards. Anxious to carry on his gambling at the Casino, Bennett demands from his wife the diamond necklace which she is wearing; but it is a gift from her mother, and Sylvia not only refuses to comply with his request, but denounces him as a thief and a liar, whereupon Bennett strikes her. The wife threatens to denounce her husband to the authorities, so Bennett induces her to drink a glass of wine, into which he has put a drug, which renders her partly unconscious. Meanwhile the detective has slipped into her hand a note from Howard offering to call for her with his motor-boat, and enclosing a match by means of which she could signal to him with a coloured light. Bennett finds the note, and determines to give the signal, intending to shoot Howard on his entry. He strikes the match, the syren of the boat is sounded, and a moment afterwards Howard bursts into the room, to be received with a revolver shot. Bennett's aim, however, has been faulty, and Howard escapes unhurt, the would-be murderer shooting himself.

Admirable acting made the success of the little piece assured, honours being won by every member of the cast. Miss Helena Millais acted artistically throughout the trying scenes as the young wife, her refinement and charm being enhanced by contrast with the brutal violence of the husband. That character was vividly portrayed by Mr. Edward Thane, who assumed a forbidding countenance, and acted with all the virulence required as the unscrupulous gambler, and if his Yankee twang was not quite convincing, his facial expression, in which low cunning, malignancy, and ferocity were in turn expressed, was undoubted. Mr. John Dennys also scored decisively as Frank Howard, making a typical young English gentleman, well-spoken, fresh, and debonnair. The cast was completed by Mr. Stuart Cleveland, who as the detective gave a neat sketch of a pretended Swiss butler, being chiefly responsible for some clever comedy introduced at the opening. The little piece was very favourably received, Miss Millais being twice recalled.

Another novelty of this week's bill is The Gainsborough Girl, in which the talented soprano Miss Dora Lind poses as the celebrated Duchess of Devonshire in a replica of the famous Gainsborough picture which was stolen and lost for twenty years. Within a massive gilt frame, brilliantly illuminated by myriad electric lights, Miss Lind sings "I have a silent sorrow," the music of which was written by the Duchess herself. The lights grow dim, and out of the darkness issues a gorgeous panorama of the Lakes of Killarney, amid which Balfe's immortal ballad is whistled by a couple of pretty Irish colleens in native attire. Again the scene is changed, and Miss Lind appears in classical garb to sing "The Holy City," the song being illustrated by pictorial representations of the Temple, with lights within and stars twinkling in the sky above, and of the entrance to the celestial regions, with angels flitting about the gates. Miss Lind has a cultivated voice, perfect in intonation, and her singing gave the utmost pleasure. She was awarded enthusiastic applause at the close, when she led on Mr. Richard Frank, who, though totally blind, directed the whole production.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The orchestral concert given by the pupils of the Royal College on Wednesday evening attracted a very large audience. Sir Charles V. Stanford conducted the orchestra, which was first heard in Dvorák's overture "In der Natur," a rather idyllic work of the Bohemian composer. A charming feature of Wednesday's concert was the delightful tarantelle of C. Saint-Saëns for flute, clarionet, and orchestra, played with admirable crispness and delicate finish by the soloists, Mr. Robert Murchie and Mr. Haydn Draper, who were warmly greeted by the audience. Mr. Thomas Peatfield in a really fine performance on the solo instrument in Beethoven's Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D Major had many recalls; excellent, also, was the orchestral playing. Dvorák's scene "Where art thou, father, dear?" from The Spectre's Bride is trying music for the vocalist, but Miss Nora Moon sang it with no little intelligence, although at times somewhat embarrassed by the enthusiasm of the orchestral students. The last instrumental item in the programme was Schumann's C Major Symphony, ably played by the students, under Sir Charles Stanford's experienced direction

MISS DELLA RAY, who has been in the provinces for twenty weeks, making a success with her neat figure and catchy songs, returns to town at Easter, opening at Crouch End.

THE management of the Kilmarnock Palace Theatre wish us to make known the fact that they have no connection with the variety management in Kilmarnock which failed to pay salaries in full last week.

RICHARDSON SKATES are the BEST in the WORLD.

They have held ALL WORLD'S RECORDS for twenty-four years, and every event of importance during the past few years, either fast or fancy has been won on RICHARDSON SKATES, including Harley Davidson's victory at Olympia Rink, London, February 26th, 1909.

STATEMENTS WHICH CANNOT BE DISPUTED:

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co. positively equipped 80 per cent. of the Rinks operating in America. Sixty per cent. of the Rinks in this country operated by independent rink proprietors are equipped with Richardson Ball Bearing Skates.

Richardson Skates are the universal choice of, and used by, practically all the leading instructors, unless employed in rinks operated by other skate manufacturers. The Richardson is the most perfectly constructed Skate on the market. The front truck is under the ball of the foot, and the rear truck practically under the heel, which allows the skater to be over his work. This principle is acknowledged to be the best by the leading skaters of the world. Rear trucks extending back of heel only act as a leverage when skaters lose their balance.

The Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Factory have equipped more Independent Rinks than all other manufacturers combined.

The repairs of Richardson Skates are 50 per cent. less than those of any other make, and the simplicity of construction makes it an easy matter to effect repairs.

Manufacturers: Richardson Ball Bearing Skate Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

Sole Distributing Agents for Europe: J. O. PLIMPTON & CO., Limited, Plimpton's Buildings, 116, Old Hall Street, Liverpool (DEPT. B); 38 and 40, Curtain Road, London, E.C. (DEPT. B).

THE SHOWMAN WORLD

The Fight for Mitcham Fair.

The Vestry Hall, Mitcham, was crowded on Tuesday evening, March 14th, by the ratepayers. Under the Local Government Act a parish council is elected every three years to manage the town affairs. The members of this body are elected by show of hands in a parish meeting duly convened, only parochial electors being entitled to vote. Should there be more candidates than seats on the council, or should any nominated candidate be dissatisfied with the open vote at the parish meeting, a poll may be demanded, and then an election by ballot takes place in the usual way. That is the understood procedure for the election of a parish council. The election this year is of more than usual interest, for the electors are thoroughly roused and alert on the question of the Fair and its continuance for the people of Mitcham. There is bound to be a fight on this question alone. There are other questions of interest and pressing importance. These questions may divide public opinion, but on the people's right to retain their ancient charter Fair there is a magnificent and insistent volume of opinion and agreement that will, we trust, settle the question of abolition for generations to come.

Mr. F. H. Pedgrift a Candidate.

Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era, whose zeal and constant interest in all that concerns the people's amusement and recreation is well known, has been nominated as a parish councillor. He was approached by gentlemen who take a keen interest in preserving the people's Fair rights to accept nomination, and he consented. Although not a resident of Mitcham parish, he is a near neighbour, and resides well within the radius of three miles required by the Act of Parliament. Twenty-six candidates for the fifteen seats on the parish council have been duly nominated and a poll demanded. It now remains for the electors to rally to their own cause and to cast their votes for the candidates who will maintain the people's Fair for the people. The one dominant note at the parish meeting was the demand of the people to preserve their Fair rights and privileges. Every candidate was asked the all-absorbing question, "Are you in favour of keeping the Fair?" With but two exceptions (our correspondent writes) the answer was "Yes." Most of the candidates defined their position as being against abolition, but in favour of removal to a better site. The Showmen's Guild is also in favour of its removal to a better and more commodious site on the people's common. The Guild stands for the betterment and uplifting of the popular open-air amusements of the people, and will co-operate with the local authorities for that laudable object.

The Guild and the Election.

The manifesto of the Showmen's Guild on the people's Fair rights we published in our columns last week will be issued as a leaflet, and a copy will be placed in the hands of every elector. A committee room will be opened, and an active canvass of the electors will begin in a few days. Public meetings will be held in various parts of the parish, and the people's right to have and to hold their Fair will be fully advocated and vindicated, we trust, at the ballot box.

The Vicar and the Showmen.

As briefly chronicled in our last week's issue of The Era, a successful service took place in a show at Wisbech Fair. For the accommodation of the van-dwellers the front seats in the tent were reserved, and a good number of them attended the service. To the remainder of the building the public were admitted without tickets, and it was crowded to excess. The Town Band, under Mr. W. Hall, was early in attendance, and whilst the congregation was assembling they played several selections in first-class style, whilst during and after the service they rendered other selections, including the famous "Hallelujah Chorus," in a manner which drew forth the applause of those present. They also played the accompaniments to the hymns, all of which were sung with great heartiness. The vicar (the Rev. W. T. R. Crookham) conducted the service.

Speaking to those for whom that service was specially arranged, he said they had come into that town in order that they might provide something in the form of what might be said to be wholesome amusement and pleasure for those who came to the Mart at Wisbech. What if they brought something there which would leave behind it a disagreeable recollection, which would do serious harm to the minds of some who came to see it? Would that be a good or a bad influence? There was nothing of that sort in the Mart so far as he could learn, and the influence of the Mart would not be a bad one. They would not, he was sure, bring anything there that they were ashamed to have in their midst by reason of the fact that they knew it would have a bad influence and because he believed they were too fair and upright men to do anything of the kind. After the hymn "O God, our help in ages past," had been sung, the vicar said he wished to say how grateful they all were to Messrs. Tuby and Sons for their kindness in lending them that tent for the service and for providing them with the lights and in every way answering their requirements so well. It was extremely good of them to do that, to say nothing of the expense they went to in providing the lights and giving them all the assistance they required. He also wished to say how grateful he was personally, and on behalf of the committee who had arranged that service, to Mr. Tuby for the kind assistance he had given them. The service closed with the hymn "Stand up, stand up for Jesus," and further selections by the band. The collection amounted to £3 1s. 4d., and this was divided as follows:—Gratuity to the Town Band and payments for labour, £1 11s.; to the Van-Dwellers' Association, £1 10s. 4d. It is estimated that the congregation numbered between 800 and 1,000, and of the tickets for the reserved seats distributed amongst the van-dwellers nearly all were given up at the doors. The members of the committee who arranged the service visited and left tickets at every one of the van residences.

The Generosity of Showmen.

The Wisbech Press is singing the praises of the showmen at the annual Spring Fair or Mart. The object of the showmen's ready sympathy and charity was the family of the unfortunate chauffeur—the young man killed in the terrible motor accident at the railway crossing some few days ago. The annual pleasure fair being in the town, it was thought that the Mart people would probably like to contribute in some way to the fund. They were approached, and immediately the principal proprietors exhibited a sympathetic spirit, with the result that they decided to give all their takings—not even deducting working expenses—between the hours of three o'clock and five o'clock the other afternoon towards lightening the burden of Mrs. Palmer, the widow of the unfortunate chauffeur.

The total of £59 2s. 4½d., taken either in tickets or cash, was comprised as follows:—Messrs. Chas. Thurston and Son, Market Place show (where pictures of the scene of the accident, the late Mr. A. S. Palmer, the widow and family,, and animated pictures of the funerals of the two victims of the disaster were shown), £16 0s. 6d.; cars on Market Place, £9 18s. 5d.; cars in the Old Market, £5 14s. 1d.; total, £31 13s. Messrs. Tuby and Sons' show, £9 11s. 1d.; Teddy Bear show, £2 2s. 2d.; total, £11 13s. 3d. Messrs. Farrar and Tyler, cars, £3 10s. 9d.; show, £2 7s. 5d. Messrs. Wallace and Agnew, show, £5 10s. Messrs. P. Collins and Son, cake-walk, £2 16s. 9d.; haunted castle, £1 1s. Mr. Bolesworth, cycles, 19s. 4½d. The following local gentlemen kindly assisted at local shows and sets of roundabouts:—Messrs. Thurstons' Market Place show: Messrs. M. Le Pla, A Flint, A. P. Whitehead, J. Radford, H. Brown, J. E. Bellamy, and F. J. Holmes. Messrs. Tuby's show: Messrs. R. Thomas, Herbert Yates, P. M. Q. Tosney, W. Davey, A. Blackman, F. Callow, and A. Carter. Messrs. Thurston's Market Place cars: Messrs. E. Markillie and C. Walton. Messrs. Thurston's Old Market cars: Messrs. F. Brown and F. Britliff. Messrs. Collins' cake-walk: Mr. J. W. Kirk. Messrs. Collins' haunted castle: Mr. A. S. Stanford. Messrs. Tuby's Teddy Bear show: Messrs. H. R. Jeffree and L. Wilson. The other shows, &c., were managed by their own people. After five o'clock all the money was taken to the Mayor's parlour at the Town Hall and counted. The Mayor and several of the above gentlemen were present, and Mr. W. H. Coulam, who is acting as treasurer, also attended.

Notes from Yorkshire.

At Halifax for the spring feast are Waddington's motors, racing cockerels, and steam yachts; Johnson's bikes; Hale's mystic swing; and Radcliffe and Jameson's shooting ranges. Throwing games, hoop-la circles, and stalls, in great variety, provided by Messrs. Turner, Redfern, Jameson, Daley, Illingworth, Johnson, Watson, Marks, Hughes, Cooper, and Morley.

Corwen Pleasure Fair.

P. Collins and Son provided the principal attractions at this Welsh Hiring Fair. The racing motor cars, the twin ships in the air, and the electric jumping horses were exhibited by the Walsall firm. The other amusements and novelties were Wright's shooting ranges, Birch's houplas and coker shies, and Jones, Birch, and other caterers with minor attractions.

Fossett's Circus on Tour.

This fine circus is on the Midland Circuit and doing excellent tenting business. On March 15th it was pitched at Astwood Bank, and at Redditch the previous day. Show first class and attendance good.

Cleckheaton Spring Feast.

Here were W. H. Marshall and Son's palace of delight with up-to-date pictures, and the same firm's machines, the racing motors and gem horses; Harniess's galloping horses; Burgin's steam swing and highfliers; Gledstone's toy and fancy bazaar; Bean's arts and crafts show; Holdsworth's shooting range; Bassett and Holdsworth's pannum stalls; Blake's park swings; and houp-las and throwing games by Messrs. Joy, Blake, Rhodes, Middlebrook, Crowther, Mitchell, Brook Bros., Bassett, and Towers.

Death of a Well-known Showman.

Few men were better known or more highly esteemed on the Midland circuit of Fairs than William Davies, roundabout proprietor, of Stoke-on-Trent. We regret to say that we have just received news of his death. We hope to give more particulars of the sad event in our next issue. We are quite certain that the heart of Showland will go out in sympathy to the bereaved family.

Notes from Lancashire.

Owing to the increase of tolls insisted upon by the Bury Corporation, the Federated Societies of Lancashire Showmen, Roundabout Proprietors, and Stallholders refused to attend the Fair. Every effort was made by the allied societies to effect a compromise, but without avail, the Corporation remaining obdurate. Under the circumstances, the tenants that would have attended the fair had reasonable conditions been secured opened a fair at Radcliffe, only a penny tram ride from the centre of Bury. This was a most effective and successful demonstration against the exorbitant tolls demanded by the Bury Corporation.

Stockport Spring Fair.

Owing to the shortage of the cotton crop, the mills of the district are working short time, and spending brass, as the "Lanky folk" term it, is scarce. However, the showmen, with their usual optimism, attended the fair, and made merriment for the people. The fair, under the able direction of Mr. T. Hurst, acting for the Roundabout Proprietors' Union, was packed with all the best and most attractive fair-ground novelties, shows, roundabouts, and the olla podrida of a well-ordered fair.

The Joy Wheels Amusement Novelty.

Yet another American device for exhilarating thrills is being placed on the market. The makers advertise their invention in our columns this week.

Mr. Fred J. Connor commences a season with his circus company at the Alexandra Palace on Easter Monday.

Those clever young equestrians, Mona and Douglas Connor, have been engaged by Mr. Geo. H. Harrop for his season at the Tower Circus, Blackpool, and open there next Thursday, March 24.

Showmen's Letter-Box.

Letters await Anderton and Rowland, W. Haggar, and W. Biddall a The Era Office.

Plans are being prepared for a new Electric Empire in Smethwick. It is to be a permanent structure to accommodate 1,500 people. The proprietors are Messrs. Kennedy and Adams. Mr. Kennedy is well known in connection with the King's Hall and Queen's Hall, Birmingham.

Six New Theatres for the Potteries.

It will be of interest to the public of the Potteries and district to learn that complete arrangements have been made by the London Cinematograph Company, of 20, Bedford-street, W.C., for the building of a series of cinematograph theatres throughout the district. The old Theatre Royal, Newcastle, has been taken, and building operations have begun. It is intended to rebuild the theatre and convert it into a handsome new building. At Longton a site has been taken adjoining Messrs. Hughes and Harber's printing works in Market-street, and the plans have been passed by the Council. A site has been selected in the centre of Hanley and also Stoke. At Burslem an exceptionally good site has been secured in Waterloo-road on land formerly occupied by Messrs. Mellor, Taylor, and Co.'s factory, and adjoining the new skating rink in course of erection there. At Tunstall a valuable corner site at the junction of High-street and Brewery-street has been obtained, and the plans for the theatre have already been passed by the Tunstall Council. All the Theatres are being built after the manner of the theatres already built up and down the country by the London Cinematograph Co., and its allied company, the Electric Theatres, Ltd., and they will be luxuriously furnished with tip-up chairs and every comfort.

Ever up to date, Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Co. are showing some of the latest films at the Empress, Hartlepool. The Sins of the Fathers is the principal film, and calls forth much praise. The Last Deal and The Adventuress are also capital pictures that are followed with keen interest. An educational subject of exceptional merit is The London Zoo. There are a host of humorous subjects, prominent amongst which are Setting Back the Hands of Time, a clever trick picture, and Three to Choose From.

THE MOVABLE DWELLINGS BILL (1910).

At the close of the Parliamentary Session of 1909 the Select Committee of the House of Lords, to whom the Movable Dwellings Bill had been referred, reported as follows: "That the Committee had met, and examined numerous witnesses. They have been unable, owing to the short time at their disposal, to complete their inquiry during the present Session. They therefore recommend that the Bill should be re-introduced, and that they should be reappointed during the next Session of Parliament. The Committee have directed that the minutes of evidence and proceeding, with an appendix, be laid before your Lordships.—Oct. 14, 1909."

The report was issued as a Parliamentary paper to the general public, and it constitutes an extremely valuable record of official opinion largely in favour of the show van-dwellers' claim for full exemption from the proposed legislation. We referred to the publication of this Blue Book at the time, and through the Guild a considerable number of reports were put in circulation. It will therefore be no surprise to those who have followed the controversy from its commencement to hear that Lord Clifford of Chudleigh (as a matter of course) has formally introduced the Bill, and has moved its re-committal to the same committee that dealt with it in the previous Sessions of Parliament.

The members of the committee are as follows:—The Duke of Northumberland, the Marquis of Salisbury, Earl Russell, the Earl of Liverpool, Lord Zouche of Haryngworth, Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, and Lord Farrer.

It will be now (as upon previous occasions) the duty of the Guild executive officials to attend the meetings of this committee and to tender all further evidence that may be required. It may be taken for granted, after the exhaustive examination of the evidence tendered by the Guild Chaplain last Session, that the committee will only need, should occasion arise, information upon doubtful points, or rebutting evidence against adverse witnesses who may make charges against show-life.

These matters, of course, will be dealt with as they arise, and we await the final conclusions of the committee, with full confidence that justice will be done to the show van-dweller.

Arising out of the investigation and the careful sifting of official evidence which has marked the deliberations of this important committee, we further anticipate that great good will accrue to the trade defence movement so ably carried on by the Showmen's Guild.

Here, again, we emphasise the necessity and value of organisation. It is still necessary for showmen to keep their Trade Defence Society in effective working order, to meet all emergencies as they occur, and to be ready at all times to defend the interests of the industry of the fair-ground.

This is not only true of Parliamentary defence work, but it is equally true of all the other branches of Guild endeavour.

SHOWMEN'S SERVICE.

UNIQUE GATHERING AT CLYDACH PARISH CHURCH.

Unique amongst church services—at all events so far as the Parish Church of Clydach is concerned—was a special in memoriam service held at that pretty little church hard by the silent highway of the Tawe on Sunday, March 6. The service came about in this way.

A few days over a month ago Mr. Billie Boswell, of the showmen fraternity, had the misfortune to lose his good wife, she having before her marriage been Miss Gertie Roberts, daughter of Mr. George Roberts, of Mountain Ash. She died at Morriston, but was buried in the peaceful little God's acre at the Parish Church of Clydach, the interior beauties of which have already been enriched by a showman's gift.

It so happens that the Vicar of Clydach (the Rev. T. Morris) is an ardent friend of the "great travelling fraternity," from whom he has received and to whom he has imparted many little kindnesses, and the rev. gentleman suggested at the time that a memorial service in her memory should be held at the church on the Sunday evening previous to the Clydach Fair Week.

So happy a suggestion was enthusiastically taken up by Mr. H. Studt and other well-known members of the "brotherhood on wheels," the news spread, and as a result old friends and companions of the bereaved husband flocked to the special 3.30 service at the church on Sunday afternoon, March 6. The service was rendered all the more interesting and in keeping by the fact that the Church Band made its first public appearance, marching from the schoolroom to the church, and accompanying the hymns with a fine swing.

The church was crowded, and it was found necessary to import extra seating accommodation. The rev. gentleman preached from the well-known text, "Remember Lot's Wife," and delivered a very eloquent and impressive discourse.

Amongst many present were Mr. and Mrs. David Boswell, Mr. H. Studt and Mr. Juson (Swansea), Mr. and Mrs. H. Studt, jun., the Misses Ethel and Beattie Roberts (Mountain Ash), Mr. W. Boswell, the Misses Louisa, Ellen, and Sallie Boswell, Masters Freddie and David Boswell, Mrs Edith Buss (Llangyfelach), Miss Day, Miss Beattie Mathias, Mr. and Mrs. Sims, Miss M. Sims, Mr. J. Chadwick and Masters J. and A. Chadwick, Mr. Thos. Hill, and Mr. AM. North with Masters Freddy and Johnny Hill (Llangyfelach), Mr. and Mrs. Odley and the Misses Liddy and Ruth Odley and Master Odley, Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, the Misses M. A. and B. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. J. North, jun., and Master P. North, Mr. T. Oxford, Miss F. Clarke, the Misses Lizzie and Flora Blower (Aberavon), Master Teddy Day, Miss Carrie Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Parry and family, and many others.—From the Cambrian Leader, March 7.

New Halifax Enterprise.

Halifax is promised another place of amusement in the very near future. This is to take the form of an electric theatre, at which cinematograph exhibitions of the highest order are to be given. The promoters are the Electric Theatres, Limited, similar to the one it is proposed to erect in Halifax, in London and the suburbs. They have also erected theatres in South Africa, notably at Cape Town and Durban, and have now on foot a comprehensive scheme for the provinces. Messrs. Richard Horsfall and Son, the well-known local firm of architects, have been commissioned to prepare plans for the adaptation of the old Riding School, at the corner of Commercial-street and St John's-lane, near Ward's End, into a smart and up-to-date theatre. The old Riding School has had a chequered career, and for the last few years has been idle. It ceased to exist for the original purpose for which it was erected many years ago, and since has been used as a circus, theatre store, and by the military authorities. The stone walls, except where it is necessary to restore, will be left standing, but the roof will be entirely swept away, and the gable ends re-built. The main entrance will be in Commercial-street, at the Horton-street end of the building. This entrance will be of a taking appearance of cream marco, with glass canopy projecting out over the footway. The floor is to be built on the slope, so that the screen will be in easy view of everyone present. Comfortable tip-up chairs will be provided.

THE SUNDAY CINEMATOGRAPH QUESTION.

There is no better means than hearty conviviality of bringing men of business to a thoroughly satisfactory understanding; and the importance of the three great societies interested in Cinematograph Defence standing shoulder to shoulder is so great that the success of the dinner, to which over two hundred sat down at the Holborn Restaurant on Tuesday evening, is very gratifying to all who have the interests of this immense industry at heart. The dinner was a great success. Good-fellowship and hearty enjoyment prevailed, and the prosperity of the cinematograph business seemed to radiate from the beaming faces of the guests. The fact that the three societies had secured for their chairman such a celebrated writer and excellent speaker as Mr. G. R. Sims greatly contributed to the result achieved. Almost all those prominent and powerful in the Kinematograph Manufacturers' Association, the Cinematograph Trade Protection Society, Limited, and the Cinematograph Defence League, Limited, were present, the list including Colonel F. W. Bosworth (chairman of the Automobile Association), Messrs. W. H. Broughton (chairman of the Cinematograph Defence League), H. A. Browne (chairman of the Kinematograph Manufacturers' Association), F. R. Griffiths (chairman of the Cinematograph Trade Protection Society), J. Brandon (London County Council), J. Salmon (London County Council), A. C. Bromhead, W. M. Borradaile, E. H. Bishop, Lacey Brown, D. Beck, H. R. Bishop, F. E. Butcher, P. H. Boekbinder, W. G. Barker, J. C. Bostock, J. Cabourn, G. H. Cricks, S. H. Carter, Cayley Calvert, T. Clegg, J. M. Downie, G. Edwards, G. W. Grant, T. H. Grant, E. H. Houghton, A. E. Hubsch, W. Haggar, A. Hunter, E. T. Heron, E. Hazell, H. B. Hermann, G. The Chairman, having proposed the toast of "The King," "who," said Mr. Sims, "was thoroughly in sympathy with the amusements of the people," and the toast having been drunk with enthusiasm,

Mr. Geo. R. Sims proposed the toast of "The Trade." He said he was afraid he would not be able to do justice to the toast, owing to the presence of gentlemen connected with the trade who could speak from inside knowledge. He would therefore confine himself to the importance of the industry in which the company were engaged. He was not too young to remember some points in connection with the great industry. In the past it had been his duty to go from an office in the City to a bank in Old Broad-street, and it used to be his delight to look in the windows of the London Stereoscopic Company, where he saw a little machine called the Zoetrope, and it struck him the other day as being almost the beginning of the moving picture industry, which to-day instructs, entertains, and educates civilised people all over the earth. He did not think there could be more magnificent testimony to the increased affection in which the moving picture was held by the British public than that most representative gathering assembled there that night. Someone had asked him to speak on the Sunday question. That was a burning question, but they could not make it a non-inflammable one like some of the films. It was a question for wise counsel, and he had not the slightest doubt but that a fair and just judgment which would satisfy everyone would be ultimately arrived at. He was one of those who believed that there was a marvellous and brilliant future for the cinematograph. He believed that at present they were only exploring the shores of the golden land, in the very heart of which they would hoist their flag if they would only go on with the right and conquer. There was a great commercial future for the picture show, a great artistic future and a great educational future. Every possibility was theirs. They could hold the public with a story, a tragedy, and wholesome hearty laughter. They could take the public with them to far-off lands to which they had not the time nor the money to travel; they could portray events of the day as they happened, and be the living chronicle of the times they lived in. "Go on," he said, "make your fortunes, and bank them wisely." He advised them to be always zealous for the honour of the business and the industry which they represented; to be vigilant for its dignity and also for the glory and the renown of the entertainment which he believed was going to play a vast part in the educational civilising of the people. On May 18 next they were to pass through the tail of Halley's Comet without suffering in the slightest, and he believed they would also pass through the tail of the Cinematograph Act with the minimum amount of suffering.

Mr. H. A. Browne, chairman of the Kinematograph Manufacturers' Association, in responding to the toast, said he represented the men who made the films and helped the showmen to get their living. When he consulted Mr. Broughton about the dinner he was received with open arms, and he was very glad indeed to see such a representative gathering. He hoped next year the "Holborn" would not be big enough to hold them. They were all met in hearty fellowship that night, and they all knew now that they were not intent on doing one another harm. The chairman had said that they would be able to go through the tail of Halley's Comet safely, but he would rather they passed through the body of it than endeavour to pass through some of the local licensing bodies. He looked back on this year and saw that he had done a little good. All sections of the industry had been brought together in a better state of feeling towards one another, and he wished to thank Mr. Broughton and Mr. Griffiths for the way in which they had co-operated in bringing about that result.

Mr. F. R. Griffiths, chairman of the K.T.P.S., referred to the last dinner, at which forty-six, he believed, were present, and he knew them all. Now he knew about two-thirds of them. There were so many sections of the Trade now that it was difficult to divide them up. His own society had been about a year in operation and he believed it had done good work.

Mr. W. H. Broughton, chairman of the Cinematograph Defence League, said he was proud of the meeting that night. It was owing to Mr. Ogden Smith that the Defence League existed, because he promptly called a meeting, which he advertised in the Press, and called the showmen together. They had reached a crisis, and cohesion was absolutely necessary to their interests. There was not a person interested in the Trade who would not have suffered by reason of the regulations, and they would have suffered considerably more had the League not been in existence. They had now got the Home Office regulations drastically altered, but the difficulty they had to contend with now was the interpretation put upon them by the local authorities. They were glad to have the co-operation of manufacturers, who had helped them in every possible way, and he was pleased to say that they had subscribed 100 guineas to their funds. It was a great thing to have the whole of the business together, and in this respect their thanks were also due to Mr. Griffiths, Mr. Jury, and Mr. Squier. Mr. Brandon, of the London County Council, who was present, had been Vice-Chairman of the Theatres and Music-halls Committee of the Council, and had worked hard on behalf of the cinematograph industry. Mr. Brandon had always assisted the League when they went to the County Council, and they owed him their gratitude for his assistance. With regard to Sunday opening, what they wanted was that there should be no differentiation, and if other places were closed on Sunday then picture theatres might also be closed. They would fight as long as there was any possibility of winning, and the League would be in the front rank of the fighters.

Mr. G. W. Grant, in proposing "Our Guests," said the cinematograph industry had passed from childhood to manhood, and was taking its place amongst the most useful industries of the world. He welcomed those outside the Trade who were their guests that evening, and he had pleasure in coupling with the toast the name of Colonel F. W. Bosworth, the chairman of the Automobile Association.

Colonel Bosworth, in reply, thanked those assembled for permitting him to share their hospitality. He considered that picture shows were doing good work in providing amusement and education for countless millions of people, and therefore deserved to be supported. He understood that the reunion of all branches of the trade was to be an annual event, and he offered his good wishes for its success.

Mr. E. H. Bishop proposed the toast of "The Press," to which Mr. E. T. Heron and Mr. Archibald Hunter responded.

The health of "The Chairman" was then proposed by Mr. H. A. Browne, and was drunk with musical honours.

Mr. G. R. Sims suitably replied, and the proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem. In the course of the evening a photograph of the guests was taken, and an agreeable musical entertainment, arranged by Mr. Sidney Gandy, was provided by Miss Edith Blanchard, Mr. Randell Jackson, Mr. Archie Naish, and Mr. Gandy. Mr. Cyril Weller was the pianist.

The Royal Canadian Pictures still continue to do good business at the Temperance Hall, Barnsley. The hall is now complete, and includes a new gallery with tip-up chairs. On Sunday last the management gave a benefit for the Children's Ward of the local hospital.

To meet the requirements of the local magistrates, additional exits have been provided at the Winter Hall, Worthing, but the work has not in any way interfered with performances, during which several excellent films have been shown to appreciative audiences.

From Cabin Boy to King is a very interesting film shown this week at the King's, Hanley. Leather Stockings; or, the Last of the Mohicans, is thrilling with excitement; The Witch of the Glen, The Box Trick, Hypnotic Influence, and A Servant's Exaggerations are also much enjoyed. Barnaby Rudge, in splendid songs, and smartly dressed, makes a big hit.

A splendid film, Love and Treason, depicting scenes from M. Leroy's novel, is the chief item at the Electric Theatre, Wolverhampton. The programme also includes The Malmer Isles, Diana of the Mill, Golf Mania, Prison in Preference to Starvation, Hats, The Servants' Master, and Duty and Conscience.

The programme at the Palace Theatre, Cork, is full of good things. Herbert Clifton, vocalist, has some very clever theatrical impersonations, for which he gains much applause; the Pichel Troupe supply risley and acrobatic acts of a clever and daring description; David O'Leary, step-dancer, contributes some excellent dances; the Sisters Casselli, duettists and dancers, render catchy numbers and supply graceful dances; Almon contributes balancing and jumping turns on his hands; Marjorie Ward, vocalist, sings attractive songs; and Stanhope Gordon, comedian and dancer, also contributes a capital turn.

"Humorous and Tragic Stories of Showman Life." Told by the Rev. Thomas Horne, Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild. Price 6d., post free 7½d. Address: The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE FIRST SITE IN THE COUNTRY.

TO OUTSIDE AMUSEMENT CATERERS AND OTHERS WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

TAKE NOTICE that the Buildings and Marine Park, known as the KURSAAL, SOUTHEND, have been taken over by a Company known as

and it is proposed to lay out the grounds as an American Fun Park, and already some of the finest and most successful amusement devices in the world have been arranged for. There are still a few Vacant Plots TO LET for and the Management will be pleased to have applications for same.

The Management have secured, at enormous expense, the housing of the Airship which will attempt a flight from New York to England during August of this year. The Airship will ascend at Southend prior to its attempt to cross the ocean.

Southend is the nearest Seaport to London.

Splendid Railway and Steamboat facilities. The Site and Travelling facilities make a Show, but a Show can't make a Site.

THE CINEMATOGRAPH ACT.

Harsh Interpretation of their Powers by the West Ham Corporation.

Unfortunately, there have been several instances of the harsh administration of the Cinematograph Act by public bodies in various parts of the United Kingdom.

Evidence of these hard cases for individual showmen is being carefully collected by the executive officials of the Showmen's Guild.

It is obvious that the grievances of travelling showmen under the unreasonable local conditions imposed by certain Corporations will have to be brought to the notice of the Home Secretary. It was never intended that an Act of Parliament passed to secure the safety of the public should be turned into an instrument of oppression and persecution, and in the glaring instance we are now dealing with of total prohibition of travelling shows.

West Ham Refuses to Licence Travelling Shows.

This extreme course is obtained by interpreting the Act as giving them powers to impose the same conditions with regard to seating accommodation upon show booths as they impose upon permanent picture palaces.

If the Act gives Corporations this power of refusing to recognise the essential differences between the three kinds of exhibition buildings or structures specifically referred to in the Statutory Regulations under the Act issued by the Home Secretary, then undoubtedly it will be necessary to approach Parliament with an amended Act at the earliest possible moment.

Fortunately, the Showmen's Guild obtained at the last moment a valuable exemption clause, which made the local conditions subject to the regulations which may from time to time be issued to meet difficulties in the administration of the Act.

In the instance we are now considering the Corporation of West Ham refuses to recognise that its local conditions are in any way subject to the exemption clause, and for all practical purposes demands the same structural conditions and the same seating accommodation in a show booth as they demand in permanent buildings.

With brutal frankness one member of the Corporation said "that they did not want travelling shows in the Borough of West Ham; what they wanted was permanent buildings."

Some Details of the Controversy.

Messrs. Alf. Ball and Son, with their beautiful portable picture palace, the New Lyceum, went into winter quarters towards the end of December last year. In due course the proprietors applied to the Borough of West Ham, as the licensing authority under the Act, for a licence as a travelling show. All the conditions imposed by the Act of Parliament were complied with—the fireproof box, an adequate number of exits, and the electric lighting—to the satisfaction of the inspecting officials of the Corporation. A delay arose owing to the Sunday opening controversy, in which the proprietors, like many other showmen, were interested; for the Corporation of West Ham, like the London County Council, took several weeks to consider the point whether they should allow cinematograph shows to be opened or not on a Sunday.

Upon this point alone the issue of the licence was delayed. The Council ultimately decided—as London did—only to issue a six days' licence, and not to allow Sunday shows.

In the meantime the Corporation formulated a series of "Local Conditions," in addition to the requirements of the Statutory Regulations issued by the Secretary of State. These conditions were sanctioned on March 8, and sent out to Mr. Ball on the 10th with an intimation that if he would comply with all their requirements his application for a licence would be considered on the 15th at the meeting of the Licensing Committee.

The conditions laid down included: "That complete plans and sections of the buildings in duplicate drawn on tracing cloth, from scale of one inch to every eight feet, and by block plans, also in duplicate, showing the position of the building in relation to the adjoining lands and premises and to the street."

Here let us remark upon the absurdity of such a demand with regard to a travelling show. It would require a travelling architect with each exhibition, before the show dare remove to another town, going on in advance and taking sketches and drawing plans at a scale of one inch to every eight feet, and submitting such plans before the show could be built up.

Another condition was: "That no shouting, noise, or music produced by mechanical or human means, or any mechanical attractions will be allowed on the threshold or outside the building."

Our comment upon this exhibition of the wisdom of the "Solons" of the West Ham Corporation is, that their requirements would be best met by turning over the catering of popular amusements to a community of Trappist Monks vowed to perpetual silence.

Now we come to the particular regulation that bars all travelling shows exhibiting cinematograph films within the Borough of West Ham.

"That all seats shall be securely fixed, and that the number of persons to be admitted to the exhibitions should be regulated by the seating provided in the building, as shown on the plans submitted to and approved by the Council."

Messrs. Ball and Son had provided to the satisfaction of the inspecting officials the essential requirements of the Act, an absolutely fireproof and up-to-date operator's box. They had more than enough exits, every shutter of their booth contained an exit, and to the knowledge of the borough surveyor an audience of over 600 had been cleared from the building in a minute's time.

It does not require any comment on our part on this "local condition." If a show booth so admirably constructed as Ball and Son's New Lyceum is not a perfect structure, with its numerous exits, for exhibition purposes, then no building is fit for a licence. It requires but a moment's consideration and the most elementary knowledge of the construction of modern show booths to demonstrate that travelling shows cannot be made subject to the same conditions as regards seating that are rightly imposed upon permanent structures.

It is of the very nature of a show travelling from fair to fair that the greater portion of the audience should be standing and not seated. There are, of course, seats provided for a considerable number of the audience. In the show in question there are 400 seats, the rest of the audience stand; and we submit that the standing audience, with the abundant provision of exits on both sides of the show, are in a safer position in the event of fire and panic than they would be if seated, there being only a step from the inside to the outside of the building.

Another Drastic Local Condition.

"That the licence shall only allow of the building or structure being erected in the Borough of West Ham for a period of seven days, at the end of which time the building is to be taken down and removed out of the borough, and that the building may not be erected within the borough for more than four such periods within any one year."

This is the most extraordinary abuse of "Local Conditions" under the Cinematograph Act that has been brought under the notice of the Guild officials.

Fruitless Effort of the Guild to Obtain Fairplay.

Immediately on receiving Messrs. Ball and Son's complaint, and a copy of the Local Conditions, the Rev. T. Horne, for the Guild, wrote to the Corporation, requesting that a deputation might be heard on the matter at the Licensing Meeting. The request was granted, and the Guild Chaplain, accompanied by Mr. Alfred Ball, attended the Licensing Committee on Tuesday, the 15th inst.

The deputation was informed by the chairman that only one speaker would be permitted to address the Committee. The Rev. T. Horne explained at length the part the Guild had taken in obtaining amendments covering the show business as distinct and separate from permanent and temporary buildings when the Cinematograph Bill was in its last stages in Parliament. He pointed out in detail the essential difference between show booths and other kinds of buildings, and the manifest unfairness of applying the same regulations and conditions to travelling shows as to permanent buildings.

He pointed out in particular that their local condition restricting the erection of shows within their borough to one week at a time, and not more than four weeks in any one year, was distinctly in restraint of trade and also an invasion of the rights of property, for it prevented landowners letting their land except under practically prohibitory conditions.

He pleaded with the Committee that, in consideration of the fact that Mr. Ball had waited so long for their decision, he was entitled to kindly treatment, and he asked the Committee to waive some of their local conditions and grant the licence, so that Mr. Ball could go about his business, and commence his round of fairs as he intended doing Easter week.

The points at issue between travelling showmen and the Corporation would of necessity be left over. It would be, he urged, a serious loss to Mr. Ball to find himself without a licence when he moved to his first Fair at the beginning of his touring season.

The deputation were asked to withdraw.

After about ten minutes' consideration the deputation was called into the committee room.

The chairman said "that the Committee had decided that unless Mr. Ball provided the full complement of seats required by their local conditions they would not licence him. He further expressed the opinion that it would be better for Mr. Ball to take out a licence elsewhere, where the conditions might be less exacting.

This pronouncement of the chairman was emphasised by the frank expression of opinion by a member of the Committee, which we have already quoted, "That they did not want travelling shows inside the Borough of West Ham."

For Messrs. Ball and Sons this decision is of the most serious moment; unless they can obtain a licence within the next seven days it will imperil their Eastertide business. As already intimated, the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild will bring the action of the West Ham Corporation under the notice of the Home Secretary and the President of the Local Government Board. It is not too much to expect that measures will be taken by the Government to secure that legislation passed for public safety shall not be used as an instrument of oppression to injure and to penalise the travelling showman.

New York Audiences.

"A NEW YORK audience loves to look upon itself as the most critical in the world," writes Mr. Hermann Klein in "Unmusical New York," recently published by John Lane. "It is taught to believe that it is, but I venture to assert that it is nothing of the sort. It knows whether it is pleased or not, but that is a very different thing from knowing upon what standards of artistic judgment its criticism is based; very different from manifesting that knowledge with conviction and authority. Converse for five minutes with a typical music-lover—especially one of the fair sex—and if words can convey it, you will receive an impression of lofty ideals, of exalted standards, of what the Germans call 'schwärmerei' anent art and artists that will cause your soul to rejoice. A closer acquaintance will very possibly modify your sensations of joy. . . . This display of verbal eclecticism and gushing superficialities amounts to nothing more than a pose. Your interlocutor speedily deserts the subject in hand for an effusive outpouring concerning something or somebody else."

Criticism by Comparison.

"Criticism of a singer or an executant," we are informed, "is almost always in the nature of a comparison. For example, you ask a young lady what she thinks of Pachmann. She answers, 'Pachmann plays Chopin very well, but I prefer Paderewski—he is so much greater all round!' 'Mahler is a fine conductor—just as intellectual as he can be. But, say, imagine what he would be if for once he could feel an opera like Campanini! Now, if he'd only throw down his baton and shake his fist at his orchestra like Safonoff, why, he'd drive me crazy!' Always the same subtle anxiety to show that people and things can be a little better than they are," adds the candid chronicler.

Flattering Critics.

"Of one thing, however, I am quite certain. The critics, if they do not spare the artists, have a habit of flattering their readers that does undeniable harm. They declare with untiring reiteration that New York is the greatest musical city in the world; that no other public can compare with it either for its love of opera or the amount of money that it spends on opera; that its verdict is essential to the immortal fame of every star in the musical firmament, that its opinions now stand higher in universal estimation than those of the leading European centres, and so on, ad nauseam.

How to Keep Beautiful.

"FIRST and foremost, as the greatest beautifier, and at the same time, the most inexpensive one, I would put fresh air," says Miss Winifred Emery in M.A.P. "I believe in living, sleeping, and eating in the freshest air you can get. To live well and healthily (and one cannot be beautiful without health), one must breathe properly, and for this one must have plenty of air. I live with my windows wide open, and there is nothing better for the complexion. Sunshine may bronze one's face and even redden one's nose for the time being, but that soon wears off and the invigorating effect remains. This is especially the case when one goes for a summer holiday."

Hair and Figure.

"FOR the figure I believe in Swedish exercises and walking whenever possible. A certain amount of exercise is absolutely necessary for everyone, but, of course, it must be regulated to suit each individual constitution. A beautiful head of hair has always been considered a great adjunct to beauty, and I do not think that one can be too careful of one's hair and one's teeth. I wash my hair about once in three weeks and leave it down whenever possible. Whenever I take a seaside holiday I bathe and swim every day, and, contrary to all the laws laid down by the hairdressers, I always bathe my head as well as my body. Almost everyone, and certainly every hairdresser to whom I have confessed that I do this, has informed me that I will ruin my hair. I have not ruined it, and, without any doubt whatever, after only a few days' sea-bathing I find that the sea-water, far from spoiling it, brightens it and seems to restore the colour."

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BERNARD have suffered a severe loss in the death of their little daughter. All who know her will extend their sympathy to the bereaved parents.

FILM GOSSIP.

"Elektra" Bioscoped.

STRAUSS'S Elektra has been pictured by the Vitagraph Company. The moving pictures are a different version of this thrilling tragedy, and a creation unequalled in elegance of scenic and histrionic art, calling into play the authorised details as suggested by Homer's "Iliad" and other works of Grecian literature and record.

Bioscoping the Boat Race.

THE Warwick Trading Company are taking a film of the 'Varsity Boat Race on Wednesday next. Arrangements have been made whereby the Company secure about four views on the course, somewhat following the lines of their last year's picture, which was of a most interesting character. The approximate length will be about 180 feet.

A Good Comic.

THE Unfortunate Day is a Walturdaw comic of the rough-and-tumble order that audiences always enjoy. Tom Daren is thrown into a state of excitement by a message from his aunt that she intends visiting him in order to be introduced to his fiancée. The occasion warrants great preparations in both dress and surroundings, and after Tom has struggled into his gorgeous habiliments he sallies forth, but is met with disaster at once, as in passing under a balcony where a lady is watering plants he receives not only a shower-bath, but a plant and pot upon his new silk hat. After pulling himself together, he goes on a little farther, when a water-cart sprays him from head to foot. Disaster after disaster overtakes him, but he pluckily perseveres until he reaches a florist's, where he purchases a huge bouquet, which also comes to grief. Finally, he meets his aunt with her innumerable packages, which they stow away in a carriage, and after more vicissitudes they manage to reach Tom's intended's residence, where he receives the comforting that his adventures entitle him to.

The Course of True Love.

A STORY of what might have been is the theme of the latest Markt film, to be released next week. Man's unfaithfulness is woman's greatest sorrow, and Mrs. Thurston suffered this, for her husband night after night returned from the club in an intoxicated condition. Their daughter Florabel, is betrothed to Ben Lawrence, a prosperous young artist. Lawrence is good-natured and a favourite. We find him in his studio at a canvas, and while thus engaged, a little flower-girl enters to sell her flowers. He doesn't want any, but finding the poor girl faint and cold from hunger, he makes her sit and eat the lunch that has been laid for him. She has hardly started eating when he hears the approach of someone, and to relieve her embarrassment he draws a screen around her. It is a party of his artist friends. Meanwhile, Lawrence's fiancée has started with some friends for the studio, arriving there just after the artists. Florabel espies the flower-girl seated behind the screen, and as he is working at the portrait of a man, reasons that she is not a mere model. She leaves the studio abruptly, and tells her fears to her mother. Lawrence calls to learn why his sweetheart left the atelier so suddenly. In response he receives a curt note to the effect that "she cannot see him and trusts he will not call again." Quite beside himself as to the cause, the reason dawns upon him. Throwing her note upon the table, he proceeds to pack his belongings, intending to go away, when the flower-girl enters. She learns that she is the innocent cause of his trouble, and hastens to right the wrong. Meeting Florabel she explains all, and they hurry back to catch Lawrence just as he is leaving the place.

Cinematograph Studio Work.

As will be seen by a reference to our advertising columns, first-class leading artists are required by Mr. T. J. Gobbett for work in his high-class cinematograph studio, which has just been built and fitted with first-class accommodation. The applications only of thoroughly experienced and known artists will be entertained. The work will not interfere with their engagements, and studio hours are 10 to 4.

An Old Favourite Revived.

No firm could desire a higher testimonial to the merit of its subjects than that conveyed to Messrs. Cricks and Martin by the repeated requests of film buyers that they should reissue their delightfully humorous skit on amateur vocalists. Sister Mary Jane's Top Note was issued some time ago, and will be new to 90 per cent. of the present-day picture public. Large orders were received immediately the makers decided to reissue it, and showmen should make a point of getting a copy. It is the kind of comic which appeals with equal force to all classes of the community.

An Impressive Picture.

THE Comerio film, The Fury of the Waves, which the Cosmopolitan Company will issue on April 2, is a remarkable illustration of the powers of the sea, as well as a subject of considerable beauty and fine quality. The Northern Italian town at which it was secured is slowly but surely being covered by the sea, and the views of the waves dashing right up to the walls of the house, and of the huge breaches made in the breakwaters, &c., erected to resist the encroachment of the sea, are a wonderful object lesson of the latter's wonderful powers. Incidentally, some fine sea scapes are introduced, and this film well deserves the position of headliner in the best of bills.

The Ubiquitous Foolshead.

LOOK out for Foolshead Wishes to Marry the Guv'nor's Daughter, and Am I Mad; they are the class of films which are talked of by all who see them, and will do much to advertise the theatre that shows them.

The Grand National.

BY far the most important Bioscope picture exhibited in London during the year is that of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, for which the directors of the Empire have again secured the sole rights. The taking of this picture, which will be exclusively shown at the Empire Theatre, entails the greatest care and forethought, so that a complete record of the classic event may be obtained from start to finish by the large number of cameras employed. The course has again been inspected this year to this end and special arrangements have been entered into with the Railway Company to ensure the despatch of the films to London immediately after the race.

Join the Defence League.

IF you have not already joined the Cinematograph Defence League, you should do so at once. Grand work is being done by the League, which is formed for the purpose of dealing with the Cinematograph Act, 1909, and all matters arising therefrom.

New Field for Moving Pictures.

OUR New York correspondent sends us a long account of a remarkable demonstration of scientific pictures which took place a fortnight ago before the Board of Education and the Ethical-Social League at the Church of the Messiah, 34th-street, New York. Large numbers of ministers and doctors assembled and took the keenest interest in the proceedings. Among the new devices was the Electrolysis of Water, Action of Nitric Acid on Silver, and Action of Aqua Regia on Metallic Gold. On the screen was thrown the test-tube, many times enlarged, containing the silver wire, on which the acid was poured. Immediately very visible bubbles of hydrogen began to arise as the acid dissolved the silver, and as the action became more rapid the wire wriggled and squirmed until it finally disappeared. Owing to the increased size, developments on the screen could be watched much more closely than the regulation class-room demonstration.

Two Fly Films.

MOST highly educational, though not particularly pretty, is the fly film, made up at the request of the Water Pollution Association. Nothing is left to the imagination. First, there is the fly laying eggs in unsavoury places, and then, before the eyes of the spectators, the eggs develop into a wriggling heap of maggots. When the final stage, the winged musica domestica, is reached, the plates dilate on its unsanitary practices. To remove the impression left by this film, it is followed by a clever piece, called The Acrobatic Fly, in which the fly, many times enlarged, appears lying on its back, and with its feet juggles various articles, and even swinging around a dumbbell as large, or as small, as the insect itself. A ball is substituted, and while the first fly keeps this going, a second fly mounts on top, and treads the ball with all the seriousness of a circus elephant performing the same feat.

Life Inside an Egg.

THE life history of a chicken, called From the Egg to the Spit, is a French film. First the eggs are put in the incubator, and then a series of diagrams and dissections show what is going on inside the egg. Other bits of lore, such as forced feeding, follow.

A Study of Epilepsy.

JOHN COLLIER, of the Censorship Board, told how a clinic in Vienna is now making a study of epilepsy by means of moving pictures showing the facial contortions of the afflicted people. In this way, it is becoming possible to classify and diagnose the types of epilepsy by the facial contortions manifested. Vivisection for academic purposes is becoming less and less necessary.

A Bioscope Dispute.

IN the London Sheriffs' Court last Tuesday the case of Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope Company v. Bernhardt, Jay, and Mann, and the Brighton Palace Pier Company, Ltd., which had been remitted from the High Court, came up for the assessment of damages. It was alleged that the defendants had advertised and exhibited at the Palace Pier Pavilion a bioscope entertainment as "Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope." As a matter of fact, it was not Ruffell's entertainment, and as the films shown were not of the class supplied by them, and were not up to date, the plaintiffs submitted they had suffered injury. It was announced that the defendants had consented to judgment for 20 guineas being entered against them, on the understanding that in the case of Jay and Mann execution should be suspended for a month after the taxing of costs. Mr. Moverley Sharpe remarked that the matter arose out of a misunderstanding.

New Pictures for the Palace.

ON Monday next, at the Palace Theatre, Mr. Alfred Butt, in conjunction with Mr. Charles Urban, joint inventor of "Kinemato-color," will exhibit for the first time a most picturesque series of life-motion scenes lately photographed in the actual tints of nature, and depicting Arab Life at Biskra. Not without considerable difficulty have these films been taken, for the roving Moor, with "the eye and temper of a hawk," is not yet quite in touch with the Bioscope; nevertheless, some splendid pictures of present-day features in the Barbary States include the Arab Market at Maison Carre, Bedouin girls, Moorish merchants, scenes on the road to Mustapha, and the orange harvest at Boujarik.

Finsbury Park Cinema Theatre.

THERE is probably not a more comfortable picture theatre in North London than the Finsbury Park Cinematograph Theatre. The series of pictures are wholly changed three times a week—Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays—and there are six sets of pictures, of different subjects in each series, the whole half-dozen occupying a period of an hour and twenty minutes to run off the 3,500 feet of films. Variety is lent by the inclusion of a "singing picture," in which the vivaphone takes a prominent part, and a coloured picture. Examples as to how the management of this theatre keeps abreast of the times is evidenced by the fact that the football cup-tie at Swindon, in which Tottenham was interested, although not finishing until 5 o'clock, was developed in the train, and shown to the audience at Finsbury Park shortly after 8 o'clock the same evening. Similarly the Cup-tie next week at the Tottenham ground, between Swindon and Newcastle United, will be shown about an hour after the event. There is no Sunday performance, and Mr. J. H. Richardson has recently been appointed manager of the theatre.

Kensington P.P.

THE Kensington Picture Theatre programme this week makes a fine array of subjects. There is Calino Goes Travelling (Gaumot); Honesty Its Own Reward (Eclair); Electric Train from Fayet to Chamonix (Gaumont); Doctor Phantom (Warwick); The Day After (American Biograph); Amusements and Sports in India (Pathés); Cherries (Pathés); The Pact (Pathés); and The Darling of their Hearts (Warwick).

A PROGRAMME of unusual excellence is provided at the Electric Theatre, Leamington. The chief pictures are a very piquant version in modernised form of Little Red Riding Hood, and Cherries, a charming little story in twelve tableaux. Other subjects of a dramatic nature include The Hump-backed Man, The Gamekeeper's Sons, and Thief by Necessity; whilst much amusement is caused by The Process of Liquefaction. Mr. Harry Lewis has two very fine songs this week, which he renders in a masterly style; and the elocutionist, Mr. Bert Williams, receives warm praise for his excellent interpretation of The Newsboy's Debt.

NOTICE.—OPTION CLAUSE.

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having, in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option.

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intentionto exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them.

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists working in the North of England who have odd weeks vacant are invited to communicate with the Local Manager at above Theatre, with a view to arranging a trial week.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jackson Withers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company is here in Her Road to Ruin. Mr. Charles Dickens is a very effective Frank Temple; Mr. Kendrew Wilson sustains with vigour the rôle of Tom Wells; Miss Ada Champion furnishes a sympathetic and clever portrayal of Jess Willoughby; whilst Miss Maud Gill does excellent work as May Willoughby; Mr. Alex Bradley depicts with force the dramatic traits of Philip Hardy; and the remaining parts are in capable hands.

ABERDARE. — NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is presenting The Dairymaids. Miss Winnie Hall as Peggy is admirable throughout; Mr. Richard Telford causes endless amusement as Lieutenant Sam Brudenell; Eliza is in the capable hands of Miss Nellie Le Breton; Mr. Norman Bowyer achieves success as Joe Mivens, A.B., his funny antics and drolleries evoking hearty laughter, whilst the songs and dances, in which he is joined by Miss Lucy, are loudly applauded; Miss Lily Roselle is a commanding and attractive Lady Brudenell; Miss May Casson as Winifred is a charming singer and dancer; Mr. Horace Manger plays Lieutenant Frank Meredith with success; Mr. George P. Ascot is effective as Dr. O'Bryne; and Miss Julie St. George is a pleasing Penelope Pyechase.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—That finely-mounted and melodious fantasy, Alice in Wonderland, holds the boards here. Miss Ivy Sawyer, in the title-rôle, is simply perfection, and receives adequate support from, amongst others, Mr. Franklyn Vernon as the Mad Hatter; Mr. Dan Leno, jun., who doubles the parts of the Caterpillar and the Red King; and Ronald Henry and Tom Graves, as Tweedledee and Tweedledum respectively.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—The top-liner this week is George Wood, a juvenile artist of remarkable versatility. Other turns are contributed by Dan Whitley, comedian; Eddie Emmerson and Jerry Baldwin, two quaint jugglers; Miss Connon, comedienne; Stewart and Morris, smart dancers; Cosgrove and Burns, duettists; Miss May B. Brilliant, comedienne and dancer; and Reski and Reski, humorous gymnasts.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Will Casey and company are here with An Unwedded Wife. Miss Chrissie Dunbar as Marion evinces a deep earnestness, mingled with a degree of pathos, that proves convincing; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes cleverly deals with the rôle of Philip Blackstone; Mr. W. Wroe ably portrays the character of John Hawthorne; and Mr. Arthur Cheevers is a commendable Frank Armstrong. Mr. Frank Masters as P.C. O'Runyin, Mr. Will Casey as Napoleon B. Boomer, and Miss Annie Mitchell as Carraway Crumpet infuse a good deal of humour into their respective parts; Miss Ethel Spense makes a charming Elsie Langham; and a particularly clever and talented little actress is seen in Miss Doris Sorsby as Reggie.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mephisto the Mysterious heads a strong bill here, and loud applause follows each of his marvellous magical feats; Mr. and Mrs. Meymott, in the amusing little sketch My Artful Wife, prove very entertaining; and Sam Fay is a droll and mirth-provoking comedian. The Carney Bros. are popular in their vocal entertainment; the Cosmopolitan Quartette contribute largely to the success of the programme; and Ena Corelli is a dainty little comedienne. The Three Cape Girls, character comediennes and long boot dancers, win much favour; Ariel and Astarte provide a smart bar performance; and the Bioscope pictures, with up-to-date films, complete.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The variety programme presented this week includes Lilly Burnand, who sings three character songs; Will Avis, in a conjuring entertainment, assisted by Miss Varre; the Lorettes, in trapeze and wire-walking; Silvertone, in a vocal speciality; Jimmy Grant, in Scotch songs and patter; and Lily Ray, in song and dance. On Good Friday The Messiah was given by the Aldershot Choral Society.

ALEXANDRA PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Carpenter's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Crocker.—Besides the many interesting films presented, a special turn is provided in Miss Kathleen Meredith, who sings two well-rendered songs. Of the pictures, the historical story of Launcelot and Elaine stands first, being a delightfully romantic subject of King Arthur's days. Many amusing pictures are shown. The Terror and the Terrier, Persistent Snapshotters, and The Tom-Tom being among the most laughable.

WIDE WORLD PICTURES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Golder and Bert Sloman.—An interesting programme is presented here. The pictures include Lost in the Snow, the Rival Sisters, A Tragical Love, Beautiful Scandinavia, Mutiny in the Kitchen, The Boy with the Sixth Sense, The Gipsy's Warning, and Disaster in a Coal Mine. On Thursday the chief picture was the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The Eve of Her Wedding is revisiting here, Mr. Wilson Benge's company giving an effective interpretation. As George Tremain Mr. Cecil A. Melton does quite good work; Mr. Ben Carr scores as Squire Leverton; whose son Dick finds in Mr. H. Danson a capable representative. Dean Chiffton is acted with skill by Mr. Eddie Vane. Characteristic work is done by Messrs. Geo. Harvey as Rudolph Earle, Mr. Arthur Kerno as Giovanni, and Mr. Chas. W. Dockwray in the dual rôle of Paul Cairshaw and Hiram O. Younger. Mr. H. Hastings is also good as the cripple Jack Herne. Miss Annie Hylton is sufficiently unwomanly as the adventuress Renée de Telle. Miss Amy Milstrad as Edith and Miss Pauline Nanton as Marvis Leverton fulfil all that is required of them. Miss Nancy J. Clarke is capable as Gwendoline Younger.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Burslem.—Jenny Johns, the dainty comedienne, is in good form; Rene Bros. are clever comedy acrobats and ladder performers; Burns and Bentley well maintain their reputation as dancers; Bonair and Tess appear in a quick-change scena, a Japanese illusion; Stanley and Vandyke are a good comedy duo; the Claymore Trio are expert dancing club jugglers; Bert Bowden is an excellent singing comedian; Ida Kessanly's troupe of royal fox-terriers give a marvellous exhibition of animal training; and the Bioscope shows the picture No Excitement.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—The new pictures at the Pavilion for the Easter holidays are, as before, up to date and splendidly displayed. The first picture is an Indian tale of beauty and dramatic power. It tells of the love of a white man and an Indian maiden. It is called A Daughter of the Sioux. A Practical Joke and Foolshead as a Reporter are comical in the extreme. Trick Cavalry at Fort Meyer is effective in showing the evolutions of American cavalry. Pity the Poor Blind is a mirthful picture. Marriage in the Moon is a story of a marriage in the upper air. It is Jules Verne outdone. Mr. Alan Wright, the song-lecturer, sings a couple of good songs.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Marks.—Among the pictures for the week at this hall is the striking film The Mad Woman of the Castle, in which there is a touch of romance. The Burglar and Little Phillis commends itself to all who are touched with the innocence of childhood. A very pretty story is unfolded in The Child with Dancing Jack. The special artists, whose performances are witnessed with lights up, are Mr. Geo. Edney in naval officer's garb, who sings some tuneful chorus music, and Mr. Frank Whiteley, a versatile comedian.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—The bill for the week includes many pictures of great interest, but there is one in particular which attracts the attention of the sporting fraternity, namely, the pictures of the Grand National—the struggle for the Blue Riband of the "sticks"—which is vividly portrayed on the canvas. The artist who adds variety to the show is Oliver Conroy, the eccentric comedian.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—There is another lengthy picture programme here this week, which is meeting with success. The principal films are The Marriage at Trouville, an incident of the French Revolution; The Light That Failed and Laddie are full of pathos; The Squire's Romance is interesting; and mirth is provided by The Hero, Terror and Terrier, and The Door. Mr. George Smith, a favourite local comedian, is meeting with success.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—The star picture in this week's diversified bill is an absorbing and exciting military series, The Highlander's Defiance, dealing with an episode of the Boer War. Other series include The Last Deal, Pity the Blind, Runaway Table, Late for the Office, Bone-setter's Daughter, and The New Orderly. Bright selections by the Scarlet Band, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Guest, a pleasing turn by the Sisters Mayor, child artists, and songs by Mr. Sam Shipley, comedian, who has been retained another week, add variety to the programme.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Pete is produced by the Lyceum Tours Company, under the direction of Mr. Henry R. Smith.—Mr. Austin Milroy in the title rôle is a host in himself, being equally at home as the rough-and-ready miner or the distracted husband; Kate is sympathetically portrayed by Miss V. Malcolm Barnett; and Mr. Alfred Gray makes a capital Philip Christian. Cæsar Cregeen is played by Mr. Frank Stone; Ross Christian by Mr. J. Edward Fletcher; and Nancy by Miss Lucy Murray.

PICTURE PALACE.—The popularity of the pictures is as great as ever here. His Reformation (a film of intense interest), A Duel in Mid-Air, The Squire's Romance, A Good Samaritan, and A Story of Circus Life are among the good things which go to make up a varied, instructive, and amusing programme.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company in The Silver King is here. Mr. Fred B. Daviss does excellently as Wilfred Denver, and Miss Mildred Surrel is a sympathetic and artistic Nellie Denver; the Spider is cynically but cleverly done by Mr. Sydney; and the faithful Jaikes is well presented by Mr. Edward J. George; Miss Hilda Bateman is a capital Cissie Denver; and Mr. A. Hornby Warburton a typical Samuel Baxter.

TIVOLI—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—The Bellony Brothers are the top of the bill, and their extraordinary performance had a rousing reception; Little Zola is a quaint bit of humour, and is a great success; Roystone and Royce are clever dancers and good patterers; an instrumental musical act by the Les Trippellos is a real treat; Vena Valma is a pleasing comedienne. Vernon's Bioscope contribute capital pictures.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. C. Routledge.—The programme provided by the Fred Newman British Empire Picture Company is proving exceedingly popular.

BATH.—PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—This is the only regular indoor place of amusement open in Bath during this week, and the management have put on an exceptionally good programme, which includes the Narow Brothers, of comedy cycling fame; Enzer, the expert soldier-juggler, who is assisted by Miss Clarice, the lady ju-jitsu exponent; Ryder Stone, the popular comedian; Blair and Allen, in a pleasing song and dance act; Colin Mail, a light comedian who knows how to interest his hearers; and Amy Douglas, a contralto vocalist of charm. The Pictures are excellent.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Gus Levaine presents his pantomime The Babes in the Wood. Miss Marion Collins wins favour by her spirited acting and singing as Robin Hood; the sweet simplicity of Maid Marion is fittingly expressed by Miss Vera Levaine; the Misses Nellie and Violet Harvey, two pretty and talented child actresses, impersonate the Babes in charming fashion; and humour radiates irresistibly from Mr. Jim Goode and Mr. Charles Towers as Weary Willie and Tired Tim, the robbers.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a visit from Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's company in Pinkie and the Fairies. The rôle of Molly was undertaken by Miss Hilda Antony, who delighted all with her charming interpretation, and congratulations are due to Miss Iris Hawkins on her successful impersonation of Pinkie. It would indeed be difficult to equal Mr. Ambrose Manning's impersonation of Uncle Gregory, the house being kept highly amused; and a remarkably clever impersonation of Tommy was submitted by Master Philip Tonge. Miss Kate Forster in the rôle of Aunt Imogen was vocally perfect; Miss Augusta Haviland was funny as Aunt Caroline; and the rôle of the Queen of the Fairies was enacted in a winning manner by Miss Florence Lewis, her dancing being the very poetry of motion. As the Herald Master Burford Hampden was all that could possibly be desired, and an exceedingly humorous impersonation of the Gardener, Mr. Irons, was submitted by Mr. Walter R. Creighton. The rôle of Cinderella could hardly be in better hands than those of Miss Gwennie Brogden, and Miss Doreen Wayliss was an accomplished Dick Whittington.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The attraction here this week is the domestic drama The Shadow of a Crime, by Nita Rae, and is produced by Mr. R. Hewland's company. Mr. Whitmore Ledger was thoroughly successful as Jim Murdock, and a convincing impersonation of Captain Harry Bullington was submitted by Mr. Paul Neville. Mr. Victor Gordon was an effective Ralph Esmond, and Miss Madge Severne interpreted the rôle of Loyale Norman with undoubted skill. Humour was introduced by Mr. Harry Creamer as Samuel Brown, and the rôle of Mrs. Brown was capitally sustained by Miss Violette Vivienne.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The remarkable dog Dan is a great attraction here, and his wonderful performance has been enthusiastically received. Dan appears in conjunction with Barnard's animal actors. Captain Kettle is a smart card and coin manipulator, and Mr. Jack Smiles is one of the drollest of comedians. Juno Salmo submits an act which is not alone novel but decidedly clever, and Mr. Geo. S. Melvin is a capital Scotch comedian and dancer. Duncan and Brasque return with their well-acted sketch, A Society Butterfly, and the Brilliants, comediennes and dancers, make a big hit. Also on the programme are Miss Adelaide Waldorf, the famous Australian soprano, the Ongars, in their speciality act, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The leading attraction here is furnished by the Albert and Edmunds' troupe, in a farcical absurdity, The Tower of London, which has created roars of laughter. Woods, Wells, and Wilkins stage their comedy sketch, The Piano-Tuner, with the most satisfactory results; Mr. Jules Karno creates much enthusiasm with his hand-balancing feats; Miss Eva Murray is a charming comedienne and fine dancer; and the same remark applies to the performance of Miss Hilda Mascot. Cadwall and Verne, comedy artists, take well; and the bill is completed by Mr. Walter Curtis, comedian, and the Bioscope.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—A return visit from Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow is hailed with great satisfaction. Miss Phyllys Le Grand wins the highest encomiums with a spirited and charming performance of Sonia; and Mr. Fred Leslie is irreproachable as Prince Danilo; Miss Ada Thomas is well suited as Natalie; Baron Popoff is finely played by Mr. Edward D'Arcy; Mr. Ripley Evans is an excellent Vicomte; Mr. Fred Fowler as Nisch and Miss Katie May as Frou-Frou are also worthy of commendation. A powerful chorus and augmented orchestra add to the effect, the scenery and costumes are first-class, and the play is produced under the direction of Mr. J. A. E. Malone.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—Hayman and Franklin's company in the sketch Toplitsky; or, the End of the World, is the principal turn here, and has created an excellent impression; Mr. F. V. St. Clair, the popular topical vocalist, is on a welcome return visit, and Miss Madge Temple, an accomplished comedienne, is a general favourite; Charles Harvey and company, in The Broken Statue, are well received; and an excellent combination also included Mr. Bert Erroll, a smart female impersonator; Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers; Carr and Rose, vocalists; W. B. Raby, comedian, Harry Brown, coloured comedian and dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope with some up-to-date pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. Harry Tilbury's company, in His Dishonoured Wife, with Miss Belle Tilbury as Florence Lindon, and Mr. A. George Fry as Frank Lindon give a very creditable production.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The picture matinées are the only attractions this week, and an excellent series of films are being shown to good audiences.

PRINCE OF WALES'S. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Miss Horniman's Repertory company from the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, is paying its first visit to Birmingham, and the plays selected are presented artistically. The week opened with Widowers' Houses, by Bernard Shaw; Tuesday and Thursday were devoted to Candida, by the same author; and Wednesday to Cupid and the Styx. Among the players Miss Edyth Goodall, Mr. Basil Dean, Mr. B. Iden Payne, and Mr. Charles Bibby are prominent.

BORDESLEY PALACE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward. — Uncle Tom's Cabin, played by Mr. Charles Harrington's company, is well staged. Mr. J. H. Boehm called forth admiration for his impersonation of Uncle Tom, and the characters of George and Eliza Harris are ably dealt with by Mr. David Blair and Miss Hero Hathaway. Mr. A. Hayes as Phineas Fletcher makes a capital Quaker, and Mr. Charles Harrington finds scope for his abilities as Mr. St. Clair. Miss Gene Lloyd gives a notable portrayal as Little Eva, being particularly effective in the death-bed scene.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The programme is divided up between bioscope pictures and drama, and the entertainment is thoroughly appreciated by good houses. The pictures include some exciting dramatic subjects and also laughable adventures. Mr. Richard Marndyke is presenting the clever drama, The Diamond Thieves, in which a Scotland Yard detective, named Holmlock Shears, is represented realistically by Mr. Eustace Daly; Mr. Marndyke gives a good account of his abilities as the head of the diamond thieves; and Messrs. A. Winters and H. Sloane are also conspicuous in a good company.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Manager, Mr. Martin Morris. — Her Secret Lover is presented in attractive style by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 company. Miss Laura Walker makes a hit as Ivy Seymour, and Mr. Arthur St. John has excellent opportunities as Gilbert Seymour. Mr. Walter H. Wilson gives an effective portrayal as Captain Darrell Rose, and Mr. J. Newton-Cowling is successful as Jim Jones. Miss Flora Leslie gives a careful representation as Alvia Royal, and Miss Lynn-Darlington acts well as a comedy character.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—There is a bill of all-round merit, and crowded audiences show warm appreciation. The Courtiers, a company of clever performers, present an acceptable bit of condensed musical comedy; Ernest Shand has some new and up-to-date songs and patter, and he is as popular as ever; James Willard and company successfully present a striking military playlet, entitled The Devil's Box of Tricks; the Marco Twins, in their knockabout comedy act, are exceedingly funny; the Avolos are exceptionally clever acrobats, who performed many wonderful feats; Litty Ganty is a popular comedian here; Barrington is responsible for a remarkable exhibition of piano-playing; Cole and Rags, comedians; Tiny Arnold, comedienne; and Bioscope pictures of the Grand National complete a strong programme.

THE GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—An excellent programme is headed by Arthur Roberts, in The Importance of Being Another Man's Wife; warm praise is due to Miss Wish Wynne, a pretty, vivacious, and versatile comedienne; Edward Crosland's Melody Makers strike an original vein in their scena, The Burglar's Dream, which contains pleasing singing and musical items; Barry Lupino, a local pantomime favourite, contributes a skilful dance; Otto and Lola Tate, in a bar-parlour scene, are clever and humorous acrobats; Heeley and Meeley, the lucky tramps, are smart entertainers. Other attractions include Harry Herbert, comedian; Sisters Barnes, duettists and dancers; and Lilian Rose.

GAIETY.—General Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The principal feature in a capital all-round programme is the romantic sketch, The Hold-Up, presented by Mr. Taylor Granville. La Belle Nello is a charming singer and a clever acrobat; the Three Phydoras are clever eccentric musicians; the Calcots amuse in a scena entitled "Rags and Tatters"; Nash and Noel are versatile comedians and dancers; Jessie Buckle is a comedienne with a good style; and other popular purveyors of humour are Charlie Stevens, Horace Jones, and Chas. Penrose. The bill is completed by excellent pictures on the Gaietoscope.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Rameses is proving a good top-liner in "The Egyptian Temple of Mysteries" with a series of clever tricks which completely puzzle audiences. The Four Vagabonds are a comedy vocal combination of talent, and the Cattaneos perform astonishing acrobatic feats, making a feature of double somersaults. Alfred Menzies, "the Musical Burglar," uses his admirable tenor with good effect; the Three Cunards score in a dancing speciality; Fred Land sends houses into fits of laughter with his humorous songs; Amy Russell also makes a hit in well-chosen songs; and Dorothy Gould and Bessie Heins are pleasing comediennes.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Lafayette is the star attraction here; the Three Florodoras present a delightful comedy act, Two's Company, Three's None; Bert Rayburn amuses everyone with his quaint comic songs; the Oakes duo present a clever comedy sketch, Making a Man of Her; T. E. Johnstone is a favourite comedian; and Ray and Lingard provoke laughter in a smart duologue.

CURZON HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Waller Jeffs.—This week the management of the New Century Pictures have recommenced the one-house nightly system, and the change has proved highly successful. The dramatic fare includes, amongst other pictures of merit, The Vendean Rebel, The Doctor's Sacrifice, and For Her Sake. An interesting coloured film gives splendid views of the Pagodas of Rangoon. Miss Dora Kingsley renders several songs in pleasing voice.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. P. Moore and B. Kennedy.—A feature of a splendid programme of up-to-date pictures is a thrilling subject, The Way of the Cross, illustrating a story of Christian martyrdom; The Death Disc is the title of a dramatic picture portraying an incident of the Cromwell period. Arthur Wyre is a tenor singer of merit, and Ida Rochefort and Eva Ray are popular duettists. On Wednesday evening a good picture of the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race was exhibited.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. B. Kennedy and J. P. Moore.—Patrons are delighted with a first-class programme of animated pictures and vaudeville. Amongst a good series of humorous subjects are The Runaway Stove, Wonderful Machine Oil, and the Short-sighted Governess. Miss Ella Kington and Miss Ella Pine are popular entertainers.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company is here in A Life for a Life. Mr. Lester depicts the part of Don Leon Fernandes; Mr. Hugh Travers is to the fore as Pedro Li Calci; and Mr. Geo. Daiper is a hard worker in his presentation of Kit Oswald; Little Winnie Warden is a very capable child actress, playing the rôle of Venetta charmingly; Mr. W. Carr is good as the Sheriff; and a fascinating portrayal of Kate Evelyn; Miss Lallah Davies makes the most of Aulalia; and the scenic effects are very good. The Sorrows of Satan and The Bank of England are also in the week's bill.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland, Ltd.); Managing-Director, Signor Pepo. — Capital houses are the order here this week, the billbeing headed by Mr. Adam Tomlinson,, a native of Bishop Auckland, and a clever Tyneside comedian; Corman's Twelve Juveniles are a particularly striking turn in their scena The Waif; Slippere, the blind musician, is a clever pianist; Delvaine's Marionettes provide an attractive turn; and Harrigan and Hoit, inspector and policeman; Bonnette and Corrie, in their juggling act; and the Sisters Kilner, acrobatic dancers, all present most effective turns; and the Hipposcope films continue to be interesting.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is scoring a tremendous success here this week with The Arcadians. Mr. Walter Passmore as Simplicitas is, of course, a tower of strength, and Mr. Oliver J. Round also provides endless fun in the part of Peter Doody. Miss Veronica Brady as Mrs. Smith, Miss Ethel Erskine as Sombra, and Miss Mabel Munro as Chrysea likewise merit the warmest encomiums. The staging is exceptionally fine.

GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—The Dollar Princess, as played by Mr. George Edwardes's company, is proving a capital selection for the reopening of this magnificent temple of Thespis, of which full particulars will be found in another column.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Ian Robertson's company is here in The Passing of the Third Floor Back. Mr. Ian Robertson gives a fine performance of the Passer-by, which he plays with gentleness and quiet dignity. He is ably supported by Miss Jeannie Thomas and Miss Helena Parsons, who as Mrs. Sharp and 'Stasia respectively supply clever character studies. Other performances worthy of mention are the Vivian of Miss Barbara Everest, the Miss Kite of Miss Drussila Wills, the Joey Wright of Mr. W. O. Billington, and the Jake Samuels of Mr. Stanley Brown. The piece is preceded by Mr. Ian Robertson's one-act play Come Here, in which Mr. P. Gedge Twyman, Mr. Wilson Blake, and Miss Barbara Everest appear with success.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A hearty welcome greeted Mr. George Formby, the popular comedian, on his return visit. He is supported by the Kremo Family of Risley acrobats, ten in number; Beatrice Allen, dainty comedienne; the Locardo Bros., acrobatic eccentrics; Fred Elton, in a scena entitled On Board an Ocean Liner; Will H. Fox, in a comedy musical monologue; Herbert La Martine, eccentric dancer; Miss Monie Line, in song and dance; Halma Scottish society juggler; and the Premier Imperial Pictures.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME, LTD..—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Minola Hurst and her clever Miniature Marvels head an excellent company, which also includes Harry Tate's No. 1 company in Fishing; Florrie Conolly, Irish colleen; Rappo and Ella, society gymnasts; Alice Hughes and company in a comedy sketch, Star of the Bazaar; Harry Bickley, comedian; the Sisters Maynard, refined duettists and dancers; Torti, Italian tenor vocalist; Everhart, hoop manipulator; and the Hippodrome Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The popular local favourite Billy Richardson is accorded a hearty reception; the Starley Bros. are responsible for daring acrobatic feats on bicycles; Le Mair and Harrington are amusing, as also is Harry Dunn, comedian; the singing and harmonising of the Zan-Zan Troupe is excellent; Miss Kitty Lee makes a favourable impression as a vocalist; and a bright and interesting entertainment is completed by animated pictures.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Messrs. Max Montesole and Angus MacLeod's company was here for four nights with Pinkie and the Fairies, which was well mounted. Notable among some very clever little actresses were Miss Kathleen Yorke, who made a dainty Pinkie; Miss Aileen Faithful, a delightfully charming Elf Pickle; Miss Hetty Kenyon, whose dancing was wonderful as the Queen of the Fairies; and Miss Dolly Sommers, whose dignified Herald was vastly amusing. All the "grown-ups'" parts were well filled. Miss Lucie Caine being particularly good as Cinderella; Miss Edith King as Aunt Imogen; Miss Lucie Evelyn as Aunt Caroline; Mr. Ribton Haines as Uncle Gregory; Miss Estelle Theband as the Sleeping Beauty; Mr. T. P. Haynes as the Gardener; and Miss Muriel Alston as Molly—all proved effective.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A hearty reception was given Mr. Henry Miller's clever company on Monday, when The Servant in the House was presented to a large audience. Mr. Walter Gay gave a thoroughly convincing performance of the conscientious vicar, the Rev. William Smythe, and as his ambitious wife Miss Beatrix de Burgh supported him finely. Mr. Matthew Boulton's performance of Manson was noticeable for its perfect composure and clearness of utterance; Mr. Ernest H. Paterson's assumption of the very worldly bishop, Ponsonby Makeshyfte, was excellent; Mr. Harry Parker, with a convincing and vigorous impersonation of the scavenger, Robert Smith, won well-merited success; Miss Laurie Fleckton's Mary was a charming and very natural effort; and Mr. Forrester Harvey was good as Rogers.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Alone in London is being well represented here this week by Mr. Charles Gibbon's capable company. As the much-wronged Nan Miss Nellie Clyde acts with great power, and little Miss Hetty Hornsby as the boy Paul wins sympathy. Mr. Gibbon plays the banker's son, Walter Burnaby, well; Mr. Gerald Jordan is exceedingly effective in the part of the villain, Dick Redcliffe; and as his crafty confederate Jenkinson, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson gives excellent support. Mr. Russell Corrie is admirable as John Biddlecombe; Ruth Clifton is charmingly played by Miss Lenna Vernon; and Miss Laurie O'Neill's Chickweed is cleverly sustained. The piece is effectively staged.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Change; or, The Haunted Castle is a very clever bit of stagecraft presented by the Jewels, and the weird effects in the four scenes are wonderfully well managed. Mr. James A. Jewel effectively fills the part of a miser, and is well supported by Mr. Herbert B. Jewel and a capable company. In their clever and novel instrumental performance, The Palace of Orpheus, the Elliott Savonas are again commanding great applause; Frank Cass submits comic songs acceptably; in her well-acted scena, Her Wedding Day, Ethel Newman is charming; Betty Green is a very dainty juvenile comedienne and dancer; in quaint style Victor Travers sings of brave firemen and Boy Scouts, and elicits laughter; in their laughable acrobatic turn, How to Treat a Burglar, the Maples are clever and diverting; Fayre and Manning are amusing with their "patter" and simultaneous dancing; and there are some fine pictures shown by the Bioscope.

THE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Ross and Grayson furnish plenty of comedy in a quaint sketch, Stage-struck Maggie and Her Mentor; Jimmie Pullen is a good character comedian; Miss Muffett a tiny artist as "the Canadian Mite" is interesting; Bill and Bellay, Continental eccentrics, are very diverting; Kit Keen, of pantomime fame, here entertains greatly with his coon songs and dances; Ray Royal, contralto, sings with taste and power songs well illustrated; Cassie Walmer's coon vocalism and dancing are exceptionally clever and entertaining; and the Palace Perfection Pictures are a fine feature of the programme.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Turbridge.—Mr. Keith Kenneth and company have been here for three nights with The Woman of Kronstadt. As Marion Best, an English governess, Miss Betty Fairfax gave a realistic interpretation; Miss Rosamond Thompson as Madame Beilegarde and Miss M. Kirk as Madame Repinoro were excellent; and Miss Edith Vogne did well as the Princess de Hesse; Mr. Keith G. Kenneth was a martial but soft-hearted Colonel Bonzo; as Capt. Zassulic, Mr. Bernard Copping had a part which he played admirably; Mr. Horace Sinclair enacted to the life the part of the peppery Prince Stefanoff; and Mr. J. Taylor-Vinson was very good as Baron Mulier.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—The Bells of Haslemere is performed here this week by a London company, specially selected by the management. Mr. Otto Minster gives a manly and highly popular impersonation of the hero, Frank Beresford, and Miss Marie Duncan makes a graceful heroine, Evelyn Brookfield; the villainous John Silkstone has a powerful exponent in Mr. Herbert Goddard; Mr. Harry Phillip is well placed as the crafty Joseph Thorndyke; Mr. Herbert Morgan is convincing as the adventurer, Captain Vere; and Mr. Leslie Nolan submits an excellent enactment of Matthew Brookfield, Miss Winifred Whyte as Mary Northcote and Miss Lily Duncker as Nora Desmond merit praise; Mr. Robert Aubrey is a capital Captain Salem; and much amusement is afforded by Mr. Herbert Lloyd as Reuben Armstrong and Miss Daisy Maynard as Dorothy Tremble. The drama, produced under the direction of Mr. Herbert Lloyd, is finely staged.

ALHAMBRA. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—May Lloyd, comedienne and dancer, achieves great success; Fioretti and Elly are well received in their barrel and spade jumping act; Fred Kendall is a capital Hebrew comedian; a company, including Tubby Edlin, win enthusiastic applause for their performance of The Cowboy Millionaire; Newsboy and Lennon are entertaining cross-talk comedians; the Four Sydney Girls are excellent dancers; Bert Wickham displays some marvellous feats of strength; George Rapley appears with new songs; and Harry Roxbury's company are highly effective in their musical mélange, The Prince of Monte Carlo. On Thursday Mr. George Alexander and the St. James's Theatre company gave a matinée performance of The Importance of Being Earnest.

BARRASFORD'S HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Liane D'Eve, a Parisian vocalist, achie

Quincy O'Quirke, and Timothy Trimmer are capitally taken by Miss Patricia Connaughton, Mr Will Percy, and Mr. Dick Seddon.

Palace.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Assistant-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman. — Seymour Hicks and his competent company are appearing here in Scrooge, the performance being a very convincing one, and obtaining full appreciation from packed houses. The special scenery, lighting, and effects are highly satisfactory. Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas score with their amusing duologue "The Wire and the Liar," and Miss Hunt also sings in her accustomed charming style. Gordon Stretton is successful as a coon vocalist; the Three Pirmana entertain with their comedy gymnastic act "Dans le Jardin"; Florence Yaymen amuses with her caricatures of coon songs, &c.; George French, comedian, has some good songs; the Real Mackays are smart juvenile vocalists and dancers; and interesting animated pictures conclude.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Little Baby Woolf, billed as "the dainty little dancing kid," gives capital imitations of popular music-hall artists, and she also executes smart dances. Colley and Scott do an excellent turn as comedy entertainers; James Stewart, "the tramp at the piano," is highly successful; Blake and Granby amuse as comedy duologue artists; Marie Blythe sings pleasing chorus songs in good style; Will Godwin, descriptive vocalist, is appreciated; the Fitzroys do an excellent act on the trapeze and rope; Florence Raymond is a competent ventriloquist; and animated pictures close the entertainment.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Cramer; Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Maclaren's company had a good reception by a large house on Monday, when Claudian was staged. Mr. Maclaren sustained the title-rôle in a most able manner; Miss Lily C. Bandmann was a charming Abinda, acting with true artistic skill; Mr. Frank Owen Chambers was an excellent Tetrarch; Mr. Charles T. Chaloner as Belos and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa put in some amusing work; Agazil was finely played by Mr. Douglas Earle; Mr. Weston Hubbard ably portrayed the farmer Alcares; and in the prologue Mr. George Roberts (the Holy Clement), Mr. Franklyn Bellamy (Theorus), Mr. Harry T. Wilson (Zosimus), Mr. Wm. Watson (Symachus), and Miss Amy Hardcastle (Serena) did very good work. The scenery and dresses were excellent. Mlle. Stella Dorin did a pleasing cymbal dance.

BURNLEY.—Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Canadian Kilties are giving a brilliant programme. The overtures to Tannhäuser and William Tell are played with remarkable precision and beauty, and Mr. Albert Cook contributes a delightful cornet solo. Excellent Scotch and Irish dances and songs by Mr. J. Coates Lockhart are also given. In addition to the Kilties, Fred Walmsley has a number of good jokes; and Tom Drew is another comedian with a quaint style. Frank E. Ford, coloured dancer, is excellent; and W. F. Reno is very funny with a bicycle. The Empire Theatrescope concludes with Dutch Types in colour photography.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—J. W. Rickaby holds first place with his funny songs and smart patter; very neat is the performance of the Victor Bros., equilibrists; and Joan Deering gives a beautiful musical turn with song and violin. Rauschle presents a number of cleverly made-up impersonations of celebrities; and Marie Whittaker, who has a very sweet voice, gives brilliant effect to "Il Bacio"; whistling, song, and patter are included in the turn of Bert E. Edwards; and L. B. Athol is good with a descriptive song. Little Sherlock Holmes is a very exciting film shown by the Palace pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — Opera House. — Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr E. de Hague Body.—A strong variety show here is headed by Tarro Miyake, Japanese wrestler; Ada Tilley and company do well in their farcical comedy; Rutter's dogs are clever and amusing; and Jack Binns, in songs and patter, Flo Banks, a pleasing soubrette, and the Operascope are other attractions.

BURY (Lancs.).—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Lyceum production of Pete is the attraction here this week. Mr. Fredk. Victor in the name-part is prominent with a finished performance; Miss Constance Bachner is admirably placed as Kate Cregeen; and others in the cast rendering excellent service are Mr. Alfred Lugg as Philip Christian; Mr. Maurice York as Ross Christian; Mr. Ellis J. Preston as Cæsar Cregeen; Mr. R. Sinclair as Dr. Mylechreest; Mr. Wilfred Edmunds as Lord-Lieutenant; Miss Alys Eden as Nancy; Miss Alice Dorie as Grannie; Miss Amy Venimore as Mary; Miss May Wright as Meg; and Miss Lucy Raymond as Anne.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Two Lillys in a clever equilibrist act are top turn, and are enthusiastically received. Other good items are those of Jack McKenzie, comedian; the Six White Boys, in dancing speciality; Fox and Melville song illustrators; Elsie Forster, comedienne and dancer; and Seeley, West and Rhodesia, in juggling, mirth, and music.

Circus of Varieties.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The Ottograph Pictures shown this week are well up to the usual standard, and are thoroughly enjoyable. May Newall, chorus vocalist, and the Lannons in comedy act, provide good turns.

CANTERBURY.—St. Margaret's Hall Picture Palace.—Managers, Messrs. Lloyd.—This week's bill of fare comprises some excellent pictures, the best undoubtedly being The Fools of Fate, a very fine drama. Equally good as they are varied are the following:—The Pneumatic Bridegroom, The Lion Tamer, An Alpine Echo, The Four-footed Pickpocket, A Russian Girl's Heroism, A Case of Tomatoes, Foolshead as Sportsman, and Mr. Poorluck gets Married.

CARDIFF. — New Theatre. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A Royal Divorce is paying a visit here, Mr. W. W. Kelly's company presenting the historical drama as on previous occasions. Mr. Keith Fraser, an actor of great ability, impersonates Napoleon; Miss Violet Ellicott as the Empress Josephine plays with strong emotional effect; Miss Winnie Tempest as Marie Louise makes a striking contrast; Mr. J. H. Roberts gives a faithful portraiture of Talleyrand; Mr. Charles Stirling acquits himself creditably as Marquis de Beaumont; Mr. H. Arnold Allen as General Augerean and Miss Dorothy Garth as Stephanie present two amusing interpretations; and Mr. George Hudson's character sketch of Grimaud deserves special commendation.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Taylor.—Heading the list here is Mr. Herbert Darnley's company in Private Potts. Mr. Fred Kitchen's ludicrous antics in the title-rôle are mirth-compelling. Those marvellous and sensational Japanese equilibrists Yamamoto and Miss Koyo Hi again prove wonderfully interesting; Charlier, the famous French ventriloquist, proves particularly entertaining with his life-like assistants; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic at the piano, gets uproarious applause; Stewart and Morgan are well received for their vocal speciality act. The dry humour and skilful dance of Ike and Will Scott are rewarded with well-deserved appreciation; and another skilful step-dancer is the lady champion, Miss Bertha Winder. Goggin and Davis are versatile comedians, and the Bioscope has an excellent film of the Grand National.

Theatre Royal.—General Manager, Mr. Graham Morrison; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here in the great attraction The Prodigal Son. Mr. Marcus D. Draper as Oscar Stephensson gives a realistic impersonation. Equally successful is Mr. Ernest Owtrim as Magnus Stephensson. The portrayal of the difficult part of Helga Neilson was triumphantly surmounted by Miss Lilly Crammond; and Thora Neilson and Elin were cleverly delineated by Miss Sara Dudley. As the stern Stephen Magnussum Mr. Chas. Sewell displayed true histrionic talent; Miss Una Gilbert as Anna gave a satisfactory representation: Mr. Arthur M. Holland deserved praise as Oscar Neilson; and Miss Maud Locker proved a diverting Margaret.

Palace Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—The Ching Ling Hee troupe (two ladies and six gentlemen) of jugglers and acrobats are astounding audiences nightly with their daring and marvellous performance, which is the most remarkable in the line we have seen for some time. In an episode from real life, The Silver Medal, Mr. Martin Henry appears with conspicuous success. Miss Irene Rose makes an effective assistant. Julian Mack maintains his standard as a comedian; Miss Roberta Svensden is a talented vocalist; and Maude Vera a pleasing comedienne and dancer. Others on the bill are Eddie Stidder and Gwen Dunbar, musical comedy artists; Baker and De Sales, "the pavement patterers," and the usual Bioscope.

CARLISLE.—The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—A quartette of ladies appearing under the title of the Four Royal Scots top the bill here in a clever and refined turn; Ada Fawn, on a return visit, with her songs and business adds to her previous success; as an eccentric juggler Zellini scores heavily; Elton and Edwin are banjoists of distinct ability; quite an uncommon act is given by Curtis and Piggs; and Jessie Wilton, a smart comedienne with good songs, and some excellent pictures complete.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—Mr. J. E. Barnes is presenting The Drama of Life to delighted audiences. Mr. Lingford Carson as Harry Beech acts cleverly, and never loses his hold on the audience; Mr. Archie Helsby is successful as the villain, Walter Beech, whose accomplice (Jack Lawton) has an excellent exponent in Mr. Marshall Meade; Miss Pattie Hastings is admirable as Sylvia Beech; Miss Beatrice Hudson gives a realistic performance as Betty Black; the clever comicalities of Mr. Sydney C. Cranston as Sir Dobson Wilde and of Miss Alice Oliver as Lady Jane Wilde provide endless amusement; Detective Brenton has an excellent exponent in Mr. John B. Davis; Mr. George Byrne makes a capital Count de Foi; and Master Robert Beech is pleasingly played by Miss Doris Denville.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—The Krags Trio head the bill here, and gain genuine applause for skilful feats on the trapeze; the Harvard Sextette work hard with good effect in dance and harmony; the Menzies admirably present a comedy absurdity, Suffragettes; Merry Marjorie Lawrence sings and dances with much success; Chas. F. Best as Mac Bunker, the Montebank, causes considerable laughter; the Northcotes are applauded for some well-rendered duets; and the Rurals, in a musical scena, are appreciated. Animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. are thoroughly enjoyed.

CHATHAM.—Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Queenie Dell, comedienne; Hugh and High, in a musical act; the Max Tourbillon Troupe, in a daring cycling act; Violet Nunn, comedienne; Cash and Clair, with clever simultaneous dancing; Hal Bert, with "I'm the Circus Girl"; and Jordan and Harvey.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. George Humphries.—The one and only Marie Lloyd is attracting big houses here. Others appearing are the Whitworth Trio, with neat trick cycling; the Lyric Mummers, in a popular vocal scena; Emmie Ames, scoring strongly with "Emmie's Christmas Tree"; Parks and Price, in pleasing musical selections; Harry Bancroft, chorus vocalist; and Max and Romer, duologue artists.

CHESTER. — Royalty Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The billtopper this week is the renowned Sahib Gustave Fasola, an Indian Fakir and Oriental wonderworker, whose marvellous illusions mystify and delight his audience; Canard introduces new comedy business; Percy Farrimond is a Lancashire singing collier of originality and power; Agnes Tina is an excellent little mimic and impersonator; Fancourt and Ruby are smartly up to date in their refined and amusing act, entitled The Bouquet; and Leonard and Lealie are distinctly good as vocalists and sand and wooden shoe dancers; the Sylvester Trio present a clever sketch, entitled A Drawing-room Rehearsal, introducing brilliant vocalism and smart speciality dancing. Biographic pictures conclude a really good programme.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor, M. A. E. Pickard.—A strong attraction is provided at this establishment this week by Mrs. Lillie Williams' company in Dick Whittington, played twice nightly. The Sisters Cora as Dick and Alice respectively contribute not a few good vocal numbers; Mr. Sam Thomson as Idle Jack is the life and soul of the pantomime; Mr. Geo Westland as Mary Ann is successful in keeping the fun going; and Mr. W. Glanmore Jones as Fitzwarren, Mr. J. Randle Wilson as the Sultan, Miss Topsy Johnstone as Princess Halfid, Miss Connie Irwin as Fairy Bow-Bell, and Mr. Michael Kemble as Rodent are all good. Specialities are introduced by Lindsay and Harte, the Four Killarney Girls, the Sisters Cora, and the Celeste Comedy Quartette.

COLCHESTER. — Hippodrome. — Directors, Messrs. Mouillot and de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Possibly with one exception this hall has never opened to bigger houses than on Monday, the great Raymond proving an exceptional draw. He gives two shows at each house, and his reception is most cordial, his manner most engaging, and his success is unquestionable; the Vampire Dance by Lulu, assisted by Jean Grossi, is watched with keen interest; the Bros. Durrant, with their aeroplane, provide a mirthful entertainment; Ruby Ray's songs catch the public ear; Tommy Clifford goes well as a ventriloquist; the Bros. Lily give a good comedy cycling show; and the pictures are, as usual, effective.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The programme this week includes Sandes and Vincent, comedians; T. W. Barrett, "the nobleman's son"; and animated pictures.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The Lancashire Lad, by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, is being presented here. Miss Madge Douglas, in the part of the heroine Jessie Wincote, is very capable; the part of Lorna Wincote is ably sustained by Miss Muriel Inglis; Mr. Ernest Vaughan as Max Carlton acts in a capable manner; and Miss Gertie Henderson is an excellent Kitty de Vere. Mr. Harry T. Wood gives a satisfactory portrayal of David Elmore.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. E. Wright.—Reano and his famous band have been at the above house for this week. Syd May, the clever impersonator, received a very hearty welcome; Hayes and Merritt, bounding trampolinists, do some wonderful tricks on a bouncing sheet; the Brixtons, comedy acrobats and cyclists, are exceedingly clever. Other artists are Ted and May Hopkins, quaint Welsh humorists, and Rose Elliott, character vocalist.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Alexander Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. Walner Gregory's company is giving satisfaction here in Dolly Reforming Herself. Miss Henrietta Watson scores repeatedly as Mrs. Harry Telfer; Miss Vera Beringer is very successful as Mrs. Sturgess; Mr. Bertram Forsyth is a commendable Harry Telfer; Mr. Tom Mowbray is well placed in the rôle of Matthew Barron; Mr. Geoffrey Besant is quite up to the mark as Captain Lucas Wentworth; Mr. Walter Grey is good as the Rev. James Pilcher; Mr. Leonard Shepherd gives a capital character sketch of Professor Sturgess; and praise is due to Miss Mary Southbere as Peters and Mr. Robert Newsom as Criddle.

Empire Palace of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw and company win approval in a graphic sketch The Devil's Mate; the Five Bombays submit an invigorating turn; Gicardo is a smart juggler; Lily Vane is a neat comedienne; Otto and Olga are clever speciality artists; the 'Varsity Girls are app'auded in a vocal scena; Will Evans is an inimitable comedian; Katie Marsh, comedienne, is bewitching; Edward Ind is a funny comedian; and the Bioscope pictures complete the bill.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company is here with For Wife and Kingdom.—Mr. Reginald T. Fox makes a capital Captain Maximilian; Mr. Frank Sutherland a good General Van Nestolde and Jan; Mr. Albert Guyon is capital as Baron Maurice Breslaw; Miss Hettie Zillwood as the Grand Duchess Marie acts satisfactorily; Miss Margaret R. Frame as Camille von Nestolde is clever; good comedy is contributed by Mr. Fred Osmund as Karl Ludhayt; Miss Audrey Canning, and Miss Alice Buckland

Hippodrome Theatres, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Nichols.—An excellent all-round programme is here topped by Mr. James Hare and company, in a dramatic episode, Wrong 'Uns. Jack Sheridan, comedian, causes much laughter with his songs; Mona Garrick is a clever impersonator; Robb Wilton, comedian, is responsible for much humour; and other good turns are the Gilberts, tight-wire performers, Barnes and West, vaudeville artists, and the Lyons Trio, in a dancing sketch.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—Scottie's production of the playlet Napoleon at Waterloo is well staged and acted; as also is his performance The Cry of the Children; Trapped by Sexton Blake is also well presented; Knots, the boneless man, goes through some wonderful contortions; Will Warren's patriotic songs are applauded; the Sisters Charlton, singers and dancers, the Merries, comedy artists, Sandy and Ramsay, duettists, and Little Rose Pink, vocalist and dancer, are all appreciated. A local competition in Scottie's "Whizzing the Whirl" creates amusement.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is this week presenting Driving a Girl to Destruction. As Ruby Wright Miss Maud M. Powell is successful throughout; Ruth Wright is spiritedly played by Miss Kate Sydney, and Madame De Meral is capably accounted for by Miss Anna Corri. Mr. F. Cyril Leighton plays well as the villain, Lucas List; Mr. Henry Scratchard makes a crafty Octavius Screwe; Mr. Charles Stafford a manly Robert Ray; and Miss Eva Norman a commendable Ned, the cripple. The drama is relieved by Messrs. Ed. Swinton, H. Wallace Curnock, and Mackintosh Clyde, in whose hands the comedy element is well sustained.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes.—The Derrington Family are the top liners here. Second place is occupied by Wilson and West, whose potted drama and drollery are vastly entertaining. Bertini is a first-class instrumentalist; Colbert as a hoop and club juggler displays exceptional skill; the Sisters Herbert are juvenile comediennes in pretty songs and dances, and gain deserved applause; Palette, a brisk and up-to-date entertainer does well in his sketch A Busy Time in the Studio; and Harry Simms, comedian, with catchy chorus songs, attains great popularity.

DEVONPORT. — Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The star attraction consists of extracts from the works of the ever-popular Charles Dickens, capitally enacted by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas; Herbert Clifton's singing and burlesque are much appreciated; Sandy and Cash supply one of the best turns on the bill in the comedy line; and the Three Prestons have also some very amusing business in a sketch, entitled The Village of Shiftem. Zenora entertains with some graceful yet daring equilibristic business; and Cronford and Johnson are seen to advantage in some well-executed dancing. The remaining contributors are Gwen Francis, vocalist, and Harris Coonie, coloured vocalist and dancer.

Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—A very interesting drama, entitled The Better Land, is rewarded with good houses. As Philip Radcliffe Mr. Douglas Nation is a popular hero; Mr. Clifton Boyne as Hubert Radcliffe, a villain of the most relentless type, does full justice to the part; Miss Marguerite Trevosper gives an excellent rendering of Doris; and Miss Madge Trevelyan works hard as Mercedes.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Occupying the boards here is Misses Nora Carton and Beatrice Selwyn's company in Temptation. Miss Selwyn gives an admirable portrayal of Ivra Blight; Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle plays with skill and force the part of Sir Charles Tremaine; as Hubert Thorne Mr. Norman A. Overton proves himself a very clever actor; Mr. Arthur Trail gives an excellent character study of Stephen Rowe; Miss Nora Carton successfully enacts the part of Hilda Dundonald; Mr. Frank Ayrton as Bob Saunders and Miss Madge Seymour as Araminta and Emily Eighteen keep the house full of mirth; Messrs. Charles O. Whyte and Patterson Bradbury do well as Major Grant and Mr. Blight. The drama is well staged.

Empire.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—At the head of a capital bill here this week is B. A. Rolfe's Ye Colonial Septette in a novel American musical act, An Old Tyme Hallowe'en Party, which is excellently staged. The Garricks in a pot-pourri of songs and dances supply a very interesting turn; Mahatma, the Queen of Second Sight, astonishes everybody with her wonderful performance; praise must be given to Steve Bartle for his admirable manipulation of concertinas of different styles; Queenie May sings very sweetly; the Bros. Ashby cause much laughter in their comedy boxing act, Next, Please; J. H. Wakefield, coon delineator, and a display of pictures on the Palascope complete.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—A fine display of animated pictures is supplemented by some very excellent variety items. Lydia Neilson's Girls and Boys give an enjoyable and artistic singing and dancing act; Little Mona is a capital child mimic, her imitations being very realistic; Les Atans give an excellent gymnastic display, which is well received; the Sisters Adair Trio delight everybody with their singing and dancing; Billie Mellir is a funny comedian, and causes much laughter; J. E. Sheldon amuses greatly in song and story; Jack Ramsay, the versatile Scot, scores well; and Tatton and Terry, vocalists and simultaneous dancers, complete a very interesting programme.

Industrial Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. T. Christian.—The pictures here are of the usual high standard, and continue to draw capital houses. Illustrated vocal scenas are also given at intervals.

DONCASTER.—Grand Theatre and Empire.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—There is a variety combination here. The Five Musical Tritons justify their title of Musical Marvels; Anita Wayman, the Scotch contralto, is a great favourite; Doyle and Gibson, patter comedians, are quaintly humorous; Edie Endon, comedienne and dancer, is popular; Harry Keeble is a clever and versatile ventriloquist; and Gladys Wolls contralto, creates a good impression. Arthur Slater, the man in white, in his whistling scena, Morning, Noon, and Night, and in his mimicry of birds evokes applause; and Tom Child, Yorkshire tenor, is popular.

DUBLIN.—Empire Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. H. Marsh.—Merrie Marie Kendall's new and catchy songs are received with great favour. Edward King is a humorous and original comedian; the Royal Delcmes give great pleasure with their clever clog-dancing; the Two St. Johns are very entertaining as musical comedians and dancers; Odeyne Spark is a chic comedienne; and the Sisters Hall, duettists and dancers, and Steve McCarthy, comedian, are also included in the attractive bill. During this week matinée performances are being given at which the great fight between Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchell is shown on the Bioscope.

World's Fair.—Proprietor, Mr Charles A. James.—The bill of fare here comprises Storey and Hughes, capital duettists and dancers; Harry Delmar, in his musical entertainment; Edna Ray, a pleasing vocalist and dancer; Ben Storey, an amusing comedian; Wee Willie, the Scotch comedian, who scores well; Jennie Hughes, ballad vocalist; Torie and Torie, sketch artists; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY. — Empire. — Proprietors, Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Top of the bill is given to the Eight Elves, who, in a singing, dancing, and instrumental act, prove a clever troupe of juveniles; Malcolm Cumming and company create much mirth in a comedy act A Tooth for a Bride; Zera and Zema, aptly described as Continental equilibristic marvels, are exceedingly clever; Tom Staffo, comedy juggling butcher-boy, whilst neatly executing many smart tricks, keeps the house in loud laughter. A pleasing turn is also given by Jones and Estelle, harmonising duettists; Frank Boyce is a first-rate character vocalist; and Maud Ethelda, comedienne and dancer, is well received. Empire Pictures complete an attractive programme.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Our Miss Gibbs has attracted large audiences. Mr. George Edwardes' company is a brilliant one, and the costumes and scenery are attractive and effective. In the title-rôle Miss Alice Pollard used her melodious voice with pleasing results, and was received with rapturous applause; as Timothy Gibbs Mr. George Gregory made a tremendous hit, his quaint mannerisms and business proving irresistible; Miss Marie Wilson was extremely good as Lady Betty, singing and acting delightfully; Miss Grace Wixon was an admirable Duchess of Minster; Miss May Marton acquitted herself with distinction as the impecunious Mrs. Farquhar; and a smart and amusing Mme. Jeanne was found in Miss Dora Sevening; the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, as played by Mr. Lionel Mackinder, was a decidedly amusing personage, his "Yap-i-addy" song being repeatedly encored; the Earl of St. Ives was enacted by Mr. Myles Clifton in a delightfully finished manner; Mr. Robert Nainby was an eminently successful Slithers; Mr. H. V. Crofton sang and acted with good effect as Lord Eynsford; Mr. Ernest Mahar put in some clever work as Mr. Topiady; Mr. Campbell Bishop was excellent as the family solicitor, Mr. Beavis; and Mr. Amalfy was judiciously undertaken by Mr. Ellis Holland; several delightful dances were contributed by Misses Florence Phillips, Mabel Danby, and Olive Wade, the first-mentioned lady winning encomiums for her remarkable solo dance. The chorus did their work capably, and the augmented band was ably directed by Mr. Harold Lonsdale.

King's Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Topliners here are the Sutcliffe Troupe, who as Scottish pipers, dancers, and acrobats present a turn of considerable originality and cleverness; Mendel, the blind pianist, improvises cleverly on several popular airs, and is warmly appreciated; Louie Tracey, "the dapper dandy boy," is the personification of neatness and versatility, and sings with excellent taste; Alice Golding is possessed of a capital voice, of which she makes good use in chorus songs; the Mezzettis are very funny and introduce some remarkably clever work into their gymnastic act, The New Recruit; Bugler Carr, musical equilibrist, scores with his smartly worked act; George Lawrence sings with plenty of go, and is successful; Earle and Melville bubble over with wit and humour, their dancing being also a notable item, and the Kingscope exhibits some excellent pictures.

Gaiety Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Mr. Charles Majilton's company in the new farcical comedy, Four in the Dark, has evoked the heartiest enthusiasm from large audiences. Mr. Jim Bond as Duncan McPhee keeps the audience rocking with laughter; Mr. Tom Carroll as Zac Brown is also ludicrously funny; Sam Dollar is cleverly portrayed by Mr. George Hunter; Mr. Majilton is a nimble and thoroughly amusing Detective Sharp; Mr. Henry Thomas as Sir George Blundles sings excellently, and Mr. Will Jecks is successful as the Gendarme; Miss Maddie Majilton as Zula proves immensely attractive; Miss Lena Valli as Mrs. Zac Brown and Miss Nelly Clifford as Mrs. McPhee cause amusement; Miss Ada Valli is a dainty Millie Marjorie, and Misses Hetty Keeble, Nora Vance, Lizzie Boyle, and Alice Rounds all lend able assistance. The piece is capitally staged.

Palace Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The genial manager of this popular house with his customary alertness succeeded in securing a fine film of Dundee's great Cup tie tussle with the Hibernians at Dens Park last Saturday, the thrilling incidents in the game being watched with much interest by crowded houses this week.

Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. W. Austin.—Good houses are being attracted here by capital picture programmes. The films this week are both grave and gay.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Edward Compton and his celebrated company paid their first visit here the first three nights of this week, opening on Monday with The School for Scandal. Mr. Compton handled the part of Charles Surface in his characteristically artistic manner, which received general appreciation. Mr. Henry Crocker was an admirable Sir Peter Teazle; Mr. Philip Gordon gave an efficient portrayal of Sir Oliver Surface; Mr. Frank Royde supplied an excellent embodiment of Joseph Surface; Mr. J. W. Austin, in the dual part of Crabtree and Moses, showed conspicuous talent; Mr. Clifford Marquand was an admirable Sir Benjamin Backbite; and Mr. Wetton was a capital Sir Harry Bumper. Miss Kathleen Leigh acted with natural charm the part of Lady Teazle; Miss Marie Hassell was a characteristic Mrs. Candour; Miss Lorraine Stevens was a typical Lady Sneerwell; and Miss Nelly Compton gave a neat presentation of Maria. She Stoops to Conquer and David Garrick completed the répertoire. Miss Augusta Tulloch and company, in the new play Judith, is billed for the last three nights of the week.

DURHAM.—The Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes.—The Three Krakes head the bill with an acrobatic comedy, The Electric Car Conductor, creating screams of laughter. The Paul Kramer Troupe present an exceedingly clever trapeze act; Parker and Parr in Welsh song and patter are well received; Will and Rose with a comedy conjuring act prove popular; Bliss and Bliss, comedians, are much appreciated; Edwards and Ward are smart comedy entertainers; and Pueblo and Cropp with The Swell and the Belle win applause. The Cathedoscope showing a Dutch scenic picture, The Mill, concludes.

EASTBOURNE.—Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—Topping the bill here are the Vizoranto Trio, whose clever and novel bar and ring work is well received. Bromley and Fontein provide plenty of good wholesome fun; Mr. Harry Taylor is a distinctly original comedian; Mr. Billy Rex, a smart and versatile artist, sings, plays, sketches, and dances with merit; Mr. C. H. Charlton is a clever conjuror; Kimberley and Melbourne sing and patter amusingly; Miss Violet Romaine has a voice of exceptional excellence, which she uses well; and new interesting films are shown.

ECCLES.—Crown Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—After several weeks of drama and pantomime we have returned to variety. Heading the present week's bill is Mr. Fred Karno's company in Skating, in which plenty of boisterous fun is combined with not a little skill; The Michel Bros. are responsible for a good turn as head to head and hand balancers; Mr. Tod Lowen is a good comedian; The Sleepwalker, a funny sketch performed by Mr. W. Ellis and company, is well received; the Sisters Brook provide a very nice turn as duettists; Messrs. Phillips and Bristow give a good display of dancing. A very good film is entitled In the Time of the Normans.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's powerful drama The Fires of Fate is being presented here this week by Mr. Vedrenne's company. The part of Colonel Cyril Egerton, so successfully played in London by Mr. Lewis Waller, is in the hands of that admirable actor, Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, who portrays the character with pathos, force, and distinction. Mr. Herbert Vyvyan makes a splendid Rev. Samuel Roden, and delivers the didactic speeches of the minister of Clayview Congregational Church with sincerity and conviction; Mr. Charles Francis is good as Dr. Roden; and Mr. Edward A. Coventry and Mr. Herbert Maule are excellent as Belmont and Mr. Brodie. A masterly study of the wealthy young Londoner, Mr. Cecil Brown, is given by Mr. Stanley Logan, whose playing, alike in the lighter and more serious scenes, is exceedingly clever; while Mr. Alfred C. Sandoe as Abdulla, Mr. G. T. Lambert as the Dervish Spy, and Mr. Frederic Worlock as Captain Jack Archer sustain their parts with much care and success. Miss Ruth Berner is a graceful, pleasing Sadie; Miss Gwendolen Floyd is effective as Miss Adams; and Miss Alison Trentris a prepossessing Mrs. Belmont. The drama is realistically mounted, the Nile Steamer and the Oasis of Abouteb being fine stage pictures. The audience was enthusiastic in their applause on Monday evening, and the actors were repeatedly recalled.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Opening the second week of their present engagement, the Moody-Manners Opera Company presented Carmen on Monday evening, with a strong cast, which included Mme. Zelie de Lussan in her old part of Carmen, of which she gave a thrilling interpretation; Mr. Joseph O'Mara, who sang splendidly as Don José; Mr. Lewys James, a vigorous Escamillo; and Miss Kate Anderson, a very charming Michaela. Frasquita and Mercedes were quite happily rendered by Miss Morden and Miss Dennis; and Mr. F. Davis's singing as the smuggler Il Remendado was in every way commendable. The stage setting and accessories were excellent, and the orchestra worked admirably under the direction of Mr. Cuthbert Hawley. Samson and Delilah was produced on Tuesday and Thursday evenings; Madame Butterfly on Wednesday gave opera-goers the opportunity of hearing Mme. Fanny Moody in one of her most attractive rôles; and the ever-popular Il Trovatore was billed for Friday, with La Tosca and Faust for Saturday's matinée and evening respectively.

King's Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The leading item in an attractive bill is a comedy production, entitled H.M.S. Perhaps, in which the Six Brothers Luck provide excellent entertainment. An outstanding acrobatic performance is given by the Pichel troupe, whose serious work is relieved by the clever fooling of Cecil, an original comedian; Hanvar and Anna Lee appear with much acceptance in The Golfer and the Maid, a sketch which introduces an expert display of juggling and exercises with Indian clubs; El Tampico's Mexican troubadours, continued from last week, repeat their pleasing musical successes; the ballad singing of Miss Annette Hayward is greatly enjoyed and tumultuously applauded; and Reg Bolton's comedy scena, The Editor's Imp, furnishes considerable amusement. Other acceptable single-handed turns are contributed by Estrella, barefoot international dancer; J. K. Macfarlane, Scottish comedian; and Harry Levaine, whose eccentric patter is diverting.

Empire Palace Theatres.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Miss Evie Green's engagement here this week has proved a potent attraction, and large audiences are filling the house twice nightly. The popular comedienne is in her best form. Her songs are rendered with taste, humour, and vivacity, and she also recites a dainty piece in a dainty fashion. La Freya presents a delightful turn in her beautiful coloured pictures, and Miss Kathleen Gray sings with great good taste. Miss Addie Dorina scores a distinct success in her quick-

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—The ever-welcome Village Blacksmith is being presented here by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company. Mr. Sam Livesey repeats his perfect portrayal of the brawny smith; Mr. Joseph Carter continues to play Capt. Leo with excellent results; Mr. Ed. Maydew realistically embodies Lucas Marler; Mr. Fred Haming in the part of Billy Twigg is responsible for a large amount of laughter; Miss Maggie Edwards invests the part of Kate Strong with much charm; Martha Moppe is capitally played by Miss Rosie Kearns; and Jeremiah and Sal Parkins are well treated by Mr. Thos. E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smith.—The chief items on the "bill" are the films The Honour of his Family and the Nurse's Diary. Smith and Johnson, coloured vocalists, are warmly welcomed.

RAVENSWORTH HALL.—Proprietors, Messrs. R. Allan and T. F. McDonald.—The "star" films at this house are The Luck of Roaring Camp and The Capture of a Vagrant. Dave Elliott, the blind concertina player, adds to the enjoyment.

BLACK'S PICTURE PALACE.—The Last Deal, a thrilling tale of gambling, and His Only Child are the outstanding films in a good "bill" submitted here. Lucretia and Josephine, burlesque artists and dancers, and Jan V. Vanbert, illusionist and painter, provide "turns" which are highly appreciated.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—Messrs. Barnard Bros., who have taken the Public Hall here for a period of four months, and have had it redecorated and altered, will open it on Easter Monday. The hall will be run in conjunction with their Picture Circuit, with a programme of pictures and variety on the twice-nightly principle.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and G. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—Mr. John Tiller's company in the musical comedy Amsterdam; or, the Mystery of the Black Tulip, opened their first tour this week in promising style. The comedy has been freshly dressed and staged, and as the name of Mr. Tiller would imply, is strong in ballet and artistic grouping. Mr. T. W. Volt as Frau Van Stoop and Mr. Arthur Stigant as an American introduce clever comedy business, their little sketch in Act 2 being particularly amusing. They were well supported by Mr. Chas. V. Sandford as the aristocratic Hon. Percy Dunne-Browne and Miss Lulu Valli as Evelyn Anna (the up-to-date girl), between whom several diverting little interludes took place. A recent pantomime favourite at this house renewed acquaintance in the appearance of Miss Dorothy Firmin as Gretchen, who danced and sang in a captivating manner; Miss Nancy Hearne looked and acted well as Hans; Miss Florrie Page was charming as Katrina; Hendrick van Duuck was well sustained by Mr. Sidney Vincent; and Mr. Frederick Smythe as Jan was a big success. Chas. Verno as the Donkey was quaint throughout. The specialities by the Tiller Troupe and the Twelve Manchester Mites were greatly enjoyed. A word of praise is due to Miss Enid Erroll for a most attractive display as solo dancer in the various ballets.

KING'S.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and George T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—A crowded house on Monday extended a hearty welcome to Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in The Woman in the Case. The fact that the cast included two such clever actresses as Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Miss Ellis Jeffreys accounted for a deal of the enthusiasm. The former, in her study of Claire Foster, gives a wonderful performance, and Miss Jeffreys as Margaret Rolfe forms a striking contrast, equally good in its way. Mr. Herbert Sleath makes a dignified Julian Rolfe, and acts with distinction and emphasis; Mr. Wm. F. Grant as the lawyer, Thompson, gives a clever rendering; and the fussy Mrs. Hughes is amusingly played by Miss Mary Griffiths. Mr. Fred Benton as Klauffsky and Mr. Wm. Kershaw as Jimmy Smith give able and efficient support. One Man's Luck, a clever little playlet, preceded.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Sub-Lessees, The Scottish Playgoers' Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing.—The repertory company offers a most acceptable triple bill, consisting of two Bernard Shaw plays, The Man of Destiny and How He Lied to Her Husband, and Augustus in Search of a Father, by Harold Chapin. In the Napoleonic comedy Mr. M. R. Morand gives an excellent idea of Bonaparte in his younger days, and the Strange Lady is delightfully represented by Miss Irene Rooke. The rôles of the Innkeeper and the Lieutenant are cleverly characterised by Mr. Campbell Gullan and Mr. Cecil Brooking. In the other Shaw play the three parts—the lover, the husband, and the wife—are played with admirable humour by Mr. Milton Rosmer, Mr. Cecil Brooking, and Miss Mollie Hilliers respectively. The curtain-raiser affords Mr. Campbell Gullan a good character part in the old Watchman, Augustus (Mr. Percival Clark) and the Policeman (Mr. Norman McKeown) being also very well played.

GRAND, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. L. Sealy.—The Carl Rosa Opera company entered on the second week of their engagement on Monday, when Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci were presented. In the first-named Mr. Edward Davies acquitted himself well as Turridu, and Mme. Gleeson White was heard to full advantage as Santuzza. As Alfio Mr. Hebden Foster rendered his numbers with telling effect; Lola, in the hands of Miss Lawson Tayler was a praiseworthy performance, as also was the Lucia of Miss Douglas Wilson. In the second opera Mr. E. C. Hedmondt's exposition of the part of Canio was strong and convincing; Mr. Charles Victor was equal to all demands made, both vocally and histrionically, as Tonio; Miss Beatrice Miranda contributed largely to the success of the production by the freshness of her rendering of Nedda; Silvio received adequate treatment at the hands of Mr. Hebden Foster; and Mr. William O'Connor did excellent work as Beppe. The singing of the chorus was most effective, and the orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Eugene Goossens, played with fine effect. Destiny, Don Giovanni, Il Trovatore, Rigoletto, Carmen, and Faust were presented during the week.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S. — Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The St. Mungo Opera Club, a clever local combination, have engaged the theatre this week for a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera The Pirates of Penzance, the proceeds to be devoted to charity.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company is here with The Tyrant, in which Miss Marie Robson gives an impressive rendering of Tisbe; while the rôle of Angelo, the tyrant, is powerfully impersonated by Mr. Roy Fortescue. Miss Jean Scott gives a thrilling portrayal of Lady Catherine; Miss Lallah Shelton scores a distinct success as Eulie; Mr. Percy Follies effectively flits through the play as Homodei, the avenger; a spice of comedy is introduced by Miss Katie Lever as Reginella and by Mr. Wilson Summers as Victor, together with Mr. Fred Luard as Nobbo; Mr. Ed. B. Louis gives a good rendering of Rudolph; and Mr. T. Ashmore is successful as Pan. The play is well staged and draws good houses.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The attraction here is Mr. Herbert Vere's company in the new play Napoleon the Great, which was at the Royal Princess's last week. Mr. Herbert Vere as Napoleon and Miss Kate Walfred as Marie are well supported by the other members of the company.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Reynolds.—Chung Ling Soo, the marvellous Chinese conjurer, once more mystifies and delights audiences here; Tom Foy comes with a new sketch, The First of April, which provides him with unlimited opportunities for fun-making; Emma Don and company give a clever vocal scena, On the Thames Embankment; Frank Couch and Kitty Meredith take well in a sketch, The Old Tragedian; Bros. Bright give an interesting display of feats of strength; Takio is a smart imitator of sounds; Sisters St. Julian are well received for their song and dance items; and Anna Chandler and Amelie de l'Enclos complete an attractive entertainment.

PAVILION, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager Mr. Ernest Foster.—The star turn is Tschin-Mea and his Chunchuses, mountebanks, in their varied and interesting performance; Harry Dent and Fanny Harris, great favourites here, contribute a lot of new and enjoyable business; Jessie Templeton and Edith Haley, from the recent Princess's pantomime, again demonstrate their hold on audiences here; Lady Mansell's Juveniles are a smart crowd of youngsters; and Velanche's Football Dogs in their exciting match; Hanid Alexander, the clever young pianist; Wren and Sadler, in a comedy duologue; and Reg. Beauchamp, comedian, complete an enjoyable programme.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—Top turn is Jack Lorimer, the favourite Scotch comedian, who had a capital send-off on the opening night; Miss Maude Mortimer, comedienne, is also one of the attractions, and she rendered several songs in capital style; Katie Butler, character comedienne, was very humorous; and Stella Stahl was successful in song and dance. A good programme is completed by Walter Stanley, eccentric comedian; Bros. Ford, comedians and dancers; May Gibson, ballad vocalist; the Selbonians, comedy juggling trio; Marie Dreams, a clever girl baritone; and the Bioscope, with a series of interesting pictures.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—At the head of the bill here is Corporal Gordon, who is responsible for quite a pleasant entertainment as a ventriloquist and animal mimic; Raglum is amusing in his comedy juggling act; and the Bioscope films are quite up to the usual high standard.

COLISEUM. — District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd. — Archie Goodall, the well-known International footballer, has attracted many of the supporters of the outdoor game to the Coliseum, where his performance of walking the hoop has been much admired; Horace Wheatley, the ever-popular Irish comedian, entertains in his customary accomplished style, and is enthusiastically received; Pip Powell and Katie Vesey present their musical comedy duologue, "A Perfect Woman," a sketch of a most amusing character; in their astral absurdity, "Astronomy," W. Fullbrook and company are mirth-provoking; the Elite Harmony Boys appear in song and dance, their numbers being capitally rendered; much praise is due to Miss Gladys Hooley in the introduction of her violin scena, "Fiddle and I," produced with special scenery and effects; Rossi Ashton displays artistic taste in his song sketching; G. W. Hunter is responsible for much amusing work; and Arthur Albert, possessed of a capital voice, sings several good songs of a catchy description; and the Bioscope films ever form an item of interest.

PANOPTICON.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The variety turns are headed by Dave Summers, comedian, and his songs and patter provided capital amusement for a crowded house on Monday. Daisy Noel made a good appearance, her singing and dancing being thoroughly appreciated. The other artists include Eva Ward, refined burlesque artist; Ryder Davis, comedian; Vesta Ray, comedienne and chorus singer; and Will Penn, character comedian. The Bioscope display is specially attractive, the principal item being a reproduction of the Grand National Steeplechase.

JUNGLE AND ARENA.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank C. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. Harry E. Tudor.—Enormous crowds continue to patronise this resort at every session. On St. Patrick's Day the children from five Catholic schools revelled in the varied attractions, and this week other schools, in convenient groups, are having natural-history lessons during the day. The season is rapidly nearing an end, but efforts are being made to extend it a week longer than originally announced.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL AND PICTUREDROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—The advent of pictures, varieties, &c., at this house of entertainment has been a decided success, notwithstanding the continued bad trade in the cotton industry. The pictures include The Avenger, Cabby's Good Fairy, Curse of Money, Friday the 13th, Donkey that wasn't an Ass, Difficult Flirtations, The Humble Heroes, Through Cheddar Gorge, Black Beauty, Making Love to Coalman's Wife, Carried Off by an Eagle, The Devil's Wife, and a goodly array of comics. The varieties include Little Lorna, a clever child vocalist; Mr. Fred Mavis, clog dancer; and the Four Van Earles in their speciality dancing.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Geo. Zalva.—Morritt's Memory Man is giving an interesting entertainment here; Charles Morritt is a first-class illusionist; Dan Hendy appears in an amusing acrobatic act; Bert and Dora are excellent comedy providers; the Bentley's musical turn is popular; and Beulah's second-sight exposition is entertaining.

THE GEM.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. P. Barr.—The principal films here this week are The Heart of a Cowboy, vividly portraying a love romance of the North-west, and a most interesting picture showing the Grand National of last week. Miss May Palmer very effectively sings "Marguerite."

GREENOCK. — KING'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here in Send Him Victorious. Miss Sidney Crowe as Countess Kara submits a powerful portrayal; Mr. G. M. Montanini gives a creditable account of himself in the rôle of Colonel Kaufman; Mr. Herbert Skardon proves very effective as Captain Frank Allison; Mr. Charles Russell makes the most of Sergeant Max; Miss Netta Mitchell is seen to advantage as Ethel Harding; and amusing work is added by Mr. Bert Woodin as Geordie Walker and by Miss Madge Palmer as Gretchen Holtz. The mounting leaves nothing to be desired.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Neil Kenyon, who, by the way, is a native of these parts, is starring here, and his success on Monday was instantaneous, his quaint study as the Postman o' Dunrobin being particularly praiseworthy; the Lloyds go through a clever acrobatic act; Lily Souter scores with her songs; Alix Lukos, in song and story, is deservedly appreciated; and Tim O'Connor (vocalist and dancer), Metz and Metz (comedians and dancers), Bert Williams (ventriloquist), and pictures on the Dromoscope complete a popular programme.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN.—Joint Lessees, Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward.—Albany Ward's Imperial Electric Pictures, so successful at the Rectory Hall, have now been transferred to this house under joint management. On Monday an extensive and attractive programme was presented to a large audience. The principal films comprised the coloured art dramas Cleopatra, The Miniature, and A Corner in Wheat. An exceptionally good variety turn was provided by the Sarnthaler Troupe, whose singing and dancing in national costume proved a distinct novelty.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Wages of Sin is here this week. Miss Grace Warner is an excellent Ruth Hope; Miss Florence M. Daly an exceptionally good Jemima Bloggs; Mr. G. Gordon's George Brand is a fine performance; Mr. Roy Rhind is good as Harry Wentworth; Mr. Frank Beattie's Josiah Deane is an interesting study; Mr. C. Williams makes the small part of Judson a decided success; Miss Edith Rutland plays well as Rose Deane; and Mr. Louis Nanton (Ned Drummond) and Miss Lizzie Palmer (Juliana Bloggs) also do well.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Pete and Minnie Lee, delineators of Scotch character, gain a brilliant reception; the lady is exceptionally clever. Gillin, the favourite ventriloquist, is still a popular turn; the Rosses are two clever dancers; Edwards and Edwards are capable musicians and expert dancers; Lew Lake's Six Buster Browns are a good turn; Phillips and Merritt are versatile entertainers; and Tennis and Laune (Edie and Gertie), duettists, give every satisfaction.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The mimo-dramatic sketch Life is a powerful attraction. It is intensely dramatic, lavishly mounted, and splendidly played by Miss Margaret Carolee, Mr. Ernest Goslar, and Mr. Antone Pascual. Life should fill any hall. 61, Prospect Street, a good playlet, is full of genuine comedy and well presented by Mr. Caryl Wilbur and Miss Zoe Gillilian. Jack Hamilton, a comedian of a novel style, "gets there"; Renee is an excellent turn; Gwladys Soman has a beautiful voice; and Leslie and Stephens, in Love Levels All, score; Charles Banks is entertaining.

HAMILTON, N.B. — HIPPODROME. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Musical-Director, Mr. J. Millar.—Mooney and Holbein are a pair of exceptionally taking top-liners here; Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, are amusing in the extreme; Regan and Ryan are old-time favourites here, and always come up to the scratch; Arthur Ferris and Ethel May, in a vocal absurdity, Two's Company, are excellent entertainers; Crissie Cross is pleasing in song and dance; Ida Evilo, balancing trapeze artist, is clever and dainty; the Farrows go well; and the Wonderful Howards and the Bioscope are other attractions.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone.—The King and the Unknown Woman is being played this week by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Six Franklins introduce a novel vocal act; the Child Trio are capable musicians; Howard and Harris, the star turn, repeat their former triumph; Chas. Norton makes a hit; Victor Widdicumbe in sketch business is in favour; Miss Gertrude Moore sings and dances delightfully; Will Owen, patter comedian, is good; Johnny Fuller is successful; and a fine film of the Grand National is shown.

HARROGATE.—THE KURSAAL.—Musical-Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Manager, Mr. John E. Wilshire.—This place opened for the season on Thursday, the municipal orchestra being under the baton of Mr. Julian Clifford; Miss Mildred Jones and Mr. Robert Charlesworth are the vocalists, and Miss Margaret Cooper is announced for a special matinée to-day.

ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The New Century Animated Picture Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Boden.—The head-liner here is a beautiful picture, A Trap for Santa Claus. The Diver's Remorse is clever, and wonderfully played. New comic pictures include I'm Tired and The Burglar Alarm. Miss Amy Stewart is re-engaged for this week. She is the possessor of a very nice voice.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company is here in the romantic drama, A White Man. Captain James Wynnegate, as taken by Mr. Guy Hastings, merits the highest eulogy, and distinction is given to the part of Lady Diana by Miss Kathleen Maude; Miss Ormonde Wynne is exceptionally gentle and sympathetic as the Dowager Lady Kerth; the Earl of Kerhill is well taken by Mr. Charles Maunsell; Miss Dorothy Duncan acquits herself admirably as Lady Mabel Wynnegate; and Mr. R. A. Brandon's Big Bill is an intelligent and convincing sketch.

PAVILION PIER.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter; Musical Director, Mr. Surtees Corne.—Two laughable farces are introduced here by Mr. J. D. Hunter's combination of artists, A Married Bachelor and Ici on parle Français. These create great fun and amusement, the characters being taken by Messrs. J. E. Cowell, F. Beck, J. D. Hunter, Charles Hawker, and the Misses Eva Bayley, Vera Dudley, Rene Ashley, and Blanche Bayley. Between the two pieces the Sisters Edwards present some very pretty dancing and singing.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING. — GAIETY.—Proprietors, Messrs. Hall and Ainsley.—Mr. Frank Lindo and his company are meeting with much success in Home, Sweet Home. In the rôle of Stephen Armitage Mr. Frank Lindo gives a typical and finished portrayal, and Miss Marion Wakeford a delightful impersonation of Joan. Others who contribute largely to an enjoyable performance include Mr. Norton Shields, Mr. Sidney Dench, Mr. Leonard Laurence, Mr. Bert Dench, Mr. Eric S. Crowther; Miss Nellie Benson, Miss Helene Thompson, and Little Doris. The attractions during Easter week are Oliver Twist and Miss Plaster of Paris.

PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood.—A capital programme gives much satisfaction to large audiences. Special films are Custer's Last Stand, A Woman's Repentance, and Scenes of the Paris Floods. Miss Victoria Rioff, the lady baritone, is well received.

HOYLAND. — HIPPODROME. — Owner, Mr. Scott Alexander; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Terry.—Matt Wilkinson and company, in The Registry Office, are well received; Chester and Lee's marionettes are up to date; Jackson and May give a sensational act in "cycling in mid-air"; a smart and dainty comedienne is found in Maude Lorette; and the Glenister illustrated songs are excellent; Beatrice, boy impersonator, and Roy Lennard, vocalist, are very good.

HUDDERSFIELD. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The Faludy Troupe, who head the bill, show some clever acrobatic work. Also appearing are Miss Nellie Neil, comedienne; Judge's well-trained parrots, macaws, &c.; Ralph and Nellie Howard, in a smart musical act; Vincent, a jumper from great heights; Miss Helen Charles, a charming entertainer at the piano; the Vetter Bros., two accomplished gymnasts; Lee and Kingston, in a merry comedy episode; and the pictures.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—The star turn is contributed by the brilliant Geni Family, whose risley work is clever. Also here are the Fimans, in their comedy scene In a Fire Station; the Sisters Brenton, who dance well; Guy Rider, with some sweet whistling; Les Zanonis, in an attractive exhibition of juggling and club throwing; Miss May Poulton, a bright comedienne; Will Rhodes, with his quaint parodies; and Arnold Richardson, Gordon Laws, and Miss Ethel Lonsdale, who appear with marked success in a funny one-act play, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law. The pictures are interesting.

HULL. — GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Castellano's Opera company is meeting with a good reception, the répertoire including Cavalleria, Pagliacci, Lucia, Carmen, Faust, Traviata, and Trovatore. In the company are Signora Padovani, Signora Massia, Signora Dessio, Signor Folco, and Signor Siroli. The chorus is well blended.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Are You a Mason? is a drama built on the lines that the patrons of this playhouse so love. Mr. W. V. Garrod plays the hero with fine force; as Lilian Brandon Miss Bertha Kingston reveals talent. The comic relief is acceptably portrayed by Miss Alice Clarke and Mr. Seymour Perry.

HYDE.—EMPIRE AND THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Central Theatres and Franco-British Picture Co.; Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Percival.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. H. Cardwell's juvenile company is presenting Hop o' My Thumb with an ability worthy of their elders. As the hero and heroine of the story, Miss Kitty Trewhitt and Miss Kitty Rafferty prove very popular; Miss Gladys Wise, assisted by a Claus ballet, scores a success with her Scotch numbers; Little George Harris proves a clever laughter-maker; Messrs. Rick and Cowley introduce enjoyable patter; and Mr. Vivian Wakeman is a mirth-provoking dame.

IPSWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—A very popular turn is Miss Flo Stanley's company in a musical comedy, entitled Prince of the Dandies. It is well staged, and the dancing and singing are excellent. Fred and Lulu Camplin have also a musical comedy turn, which is decidedly humorous; the Donatos, those clever one-legged dancers, are paying a return visit, and had a hearty welcome; Carlotta Levy has some catchy songs with good choruses; Maxford and O'Neill are two versatile comedians; Chas. Pastor sings some amusing songs; Gertie Martini gives clever impersonations of variety artists; and the Bioscope concludes a good bill.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—Are You a Mason? is proving quite a draw here. Mr. William Lockhart gives a fine performance of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Archie Selwyn is well placed as George Fisher; Mr. Howard Tracey gives an excellent rendering of Frank Perry; Mr. Stanley Arthur is a droll Hamilton Tavers; Miss Grace Denbeigh Russell is a bright Eva; Miss Agnes Maude a capital Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; Miss Peggy E. Yeoman a successful Lottie; and other characters are all in excellent hands.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE. — Licencee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. Chas. Constant's company is presenting the evergreen Florodora. The leading parts are all well sustained. Mr. Gus Danby is entitled to much praise as Anthony Tweedlepunch; and Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus Gilfain is good. Miss Daisy Lake is pleasing as Dolores; Miss Josephine Ellis ably portrays the part of Angela Gilfain; Lady Holyrood has a clever impersonator in Miss Kate Lester. The chorus is well selected.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—Mr. Fred Boulton's vaudeville company is presenting a fine programme, every turn being well received. The items include the Three Eltons, in their horizontal-bar performance; Billy Fauder, comedian; Miss Buckingham's troupe of performing dogs; a very clever ventriloquial turn by Newman; Alice Vernon, cornet soloist; the Three Mascots; Harry Hellis, comedian; Mlle. Sara, with her classical statuary act; Miss Beatrice Royal, illustrated songs; the Boultons, with a charming comedy duet; and Mlle. Bartenelli, a remarkable contortionist.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah.—Miss Augusta Tullock and company are here with Judith. In the title-rôle Miss Tullock exhibits high-class histrionic qualities; Jack Carrington is pleasingly performed by Mr. Edward Vivian; and Eugene Darville receives a fitting interpretation at the hands of Mr. J. Thornley. Silas Norris, played by Mr. A. Kirk, is good; and the part of Bill Scamp is admirably presented by Mr. Leslie Stanley. Mr. Wm. de Lacy deserves special mention for his portrayal of Percy Hogg. Miss Dorothea Vivian makes a charming Hester Morris, and Miss Amy Osborne is a vivacious Maudie Green. Miss Dot Dainton is worthy of great praise for her rendering of blind Meg. The Compton Comedy Company are booked for the last three nights of the week.

CORN EXCHANGE PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. D. Walker; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Good pictures are again in evidence at this theatre, the most interesting being Little Nell, The Cripples' Race, Dog Rambles, The Little Flower Girl, An Unfortunate Shot, Nick Carter, The Student's Revenge, and The Porter's Mistake. Miss Ruby Lester, impersonator, and Persugal are appearing here this week with much acceptance.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—Mr. T. C. Wray and Austen Hurgont's Girls of Gottenberg company were announced to give sacred concerts on Good Friday, playing the popular musical comedy to-night (Saturday).

ELECTRIC THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—The two chief films are For the Honour of the Family, a very sensational story in seven scenes, and Cock-a-Doodle-Doo, a mirth-creating subject. Other pictures of an interesting and amusing character include The Hero, Weary Willie Gets a Job, Grandeur and Decadence, The Pact, and Gorges of the Andes. The elocutionist, Mr. Bert Williams, concludes a very successful engagement this week. He has been a great favourite. Mr. Henry Lewis delights his audiences with his very fine baritone voice, which is heard to distinct advantage in his songs.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company in Dear Little Denmark is well appreciated, the comedians causing much laughter. Mr. Henry Kitts as the gouty duke scores a success; and Miss Netta Lynde sings with effect.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nathaniel Hepworth.—A military romance, From Convent to Throne, is well produced. In the rôle of Princess Maritz Miss Mary Fulton displays much cleverness, as also does Mr. William J. Miller as Baron Strelsaw.

EMPIRE. — District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—A sketch by Miss Kate Carney, in which she appears as Carmen, the gipsy queen, creates much merriment; La Sylphe proves herself a clever dancer; Miss Milly Engler and company, in Beauty and Burglar, are very amusing; and other favourites include Leonie Dixon, Frederic King, and Marie Queenie, the Three Delaries, Carl and Carr, and Chas. Vincent.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—A capital bill is headed by an operatic sketch, The Daughter of the Regiment, presented by Mr. Ernest C. Gittins' company. Mlle. Adele in the title-rôle renders her songs effectively; and Mr. J. H. Wood's powerful bass voice is well applauded. Will Barnard's mimicry gains him much applause; Martin Henderson, the blind musician, is very clever with the concertina; Mozzetto is a juggler of ability; and Margit and Lener are eccentric.

BARRASFORD HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—Mr. Reginald Eyre's company in Gentlemen, The King, meets with every success; the old sergeant whose heartfelt desire to again see the colours of his old regiment is a strong character, in which Mr. Henry Bedford greatly distinguished himself. Hayman and Franklin are very popular; Mr. C. keeps the house well amused with his witticisms; the Sisters Kebble thoroughly merit the applause given for their clever dancing; another favourite whose songs are well and daintily sung is Maud Courtney; Jock Whiteford, "the Smart Scot," scores repeatedly. A good bill also includes Dolly Ross, James Basnett, The Navardos, Kiners-Moulin, and the Three Comedy Chanters.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Tom Drum and Katie Major are the principal attractions in a novel vocal scena, entitled The Broker's Man. Neumann and Browne are capable vocalists; Marie Kay is a dainty soubrette and dancer, and her catchy songs make her popular. The Actor's Last Call, a song-scena presented by Mr. Arthur Ross, is greatly appreciated.

LEICESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—We have as the attraction Messrs. J. C. Lodge-Percy and James Martin's company in Moths and Camille. They opened their engagement with the former play, in which Miss Henrietta Schrier displays great cleverness as Fuchsia Leach, being well seconded in various parts by Mr. Andrew Money as Prince Sergius Zouroff, Mr. J. C. Lodge-Percy as Lord Jura, Mr. Cecil Kerr as the Duke of Mull, Mr. F. Douglas Howard as Corrèze, Miss Veronica Clinton as Vere Herbert Miss Marie Ramuz as the Duchess de Sonaz, and Miss Nellie Statham as Lady Dolly. The play was well staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Mlle. Irma Lorraine, the renowned beauty and poseur, who is assisted by Makjah and Mlle. Leony, are seen to great advantage in an entirely new and beautiful performance, embracing living pictures, enthralling Eastern dances, and chaste living statuary. The popular actor-musician, Van Biene, who shares the top of the bill, is a great favourite with his new domestic episode Van Biene's Baby, his 'cello solos being brilliantly performed. He is assisted in capital style by Miss Violet Vaughan and Mr. T. Hartley. The Lukushimas, including Otorora San, are vastly pleasing in a particularly smart and clever performance; Harry Friskey, the unique comedy juggler, keeps the audience in continual laughter; Harry Leybourne is a versatile artist, who gives a thoroughly enjoyable turn. Entertaining items are also contributed by Kisbey, the call boy, and Adey Spencer, the girl from the hat shop. Clarke and Hayden, musical comedy artists, who are on the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit. The Bioscope is also retained.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—The leading item in this week's programme is a very fine and lengthy film of the Freddy Welsh and Johnny Summers' fight. Clara Coverdale's Nine Dainty Dots, in their scena Gipsy Revels, give a popular turn; Geo. M. Baker and Lilian Balfe make a big hit with their xylophone playing and the concluding eccentric dance; Picton Raxborough and Fanny Wright are good in their pot-pourri singing and dancing musical comedy act, the dancing and singing of the lady partner calling for special praise; Walter Barrett is a baritone vocalist of ability; Lilian Edwards is an excellent comedienne. The Bioscope also shows a most mirth-provoking picture, entitled How Scroggins Put Up for Blankshire.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The two principal films this week are Patriot's Daughter and A Friend of the Family. The other well-shown and interesting films include Foolshead's Christmas, An Oriental Mystic, Manufacturing Ropes and Cables, When Prison Bars are Useless, Uncle Richard, The Right to Love, Theodore's Concert, The Dimiki Donkey, An Ingenious Safe Deposit, and Magda. Fred Hutchings, a funny comedian, provides an entertaining attraction.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Pantomime, in or out of season, is always acceptable here, and a return visit of Mr. Fred Granville's Beauty and the Beast production has been well received this week. The piece is notable for the pleasing impression made by Miss Dollie Barrie as Beauty, and for the effective singing of Mr. Nicklin Williams in the rôle of the Beast. Miss Maudie Vincent and Miss Nellie Valentine win favour as Prince Greatheart and Silver Buttons respectively; and Miss Flo Zingaree, Miss Victoria Francis, and Miss Fanny Wallace are successful in their allotted parts. The comedians, whose methods of humour quite capture the appreciation of the audience, include Messrs. Sammy Foster, Albert Juan, Edward Stream, and Frank Daleno. Most of the principals, as well as Baby Boden and the Royal Quintette of dancers, contribute popular speciality turns; and the songs, wheezes, and comicalities appear to be greatly enjoyed.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—August Van Biene and Son's company, in Walter Howard's drama Man and Wife, are fulfilling a return visit, and are very welcome. Mr. Jerrold Ord is a strong Paul Revere, and Miss Kate Hallam is excellent as the heroine, Marcelle. Mr. George Overs repeats his fine assumption of the cripple Jean; and Mr. E. Hall Eldon and Mr. Edwin Helm are once more seen in their amusing portrayals of the comedy parts.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. E. Dubney.—The Piccolinos, a remarkable party of midgets, present an extraordinary and varied entertainment, including sharp-shooting, dancing, acrobatics, &c. Excellent support comes from the Daintons, Tom Yorke, Dorothy Dare, Norah Desmond, and Albert Letine.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Here this week we are having another welcome return of Mr. Martin Harvey and his able company in several popular plays. On Monday evening the curtain rose on the always acceptable Breed of the Treshams, in which Mr. Harvey sustained his old-time part of Reresby; the sound acting of Mr. Charles Glenny made the rôle of Hungerford stand out prominently; Mr. Leonard Craske worthily presented the character of Francis Tresham; Miss N. de Silva was again the light-hearted faithful Batty; thanks are due to Miss Brenda Gibson for her tactful rendering of Margaret; and among Mr. Harvey's other worthy supporters were Mr. Phillip Hewland (Dorsington), Mr. Owen Roughwood (Curwen), Mr. Fred Wright, sen. (Bagshaw), Mr. Edward Combermere (Stanhope), Mr. Alfred Mansfield (Rasleigh), and Mr. Denholm Muir (Willoughby). The rest of the week was occupied by A Cigarette Maker's Romance, The Conspiracy, The World and His Wife, and The Only Way.

Shakespeare Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffrey.—After a successful pantomime this theatre remains closed during Passion week, opening to-night (Saturday) with the first of seven performances of The Earl and the Girl.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Cotton Spinner pays a first visit to this popular north-end house. As Mary Prescott, Miss Mary Austin delights everybody, earning much favour by reason of her powerful acting; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds repeats his capital portrait of John Prescott; Mr. William Manning makes an excellent Lord Northbury; as his son Arthur Mr. George Porteous plays with discretion; and other well held parts are Major Stratton (Mr. W. H. Dewhurst), Smirk (Miss Nellie Hayes), Lady Needy (Miss Belle Power), and Constance Harrington (Miss Ethel Vinroy). A neat little curtain-raiser is The Reward, by Millicent Edmonds.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Morton Powell's strong drama A Girl's Temptation, which is drawing good houses. Miss Gertrude Gilbert, in the rôle of the persecuted Kate Sterling, finds much favour and plays with a deal of feeling; Mr. Frank V. Fenn lends great support with his Guy Warren, and earns loud applause; the rascally Mark Klaw is admirably undertaken by Mr. Clifton Earle; Mr. Tom Handley makes the most of Charles Claude; as Jim Judd Mr. Fred J. Mace does well; Mr. William H. Crande does everything necessary with Moss Isaacstein; Miss Blanche Lee is deserving of praise for her Annie Brown; Miss Louie Walton shows talent and care as Mrs. Stirling; a deal of comedy comes from Mr. Freddie Bentley as Sammy Sniggles; and Miss Winnie Donovan pleases with her Lady Heathfield. The play is well put on.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The inimitable George Robey is prominent here this week, enjoying rousing receptions for his rousing songs; Drew and Alders, fresh from a big success in local pantomime, cause shouts of laughter with their sketch The Coastguards; the ventriloquial act of Thora is greatly enjoyed; Harry Allister shows high talents as an impersonator; the Rhoda Bros. present a clever gymnastic act; Farr and Farland make their audience scream with laughter by reason of their patter; the Sisters Storm are a pair of dainty duettists, whose uncommonly good simultaneous dancing provokes loud applause; Verno and Voyce please as much as ever with their novel vocal scena; Florence Esdaile, possessed of a rich voice, earns general approval for her several numbers; and the mimicry of Florence is appreciated.

Lyric.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Top of the bill is Madie Scott, a sprightly comedienne, whose songs are received with immense favour; Jack Ross and Sue Lewis cause endless laughter with their patter and dancing; the Sisters Carina go through a refined musical act; some novel and clever juggling is performed by the Two Cromwells; Little Pam as a juvenile comedian and dancer does well; Milner and Storey submit a neat all-round vaudeville show. Tickets; and also in the list are F. S. Howard with London Life, and George Lennard, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—John L. Sullivan, the champion boxer, makes his "first appearance in vaudeville in Europe," assisted by Jake Kilrain, another boxer. His entertainment comprises a monologue, story recitals, a sparring match with gloves, and a bioscope show of the McCoy-Corbett Fight. Some smart acrobatic work is shown by the three Braggs, their "living bridge" being witnessed with wonder; Brent Hayes displays remarkable skill as a banjoist; Sam Elton causes his audience to rock with laughter by reason of his funny sayings; Stuart and Evans are a couple of refined comedians; the Forsyths have a pretty musical comedy speciality act, La Poupée; Charlie Carr dances and sings well; and Nora Stockelle, comedienne, is also in the programme.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—This week The Mariner's Compass is being given by the stock dramatic company, among the principals being Messrs. Sydney Grant (Engleheart) Harry Tresham (Dayrell), Tom H. Solly (Augustus Brown), Miss Gertrude Gilman (Mrs. Provost) Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Hetty Arnold), and Miss Lina Nazeby (Mrs. Engleheart). Brown's Bioscope shows Into the Shadow.

Olympia.—District-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Prominent here this week is Gertie Gitana, with her taking songs; Harry Roxbury and company create contonnius laughter with their On the Track; the famous Craggs present a most enjoyable turn, Territorials; or, England's Last Hope, which is exceedingly clever and funny; Tom Costello brings his latest and wins a deal of applause; D'Arc's marionettes prove exceedingly amusing; the Merry Ernie Garner makes everybody laugh; some capital and diverting singing is provided by the Brooklyn Comedy Four; Siems shows remarkable skill as a conjurer; and the Glenroy Troupe of speciality characteristic dancers come in for a large measure of approval. The Thursday matinée "trial" shows are becoming very popular.

Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. George F. Slatter.—Pantomime is here again, Mr. William Watson having sent a really good Robinson Crusoe. In the cast are the Waldrons (Joe and Ettie), who, as the twins, cause endless laughter; Mlle. de Rose makes a neat Crusoe; Miss Hilda Claremont looks well as principal girl; Phil Lestor proves an amusing Mrs. Crusoe; Lambert and Butler are the diverting Sunny Jims; and Mme. Louie Gilbert is the Queen. The pantomime is well staged and goes with a swing.

LLANDUDNO.—Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arnold Macara.—Barney Vox tops the bill here this week, and his ventriloquial efforts are loudly applauded; Bob Stephenson does well as comedian and dancer; Ford Williams contributes sentimental songs; Lenaro has an eccentric act, Fun on a Dustbin; May Thornes is a versatile comedienne; and Nellie Nora is above the average as an instrumentalist. The Biograph pictures complete a good programme.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Business-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Miss Violet Osmund's company presented on Thursday and Saturday this week, the musical comedy The New Barmaid, under the direction of Mr. Alexander Loftus. An interesting feature in the second act is the appearance of various members of the company in the characters of well-known celebrities.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—The well-known detective drama The Ticket-of-Leave Man is drawing appreciative audiences this week. Mr. William Macready is responsible for a fine picture of the persecuted "Bob" Brierley, and is admirably supported by Miss Chrissie Bickerstaffe (May Edwards). For the holidays we have The Beggar-Girl's Wedding.

The Hippodrome reopens on Easter Monday.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Arthur Farren presents Cinderella here. The title-rôle is daintily taken by Miss Eva Barlow; Miss F. Anderson makes a capital Prince Charming; and Miss Isa Bernard a pleasing Dandini. Stokes and Macabe are responsible for much of the merriment as the Ugly Sisters; Mr. Arthur Farren enacts Baron Limerick in a capable manner; and Mr. James Mackenzie is smart and invigorating as Peps.

MAESTEG.—Picture Palace.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Owing to the great demand for a bioscope and vaudeville entertainment, the above popular place of amusement will be run on such lines in the future on the two houses nightly system. So far the new venture has met with terrific success. This week's bill is headed with an historical film, entitled Lancelot and Elaine. Other interesting pictures are A Rough Sea at St. Jean de Lux, The Minister's Daughter, Too Beautiful, and Only a Stepdaughter. The Mosures, in a comedy sketch entitled The Suffragette cause roars of laughter. The Anzellas, in a gymnastic mélange, are very well received.

MANCHESTER.—Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J .Mason.—Henry Chatteli and Jack Denton's company is here in Through the Divorce Court. The heroic parts are capitally handled by Mr. Robert Purd e, as Lord Robert Penarth, and Miss Hettie Chatteli as Lady Dolores Penarth. Mr. Henry C. Cooper gives a very forcible rendering of the villainous Guzman di Mendoza, admirably assisted by Miss Edith Cruikshanks as Lady Hilda F.tzmaurice. Much humour is infused by Mr. Jack Denton, who gives an amusing impersonation of Algy, and Mr. Harry Colbeck as Patsy Rafferty.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Hearne.—Wilson Howard and Co. are here in a military play, Under the Iron Heel. Mr. Wilson Howard, as Rene de Maupassant, makes the very best of a strong part, and Miss Carlotta Anson is entirely successful as Germaine Mirbleau. Mr. W. J. Richards is also conspicuously good as Otto Marx, and Mr. John Talford plays Father Mirbleau with considerable skill and sympathy. Mr. Carl Vallender, as Schultz, and Miss Marie Angus, as Andre, both humorous rôles, add to the success of the piece. Praise should be added for Miss J. Douglas-Hicks as Maman Gouffe.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—The attraction here is Sexton Blake, played last week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here in The Old Folks at Home, which was put on successfully last week at the Metropole Theatre.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The top turn here is Fred Karno's company in Perkins, M.P., the title-rôle being played by Albert Bruno. W. J. Churchill (Uncle Willie), the popular comedian, is also prominent; and other good turns are The Sisters Caselli, duetists and dancers; Tom Lloyd, comedian; John Henry, Welsh baritone; The Carmos, clever jugglers; Rich and Rich, quaint comedians; and Elsie Roby, the comedy slavey at the piano.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Colini-Clairons, an exceedingly clever octette of dancers, are seen here this week in an artistically executed terpsichorean act of great merit; Harry Weldon, comedian, is well rece.ved, as usual, his style and songs being very amusing; Les Silas, French operatic vocalists, have very fine voices, and offer a pleasing turn; Ray Wallace, the lady mimic at the piano, gives smart imitations; the Brothers O'Brien, in a triple-bar act, give a wonderful performance; Charles Santon scores as a male soprano; Carrie Laurie's "Kindergarten" introduces some very smart children in song and dance; the Brennans are very good step-dancers; and Stanley and Greenop give fine select.ons on the banjo. Pictures complete.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Wilkie Bard is here this week with his usual success. His song, "The Bugle Call," is particularly good. Blake and Amber, the famous trans-Atlantic comedy couple, make a decided hit in their burlesque scene; Radford and Valentine cause no end of fun in a smart juggling act; the Stavordale Quintette, in their banjo and hoop speciality with human voice effects, are well received; Walker and Lake are good comedians; Rosie Lloyd is a pleasing comedienne; the Westbrook trio are good dancers; and the Three Laurels present a very clever acrobatic speciality. Palace pictures are also included in the programme.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Messrs. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Daisy Jerome, the "electric spark," tops the bill here this week, and meets with a flattering reception; she has several new and clever songs. Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane play well in a farcical absurdity, Trizie; Ben Lewin is exceptionally good in his character impersonations; Zeta Russell is a dainty dancer; Mabel Gregory, a pleasing comedienne, sings nicely; and smart turns are offered by Barry Snowball and Kitty Mac, comedy duo; Iris Yohe, comedienne; and Bob and Nellie Comber, comedy duo. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures complete.

Mr. Courtice Pounds as quaint and lovable Mattheus Roiter sings and acts with delightful charm; Mr. Percy Carr as Stefan is well suited; the humour of the play is ably sustained by Mr. Ernest J. Langford as Zoph, the village constable, and Mr. William Hindson as the Mayor; whilst Annamirl is played by Miss Gladys Gay with charming abandon. Miss Madge Vincent is heard to advantage in the rôle of Freda, and Little Rosalie is cleverly portrayed by little Mary Glynn.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore and company paid their first visit to Newcastle on Monday in a répertoire of Ibsen's plays. A Doll's House was the selection for the opening night. Miss Kenmore's Nora Helmer was a fine performance; Mr. Lovel as Torvald Helmer played with full appreciation of Ibsen's intention; Mr. Kenneth Black was a convincing Dr. Rank; Miss Daisy Race an exceedingly good Ellen; and to Mr. Arthur McCulloch as Nils Krogstadt praise is also due.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. E. B. Clark.—Mr. Percy Williams's company in The Fatal Wedding is meeting with a good reception here. Mr. Edward Lloyd is conspicuous with a forcible rendering of Howard Wilson; Miss Ethel Key sustains the character of Mabel Wilson impressively; Mr. Cyril Melton comes out particularly strong in the heavy rôle of Robert Curtis; and Cora Wilson is ably interpreted by Miss Leah Marlborough. Jessie, the "Little Mother," is very prettily played by Miss Marie Wilson.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's company on Monday came here in The Cingalee. Nanoya was delightfully played by Miss Isa Bowman; and Miss Ray Anderson as Lady Pat and Miss Florrie Greensmith as Peggy Sabine were most successful. Mr. Frank Barclay as the Hon. Harry Vereker, Mr. Frank Lennard as Boobhamba, Mr. Herbert Franklyn as Bobby Warren, and Mr. Hylton Ward as Chambuddy Ram all contribute to the success.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—Nelson Jackson, the popular entertainer, occupies, along with Sam Mayo, the premier position on the bill; another item of more than ordinary merit is that supplied by Mabel Mavis, who provides a novel musical turn, including selections on the glassophone; Queenie Leighton, the popular musical comedy artist, introduces some capital patter; the Delevines supply a screamingly funny comedy act entitled Flipp and Flopp; and an equally entertaining turn is that of the Brothers Redmond. Billy Hobbs, a clever dancer, Henry Helme, vocalist, Holden's Mannikins, and Alice Raymond and her Players are other turns.

NORTHAMPTON.—Palace of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Samson and McNeil, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H Gould; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—Heading the programme here are the Primrose Quartette, in a highly appreciated Welsh song scena; Delaforce and Hartley, Transatlantic drolls, provide some varied comedy; J. C. Hinkins is amusing; illustrated songs are presented by the Rinders; Hector and Sultan give a laughable kuockabout turn; Charles Lestree juggles with balls, plates, &c.; the Sisters Harcourt are pleasing comediennes and dancers; and Tom Herman's spectacle For King and Country ends the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's capable company is this week presenting With Edged Tools. Mr. Hamilton Deane plays the rôle of Jack Meredith with considerable success; Mr. Henry Nunn appears to advantage as Guy Oscard; Mr. J. D. Geddes proves a capital Sir John Meredith; Mr. Campbell Goldamid is an excellent Victor Durnova; and Mr. Albert Campbell sustains the part of Maurice Gordon effectively. As Jocelyn Gordon Miss Marie Leonhard submits an admirable study; Miss Marguerite Cellier as Millicent Chyne displays much ability; Miss Marion Fawcett acquits herself well as Lady Cautourne; and Miss Florence Dulhunty is a satisfactory Marie.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The chief attraction here is Andrews and Thompson, Anglo-American comedy duo, on a welcome return visit; Williams' Royal Welsh Minstrels, in "Gems of Welsh Melodies," are highly appreciated; and other good turns are Maudie Veres, chic comedienne; the Two Liptons, in their military scena; Walter Aubrey, dancer; Sisters Liston, comediennes; and the Phillips, illustrated songsters.

NORWICH.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F W. Fitt.—Arden and Abels' company in the farcical sketch Three of a Kind arouse much laughter; Amy Anderson and company create much fun in her great comedy scena Black and White; Les Wartanas are brilliant as lady jugglers; the Sisters Selwyn are dainty comediennes and expert dancers; Paul Cavalli, an athlete acrobat equilibrist balancer and musical virtuoso, gives a unique turn; Mark Henton sings excellent songs; Florence Burns is a pleasing vocalist; and the Hippodrome Bioscope is interesting.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—You Never Can Tell is playing here again to highly appreciative houses. Miss Edith Hunter gives a convincing and natural portrayal of Mrs. Clandon; Miss Winifred Beach supplies a noteworthy performance of Gloria Clandon; and a winsome Dolly Clandon is seen in Miss Ida Southern. Mr. Graham Colmer is a breezy Valentine; Mr. Bellenden Clarke infuses plenty of spirit into the part of Bohun; Mr. Geoffrey Wilkinson makes an acceptable Philip Clandon; and Mr. J. Edward Pearce an excellent Fergus Crampton. The waiter of Mr. Claude Haviland is a fine character study; Mr. Alan Jeayes makes the most of Finch McComas; and Miss Sylvia Dawson does well as the Maid.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The thrilling situations in When Woman Hates are well portrayed by Mr. Bulmer's company. Mr. B. H. Davis makes a dignified General Rokeby; a dashing Lieut. Rokeby is seen in Mr. Louis Lingard; Mr. Austin Mortimer well enacts the villainous schemes of Godfrey Lawton; Mr. Evan Roland extracts all possible fun from Patrick O'Brien; and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd capitally interprets the eccentric Alphonse Picolet. Miss Lillian Herries brings out all the fiendish nature of Cora Daintry; Miss Lala Stanhope is a pleasing Marie Rokeby; and the amorous Mrs. Potts is humorously played by Miss Mary Dalby.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The beautiful ballet designed by Signor Rosi evokes the most generous applause, and special praise is due to the dancers, Signorine Rossetti and Luisa Patti. George Leyton, with his stirring scena "The Roll-call," is again assisted by Crimean veterans; a thoroughly enjoyable musical burlesque is presented by King and Benson; the Three Van Dammes give an excellent comedy acrobatic performance; Millie Payne, with new songs, adds to her laurels; and Harry Bedford keeps the fun going with his new skits. Other items also include Musical Silvo, Ethel Bourne, vocalist, and Conan and Doyle, comedians.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—The drolleries of Charles Austin as Parker, P.C., are a never-failing source of amusement; the versatility of Albert Le Fre is displayed in juggling, illusions, dances, and songs, to the great delight of his audiences. Adah Payne sings a dainty song artistically; the Brothers Werds succeed admirably in their acrobatic feats; Dunning's ventriloquial item is popular; and a highly amusing sketch is given by Millie and Arthur. The Kahn Trio, conjurers, the Birkenhead family of singers and dancers, and Tom Lee, comedian, are also on the bill.

OLDHAM.—Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Her Path of Sorrow is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott and company. Miss Fay Garnet Vayne as Nellie Rayne acts capitally, and was heartily applauded. Mrs. Draycott as Pauline Ferrars finely depicts a girl of a noble and generous disposition; Mr. Draycott as Richard Burfield acts in a forcible and manly style which wins hearty recognition; Mr. Frank Eaglesfield vividly portrays the callous and vicious Guy Lowther; Mr. Frank Etheridge is a smart Lionel Heathcote, and acts cleverly. Mr. Theo. Balfour makes a capital Markham Ferrars, and Mr. Chas. Reyne a good Farmer Rayne. Miss Nellie Freeland is vivacious as the flirty Mamselle Lucille; Miss Daisy Carlton as Polly Green causes hearty laughter; and Mr. Will Hook as Tommy Onions is the means of much merriment. Dr. Simms is acted ably by Mr. Alan Sethwyn, and Mr. Hubert Laurence does well as Jack Smith. Mr. Eric Winstanley is a competent Detective Williams; and Messrs. Saunders and Wheeler are good policemen.

Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Herbert Fuller and company are here with As Your Hair Grows Whiter, and the drama is well played. Miss Agnes Collier acts ably in a hard and thankless part as Alice Walters, whose persecutor, Squire Jack Stonely, is acted in excellent style by Mr. S. Leigh Courtney. Mrs. Walters is well played by Miss Lillian Burns; and Farmer Walters is artistically portrayed by Mr. R. Nelme Grasswell. Mr. Percy St. Clair is a soldierly Jack Walters; Mr. Percy Byers makes a smart Governor Farragh; and Mr. Edward Jeffs is effective as Sergeant O'Hara. Miss Emily Lewis as Nurse Von Grip is amusing, and Mr. Hubert Helliwell as the Rev. John Aldberry is very good. Mr. Herbert Fuller infuses some clever comedy into his acting as Timothy Slough, ably assisted by Mr. Louis Weston as Nebucannezza Mendelssohn Wagner Mozart.

Royal Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The programme is a very attractive one here, comprising The Race for the Grand National; Buried Alive is a typical tale of a mining camp; a pathetic picture, entitled Punch Benefactor, is very good; and some fine views of the Imatra Falls are depicted in a capital film. Laddie is a favourite picture, and takes well. Among the amusing films is one which is most laughable, Late for the Office, and the popular choruses thrown on the screen are much enjoyed. Mr. Don Cameron contributes a good song.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The Grand National of 1910, shown here, is very good. Mr. King lectures in his usual racy manner, and his songs are good.

Osborne Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hughes.—His Only Child is the top liner, and proves a very fine film. A Cowardly Plot is a well-acted picture, and Life in the U.S.A. Army is very interesting. A Good Winning and The Kleptomaniac are very funny. Mr. H. Knight is singing very well indeed.

Brown's Assembly Rooms.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Brown.—The Eagle's Egg is a powerful dramatic picture; The Sentinel's Romance is a good story of love and war; and Sports in Winter is a very pleasing picture.

Oddfellows' Hall (Shaw).—Proprietor, Mr. A. Ashworth.—An excellent programme is provided this week. The top liner, The Boyhood of Vidocq, is a fine one, and The Paris Floods are very interesting.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Saville.—Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company is presenting here A Mockery of Marriage. Mr. W. Graham Arthurs gives a powerful embodiment of Sir Montague Jephson; as Joseph Vernam Mr. Frank Masters is excellent; Mr. Harold Heath submits a manly portraiture of Jack Stanley; Mr. Fred Bentley essays with success the part of Seth Pearce; and as Toby Wright Mr. David Phillips is very amusing. Miss Mabel Liston as Alva Kenyon displays ability; Miss C. Middleton as Rose Vernam is admirable; the Nellie Kenyon of Miss Priscilla Barnard is capitally played; and Miss Kate Hughes as Mary Ann Barnicoat is provocative of much mirth.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack R. Bostock.—Sears, American illusionist, holds premier position here, and his mysticism is bewildering. Hinton and Wooton display ability as trick cyclists, and their football match creates enthusiasm; and others who contribute to the programme are Charles Rowen, comedian; Arthur Croxon, burlesque imitator; Helen Martin, vocalist; Vere and Nelldon, a novelty duo; Billy French, wooden-shoe dancer. The Bioscope is well up to the usual standard.

PERTH.—Perth Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and H. Browning's company, including Mr. Rutland Barrington, is here in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Barrington was excellent as the Marquis of Steventon, proving himself as capable in comedy as in comic opera. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards made a strong Jack Frobisher; Mr. Russell Barry exactly suited the part of Hankey Bannister; and Mr. H. Browning was sufficient'y insinuating as Harry Dallas. Miss Gwendoline Hay played delightfully both in the flippant and the more tender scenes as Lady Alethea; Miss Ethel-Trevor Lloyd was a charming Lady Westerby; Miss Doris Digby was very amusing as Tina Mornington; and the other members of the company were all well suited.

PETERBOROUGH.—Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Manager, Mr. Percy Hart.—A feature of the programme this week is a competition for amateur comic singers; Gladys Revell, chorus comedienne, is a favourite; Wal Owen, in a funny nonsensical absurdity, is successful; Zelda, instrumentalist, gives an acceptable turn; Will Willis, comedian, gains applause; Marlo is one of the cleverest jugglers seen here lately; Harwood's juveniles, in novel scena A Children's Christmas Eve, are entertaining; and the Karnoscope concludes with new pictures.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Thief is on a return visit, and a company of more than ordinary ability give an excellent rendering of this all-absorbing piece. In the title-rôle Miss Marise Chelford treats the audience to some magnificent emotional acting without overdoing the part in any degree, and Miss Mary Forrester presents a good study of Isabel Leyton. Mr. Bernard Limous as Richard Chelford is responsible for some brilliant acting, particularly exciting bedroom scene; Mr. J. F. Morland gives a capable rendering of Raymond Leyton; and Mr. Carl Lindsey is excellent as the over-generous and chivalrous Harry Leyton.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Harry Lauder furnishes a great draw, packed houses assembling at each performance; the Gothams occupy second position on the bill, and their excellent performance thoroughly justifies the distinction; Len Hale introduces a novelty in the form of buck dancing on roller skates, which is skilfully performed; Bi Bo Bi gives an attractive musical number with some uncommon bell instruments; Shrillo, silfleur, entertains with excerpts from grand opera; Miss Teddy Edmond's company is popular in an amusing sketch, entitled The Lady Jockey, the principal figure being Mr. Jimmy Rous as the tipster; and Mr. Alec Lawson executes some wonderful contortionist dances.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—This week Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's company has presented the pantomime The Babes in the Wood. Miss Violet Thorne is a pleasing Robin Hood; Miss Kitty Liske a charming Maid Marion; Misses F. Parkinson and Kitty Chester are pretty Babes; and Messrs. Dylum and Dale perform the rôles of the Robbers to perfection. Tom Lewis makes an admirable Baron and Mr. Ally M. Benson causes roars of laughter as the Dame.

PONTYPRIDD.—Royal Clarence.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—This week Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's excellent company is presenting Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy, in the title-rôle, scores a success; Mr. Arthur Leigh as the Hon. Reginald Steighton proves himself a capable actor; Miss Nellie Bonser is a charming Mrs. Durham; Lord Mountfallon is ably sustained by Mr. Wm. Culvert; and Mr. Charles Wemyss as Mr. Vallerton is seen to Verner is a great success as Vera Ewan; Miss Jane Migney is a vivacious Nora Stretton; and Miss Dora Olga a clever little Ned. Miss Sadie Smith deserves much praise for her sympathetic portrayal of Honor Thornhill.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—A capital programme this week includes the mysterious De Biere, in an elaborate sequence of illusions; the Four Mayos, in their eccentric speciality on roller skates, are exceedingly clever; Harry McKenzie, Scotch comedian and patterer, has good songs and dances; Marie Powell, waif impersonator, is a clever artist on the 'cello; George Robinson, comedian, has some capital songs; Wash. A. Evans and his company—Miss Vera Crackles, Harry Wood, W. Payne, Matt Cohan, and Tom B. Morris, together with a clever quartette of dancers—cause much laughter with their American miniature musical comedy, Paradise Alley; Fallows and Beaumont, in their vocal comedy act, are distinctly good; and The Bridegroom's Joke on the Bioscope is a capital film.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama Company is supplying a healthy variety entertainment here. The Bioscope pictures and tours are very good. Miss Fredrica's terriers are wonderful. De Lilo and Metz, the charming lady bender and the clever comedy juggler, are exceedingly clever. Little Francesca is an excellent dancer; and the Tissots are amusing living marionettes. Eileen and Mayrie, in a musical mélange, and the Brothers Wayman, expert wooden-shoe dancers, are also in the bill.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—The Manchester Electric Theatres; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Renshaw.—A most amusing set of pictures shown here this week is the one entitled A Ruse That Failed, whilst Maurice Maitland's Marriage is very good also. A dramatic interlude was given in House of Cards, and another amusing sketch was represented in The Porter's Dream. The Tough Beef Steak proved a most amusing item, and in the next film, the Duchesse de Berry, there was presented an interesting historical sketch. The specialities this week are the Three Jewels, who are fascinating and graceful dancers, introducing some poses giving proof of specially trained strength and grace; and Will Sullivan is a typical Lancashire comedian, and met with a successful reception.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. A. Evans.—Mr. Fred Granville's No. 1 company is appearing this week in the domestic drama Another Man's Wife. Mr. Stanley Radcliffe gives a powerful impersonation of the aggrieved husband, Carlos de Vergos; Miss Ruby Loncraine gives a good portrayal of the erring wife; Mr. Alfred D. Adams plays the part of the villainous Paul Bernstoff skilfully, and is well supported by Miss Lilian Radbourne as Inez de Castro; Mr. Willie Reid as Sam Smiles and Mr. Leonard Marshall as Andy Bremmer supply the comic element; and the other parts are well acted.

THE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco, Stage-Manager, Mr. A. Burridge.—Jan Rudenyi and company appear with success in the musical romance The Power of Music. Elton and Elma give a clever performance on the triple horizontal bars; Mr. Chas. Erard is an excellent mimic; Mr. Fred Lincoln is well received in his character creations; the Comedy Meisters combine humour with tuneful voices; Bellew and Stock's company of entertainers, the Romps, appear in a dainty musical scena; Miss Lilian O'Gorman is an acceptable singer and dancer; and the Bioscope completes the entertainment.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Her Life in London was presented on Monday by Mr. Stanley Carlton to a good house. Mr. Casson is very satisfactory as the Rev. Allen Gordon; Miss Rubie Maude sweetly enacts Astra Bell; the blind burglar Grattan Gale is impressively portrayed by Mr. Claude Aymond; Mr. Claude Seaton makes a good study of Mr. Templeton. Madge Rendall, the lady detective with her several disguises, is cleverly played by Miss Katie Randolph; Mr. John Croudace shows to advantage as Collini; Mr. W. Vernon as Percy Plunker and Miss R. B. Douglas as Dolly, the lively lady typist, are responsible for a lot of enjoyable comedy, including singing and dancing. All the other parts are creditably sustained and the scenery is most effective.

E. Ford, "the Australian Sundowner," meets with a cordial reception. The Bioscope concludes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—The Angel of His Dreams is presented here by Messrs. Geo. A. De Gray and Harry Masterman's company. The play is full of thrilling episodes. Mr. De Gray appears with distinction as the Rev. Christian Esdaile; Miss Edna Earl is excellent as Millie St. Austell; and the rest of the characters are in the hands of talented artists.

STOKE-ON-TRENT. — THE HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Lily Vine, who introduces Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies, is to be complimented upon the smart work of her little troupe; the Merrions, in their instrumental and vocal mélange, are most popular. Also billed are George Acre, Crosby and Walker, Hicks and Hunter, Gladys Clinton, John Henry, and the Perfection pictures.

SUNDERLAND.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here this week in His Real Wife. Mrs. Ward gives a well-studied reading of the rôle of Rose; Miss Elma C. Turner is a forcible Lady Sybil Wetton; Mr. Clifford Rean a satisfactory Herbert Barton; and Mr. J. W. Evelyn as Martin Avondale and Mr. C. W. Spencer as General Barton are both good. Mr. Chas. Yorke has plenty of scope for his ability in the rôle of Marquis de Trouville, and he has a good accomplice in Mr. W. Walter Walmsely (Alf. Smithers). The humour is in the good hands of Miss Clarrie Landell as Betty and Mr. T. Edward Ward as Simon.

AVENUE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—An excellent programme is being well received here this week. The equilibristic act of Sylvene is warmly applauded; Rolf Slater scores a success as a male impersonator; and Arthur Wilson's baritone songs are popular.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Considerable disappointment was felt here on Monday evening when Mr. Esden announced that Mark Sheridan, who was billed to appear, was unable to do so owing to sudden illness. The vacancy in the bill was filled by Señor Angel Blanco and company, in a playlet, entitled Music the Conqueror, which afforded scope for some clever violin work by Señor Blanco; another good musical item was supplied by Frank and Jen Latona; a clever exhibition of hoop-manipulation and wire-walking was given by the Prince Milner Trio; an enjoyable turn was contributed by Mornin Knox, the postman ventriloquist; Rolands and Ford, comedians, caused much amusement; Mlle. Haydée was successful with her miniature theatre; and Dion Wade, a droll comedian and mimic, also entertained.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Hamilton's Picture and Variety Co.—La Belle Lumière is delighting her audiences this week with her fascinating kaleidoscopic serpentine dances; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud supply a popular turn, entitled the Singing Box-Makers; and the Carlo and Maie Trio are eminently successful in their humorous and skilful acrobatic act. The pictorial part of the programme is good and varied.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—The Aldbourne Village Players gave a performance of Mr. Charles McAvoy's play The Village Wedding here on Saturday afternoon last before a large and appreciative audience. The drama The Sins of the Fathers is being presented this week by Messrs. E. Faulkner and M. De Courtsey's company. Sir Reginald Moreland is powerfully played by Mr. Max Coutts; Mr. A. W. Thompson does well as Mr. Harmsworth; Mr. Victor Howard successfully depicts George Armitage; Mr. Will Simpson makes a satisfactory Deuteronomy Smith; Justyn Thym is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Ross O'Brien; and Mr. Terence Nerrey is a sympathetic Jem Hewitt. Camille le Blanc is cleverly represented by Miss Edith Blande; Miss Ethel Wynne Matthews acts the part of Ethel Harmsworth with feeling; Miss Dolly W. Symes is a pleasing Polly; and Miss Dorothy Radford shows ability as the Nipper.

G.W.R. SWIMMING BATHS.—Secretary, Mr. W. Spruce.—Messrs. J. R. and C. W. Poole's myriorama is at the above for a fortnight. In addition to magnificent myrioramic displays, the Royal Banzais, wonderful Japanese jugglers, the Brothers Rees, military athletes; Harry Raymond, coon delineator; and the Cairo Trio, instrumentalists, are appearing with great success.

TODMORDEN.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Dewhirst.—Variety takes the place of the legitimate this week, a full house assembling on Monday evening. The Brothers Lloyd top the bill and give a clever cable act. Henglevrer's Russian poodles give a pretty animal number, the high-jumping of two of the dogs being greatly admired, while the two Morrisons please in songs and patter. The Leonas present a smart musical novelty act and a clever fencing exhibition. James and Cyril, the comical knockabout fiddlers, cause great amusement. Edna Cragge is very popular in her chorus songs; and Bonnie Amy Bayne also pleases in her descriptive vocalism. A clever turn is that of Alecia, the premier rolling-globe equilibrist; and the Hippodrome Pictures complete.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, the Corporation; Lessee, Mr. Andrew Martell.—A full house assembled here on Monday evening to witness a good show. An instructive film shows the whole process of Basket-Making from start to finish, while The Flower Seller is a pathetic drama. Other good films are Dick Donovan and Watches of the Night.

OLYMPIA PICTURE PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. A. and H. Andrews; Manager, Mr. Charles Tyers.—Nick Carter, the great American detective, is called in to clear up the mystery of large robberies from the station left luggage office. He and an assistant hide in a box, and are left in the office like an ordinary parcel. They watch through small holes cut in the wood, and see the lid of another packing-case rise and two men emerge, who carry away all the valuable things they can lay hands on. As they are about to escape this time, however, Carter and his assistant fall upon them and capture them. Other good films are The Ragpicker's Christmas, The Obstinate Mule, and Stag-hunting in Java.

WAKEFIELD.—EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.; Manager, Mr. S. H. Laycock.—Mr. Percy Honri, supported by a large company of comedians and dancers, presented the musical phantasy Concordia to two packed houses on Monday, when the charming entertainment had a cordial reception. Mlle. Quetta Papucci contributes some clever solo dances as the Spirit of Phantasy, the production being beautifully staged; Mr. Rowland Hill gives a most enjoyable turn, his original patter being highly amusing; Ellwanger and company, in a comedy sketch, Who Did It? kept the house in roars of laughter; the Horbury handbell ringers highly please with their clever musical items; Perrier is smart in his mock ventriloquial act; Codge, the whistling newsboy, does well; and Bernard Jordan's dogs and monkeys complete an excellent programme.

WALLSEND-ON-TYNE.—BOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hugh Duffy.— Mlle. Rosini, lady clown, and her miniature menagerie heads the bill. Violet Courtney, comedienne, is paying a welcome return visit; Eastman and Servier are coon singers and buck dancers of considerable ability; the Cheers remain another week; the Becketow Bros. are seen to advantage in a pot-pourri; Nannie Shaw proves herself a vocalist and dancer of no mean order; Fred Conway, comedian, has a budget of good songs; Harry King, comedian, and Lucio Delgardo and company also contribute to the programme.

PREMIER PICTURE HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. McDonald.—The Woman from Mellon's is the chief attraction here. All on Account of the Milk is the title of another capital film; and The Orderly is a comic picture well worthy of praise. Chas. Tempest, comedian, is also appearing.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader.—Diana of Dobson's is proving a rare attraction here, and Miss Lena Ashwell's company does full justice to the romantic drama. Miss Molly Tremaine as Diana achieves a pronounced success; Mr. Leslie Rea as the impecunious cavalry officer is good; and as Jabez Mr. A. A. Harris shows genuine comedy skill. Miss Hilda Francks as Mrs. Cantelupe plays with much acceptance; and Miss Marie Ault as Miss Pringle makes herself dramatically detestable. Mr. Leslie Crowther is good as Fellowes; and Miss Mary Crewe is capital as Mrs. Whyte Fraser. A pretty curtain-raiser is Out West.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—Carney and Armstrong, old favourites here, are again delighting large audiences; Bert Woodward is a remarkable cyclist; Elsie Walpuss a clever child mimic; Sydney Branton scores with his dramatic caricatures; Beattie Foster is a dainty comedienne; and La Belle Sylvia a smart vocalist and dancer. Wallace Whitney's songs are much enjoyed.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Central Theatres and Franco-British Animated Picture Company; Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters. — Good business is done here this week. Birt Powell, military illusionist, who has a local connection, accomplishes some clever tricks; J. H. Ellis is a smart comedian; and the Sisters Lindos also score well. Tiny and Mite are talented juveniles. The pictures are good.

WATFORD.—PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Responsible Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Mason; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Wright.—A variety programme has been returned to this week. Mr. Walter Munroe is as amusing as ever, and shouts of "O'Hara" induced him to revive that old favourite. Mr. Victor Newman's character studies are of a very high order. Tess Lilly, the Lincolns, Charlie Slowman, Josie Mooney, the Seddons, and Colin Bryce and Dora Speakman, in an amusing duologue, "A Lesson in Fencing," complete an enjoyable programme.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Plenty of variety is provided by Miss Cissie Milford's company, which includes Mr. Carr Loates. On Monday and Tuesday the attraction was A Noble Brother, with Mr. W. H. Irving as Jerry the Tramp. On Wednesday the stirring drama The Convict's Wife, with Miss Cissie Melford as Susie, proved extremely popular, the plays being well staged and mounted. Behind the Footlights and The Dumb Man of Manchester are also billed.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. R. Colin; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hastings.—There is a return this week to the variety programme, an excellent bill being headed by Rose Haden, comedienne and dancer, who gives a delightful turn; Sid Robey is a clever character comedian; Lilian Harvey also has some taking songs; and Stella and Rose appear in an enjoyable sketch Caught in the Act. The Pictures, too, are thoroughly up to date and well reproduced.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. F. Thompson.—Dot Hardy is a sprightly comedienne, whose antics keep the audience amused; Jean and Josie go through some weird contortions that are undoubtedly clever; Catherine Arkandy, "the English child Patti," has a voice of marvellous range and flexibility; Lugi Salvino, a boy instrumentalist, gives promise of great things; Barton and Ashley are again appearing in their breezy sketch Canal Boat Sal; Gus Garrick's conception of a Spanish dancer is intensely funny; and Le Brun presents an absurdity The Cockney Huntsman; and some capital pictures are shown.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—The Face at the Window is being presented here by F. Marriott and James Ussher's company. Mr. Haughton Macauley is an eminent success in the rôle of Le Loup; Paul Gouffet is played in convincing style by Mr. T. W. Dunscombe; Mr. C. Phelps as Lucian Cortier is responsible for a capital study; and Mr. J. A. Stimson leaves nothing to be desired as Peter Pottleberry. Miss Claire O'Sullivan takes the part of Marie de Brisson with conspicuous ability; Miss Nita Imeson makes a great success of Barbette; and the character of La Pinau is skilfully presented by Miss Marie Pemberton.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—The chief attractions here are Consul, "the almost man," and Park's Eton Boys; Amandus, the facial mimic, gives excellent imitations; "A Budget of Fun" is provided by Dan Daly, whose turn is very entertaining; Fred Neiman causes much amusement with his ventriloquial minstrels; Austen Temple and Irene Chalmers give a novel illusionary performance; the balancing feats of the Almas are exceedingly clever; and Olive Astor, burlesque chorus comedienne; Mlle. Rosina, instrumentalist; and Hector Macneil, tenor, also contribute.

WISHAW, N.B. — PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Nimse.—The Five Whiteleys give a clever acrobatic performance, and also introduce some fine work on the tight wire; Harry Ray and Lillie Calden are a couple of clever comedy artists and dancers; Ernesto, juggler and musical equilibrist, is exceptionally smart and clever; George Hirste is a good Scotch comedian; and Hal Brennan, comedian and dancer, and some excellent films on the Bioscope conclude.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lewis M. Chapman.—Mr. Fred Karno's company opened to a crowded house on Monday with His Majesty's Guests. Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning keeps the house in a continual roar of laughter with his exceedingly droll and clever methods; Mr. E. O. Freshwater possesses a good voice and makes a capital Lord Easem, and his efforts are ably seconded by Miss Winnie Bradfield as Lady Maud Easem; Mr. Charles Usher is good as Mr. Miffin; Mr. C. Richardson as Bunkey; Mr. C. J. Gordon as Mr. Winks, and Mr. S. Bolton as Fritz, and all help much towards the general merriment; Mr. Harry Howe scores a big success as Selina, his "dummy" dance being worthy of special mention; Miss Edith Ager is a charming Dolly, and sings her numbers in a pleasing manner; Miss Annie Wright as Miss Manley gives a smart interpretation of a "new woman"; and Miss Florence Pragnell does well as Miss Mackerel. The chorus and orchestra are under the direction of Mr. Felix J. Burns, and Mr. Charles Burnell is the general-manager.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Vivian Evans.—Goodfellow and Gregson, comedy duo, top the bill here, and their smart patter and novel jokes keep the audience in excellent humour; the Spanish Juanitos provide a sensational acrobatic turn; Felix and Fischer, in a comedy bar act, contribute one of the best items on the programme, the gentleman partner accomplishing feats of almost reckless intrepidity; Victor Courtney as Boots at the piano is amusing; and Dolly and Madge Melalla, in song, story, and dance; John Partington, the Lancashire singing mill lad; and Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer, complete.

WORCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Evans.—Secrets is the title of a dramatic representation of Oriental life given twice nightly this week. Under another title and before revision the production was banned, owing to Turkish susceptibilities, and in its present form it promises to enjoy considerable popularity. Mr. J. F. Preston's capable company comprises Mr. Charles Horner, who is excellent as the naval lieutenant; Miss Hazel Dent, who is well suited as the slave girl; Mr. Dan F. Roe, who is highly popular as the friend of the hero; Mr. J. Richter (Caliph), Mr. J. T. Ellis (Slave Dealer), and Mr. George Whillis and Miss Hetty Gale (Peter and Winnie Watkins).

WORKINGTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—Mr. Joe Ellis (Mac) presents Folly's Fortunes this week. As Billy Boyd, footman, policeman, and detective by turn, "Mac" gives us a feast of versatility; Miss Maud Western as Folly is charming and vivacious; the Biddy of Miss Maudie Lambert is bright and breezy; and the Myra Burritt of Miss Ada Hender is full of fire.

CARNEGIE HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers.—A fine set of pictures, with the Lashmars, a comic comedy couple, and Louis Kerno, coon vocalist and dancer, are here.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Mr. Ellie Barrie sings some good, clean songs, the pictures are good, and the Cameron Quartette are heartily welcomed.

WREXHAM. — EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. J. Scott.—The programme this week was chiefly devoted to a liberal and varied display of Bioscope pictures, including A Milkman's Wedding, Out of Love for the Daughter (a new dramatic film), On Bad Terms with the Porter, The Village Fiddler (a drama), Rival Egotists (a comic picture), &c. Marie Beresford, one of the principal artists, proved herself a charming comedienne; and Fannie Douglas a pleasing vocalist. On Good Friday two sacred concerts took place.

YNYSHIR.—WORKMEN'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—The pictures here still attract crowded houses. The Triumphal Hero is a most powerful dramatic picture, and Pardners, portrayed by Edison players in the magnificent scenery of Alaska, The Dance of Fire, The Slave, Subterfuge, Conquering Hero, and The Adventuress are very good. Imp of the Bottle and Dotty Nob's Double are very amusing. An excellent picture is a swimming exhibition by Miss Kellerman. Miss May Macpherson sings new illustrated songs.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Good business has been done by Mr. W. Howard Scott's company this week in Man and His Kingdom. The play is chiefly notable for the exc

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The Girl He Couldn't Leave Behind Him is the name of a farce, in three acts, that was originally known as The Road to Hell, or the German equivalent of that title, as the author is Gustav Kadelburg, and the play was produced here in German last year at the Irving-place Theatre. The American version, under the first-mentioned title, was presented last week at the Garrick Theatre, with Miss Hattie Williams in the title-rôle, and this is how the story runs: Felix Pendleton is happily married, although he has an autocratic mother-in-law who knows the men are a pretty bad lot and not to be trusted. He has accompanied his father-in-law, Augustus Dorking, to a theatre, where Lola Cornero, a Spanish dancer, is appearing, and the lady has made certain signs and gestures that have led the elderly Augustus to suppose that she had taken a fancy to him. The fact is, however, that young Felix has had a love affair with Lola, and the dancer recognised him. But Augustus murmurs her name in his sleep, and his wife's suspicions are aroused. On the following day Felix receives a telephone message from Lola, reminding him that she consented to his marriage on one condition—he was to spend one day in every year with her. The day has arrived, and Felix will be expected to call on her. She writes a note, which falls into the hands of Felix's father-in-law, who decides to see the dancer himself. As an excuse for absenting himself from home for the day he invents a business engagement in a neighbouring town, and secretly arranges to send Felix there. Seeing a chance for himself, Felix consents, but sends his friend, Arthur Greenfield, in his stead. Mrs. Dorking suspects that something is going on that she ought to know about, and insists that Augustus shall stay at home and that Felix shall make the business trip. Then she sends her daughter after Felix by the next train to find out what he is up to. Felix sets out reluctantly, and on his way to the station drops in to see Lola, intending to say good-bye for ever. Under the influence of her love-making and the champagne she provides he forgets his good resolutions, although he has carried his wife's portrait in his breast pocket and takes surreptitious peeps at it. As a talisman, however, the portrait is a failure, and Felix stays for the day. In comes "the Count," Lola's latest admirer, and she has to tell him that Felix is her dancing partner at the theatre. The "Count" is suspicious, however,, and Felix is forced to execute a Spanish dance in costume, but makes a poor job of it, and escapes. Then Augustus, having managed to slip away, comes in with a bouquet in his hand and an ingratiating smile on his face, and the reception he gets from the "Count" makes him a sadder and a wiser man.

Whilst Felix is away from home a big fire occurs at the Eagle Hotel, the very place he has arranged to stay at, and Mrs. Dorking reads the account of it in a newspaper. Mr. Felix Pendleton, it appears, is a hero. During the fire he saved several lives and conducted himself with so much heroism that the details are published at length in the paper. Strange to say, however, when he returns home he seems to know nothing about it. Mother-in-law is relentless in her cross-questioning, wifie is aggrieved because hubby has deceived her, and shocked when she recognises his friend Greenfield as the man she had kissed and clung to in the dark at the hotel during the fire, supposing him to be her husband. It takes the cause of the complications—the Spanish dancing lady—to straighten them out. This she does by renouncing Felix and Augustus, and restoring them, literally and characteristically, to the arms of their respective life partners by engaging them in a dance and dropping each one in turn into his wife's lap.

Miss Hattie Williams as Lola, Mr. Vincent Serrano as Felix Pendleton, and Miss Grace Carlyle as his wife, Tilly, acted their parts well. Miss Zelda Sears won most of the laughs as the artful mother-in-law, Mr. Ernest Lawford gave a humorous portrayal of the henpecked Dorking, and Mr. George Trader, made up to resemble Oscar Hammerstein, was the Spanish dancer's manager. The farce provoked much laughter.

"St. Elmo" has been successfully dramatised, and now that widely-read novel "He Fell in Love with His Wife" is to be made into a play. Written by the Rev. E. P. Roe, and published in 1886, the book has had a large circulation, and is still in demand at the libraries.

"The Piper," the play that won the prize offered by a governor of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, was written by Josephine Preston Peabody, of Cambridge, Mass., this being the lady's nom de plume and maiden name. In private life she is Mrs. Lionel S. Marks, her husband being a Professor of Mechanical Engineering at Harvard University. The lady was born in New York, but Professor Marks is a native of Birmingham. The Piper deals mainly with the wanderings of that quaint character and his little charges after the poet Browning had consigned them into the Hollow Mountain. The Pied Piper is made a gay, glad stranger with mountebank companions. He comes to Hamelin, and offers to clear the rat-infested town for a thousand guilders, employing his musical pipe to do so. The town accepts his offer. With apparent ease he accomplishes the feat that has baulked the local officials. Payment, however, is not forthcoming, the frugal townspeople offering him only fifteen guilders. When he protests they threaten to slit his ears, and taunt him with being ignorant of his parentage. Maddened, he pipes the kinder spell. The little ones scamper to him right and left, some of them in their "nighties." In the midst of them all the Piper marches out of the town triumphantly. The second act shows the party in a cave. Michael, one of the mountebank followers, a sword swallower, has fallen desperately in love with Barbara, the Burgomaster's daughter, who was not enticed into the Piper's train. The Piper and his assistants do their utmost to amuse their little followers, and the Piper himself makes Jan, the crippled son of Kurt, a pair of winged shoes, which the little fellow wants the Lonely Man to see. The Lonely Man is a statue of the Saviour outside the Hamelin church. Michael, the sword swallower, hears that his sweetheart Barbara is to be sent to a nunnery by the townspeople at the behest of public opinion. Citizens swear that the Burgomaster cannot have his little girl while the rest go childless. The Piper meets the chanting procession on the way to the nunnery, and commences to play furiously. The hymn wavers, and the marchers being to dance and whirl off like leaves in a storm. Barbara is taken away from them, herself bewitched, and given to Michael, who loves her fondly. The bewitched Barbara, however, lavishes her affections on the Piper himself, who immediately removes the spell, and she becomes Michael's mate. What all the burghers of Hamelin failed to accomplish Veronika, mother of the crippled Jan, does. She alone beards the Piper in his den, and he is touched by her spiritual passion. Fighting out his battle before the Lonely Man, he is humbled, and the children return to their homes, while the Piper goes his way, a wanderer over the world.

Miss May Irwin is about to return to the stage after a long absence. She has signed a contract with Mr. George C. Tyler to appear in a play called Mrs. Jim, and has just paid a very large sum for a song entitled "My wife Bridget," by Irving Berlin, Miss Irwin's rendering of which is to be an important feature of the entertainment. Mrs. Jim is a comedy by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, authors of The Man from Home. Under the title of If I had Money it was produced in Chicago last October with Mrs. Madge Carr Cook in the leading rôle.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY, Feb. 15.—Her Majesty's Theatre was packed on the 12th to see the initial Australasian production of A Waltz Dream. The J. C. Williamson firm had "done its limit" in making the event a memorable one. Messrs. Gordon Coleman and Little had painted the act scenes in the order mentioned, and each was welcomed by the seething audience. Mr. Wybert Stamford had charge of the production, Andrew MacCunn of the orchestra, and Minnie Hooper of the dancers. Miss Florence Young, superbly costumed, was the Princess Helena, and the part and music fitted her admirably. Mr. Reginald Roberts sang better than ever; Miss Fanny Dango was Franzi, and in the proper sphere of a singing and dancing soubrette she was inimitable; Mr. Langford Kirby (who had captured the public as the millionaire's son in The Mouse and the Lion), gave us quite a new departure from even stage dudes. The Joachim XIII. of Claude Bantock was delightfully unlike the monarch who would invite either respect or enmity; as Lieutenant Montschi Mr. Andrew Higginson had far too small a part for his known ability. Florence Vie as Fifi made fun of her own portliness and incessant hunger; and Alma Vaughan did all that was required of her as Frederica.

The Hugh Ward comedy company at the Palace withdrew A Bachelor's Honeymoon in the midst of its booking, and substituted Vivian's Papas. This had distinct assistance in the singing of Miss Grace Miller Ward, Miss Celia Ghiloni, Mr. Walter Whyte, and Mr. Wm. B. Beattie. Very few, if any comedy-farces, have such a fine vocal combination. Mr. Hugh J. Ward is Frederick Walker, and when that is said it means that every resource of the comedian's art is utilised. Mr. Reginald Wykeham is the other "Papa," Charles D. Farnham, and he makes the part "go." Miss Grace Palotta, the dainty Viennese, was Vivian, Miss Grace Musgrove made a successful Kate Walker, and Misses Celia Ghiloni, Ruby Baxter, and Maud Chetwynd, with Mr. H. H. Wallace and other ladies and gentlemen, gave the Sydney playgoers a rattling good bill of fare.

"The Lion and the Mouse," with its submerging of Julius Knight's personal identity, and the charm of Katharine Grey still holds the Royal habitués. On the removal of Mr. Langford Kirby from the cast, his part of Jefferson Ryder was given to Mr. Dion Titheradge, who is very careful, and does well for one who is not yet thoroughly "set."

"Sergeant Brue" continues to be misunderstood but highly appreciated at the Criterion, where Mr. Edwin Brett's fine characterisation is nightly seen. The Girl Behind the Counter is to be revived for the three last nights before the return of the Asche-Brayton combination.

The Tivoli welcomed the great dancer, Mlle. De Dio, back with enthusiasm. Happy Tom Parker is a prime favourite. Lily Langtry, Olga Gray, Bert Terell, Tom Dawson, the Brothers Martine, and Fred Graham and Nellie Dent, the best of sketch artists, with many others, comprise Mr. Harry Rickards's list at present.

There died on the 8th Mrs. George Hall, known professionally as Miss Aggie Kelbon, principal pantomime boy and girl, and comic opera singer and actress. She was one of the three Stewart sisters, and first married H. J. Harrison, opera conductor, and at his death she became the wife of Mr. George Hall, conductor, now in England. Her sisters are married to Mr. John Lemmone, the great flautist, and Mr. Zeplin, musician, of Melbourne, in the neighbouring colony. Mrs. Hall was buried in Waverley Cemetery.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 15.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait.—Mr. J. C. Williamson's humorous and spectacular pantomime Aladdin shows no apparent falling-off in public favour and patronage, and crowded houses are still the general order of things. From the enthusiasm with which the production was received on Saturday evening, the pantomime seems to have still a long run before it.

Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Rupert Clarke and Clyde Meynell; Business-Manager, Mr. Arthur Levy.—The Asche-Brayton company are rapidly bringing their present season in Melbourne to a close. Count Hannibal was again staged on Saturday evening before a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Oscar Asche as the Count and Miss Brayton as Clothilde were unsurpassable, and at the close of the duel scene the applause was deafening. The rest of the company, as usual, did all that the public has for such a long time learnt to expect from them. Next Thursday afternoon, at the Town Hall, there will be a recital of Julius Cæsar, in costume.

King's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant.—The Prince and the Beggar Maid was produced here in the presence of a large house on Saturday evening, with the following cast:—Prince Hildred, Mr. Rutland Beckett; Prince Michael, Mr. Roy Redgrave; Prince Olaf, Mr. George Cross; Colonel Wellenburg, Mr. Max Clifton; Captain Schwartz, Mr. J. H. Nunn; Nathan, Mr. Temple Harrison; Captain Hector, Mr. Edmund Duggan; Karl Stromberg, Mr. Bert Bailey; Captain Karsburg, Mr. Walter Dalgleish; the Bishop of Illyria, Mr. Stirling Whyte; Viola, Miss Fanny Erris; Camiola, Miss Olive Wilton; Monica, Miss Eugenie Duggan. As Prince Hildred Mr. Rutland Beckett acted with considerable force. He gave a consistent performance, and looked a distinguished figure in his military uniform. Miss Eugenie Duggan was well suited to the rôle of Princess Monica, her acting throughout was most effective. Mr. George Cross made a decided success as the courtly Prince Olaf. Prince Michael found an adequate representative in Mr. Roy Redgrave. The comedy parts were well filled by Mr. Bert Bailey and Miss Fanny Erris, and the character of Camiola was cleverly interpreted by Miss Olive Wilton. A word of praise is due to Mr. Rege Robins, scenic artist, for the elaborate sets that form the backgrounds of the principal scenes. The Prince and the Beggar Maid is a play of plot and passion that holds the attention of the audience to the end.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon.—It is hardly necessary to report that there was a crowded house here on Saturday evening—that is the usual state of affairs. The programme was excellent. Of course, the bright particular star in the galaxy is the great "mysteriarch" Houdini, whose feats are really astonishing. Houdini is a past-master in the art of extracting himself from difficult positions. Whether he be handcuffed from head to toe or incarcerated within an iron-bound chest, Houdini frees himself within an incredibly short space of time. The last nights are now announced of those clever artists, the Wille Brothers, whose acrobatic turn has proved a strong draw here for weeks past. Fred Curran is presenting a number of new songs, and keeps his audience in roars of laughter with his quaint patter in between his singing. Other artists meeting with favour at present include Fanny Powers, Baby Watson, Australian Dartos, Ted Kalman, Dorothy Swift, Nellie Power, Ruby Wallace, Ted Anderson, and Bob Lloyd.

The Savoy Theatre in West Thirty-fourth-street, New York, has been turned into a moving-picture house. No less than eight theatres of large seating capacity that were formerly devoted to the drama or vaudeville at prices of admission ranging from fifty cents to two dollars are now being used for moving picture exhibitions, the cost of admission being as low as ten cents. The list includes the Majestic, the Lincoln-square, the Bijou, the Fourteenth-street, Keith's Union-square, Proctor's Twenty-third-street, Proctor's Fifty-eighth-street, and the Savoy.

PROVINCIAL MANAGERS.

MR. HARRY W. DAY.

There are some names which one recognises at once as belonging to the theatrical world, and one of them is that of the Days. Of that stock is Mr. Harry W. Day, resident-manager of the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, for Mr. R. C. Buchanan. Mr. Day comes of the Birmingham branch of the clan, his father being the late Mr. Harry Day, of Day's Music Hall, Birmingham. It was at this famous house, too, that the subject of our sketch got his first glimpse of the business. He had not gone far in his professional career when his father took the Grand Theatre, Cardiff, and the young man was installed as manager. The fortunes of this house were well looked after by him for some time. Then he went to London, and was for a time with Mr. Richard Warner, the music hall and dramatic agent.

America then attracted Mr. Day, and he crossed the "pond" and saw something of the theatrical methods obtaining there. Returning to this country, he was entrusted with his father's productions The Bombardment of Alexandria, Burmah, Frozen Deep, and some other pieces that were in their time very successful. Following several tours as general-manager for Dr. Walford Bodie, Mr. Day looked after the interests of Messrs. Erskine and Macdona for three years, and afterwards he was with Mr. Payne Seddon for the long space of seven years. Among the pieces toured by Mr. Day were Our Flat, Jane, Niobe, Mr. T. B. Thalberg in The Professor's Love Story, The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, The Private Secretary, The Shop Girl, The Ballet Girl, The Gay Parisienne, Monte Carlo, What Happened to Jones, A Night Out, and the pantomimes Cinderella, Robinson Crusoe, and Dick Whittington. During his extensive career Mr. Day has visited nearly every town of any importance in Great Britain and Ireland.

After taking Mr. Van Biene in The Broken Melody through Scotland for Mr. Payne Seddon, Mr. Day settled at Ayr, where for the past seven years he has guided the fortunes of the New Gaiety Theatre, and won enviable popularity. Mr. Day has the interests of the profession at heart, and recently he prepared for the convenience of com-

THE PLAYWRIGHTS' ASSOCIATION.

The first annual general meeting of the Playwrights' Association was held in London on Saturday, March 19. Mr. J. T. Grein, vice-president, occupied the chair. After a few opening remarks, in which he assured the members present of his warm interest in the Association, he called upon the secretary (Mr. N. Thorpe Mayne) to read a report of the work of the Association for the past year. In this it was shown that the Association had now over a hundred members, and that the Reading Committee had had through their hands no fewer than 112 plays. Of these the Association had produced two, one of which was now being negotiated. Three were still in the hands of managers. It was also pointed out that the Association had successfully brought several members into active collaboration with each other, and hopeful results were expected. The outstanding feature of the report was that the existence of the Association was fully justified, as it had now been accepted by managers, as shown by the correspondence of the Association, in which several had pledged themselves not only to promptly read, but, where unsuitable, to promptly return, plays offered by the Association, and at the same time to give their reasons for doing so.

This, as was pointed out in the report, was a long step towards the amelioration of the difficulties which unknown playwrights hitherto suffered from, for members of the Association thus received not only the criticism of the Reading Committee, but also (where a play was thought good enough to submit to managers) the benefit of any hints they might put forward. It was also mentioned, as showing the continued activity of the Association, that already for the new reading no fewer than 50 plays had been received; further, that several donations were promised towards the funds of the Association. Mr. J. T. Grein, in congratulating the Association on its successful establishment, laid great stress on the necessity for rigid economy in productions. They must learn to walk before they ran, and only in this way could a permanent success be achieved.

A general discussion followed, and after two important changes in the bye-laws of the Association had been put to the meeting and duly carried, it was proposed by Mr. J. Jelf, chairman of the committee of management, and seconded by Mr. Christian, member of committee, that Mr. J. T. Grein be invited to associate himself as an active president of the Association on whose advice and assistance the committee of management might from time to time depend. Mr. J. T. Grein having consented to the unanimous wish of the meeting in this matter, proceedings finished with a hearty vote of thanks to him for the able manner in which he had conducted it.

Thomas Thorne, a promising young actor, committed suicide at a Chicago hotel on the 11th inst. He was the son of Fred Thorne, who resides in New York, and nephew of Thomas Thorne, who will always be associated in memories of the theatre with the success of Our Boys. Young Thorne was only twenty-four. He was born in London on Sept. 22, 1885. He had been playing the part of a reporter in The Fourth Estate at the Studebaker Theatre. Last year he appeared in a farcical comedy called The Gay Life, and distinguished himself as Dopey McKnight, contributing an exceedingly clever and amusing characterisation.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The students of the Operatic Class under the direction of Mr. Edgardo Lèvi and those of the Dramatic Class under Mr. Richard Temple's direction gave a performance at the Royal Academy on Thursday afternoon, March 17. The programme commenced with Makeshifts, a lower middle-class comedy, in one act, by Miss Gertrude Robins. Miss Cecil Martin played the part of Caroline Parker with ability, while Miss Olive Turner was very successful as the younger sister, Dolly Parker, Mr. Edward E. Butcher did all that was possible in the little part of Mr. Thompson, the lodger; Mr. Moresby Treherne appeared as the caddish Mr. Albert Smythe, who, in talking to the two sisters, enlivens his conversation with such expressions as "harf a mo," "keep your optic on number one," &c. When the elder sister thinks a proposal is coming Mr. Smythe calmly informs the girls that he is just engaged, and will trot the lady round to see them when he has nothing better to do. The grim pathos of the little sketch is that a poor but ladylike girl should be willing to marry such a snob simply as some change to her dull life. Miss Robins ought to add another character, a big brother, who comes in and kicks the impudent cad out of the room. The operatic item in the programme was a selection from the second act of Lohengrin. Mr. Edgardo Lèvi conducted, and a very good account of the music was given by three operatic students of the Academy. Miss Margaret Ismay sang Elsa's music gracefully. In Miss Ismay's more powerful notes there is a slight tendency to hardness, but her performance was on the whole very creditable. Excellent also was Miss Louie James in the part of Ortrud, singing well, and having a very intelligent conception of the character. Mr. William J. Samuell as Telramond acted cleverly and made artistic use of a fine voice. The three vocalists were warmly applauded, and the accompaniments on the pianoforte and organ played by Mr. Arthur Alexander and Mr. Benjamin J. Dale deserve special mention. A first performance of an original comedy, Mrs. Markham's Last Flirtation, by Miss Violet Leonard, proved lively and amusing. The plot, though simple, is effective. Mrs. Richard Markham is a born flirt, and, having a good-tempered, easy-going husband, carries on with a certain Lord Eversham. Finding out, however, that her friend Dolly Mason is seriously in love with Eversham, Mrs. Markham resolves that her last flirtation shall be the means of bringing happiness to Dolly. The aid of Mr. Markham is sought. At a critical moment he is to come in, demand satisfaction from Lord Eversham, and if this is not granted Eversham is given a choice between marrying or fighting. To Mrs. Markham's delight the plot works admirably, and the foolish lord is caught embracing Mrs. Markham. As Eversham, of course, prefers matrimony to a duel, and Dolly Mason being an old sweetheart, and coming in at the right moment, all ends happily. Miss Violet Leonard as Mrs. Richard Markham acted with great spirit, and in her flirtation scene and lively interview with Mr. Markham displayed much talent. Mr. Moresby Treherne proved very amusing as Lord Eversham, and Miss Dorothea K. Holzapfel was excellent as Dolly Mason; while Mr. Cecil Pearson gave a clever performance of the good-tempered husband, Markham. Although the prompter was at times heard, all the performers did great credit to Mr. Richard Temple. The little comedy was well received, and Miss Violet Leonard was warmly applauded. The programme concluded with the first performance of an original farce, The Lay Figure, by Mr. W. H. Higginbottom, the author playing Jack, a black-and-white artist; Miss Dorothea K. Holzapfel Mirabel Lisle; and Miss Cecil Martin and Mr. Henry Sanders Jack's Aunt and Jack's Uncle.

On Friday evening, March 18, performances were again given by the pupils of Mr. Richard Temple and Mr. Edgardo Lèvi. The first item in the programme was a selection from Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, Act 1, Scene 5, and Act 3, Scene 1, in which Miss Olive Turner was particularly excellent as Viola. Miss Lillian Lee made a graceful Olivia, and Miss Hilda Raby acted well as Maria, Mr. Moresby Treherne playing the part of Malvolio. The second performance of Miss Violet Leonard's comedy, Mrs. Markham's Last Flirtation, went considerably better than on Thursday afternoon, when it was first produced. All the students acted with more confidence, and the prompter was never or "hardly ever" heard. In the poetical play in one act, Cupid's Messenger, by Alfred C. Calmour, Miss Evelyn Holmes was very successful as Fanny Walsingham (in love with Sir Philip Sydney), while Miss Hilda Raby acted brightly the part of Mary Herbert, Sir Philp Sydney's sister. Mary, to aid her friend's love affair, dresses in male costume, and acts as Cupid's Messenger. The little part of Lucette was ably filled by Miss Frances H. Wenham; Mr. Kenneth Dodds played Sir Philip Sydney with ability; and the incidental song was composed by Miss Margaret Overbury (student). The famous Trial by Jury, by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, concluded the performances. Mr. Henry Sanders was the Learned Judge, Miss Olive Turner made a very effective Plaintiff, and Mr. Edward E. Butcher was amusing as the Defendant. Counsel for the Plaintiff, Usher of the Court, Foreman of the Jury, and First Bridesmaid were all cleverly impersonated by Mr. Harry Milner, Mr. William J. Samuell, Mr. Percy Heming, and Miss Lillian G. Clayton. Mr. Clarence Hyden acted as accompanist, and the overture, entr'actes, and incidental music was admirably played by Miss Evie Dawkin and Miss Lucy Ehrmann.

An excellent orchestral concert, conducted by Sir Alexander Mackenzie, was given by the Royal Academy students on Tuesday afternoon at Queen's Hall, a very large audience being present. The programme commenced with a lively comedy overture, "The Pierrot of the Minute," by Granville Bantock. Mr. Henry Gilleece Dutton (student) in his Scena (MS.), The Awakening of Ianthe, has cleverly written a musical setting to some verses from Shelley's "Queen Mab," the music being most ably sung by Miss Olive Turner. Excellent also was the playing of Mr. Percy Hughes in César Franck's brilliant Variations Symphoniques for pianoforte and orchestra; while Miss Phillida Terson had a most enthusiastic reception for her skilful singing of the difficult air "Charmant oiseau," from F. David's La Perle du Brésil, the flute obbligato being delightfully played by Miss Edith Penville. A young performer, Master Willie Davies, displayed talent as a violinist in Svendsen's Romance, Op. 26; and Mr. Powell Edwards sang with some power "Adamastor, king of oceans unbounded," from Meyerbeer's now seldom hear opera L'Africaine. So much interest has been awakened by the first performance of Purcell's scene The Witch of Endor (orchestrated by Mr. F. Corder) that the work was repeated on Tuesday afternoon, Miss Olive Turner, Mr. Albert Maiden, and Mr. Albert Brown giving a good account of the great English composer's music, shamefully neglected, as Mr. Corder truly says, for nearly 250 years. Sir Alexander Mackenzie's spirited Scottish Concerto (pianoforte) was well executed by Mr. Frank St. Leger. Miss L. James was heard in Weber's "Ocean, thou mighty monster" (Oberon), and the concert ended with the orchestral performance of Finale (Furiant) from Dvorák's Suite, Op. 39.

It was with Mr. William (not Ian) Maclaren that Miss Nancy Blackwood, whose biography we published in a recent issue, played the Duchess D'Aubeterre in Proof.

MARSTON'S MASTERPIECE.

"When John Marston," says Swinburne, in "The Age of Shakespeare," recently published by Chatto and Windus, "is content to deliver his message like a man of this world, we discover with mingled satisfaction, astonishment, and irritation that he can write when he pleases in a style of the purest and noblest simplicity; that he can make his characters converse in a language worthy of Sophocles when he does not prefer to make them stutter in a dialect worthy of Lycophron. And in the tragedy of 'Sophonisba' the display of this happy capacity is happily reserved for the crowning scene of the poem. It would be difficult to find anywhere a more preposterous or disjointed piece of jargon than the speech of Asdrubal at the close of the second act:—

"'Brook open scorn, faint powers!—
Make good the camp!—No, fly!—yes, what?—wild rage!—
To be a prosperous villain! yet some heat, some hold;
But to burn temples, and yet freeze, O cold!
Give me some health; now your blood sinks: thus deeds
Ill nourished rot: without Jove nought succeeds.'

"And yet this passage occurs in a poem which contains such a passage as the following:—

"'And now with undismayed resolve behold,
To save you—you—for honour and just faith
Are most true gods, which we should much adore—
With even disdainful vigour I give up
An abhorred life!—You have been good to me,
And I do thank thee, heaven. O my stars,
I bless your goodness, that with breast unstained,
Faith pure, a virgin wife, tried to my glory,
I die, of female faith the long-lived story;
Secure from bondage and all servile harms,
But more, most happy in my husband's arms.'

"The lofty sweetness, the proud pathos, the sonorous simplicity of these most noble verses might scarcely suffice to attest the poet's possessions of any strong dramatic faculty. But the scene immediately preceding bears evidence of a capacity for terse and rigorous brevity of dialogue in a style as curt and condensed as that of Tacitus or Dante.

"'Sophonisba. What unjust grief afflicts my worthy lord?
"'Massinissa. Thank me, ye gods, with much beholdingness;
For, mark, I do not curse you.
"'Sophonisba. Tell me, sweet,
The cause of thy much anguish.
"'Massinissa. Ha, the cause?
Let's see; wreathe back thine arms, bend down thy neck,
Practise base prayers, make fit thyself for bondage.
"'Sophonisba. Bondage!
"'Massinissa. Bondage: Roman bondage.
"'Sophonisba. No, no!
"'Massinissa. How then have I vowed well to Scipio?
"'Sophonisba. How then to Sophonisba?
"'Massinissa. Right: which way
Run mad? impossible distraction!
"'Sophonisba. Dear lord, thy patience; let it maze all power,
And list to her in whose sole heart it rests
To keep thy faith upright.
"'Massinissa. Wilt thou be slaved?
"'Sophonisba. No; free.
"'Massinissa. How then keep I my faith?
"'Sophonisba. My death
Gives help to all. From Rome so rest we free:
So brought to Scipio, faith is kept in thee.
"'Massinissa. Thou darest not die! Some wine.—Thou darest not die!
"'Sophonisba. How near was I unto the curse of man, Joy!
How like was I yet once to have been glad!
He that ne'er laughed may with a constant face
Contemn Jove's frown. Happiness makes us base.'

"The man or the boy does not seem to me enviable who can read or remember these verses without a thrill. In sheer force of concision they recall the manner of Alfieri; but that noble tragic writer could hardly have put such fervour of austere passion into the rigid utterance, or touched the note of emotion with such a glowing depth of rapture. That 'bitter and severe delight'—if I may borrow the superb phrase of Landor—which inspires and sustains the imperial pride of self-immolation might have found in his dramatic dialect an expression as terse and as sincere: it could hardly have clothed itself with such majestic and radiant solemnity of living and breathing verse. The rapid elliptic method of amœbæan dialogue is more in his manner than in any English poet's known to me except the writer of this scene; but indeed Marston is in more points than one the most Italian of our dramatists. His highest tone of serious poetry has in it, like Alfieri's, a note of self-conscious stoicism and somewhat arrogant self-control; while as a comic writer he is but too apt, like too many transalpine wits, to mistake filth for fun, and to measure the neatness of a joke by its nastiness. Dirt for dirt's sake has never been the apparent aim of any great English humorist who had not about him some unmistakable touch of disease—some inheritance of evil or of suffering like the congenital brain-sickness of Swift or the morbid infirmity of Sterne. A poet of so high an order as the author of 'Sophonisba' could hardly fail to be in general a healthier writer than such as these; but it cannot be denied that he seems to have been somewhat inclined to accept the illogical inference which would argue that because some wit is dirty all dirt must be witty—because humour may sometimes be indecent, indecency must always be humorous. 'The clartier the cosier' was an old proverb among the northern peasantry while yet recalcitrant against the inroads of sanitary reform: 'the dirtier the droller' would seem to have been practically the no less irrational motto of many not otherwise unadmirable comic writers. It does happen that the drollest character in all Marston's plays is also the most offensive in his language—'the foulest-mouthed profane railing brother'; but the drollest passages in the whole part are those that least want washing. How far the example of Ben Jonson may have influenced or encouraged Marston in the indulgence of this unlovely propensity can only be conjectured; it is certain that no third writer of the time, however given to levity of speech or audacity in the selection of a subject, was so prone—in Shakespeare's phrase—to 'talk greasily' as the authors of 'Bartholomew Fair' and 'The Dutch Courtesan.'

"In the two parts of his earlier tragedy the interest is perhaps, on the whole, rather better sustained than in 'The Wonder of Women.' The prologue to 'Antonio's Revenge' (the second part of the 'Historie of Antonio and Mellida') has enjoyed the double correlative honour of ardent appreciation by Lamb and responsive depreciation by Gifford. Its eccentricities and perversities of phrase may be no less noticable, but should assuredly be accounted less memorable, than its profound and impassioned fervour of grave and eloquent harmony. Strange, wayward and savage as is the all but impossible story, rude and crude and crabbed as is the pedantically exuberant language of these plays, there are touches in them of such terrible beauty and such terrible pathos as to convince any competent reader that they deserve the tribute of such praise and such dispraise. The youngest student of Lamb's Specimens can hardly fail to recognise this when he compares the vivid and piercing description of the death of Mellida with the fearful and supernatural impression of the scene which brings or thrusts before us the immolation of the child her brother."

GRAND THEATRE, BLACKPOOL

The Tower Palace Co., the new proprietors of the Grand Theatre, Blackpool, have since January last had the whole of the interior overhauled and every portion either redecorated, reupholstered, or renovated. The whole of the work has been carried out by the staff, under the supervision of Mr. James Walmsley, the company's engineer. The chief alteration has been wrought to provide greater comfort for the patrons in all parts of the house. The floor of the front part has been reconstructed with a greater rake so that occupants of each succeeding row of seats can easily see over those in front. The stall accommodation has been increased from 100 to 300, and what is of greater importance is the additional width allowed between each row, which will add to the comfort of the audiences. The pit portion has been greatly improved by the seats being re-upholstered, and the erection of draught screens at the back, in the form of revolving shutters. Another structural alteration on the ground floor is a doorway which gives an additional entrance to the stalls, and also allows of egress to the grand circle saloon and balcony.

The stage has had a new floor laid and been practically reconstructed, and in future the whole stage area will be available for the performance, as only the scenery actually in use will be allowed in the vicinity of the stage. A patent clip for holding carpets down will do away with the old nailing-down process. Other alterations in the dress circle provide a gentlemen's cloak-room, and even the upper circle and gallery patrons will find improvements which will conduce to their comfort. The contractors for the elaborate decorations are Messrs. F. de Jong and Co., of London, specialists in this particular line of decoration, who were also responsible for similar work at the Tower Ballroom and Circus, Palace Ballroom, and Chinatown at the Tower. The decorations of the Grand are of a more delicate nature, and aptly described as after Dresden porcelain style—so beautiful is the colour scheme, and so admirably carried out. The whole treatment is much lighter than before, which is a decided advantage, and gives the theatre a much brighter and yet warmer appearance. The prevailing tones are cream, old gold, rose du Barri, and crimson, whilst the walls of the corridors and staircases have been treated with Japanese wallpaper, with cream background and raised gold figuring. The wall hangings in the dress circle and the boxes, also at front of upper circle proscenium, are carried out in Japanese fabric. The walls of the pit and the upper circle have been decorated with crimson flock of a very neat ornamentation; and in the gallery, terra-cotta and a crimson dado blend harmoniously.

The ceiling has been most elaborately treated, the existing decorations have been added to and greatly improved, while two large oval panels at the top of the proscenium contain two fine paintings in oils representative of Music and Mirth. These are the admirable designs of Mr. J. Loss, one of Messrs. de Jong's principal artists, who is also responsible for a series of hand-painted floral panels, on a groundwork of gold, on the face of the grand circle balcony.

The grand circle saloon bar has been redecorated throughout in pure white and gold, with panels of white French anaglypta, whilst that of the upper circle has been treated with crimson ingrained paper and the ceiling painted with a rather novel umbrella panel, characteristic of the Adam's style.

A new fireproof curtain is introduced, doing away with the advertisements and introducing a more tasteful design. With regard to the electric lighting, the whole of the wiring has been gone over inch by inch and the installation perfected, while half-frosted "Tantalum" lamps are introduced, diffusing the light much better than their predecessors.

The upholstering, draping, and carpeting has been carried out by Messrs. Bickerstaffe, Ltd., under the personal supervision of the firm's general manager, Mr. F. Horniblow, the upholstering being in electric blue Utrecht velvet, while the super Wilton carpeting and the drapings are of similar colour. The pit seats and those in the upper circle are also furnished with this class of velvet, while the gallery seating is now padded and covered with pelgamoid cloth—a dark green leathery material.

The orchestra will consist of first-class musicians, quite half of which will be from members of the Halls band. Mr. J. Woof Gaggs, musical director at the Tower, is the musical superintendent, and is responsible for the getting together of the orchestra.

The theatre will be open on Monday, under the acting managership of Mr. Percy Harrop, who has had an admirable training for a number of years in connection with the Tower and Palace.

As It Was Spoke.

"J. C." writes:—"The pronunciation of Shakespeare's name receives an interesting indirect confirmation from an Italian source. Conti, a cultured Venetian who had spent some time in England, published in 1728 a drama entitled Il Cesare, prefaced by a letter in which he expresses his views on Shakespeare. In this letter he spells the name 'Sasper,' a form which is evidently based, not on the English written form, but on the pronunciation with which he had become familiar while in England. The vowel sounds of this Italian form correspond remarkably with those of the French words chaque, espère, used by Mr. Ernest Law to denote the original pronunciation.

Men and Manners.

"HISTRION" writes:—"I was playing the leading part at the local theatre at Cambridge recently, in a play which was admitted by their own Varsity paper to be among the best which had visited their town. The following was our reception:—Cat-calls, whistling, and alleged 'witty' remarks were kept up from rise to fall of the curtain—not one 'comedy' line got a laugh. One of the actors, whom I know to be a gentleman, born and bred, and who was playing a most refined and gentlemanly part, was greeted with shouts of derisive laughter when another character made use of the expression, 'I can see you're a gentleman.' These young 'bloods' seemed to consider it a most amusing thing that an actor could be a gentleman!

"IN a scene of mine with the 'leading lady,' a part played by a young girl of decided ability and stainless reputation, an allusion of mine to her 'purity' was greeted with cries of 'Oh, oh!' and laughter. These young 'aristocrats' evidently deemed it an unutterably 'funny' thing that an actress could be pure. Every line that was capable of misconstruction or double-entendre was promptly twisted into smut. In short, when I had left the stage-door through groups of drunken or semi-drunken undergraduates, who were evidently waiting there to insult the lady members of our company with their not-to-be-desired attentions, I mentally registered a vow that if ever I send a son of mine to a Varsity it will not be to Cambridge, where public 'ragging' seems to overstep all bounds of decency, putting such considerations as gentlemanly conduct and English fairness altogether out of the question."

IN a recent notice of the revival of The Scarlet Pimpernel at the New Theatre, we stated that Mr. Fred Terry played the Prince of Wales in the original production of the piece. Mr Fred Terry has never played anything but Sir Percy Blakeney, and his consummate success in the part is greatly due to the finish and fulness which are owing to frequent repetition of the character.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. ALFRED STRETTON.

Having a roving disposition, Mr. Alfred Stretton found the chemist shop to which he had been apprenticed a little tedious, and sought relaxation in giving little dialect readings and sketches at concerts, &c. He embarked on a professional career with a travelling choir, giving out bills during the day, taking checks at night, and playing in the farce at the finish. His next public appearance was as an itinerant minstrel, playing, or rather vamping, on a banjo on the race-course, a line of business in which he did very well during the season. He next joined a dramatic fit-up for small parts, but before a few weeks had gone by he found himself sent on for Robert Ffolliot in The Shaughraun, Jack Gong, in Green Bushes, &c. It was, as Mr. Stretton colloquially expresses himself, the "if it" stakes, with a walk-over nearly every week. His next engagement was for the juvenile part in Zingara, and from that he went to Days of Cromwell, in which he played Chart and Hay.

After a fit-up tour of A Royal Divorce, Mr. Stretton joined Mr. Alfred Denville's stock company, which presented four pieces weekly for eight months; a short tour with For the Colours was followed by an engagement as Bogle in Night of the Party, and he then joined Mr. Denville for another five months, making a big success as the Rev. Toby Muffins in The Silver Horseshoe. Subsequently he played in Three Little Britons, P.C. Mutton in Parson Thorne, Jim Dalton in The Ticket-of-Leave, Corry Kinchela, Levison, Mark Livingstone in Streets of London, and Don Pedro in The Diver's Luck. Then followed a very successful engagement with the late Mr. Henry Swinerd's Dare-Devil Dorothy, Mr. Stretton playing the heavy character part of Hawkins for nearly three years, with only two weeks' vacation. After fulfilling engagements as Oliver Cromwell in Days of Cromwell, the Rev. Random and the Jew in Sally's Dilemma, Mr. Stretton toured for a time his own sketch, a burlesque on Romeo and Juliet. Then came tours with Mr. Fred Kirke as heavy lead and stage-management, lead In Old Madrid, heavy lead in Our Sailor Lad, and with Miss Western, playing heavy lead in The Prodigal Son. He was then engaged by Mr. T. Morton Powell for Arthur Erroll in Greed of Gold, a part he played over 450 times. During the short vacation that followed, Mr. Stretton played a special engagement with Mr. Sydney Spencer as Michael Silvati in Stolen Birthright; then resumed his old part in The Prodigal Son. He then joined Mr. Fred Bulmer for heavy lead with The Girl Who Went Astray, and afterwards with Mr. T. Morton Powell played his old part, and also Jack Halyard in Honour Thy Father, Paul Inglewood in Day to Day, making five tours with the above management. Last autumn Mr. Stretton was engaged by Mr. Fred Bulmer to play Capt. Paul Derrick, the heavy lead in Sentenced for Life.

MR. ALFRED STRETTON.

Mr. Stretton can claim the distinction that throughout his career he has never missed a night's performance or been late for an entrance, and, moreover, has only had his notice handed him once. Last summer he took a month's holiday in his native place, the Lake District of Cumberland, but up to that period he had had only twelve weeks out of work for over eight years. But twenty-eight years of age, Mr. Stretton is full of ambition, and has high hopes of a future. He has a great belief in versatility, and his only grievance with the majority of managers is once an actor has played a certain line of business they have the impression that it is the only one he can play.

DEATH OF MARIE PRITCHARD.

Heartfelt sympathy must be accorded Mr. Fredk. Archer, stage-manager for the Lyceum Two Little Vagabonds tour, on the loss he has sustained by the death of his talented and devoted wife, professionally known as Miss Marie Pritchard. The deceased lady was admitted to the Royal Infirmary, Liverpool, where surgical skill and assiduous nursing were powerless to save her, and she passed away—her husband being by her side—on the morning of Thursday, the 17th inst.

Mrs. Archer graduated in the old stock days at the Theatre Royal and Amphitheatre (now Court), Liverpool, where she played as a child. An accomplished dancer as well as a versatile actress, she appeared with the late Barry Sullivan, also at Rotunda Theatre, Liverpool, in stock as leading lady in The Road to Fortune, Days of Cromwell, and Mark Melford's Flying from Justice. When the late Mr. W. H. Sharpe was touring Saved from the Streets her Peggy was admitted to be the gem of the piece. For the last eight years Miss Pritchard had sustained the character of Biddy in Two Little Vagabonds, first under the management of Hardie and Von Leer, and recently under the banner of the London Lyceum.

The funeral took place on Sunday last, at Everton Cemetery, Fazakerley, Liverpool. Numerous floral tributes testified to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Archer was held, notably a wreath of lilies from her sorrowing husband, a wreath of lilies, violets, and roses from her fellow-artists of the Two Little Vagabonds company, and a cross of white lilies and roses from "her loving friend Dick" (Miss Helen Grenville).

MR. ARTHUR SCOTT CRAVEN, who has been playing recently in The O'Flynn at His Majesty's Theatre, is the author of a play entitled The Last of the English, published early this month by Elkin Mathews. The play, which is written in blank verse and shows deep artistic feeling and obvious sincerity, deals with the chief episodes in the life of Hereward the Wake. It is to be hoped that the play will be produced before long at a West End Theatre.

GERMAN ACTRESSES' GRIEVANCES.

Pending the passage through the German Reichstag of an Imperial Theatre Law, the material for which is at present being collated officially with a view to drafting a Bill, some of the leading actresses, in a spirit of self-help, have taken matters into their own hands, and have been devising schemes for the immediate alleviation of their less fortunate sisters' deplorable lot. With this laudable object in view, Frau Rosa Bertens, the well-known Berlin actress, came forward with a proposal urging the intendants and directors of theatres to employ actresses, naturally those of ripe experience, as stage-manageresses, or, at any rate, as assistants in stage-management. This, of course, would be but a drop in the ocean, yet the situation appears so critical that no stone is to be left unturned.

To how serious a pass matters have come will be seen from the following extracts of a few speeches made at a recent mass meeting in Berlin, convened by the Association of Progressive Women's Unions. There were present the president and several representatives of the German Actors' Association, as well as several influential members of the Reichstag. Frau Minna Cauer, who opened the meeting, was supported by Frau Dr. Breitscheid, Frau Else Lüders, and by two well-known women journalists, Frau E. Vely and Frau B. Herwi. Of Parliamentarians there were Dr. Pfeiffer and Dr. Heckscher, while the managerial interests were represented by the veteran author, Paul Lindau, and by Privy Councillor Lautenburg.

The first speaker, after Frau Cauer had opened the meeting, was Dr. Osterrieth, whose subject was "How is the actress affected by the woman's movement?" He pointed out the hardship of having to supply their own costumes, the intolerant treatment meted out to actresses in need of restful care, and to the "Schontage" (days of care), which, so far, have not been allowed to dramatic actresses, in contradistinction to operatic singers. He urged them to join in with the modern progressive movement of women, and drew attention to several articles by Irene Triesch and Rosa Bertens, which have been referred to from time to time in the columns of the Stage. He wound up by an appeal to the leading actresses to assist their poorer sisters by their example in championing the cause. This speaker was followed by Fräulein Rubner, of the Neues Theater, who launched forth a flamboyant attack in Zola's J'accuse style against the present system, and more especially against the managements, who, at a minimum wage, expect a maximum of costly and elegant dresses. Talent, she declared, was not so necessary as to appear well dressed; and this, of course, was a severe handicap to the honest members of the profession, who possibly sat up all night sewing and altering, as against those, of whom there were, unfortunately, not a few, who had allowed themselves to drift into a life of pleasure, and procured the necessary means, and more, by other methods. Her remedy for this crying evil was to demand a compulsory provision, on the part of the theatres, of all costumes, historical as well as modern.

Frau Rosa Bertens, who followed, suggested that fewer women should join the profession. "Formerly," she remarked, "any lady crossed in love or jilted entered a nunnery; now they come to the stage." She also passed severe strictures on the unscrupulous methods of many so-called dramatic academies. Fräulein von Hallé, who spoke next, depicted how the twenty-four hours of an actress's day were fully occupied by performances, rehearsals, and other duties, which left them little, if any, recreative leisure. She pointed out several irksome paragraphs in the contract, and drew attention to the iniquitous state of affairs with regard to agencies and commissions.

In a vigorous speech on the deplorable state of affairs at many, if not most, theatres, Herr Gustav Rickelt, one of the most enthusiastic social reformers of the German Actors' Association, made a sharp attack on the Directors' Union. He also held the public responsible for many of the temptations that beset the path of the young actress. He was particularly bitter against those so-called artists who, under the cloak of an actress, followed another profession, and thus brought discredit on the entire stage.

Frau Adele Schreiber, who followed, proved a very effective debater. She advocated the support of the "Children's Home," the idea for which was mooted some time ago by Frau Irene Triesch, and she urged all actresses to combine for their own protection. Meanwhile, a further contingent of members of the Reichstag had arrived, among them being Dr. Delbrück and Herr Gyssling, and two leading Social Democratic members, Herr Hildenbrand and Herr Böhle. The member of the Centre Party, Dr. Pfeiffer, in a temperate and well-reasoned address, warned the meeting against being too optimistic in expecting much assistance from the Legislative bodies. He himself placed more faith in satisfactory and speedy results arising from their own joint initiative, whereby he hinted at a friendly co-operation of the Actors' Association with the Directors' Union. Herr Emanuel Reicher, another strenuous pioneer of social reform, in a humorous and almost paternal speech advised male actors to cultivate a more refined demeanour and better tone behind the scenes. In the free and easy intercourse prevalent among theatricals he sees pitfalls for the female novice, it being but a short step from evil words to evil deeds.

It was three o'clock in the morning before the meeting came to a close. Prior to dispersing, the following resolution was proposed and carried unanimously:—"The present gathering of men and women, who have met in the large Philharmonic Hall in Berlin, in view of the many social abuses existing on the stage, and which are particularly hard on its female members, demand of the Federal Council (Bundesrat) and of the Reichstag the speedy passing of an Imperial Theatre Law, which will afford to all connected with the stage a minimum of hygienic and legal protection. Regard should be had in this new Act to the special interests of female members of the stage by an adjustment of the question of costumes, and by greater protection in cases of maternity. (Providing historical and modern dresses; release from work on certain days of respect; abolition of the paragraphs dealing with pregnancy and control of marriage; institution of a maternity insurance.)

In addition to these demands for State aid, the meeting expresses its desire that the female members of the profession should help themselves as effectively as possible by a closer union among themselves, and by working hand in hand with their male colleagues of the German Actors' Association to the best of their ability towards the defence and advancement of their professional interests."

LOUIS JAMES, a famous actor of classic rôles in America, died at Helena, Montana, on the 5th inst., at the age of sixty-seven. He was playing at the Helena Theatre on the previous night, and was stricken with heart disease in his dressing-room. He had been an actor for nearly fifty years, but was much better known on the road than in New York. Since 1895 he had played "star" parts all over the country. His favourite rôles were Virginius, Jacques, Othello, Falstaff, Richelieu, Ingomar, Shylock, and Peer Gynt. For such characters he was well suited, for nature had endowed him with a fine figure and a deep, sonorous voice.

BIRMINGHAM MANAGER'S BENEFIT.

If Mr. Lester Collingwood, the genial proprietor of the Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, is identified with any special events in theatrical circles in Birmingham, success is assured. On Friday, the 18th inst., scores of friends and old patrons of the theatre rallied round Mr. Collingwood, the occasion being his seventh anniversary, or benefit night. The theatre was packed from floor to ceiling, and scenes of enthusiasm were the order of the evening. All the pantomime artists worked energetically and effectively, and Cull Pitt (Abanazar) must be signalled out for a special illusion turn. Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, old favourites here, journeyed from Liverpool to keep the audience in merry mood; Little Maudie Olmar came direct from her highly successful engagement at the Garrick Theatre, London, and "brought down the house" with her graceful and skilful dancing; and artists appearing at local music halls contributed acceptable items.

After several floral gifts had been made to Miss Olmar, the most interesting period of the evening was reached. In the presence of every member of the company and several friends, including Mr. A. W. Matcham (Empire), Mr. A. Bushell (Gaiety), Mr. P. D. Elbourne (Hippodrome), Mr. Bert Wilson, Mr. Bert Browne, Mr. Fred Homer, and Mr. Cooke (stage-manager), the evergreen Collingwood was cheered to the echo while he accepted presents. Mr. Cull Pitt, representing the Aladdin company, delivered a fitting eulogistic speech, and on behalf of his confrères handed to Mr. Collingwood a beautifully illuminated address and a silver tea-set. The address read as follows:—

"DEAR SIR,—Upon this, the occasion of your seventh anniversary, we, the undermentioned members of your Aladdin company, staff, and friends, desire to extend to you our heartiest congratulations upon the success and record 'run' of the present production. We also take this opportunity of thanking you for the most pleasant and comfortable engagement, and beg that you will accept the accompanying token of esteem and regard, together with our cordial wishes for future prosperity and good health. Furthermore, we trust that for many, many years to come, the world of entertainment may be graced by your courteous and evergenial presence." (Here followed the signatures of the subscribers.) Aladdin 1909-1910.

Afterwards Mr. Fred Barnardo stepped forward and presented an Oliver Clare oil painting and a handsome table centre to Mr. Collingwood on behalf of old friends, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Day. Mrs. Day had worked the table centre herself. Then there was a pretty little incident. Little Maudie Olmar, who made her début with Mr. Collingwood, entered with Mr. Guest, who carried a large framed photograph, in colours, of the little dancer as Red Riding Hood. Little Maudie looked up at Mr. Collingwood and remarked, "You once said there was something you missed very much from the front of your theatre. Now I am going to give it to you with all my love." Mr. Collingwood appeared greatly touched with this little girl's tribute, and he took her in his arms and kissed her. Mr. Fred Horner, a personal friend, then gave Mr. Collingwood a gold cigar-cutter. The speech of the proprietor of the Alexandra was brief, but to the point. He thanked the donors of gifts, and complimented the performers in the pantomime upon their excellent and successful work.

On Sunday Mr. Collingwood gave his annual dinner at Woolpack Hotel. Members of the pantomime company and a few personal friends were present, and the function proved an unqualified success.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The programme of the organ recital given by students of the Trinity College on Monday afternoon was well selected, and the various items not too long. It was unfortunate that the oboe stop was out of order and could not be used; but, in spite of this slight drawback, Mr. Harry Gray succeeded in giving an excellent performance of C. M. Wider's Allegro Vivace and Allegro Cantabile from Symphony V. Mr. Clifford Cartwright also was much applauded in the pleasing Fantasia in A minor of J. Lemmens. The clever Theme with variations of William Faulkes, capitally played by Mr. John A. Tatam, proved an interesting feature of the recital, and Mr. Herbert W. Dawson gave a good account of Sir Frederick Bridge's graceful Andante and Introduction and Fugue. Mr. Sidney H. Sheppard's performance of Prelude in form of a Chaconne (Sir C. V. Stanford) and Sir E. Elgar's Andante from Sonata in G had also much merit. Henschel's "Spinning-wheel Song" was expressively sung by Miss Eveline Matthews, and Mr. Horace Witty, a clever vocalist of the College, was set down for "Wolfram's Romance" from Tannhäuser.

Theatrical Management.

"I do not myself think," says Truth, "that any man should enter upon theatrical management unless he has at least three plays which he believes in and enough capital to tide him over should the first two prove failures. This is perhaps a counsel of perfection. I do maintain, however, most strongly that no man has a right to take a theatre, engage stage hands, and rehearse a company for from four to six weeks, unless he has an actual balance at his bank—I am not talking about promises of cash—which will enable him, success or no success, to pay up all his people for at least a fortnight. This is not asking much. In any other branch of business enterprise it would be considered asking ridiculously little."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. C. Watson Mill, the well-known author of Can a Woman be Good? The Love of the Princess, and A Warning to Women, &c., may be said to have scored another triumph, and he owes warmest thanks to Mr. Fred J. Webb and his company, who were responsible for the production. True, there were the usual "first-night" faults, but nothing but what can be easily remedied.

It is a winter setting throughout, and in the first scene we are introduced at the Dragon Arms hotel to an assembly of residents in the district, and amongst them is the disreputable Rupert Sidney, down on his luck. He is determined to frustrate the marriage of a charming young girl, Phyllis Brooke, with Frank Rivington, the nephew of a wealthy Colonial. Phyllis is well cared for by her guardian, Dr. Heathcote. Eventually the doctor is left alone, and there enters an elderly man, who reveals himself as Jean Brooke, the father of Phyllis, returned after several years spent as an outcast, he having been wrongly accused of a crime committed in his early days. The doctor advises him not to disclose his identity to his daughter, and there is a touching scene when the two meet. But Rupert Sidney, upon his return to the room, has suspicions as to who the stranger is, and he lays his wild schemes accordingly. Wallace Rivington, who has come to pay off his nephew's debts and give him a substantial wedding present, is his first mark. From his brother Paul, a solicitor, Rupert learns that the rich uncle carries with him some valuable diamonds, and after a heated conversation with young Frank about Phyllis the opportunity occurs to steal the diamonds and accuse Frank, who has been seen by the landlady to leave his uncle's bedroom, of the theft.

Everybody has gone to bed when Rupert crawls upstairs and returns with the case of diamonds. He is admiring his "swag" when the uncle dashes down the stairs and attacks the thief. There is an exciting struggle, during which Rupert snatches a revolver off the table, and, striking Rivington on the head, fells him to the ground. Rupert reels backwards into the arms of his brother, who has suddenly appeared on the scene. Paul is astounded, and seems glad at the opportunity to hand his worthless brother over to the police, but the latter holds the trump card, and produces a damaging letter from one Sareta Berkley, which he had previously intercepted at the hotel. This effects a compromise, although the Colonial is not killed. Quickly recovering consciousness he rises to his feet, and stares wildly about. He is suffering from delusions, and relates the story of his exciting ride across the veldt in possession of diamonds. "There is Capetown ahead, boys! and then the ship and dear old England," he exclaims; "and then I can keep my promise and assist my brother's boy for old times' sake."

The next scene is a room at the Hotel Metropole, where the brothers Sidney are heard working together in the plot to ruin Frank, who, in company with Dr. Heathcote, attends to learn the news that he is accused of stealing his uncle's diamonds and attacking him. He has been followed by Phyllis, and there is an affecting scene when Frank declares that he will leave her until he proves his innocence. In the subsequent scene, The Stables of the Dragon Arms, there is some good comedy business when a certain Evan Berkley, a ne'er-do-well, appears as a pedlar. Rupert, who is acting the swell, pays him in notes to leave the district, but Sareta gets possession of the money after warning her brother that the notes are stolen property and that the numbers are known.

The curtain goes up on The Snow-clad Village. The two Sidneys appear outside the house of Jean Brooke, who is inside with his daughter, his identity having been disclosed. Rupert is determined to win Phyllis at all costs, and desires to act as the good Samaritan; but Jean resents his attentions, despite threats to send him out of the country again; and again Sareta comes to the rescue and befriends the Brookes. There is an exciting struggle between Rupert and Sareta, and she is rescued by Jean, who sends the villain to the ground with a straight right. There are sensational incidents during the next scene at the office of Paul Sidney. Sareta tracks the villains down at every turn, but they suddenly chloroform her and shut her in a safe. Then the brothers quarrel, and Rupert attacks Paul, leaving him for dead. But Rupert's hopes are soon to be shattered. Dr. Heathcote and Frank find the room empty, but they hear sounds from the safe, and quickly they force the lock to find Sareta in a precarious condition. In the next scene, The Gardens of the Grange, she is convalescent, and Dr. Heathcote vows his love for her. But the brothers are ever on the scene, and on this occasion the crisis is forecasted. Rupert, before the company, accuses Frank of the crime, with little effect, for the tables are suddenly turned when Paul appears to relate the truth concerning his brother Rupert, who is eventually handed over to justice. The closing incidents in the last scene, the Dragon Arms again, are splendidly presented. The rich uncle has completely recovered his senses, and remembers all that occurred on the night of the theft and attack upon him. It is really a crime reconstructed, but there is no trial to follow, for Rupert ends the trouble by committing suicide.

Mr. Fred J. Webb had a character which suits him admirably in that of Rupert Sidney, and he makes the most of it. As Wallace Rivington Mr. Harold Riley, an actor of wide experience, was excellent and quite natural, and enacted the Colonial personage to perfection; Miss Marie Danvers-Smith as Sareta Berkley played with striking success—she was not too forceful yet very effective; Mr. J. C. Carlyle as Paul Sidney was natural and convincing; Miss Mamie Stanston, who played Phyllis Brooke, has a splendid delivery; Mr. Oliver, as the rich man's nephew, took full advantage of his opportunities; and warm praise is due to Mr. W. Palliser Acock, whose Dr. Heathcote was excellent—in fact, his performance was above the average. The remaining characters were ably sustained.

AT the Grand Theatre, Geneva, on Monday night, during a representation of the opera Werther, Mme. Clement, who was taking the leading rôle, completely broke down when she arrived at the lines, "It is sad to see those who are dearest to us depart thus," and was carried off the stage in hysterics, the curtain falling. The director asked for the indulgence of the audience, stating that the prima donna had lost her husband a few days ago. Mme. Clement later on reappeared and finished her part.

LONDON AND SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 21, the Play entitled

"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

The heartiest of welcomes awaited the return visit of The Prince and the Beggar Maid, now played by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company at the King's on Monday evening, a crowded house assembling to enthusiastically enter into the romantic love story, the real cause of war between the adjoining kingdoms of Illyria and Sylvania. How the Princess of Illyria, in spite of all the difficulties, succeeds in putting an end to the war and wedding the man of her choice is very interestingly told by Mr. Walter Howard and eagerly followed by the audience. The military element also is of no slight assistance, lending colour and picturesqueness to the play. Mr. G. Mayor-Cooke as the revengeful and hard-hearted Prince Hildred of Sylvania presents an excellent impersonation, which is quite successful. As the crippled Prince Michael Mr. Lionel Gadsden plays very effectively, his sombre manner and self-effacement at the end being altogether in keeping with the character. Mr. Ernest Cox is a thoroughly manly and brave Prince Olaf, who wins the love of the Princess, and in the eyes of the audience richly deserves her. Colonel Wellenberg is exceedingly well played by Mr. J. Anderson, and Mr. Arnold Cameron is sufficiently good as Colonel Schwartz. Mr. Fred Upton as Captain Karsburg and Mr. A. E. Robinson as Lieut. Felsburg, give able support. Nathan, the dumb servant, is capitally pantomimed by Mr. Ernest Gray, and Mr. Francis Hawley is quite capable as the austere Bishop of Illyria. Mr. Robert Noble's characterisation of Captain Hector is highly praiseworthy. Mr. Richard Lane gives a pleasantly humorous turn to the part of Lieut. Karl Stromberg. Monica, Princess of Illyria, is satisfactorily played by Miss Stella Campbell, whose archness in the disguise of the beggar-maid and sincerity as the persecuted Princess are warmly appreciated. The beggar maid, Camiola, receives careful and intelligent treatment at the hands of Miss Ethel Patrick. Success is attained by Miss Mona Hungerford as Viola, her fresh and natural acting being much admired. The scenery and costumes deserve every praise

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 21,

"THE BONDMAN."

Mr. Hall Caine's powerful and dramatic play, The Bondman, is being presented here by Mr. Wentworth Croke's principal company. It is one of all-round excellence, but the honours are carried off by Mr. Philip Darien as Jason and by Mr. Stanley Harrison as Michael Sunlocks, the half-brothers. Mr. Darien's Jason is a magnificent study of an extremely difficult rôle. Of fine stage presence and great dramatic power, Mr. Darien scored a big triumph. Mr. Stanley Harrison's Michael is a vivid piece of stage portraiture; he makes the impulsive, generous-natured half-brother to the life. Another member of the cast who stands out conspicuously for the sterling merit of his impersonation is Mr. W. H. Rotherham, who doubles the part of the grandfather and the reformed priest. His transformation from the drunkard to the man given a fresh chance is a wonderful piece of character-acting, and holds the house spellbound. Miss Violet Macaree is a dainty and sympathetic Greeba, whilst Miss Madge Laverton makes a sturdy Mrs. Fairbrother. The children, Mona and Danny, are ably taken by Miss Beatrice Hughes and Master Walter Neville respectively, who are a couple of very natural youngsters. Mr. Wilfrid Beckwith is very good as Adam Fairbrother, and Miss Emelie Mayhew enacts the part of Christian Anne, the Manx servant, with considerable credit. Miss Dorothy Radcliffe and Miss Florence Queen are well placed as the sneering Callow girls. A couple of unscrupulous villains are Mr. Alfred Fisher and Mr. F. J. Waller as Governor Testa and Dr. Boni respectively, these unpleasant characters being excellently presented. Smaller parts are filled with success by Messrs. Cecil H. Ford, F. Chappell, W. Nixon, H. Chance. L. Aldwin, J. Grant, G. Evans, P. Doyley, G. S. Poole, B. Burleigh, G. Bertram, Misses E. Hartman, L. Mayne, B. West, and H. Grey. The Manx dance in the second act was cleverly done.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama entitled

"LEAH KLESCHNA."

For the third time this successful drama is being presented to playgoers at this house by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman. In the part of Kleschna Mr. William Clayton again made a deep impression. Miss Bessie Rignold is happily still at hand to portray Leah Kleschna, and her acting remains one of the features of the play. To both artists the audience were lavish of their approbation on Monday. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks stands out prominently for his acting as Raoul Berton; Mr. Graham Pockett is clever in the rôle of Schram; Mr. Francis Hope makes an admirable General Berton; Mr. Charles Barrett by his romantic impersonation of Paul Sylvaine has become very popular; and Mr. Bert Gunther was a capable Anton Plaff Miss Ethel Russell is good as Mme. Berton, and Clare Berton is natural in the hands of Miss Emmie Wallace. Miss Edith Summers (Charlotte), Miss May Hammond (Frieda), and Miss May Broughton (Sophie Chapponiere) all renedr valuable aid. Leah Kleschna is prettily mounted and dressed.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama, entitled

"HOW GIRLS ARE BROUGHT TO RUIN."

Mr. Morton Powell's company in How Girls are Brought to Ruin is proving an excellent attraction at the Shakespeare Theatre, where the piece is paying a return visit. The story of the play, founded on facts, and dealing chiefly with the victim of a designing roué, is smartly written, and contains many delicate situations, which are treated in the most skilful manner. The interest of the audience is fully sustained throughout, and the members of the company receive unstinted applause. Jessie Burton, the hapless victim of man's desire, is portrayed with great emotional power by Miss Isla Garnet-Vayne, who gives an affecting rendering of the part, and elicits the fullest sympathy. Mrs. Morton Powell enacts the rôle of Miss Winnie Walters with conspicuous ability, and faithfully suggests the true-heartedness of the character; Miss Jeannie Risley does well as Lucy Lawton, and Miss Kathryn Eckhart cleverly reveals the despicable qualities of the unnatural stepmother, Mrs. Annie Burton. Miss Addie Adair supplies a humorous performance of Mrs. Slutt. The manly bearing of Mr. Harry Scott is well suited to the part of the large-hearted sailor, Harry Hailing, and he gives a resolute and powerful impersonation; the unthankful part of the roué, Philip Edge, is well handled by Mr. Edward M. Heanley, who acts in a restrained yet convincing manner; the unscrupulous Solomon Sleek is capably sustained by Mr. Alaric Burton; and Mr. Sydney Bryant is an amusing Jack Jossle. Mr. Julian Mitchell as Mr. Stirling makes the most of his opportunity in the trial scene.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama entitled

"FLYING FROM JUSTICE."

The lover of stage sensationalism is having a fill this week at the Dalston Theatre, for in Mr. Mark Melford's drama, Flying from Justice, it may truthfully be said there is not a moment when the onlooker is not being thrilled with some startling or terrible deed, or throbbing with expectation of favours to come in that direction. The acting is powerful, and evidently the result of careful rehearsal. The play is produced by Mr. Ernest E. Norris, who takes the part of John Larcarsey, who undertakes the sombre duty of avenging his murdered father's wrongs. Mr. Norris acts with vigour and discretion, and is awarded the plaudits of an appreciative audience. Mr. Edwin Bennett, as J. Haldane Gully, who is correctly described as "a master criminal," proves himself an actor of considerable power and versatility. Miss Louisa Peach, in the character of Winnie Bradley, appears in a part with which her many admirers have not very frequently had the opportunity of judging her capabilities. Miss Peach's Winnie Bradley is a boisterous personage at her worst, but when the latent good of the woman asserts itself the actress becomes truly artistic. Mr. J. Pope Dryden as Major Parkes sustains a somewhat painful character conscientiously, Mr. Edward Boddy as Pearley Tanner provides welcome humour, and Mr. J. Benson North as Woodruff is greatly effective. Mr. Charles Clifford as Charles Bearing, whose good life terminates tragically at the hands of the chief villain of the piece, plays the part consistently, and Miss Mabel Bishop presents a good performance of the afflicted mother of this unfortunate youth. The good woman of the play, Mildred Parkes, is attractively portrayed by Miss Haslings-Walton. The cast also includes Mr. John French, Mr. George Gordon, Mr. Wilton Leonard, Mr. George Summers, Mr. Frank Parkes, and Mr. Pippin.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 21, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Roland Yorke, entitled

"THE OLD HOME."

Daddy Dean	Mr. Charles Franmore
Hazel Dean	Miss Nina Blake Adams
Rev. Eric Armstrong	Mr. Evelyn A'Dell
Bridget Donoghan	Miss Harriette Loydall
Sam Adams	Mr. Fred L. Connynghame
Lord Avondale	Mr. Horatio Sinclair
Timothy Twaddle	Mr. Fred Stone
Polly Popp	Miss Ethel Ashleigh
Jack Warren	Mr. John Ernest
Dr. Warburton	Mr. Harry Dean
Ned Somerton	Mr. Tom Baker
Joe Strong	Mr. Frank Vesey

When on Monday night the designing Lord Avondale tried to break up the blissful home of Daddy Dean by asking his pretty daughter Hazel to fly with him to London, "where the streets are paved with gold," the "gallery" retorted with vigorous unanimity "Liar!" Thus early the interesting play had taken a strong grip on the large audience, and they followed very closely the story of Hazel Dean, who gives up the prospects of a happy marriage with the village curate, Eric Armstrong, listens to the love avowals of Lord Avondale, and eventually leaves the old home in the fishing village to live a life of luxury and ease in the gay city. Be it said to his credit, Lord Avondale does marry the girl, but Hazel is like "a fish out of water" in her new surroundings, and his lordship also quickly repents of his bargain and gives way to drink. Consequently Hazel's thoughts often stray back to the old home and her father's despair at her departure. When, after the death of her husband, her former lover Eric renews his troth and is accepted, there is a natural and tender ending in the return to the fishing village and the old home of former happy hays.

Mr. Evelyn A'Dell has engaged a strong cast for the interpretation of the piece, which was originally produced at the Prince of Wales's, Salford, on May 11, 1908, and is staged in a style altogether superior to that usually met with in travelling melodrama. Mr. Charles Franmore submits a notable performance as Daddy Dean—breezy, hale, and hearty—while his depiction of the old man's grief at the supposed abduction of his daughter has the true ring of pathos and makes an obvious impression. As Hazel Dean Miss Nina Blake Adams is the blithe and boisterous daughter of the sea to the manner born, though all the deeper touches are imparted to her acting as occasion requires. Mr. Evelyn A'Dell as the staunch and true Eric Armstrong, acts with earnestness and conviction and makes an outstanding figure in his clerical attire. The large-hearted Irishwoman, Bridget Donoghan, Hazel's foster mother, is a general favourite as impersonated by Mrs. Harriette Loydall; and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame has a fine character comedy part as the go-as-you-please Sam Adams, of which he makes the very utmost. Mr. Horatio Sinclair in the unthankful rôle of Lord Avondale acts with a nonchalance and suavity very exasperating to the "gods," and thus he easily obtains the "villain's tribute." Mr. Fred Stone makes the most of his opportunities as Timothy Twaddle, whose daughter Polly is brightly impersonated by Miss Ethel Ashleigh. Minor parts are all in quite capable hands.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 21, the Comedy entitled

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The evergreen Charley's Aunt is the attraction at the Borough Theatre this week, and time seems in no way to diminish the mirth-provoking propensities of the piece. The company is under the direction of the author, Mr. Brandon Thomas, and the comedy is very handsomely staged. Lord Fancourt Babberly, who masquerades so successfully as Charley's Aunt, is portrayed with conspicuous success by Mr. Stanley Cooke, who simply revels in the droll complications of the part. The two college chums, Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham, have typical, airily-casual exponents in Mr. J. S. Woolley and Mr. R. Burnett respectively; and the deferential, decorous Brassett is portrayed on sound lines by Mr. Sidney Compton. Mr. McCausland Stewart cleverly realises the part of the debonair Colonel Chesney, and the amorousness of the peppery Stephen Spettigue is amusingly delineated by Mr. Roy Byford. Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue have charming representatives in Miss Ruth Henton and Miss Phyllis Beck; Miss Audrey Ford is an excellent Donna Lucia; and Ela Delahay is prettily played by Miss Bertha Wilson. The Colour Sergeant, by the same author, precedes, the characters in which are capitally undertaken by Mr. Sidney Compton, Mr. R. Burnett, Mr. C. A. R. Shum, Mr. Roy Byford, Miss Ruth Henton, and Miss Nancy Harding.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama, entitled

"WHAT A MAN MADE HER."

Miss Renée Glendower and company are here this week with one of the latest dramas from the prolific pen of Mr. Charles Darrell, the well-known author of a number of similar plays, who continues, and invariably succeeds, in making attractive stories full of sensational episodes and striking situations, combined with a leavening of good comedy relief, which go to the forming of a successful drama. The mounting and dresses are all that could be desired; more especially is this noticeable as the action of the play takes place in the atmosphere of aristocratic society.

Miss Renée Glendower as Jane McAllister offers a sympathetic characterisation, and deserves praise for an impressive rendering; Dr. Mark Haven, who subsequently succeeds to the title of Earl of Saxon Royal, is most befittingly portrayed by Mr. J. M. Olivert, who delivers his lines with good effect; Mr. Edward Rawlinson depicts the disappointed and scheming Rupert Wogan in a skilful manner; Mr. C. Hartopp essays the character of Sir Ernest Cavendish in a convincing style; Mr. Barnett Lando as the rich Jew moneylender, Lewis Emmanuel Gunnerstein, is very diverting, and produces considerable hilarity; Lady Thora Danescombe is capably played by Miss Stella Carmichael, who successfully imparts to her portrait the spiteful nature of the character; Miss Tessa Myers scores well as Deborah, and gives a lively impersonation. Elfrida, Dowager Countess of Saxon Royal, is most capably undertaken by Miss L. Russell Spires

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama,

"HOME, SWEET HOME."

As presented by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company, this drama of the fireside makes a distinct appeal to the patrons of this popular playhouse, and, judged by their hearty reception, is a big hit. Mr. Arthur Hinton as the brave captain of the lifeboat, Stephen Armitage, cuts a fine figure. The part gives him some fine opportunities. Mr. Fred G. Kay is the sturdy old fisherman, David Armitage; Mr. Chas. Clifford gives a good sketch of the aristocratic Duke of Ancaster; Mr. G. Moreton-Williams is too villainous for words as Lucas Lyle; Mr. A. Beaufort scores as the inane Hon. Percy; Mr. Walter Clark does well as Dick Redmayne; Mr. A. Kirwin is a characteristic mariner as Solomon Keary; Mr. Rupert Lorry is the ridiculous Lord Silvermore; Miss M. Camfield is good as Lady Summerton; Miss Florrie Hayes plays well as the vivacious Sybil Fay; Miss Florence Zillwood is a pathetic heroine; and little Hilda Vokes plays Dora in a most natural way.

THE LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 21.

"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

Once more this well-known drama, written by Mr. James Willard, visits the Lyric, and business is decidedly good. It is a well written and constructed play, effectively staged, particularly in the last scene, when artists plunge into real water. Mr. Leonard Williams sustains with spirit and feeling the part of the hero, Gordon Allington, and an excellent contrast is provided by the clever acting of Mr. Paul Backett as the detestable Clifford Yorke. Mr. Forbes Carrington is decidedly good as John Allington, the Squire of Hazelmere; in the double rôle of Joe Jackson, the postman, and the Rev. Nathaniel Hope Mr. Fenton Wingate creates a good impression; an excellent representation of the poacher, Jake Grudgewell, is given by Mr. William Hayward; Mr. Harry Emmerson does very well as Jas. Woodstock; Mollie Woodstock is effectively interpreted by Miss Kittie Roze; Miss Irene Arondel as the Squire's ward, Violet Kingston, gives a charming study of the character; and Miss Kitty Johnstone is all that could be desired as Bob. The comedy is in the excellent hands of Mr. Ern Carlton as Tom Nainby, and the minor characters are all well filled. The tour is conducted by Mr. Arthur Lee-Mitchell, who deserves congratulations on the production.

THE BROADWAY, NEW CROSS.

On Monday, March 21, the Drama, entitled

"A CHILD OF THE STREETS."

Miss Dot Stephens is appearing here, supported by a capable company, and winning decided approval. The drama is well written, its effect being enhanced by crisp dialogue and stirring situations. Miss Stephens, who was warmly greeted, gives a delightful performance of Doris Graham, singing her numbers, including "Mother's Eyes," very artistically. Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam plays Gertrude Graham very well; and Little Doris is naturally played by little May Renaud. Miss Yoxa Summer acts with force and effect as Lorna Carstairs; and Selina Haddock has a capital representative in Miss Carlotta Blondin. Mr. John Erroll gives an excellent rendering of Sir John Graham, a Scottish Laird; Mr. Leonard Aardale as Lawrence Cragie furnishes an earnest and effective performance; Mr. Norman H. Tracy is capital as Lieutenant Jack Ainsley; and Mr. Charles Freeman submits an excellent study of Robert Wallace. Mr. Maurice Jones as Oscar Van Dam plays well, as does also Mr. George Francis as Ezra Scroggie. Mr. Fred Acton, who discharges the duties of stage-manager, makes a hit as Pomeroy Smith; and Mr. Lewis Rae is effective as the Constable. Mr. George Hazelhurst is the capable general-manager, and Mr. Norman H. Tracey, the acting-manager for the company, while Mr. Bertram Iles, the resident-manager, admirably fills his accustomed place.

"AULD ROBIN GRAY."

Play, in One Act, Written by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles, Produced for the First Time in London at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, on Monday, March 21.

Robin Gray	Mr. Alick Chumley
Jack Grafton	Mr. J. Forbes Knowles
Mary	Miss Valerie Crespin

The above playlet is an adapted version of the ballad, "Auld Robin Gray," and runs on very pathetic lines. The action of the play is laid in the interior of a farmhouse, and the representation is most interesting. Auld Robin Gray is impressively portrayed by Mr. Alick Chumley; Mr. J. Forbes Knowles (the author) plays the rôle of Jack Grafton, the broken-hearted sailor, in a manly and sympathetic manner, which meets with due approval; and the bereaved Mary is ably undertaken by Miss Valerie Crespin, who does ample justice to the character.

The inauguration of the season at Bridlington took place on Monday evening, when Mr. Norfolk Megone and his orchestra commenced a six months' season in the Grand Pavilion of the Royal Prince's Parade. The ex-Mayor (Alderman Sawdon) made an eloquent speech in welcoming Mr. Megone and the various old favourites of his orchestra, and that gentleman, in acknowledging the compliment, said he intended to again give a series of symphony concerts during the season, and would try to excel the previous season's record. Mr. Chas. Palmer, who enters upon his eleventh year of management for the Corporation, outlined the various companies and artists he had secured for the summer months, including some of the greatest artists of the day. Mr. Megone then took up his bâton, and an excellent programme of music was rendered, a violin solo by Mr. Sydney Freedman and a cornet solo by Mr. Sam Holloway being especially well received by the large audience. Miss Ida Bloor, who is the vocalist for the week, possesses a rich soprano voice of good compass, and was enthusiastically received. Mr. James Chilcott is a racy, pleasing entertainer, his humorous songs being given with that genuine touch of comicality which shows the true artist, and he received a big ovation.

At the Crystal Palace during the whole of Easter Monday entertainments will be in full swing both in the huge building and the 200 acres of beautiful gardens. Bands of H.M. Guards, including the Coldstream Guards, will play throughout the day, and in the evening, at 7 p.m., will give a grand massed concert under the conductorship of Dr. J. Mackenzie Rogan. In the Theatre at 2.30 and 7 The Belle of New York will delight thousands (especially by the novel introduction of Chantecler). Three variety shows will be given in the Centre Transept, the artists including the Maximilian Trio, the Friscoes, Reno and Roy Beavis, Mlle. Marvello and her famous cockatoos, Fritz Von Liston, the modern Chantecler, and the Czars. Leadbetter's magnificent collection of wild animals is always a source of delight to the youngsters; and in the Fairy Archipelago there will be found amusement for the million.

"THE ARTFULNESS OF ADA."

Facical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Arthur Shirley, Produced for the First Time in London at the Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, on Monday, March 21.

Ada Byron-Bruce	Miss Madge Crichton
Robert Byron-Bruce	Mr. Frank Tennant
Mrs. Glynne	Miss Valerie Crespin
Mrs. Googlie	Miss Kate Kearney
Lucy	Miss Ethel Hart
Fred Spencer	Mr. J. F. Knowles
Tom Senoakes	Mr. Alick Chumley
Jopling	Mr. John Armfield
McClosky	Miss Nellie Shirley
Colonel Duval	Mr. Stanley B Farbridge

Originally produced at the Pleasure Gardens Theatre, Folkestone, on Feb. 28 last, The Artfulness of Ada is a very attractive and amusing comedy, and on Monday evening last, when it was presented for the first time in London, it was accorded a very enthusiastic reception. The comedy was capitally interpreted by that vivacious and talented artist, Miss Madge Crichton, and her well-selected company, and at the end of each act "curtains" were numerous.

The story deals with Mrs. Ada Byron-Bruce, who, out of curiosity, has attended to watch a "raid" of militant suffragettes on the Government Offices in Downing-street, and in the confusion caused by a scuffle with the police she is arrested and charged with throwing half a brick through the Prime Minister's window. She is bailed out by her friend Mrs. Googlie, a self-satisfied lady possessing strong inclinations to have a finger in everyone's pie. As the artful Ada has given a fictitious name and address she is able to keep the matter from the ears of her husband, Robert Byron-Bruce, who is a most successful actor-manager. Fearing that the scandal of her impending imprisonment becoming noised abroad would prove disastrous to her husband, who is about to have the dignity of knighthood conferred on him, Ada practises a deception on her husband by telling him she has had an invitation for a month's motor tour in Spain, and he, being an indulgent husband, consents to her going. She departs with forced gaiety—not to sunny Spain, but to do her month "without the option." Mrs. Glynne, who occupies the post of Matron at Holloway Prison, where Ada is incarcerated, is a keen theatre-goer and an ardent admirer of Robert Byron-Bruce, the celebrated actor. On becoming aware of the identity of "No. 21," she determines to further her own ends, so she assists Ada in indicting a letter to her husband, purporting to come from Madrid, and which she herself conveys to him, explaining that she was an old friend of his wife's, and had met her in Spain. She insinuates that not only is his wife having a good time abroad, but that she has attracted the attentions of a certain Spanish gentleman, and endeavours, with very ill-success, to win the husband's affections. In the meantime, the Inspector of Prisons puts in an unexpected appearance at the gaol, and finding affairs there so grossly mismanaged, dismisses the Matron on the spot, while, for insubordination, Ada is put on bread and water. At the expiration of her term of imprisonment Ada returns home, to find her husband quite unresponsive to her affection, and not only has she to keep up the deceit by endeavouring to answer many very awkward questions concerning her tour in Spain, but she is confronted with another trouble, as her husband demands explanations regarding her dealings with the mythical Spanish gentleman. This proves too much for her, and eventually, becoming utterly mixed up and confused, she confesses all and is at once forgiven. The arrival of the letter announcing that the honour of knighthood has been conferred upon her husband completes a happy ending. There is also a love story running through the play, which concerns Lucy, Ada's younger sister, and her two lovers.

Miss Madge Crichton as Ada offers a very lively impersonation. She is the life and soul of the play, and deservedly meets with a very flattering reception. Mr. Frank Tennant does ample justice to the part of Robert Byron-Bruce. Miss Kate Kearney as Mrs. Googlie is extremely humorous, and her experience and ability make her a warm favourite. Mrs. Glynne is admirably undertaken by Miss Valerie Crespin. Miss Ethel Hart makes a charming Lucy. Mr. J. F. Knowles and Mr. Alick Chumley afford much pleasure as Fred Spencer and Tom Senoakes respectively, and the remaining characters are adequately portrayed.

Dressing the Part.

Miss Sophie Lingwood some years ago was summoned by telegram to interview a well-known London manager, and somehow got the impression that it was for a certain part, so turned up to keep the appointment, as she believed, just right, in a short-skirted tailor-made gown and smart toque. The manager surveyed her disapprovingly, then turned to his aide, who stood by: "I thought you said that this lady played character, and especially character old women?" he said, reproachfully. "I have made a mistake, or perhaps you have! Soubrette now—or—" and he gave an amused glance at the short skirt and smart shoes. Miss Lingwood did not wait to explain.

She was in treaty for the part of a kind motherly woman, and was asked to call upon the author and manager, the former being known to have a very nice taste in choosing people for his characters. It was a broiling summer day when Miss Lingwood, padded out to noble proportions by the simple means of wearing two or three extra blouses and several skirts, made her appearance before her critics. And she had her reward. The author turned to his colleague, and in an undertone observed: "Rather stout for the part, don't you think?" However, she got the part in spite of being "rather stout." At rehearsal Miss Lingwood wore only one gown, and that of black. The transformation was so startling that it necessitated explanations.

Sharing them Out.

A curious sense of justice, says Miss Lingwood, distinguished the musical conductor of a South African theatre in which she once played. The audiences loved musical plays, and showed their appreciation by presenting bouquets to their favourites over the footlights. One night Miss Lingwood had several handed to her, and when the performance was over she prepared to take them with her to her hotel. Before she left, however, she encountered the sender of another bouquet, who was anxious to know why his floral offering had been neglected. Enquiry elicited the following explanation: "Such a lot of flowers for Miss Lingwood, one each for Miss A and Miss B, and none for the others—well, I just shared 'em out.

A Doubtful Bouquet.

Another time, when drama was being given, Miss Lingwood was playing a light comedy part. When she made her first entrance a bouquet was flung at her, which was most embarrassing, for she felt instinctively that it was intended for the leading lady, who had not yet appeared. Miss Lingwood let it lie, but an over-polite young actor picked it up and handed it to her. When she made her exit, she found the anxious donor waiting to ask for it back, and in a violent hurry to get round in time to throw it to the lady for whom it was intended. "You can imagine," says Miss Lingwood, "with what interest the whole company waited for the re-entry of that bunch of flowers."

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"LUXUSZUG."

Comedy, in Four Acts, by Abel Hermant, Produced at the Kleines Theatre on March 18.

Infantin Elvira	Fraulein Dirkens
Don Luis	Herr Marx
Donna Hortensia	Fraulein Steimann
Manuel	Herr Adalbert
Grand Duke Nikita	Herr Klein-Rhoden
Prinzessin Mimi	Fraulein Gruning
Prinzessin Hedwig	Fraulein Brandt
Marquis Valencia	Herr Zibgl
Ernst	Herr Perou
Domingo	Herr Boykow
Wanda	Fraulein Rohr

BERLIN, Thursday, March 24.—The censorship took this latest French production very seriously, and Dr. Lothar, who translated it, had to make many concessions. It was a long time before the management received permission to stage it, and after all the cutting and pains expended on the piece the question arises whether the game was worth the candle. The reception was cordial, owing chiefly to the capital acting. All the dramatis personæ of importance are foreigners of distinction—princesses, ex-presidents, grand dukes, whose principal residence is the train du luxe. How the insatiable Infanta Elvira endeavours to capture young Manuel, the ex-President's son, who loves the Princess Hedwig, who is betrothed to the feeble-minded Grand Duke Nikita—and how she succeeds only for a time, whereupon the real lovers meet again, is doubtless already known to your readers, so that a detailing of the plot will be superfluous. Although the most "piquant" passages have been of necessity expunged, there are still ample left to attract a certain class of theatre-goers, and the piece, being so brightly interpreted, may run for some time.

The success of Herr Siegfried Lutz's adaptation of When Knights Were Bold at the Neues Theatre is unquestionable. It filled the bill exclusively last week, and only makes way this week, on a couple of nights, for another popular play. Die goldene Ritterzeit will certainly fill the house throughout the holidays. The German critics are nearly all unanimous that it is many years since anything so funny and so genuinely amusing has been seen on a Berlin stage.

Frau Agnes Sorma, an old Berlin favourite, has been giving a season at the New Schauspielhaus, meeting with a hearty welcome. In Goldoni's somewhat ancient comedy Mirandolina ("La Locandiera") Frau Sorma achieved greatest success. The rôle suits her down to the ground, better than almost any other in which I have seen her, the gay charm that is so natural a characteristic of this artist being displayed to full advantage. The audience waxed more and more enthusiastic from act to act. Frau Sorma was recalled times innumerable, and was the recipient of many floral tributes. As a curtain-raiser, Hugo von Hofmannsthal's one-act play Die Frau im Fenster was given, with Frau Sorma in the chief rôle. Despite excellent acting, however, it failed to make anything of a mark, and the revival was not worth the pains.

"Das Nachtlicht," the latest French farce by Miquel Zamacois, has made a hit at the Residenz, which, with Herr Richard Alexander in the chief rôle, it was sure to do. The popular actor-manager is more popular than ever, and custom never stales his infinite humour. The plot has, no doubt, been already described in your columns. Herr Benno Jacobson, the tranelator, has done his work very efficiently, and every point is given its due value. The interpretation was—as it always is at this theatre—of the best, and a lengthy run may be with certainty be predicted.

At the Lulsen Theatre a satirical comedy by the recently deceased author, Karl Böttcher, was produced with good results last Monday. The title is Der Klapperstorch der Königin. In the Fatherland it is the Klapperstorch—the stork—who adds to the population, bringing the baby Teutons overnight in his bill. How this particular stork keeps a whole principality in suspense, not being as reliable as his reputation, and how the Queen herself grows restive, is told in amusing fashion. The piece met with a very cordial reception and was brightly acted.

Herr Konrad Dreher, the clever peasant actor, who is here with his company, has been specially invited by the Emperor to give a performance at Wiesbaden Court Theatre in May. As his Majesty was riding one morning recently in the Park he met Herr Dreher, and entered into conversation with him. As the Emperor rode off he called out, "Auf Wiedersehen in Wiesbaden!"

"Der Liebestempel," an adaptation from one of Molière's early novels by Herren Otto and Rembe, was produced at the Lustspielhaus on Saturday, and met with a very friendly reception. Both authors were called and warmly applauded.

Dr. Strauss's first operatic composition Guntram is about to be revived, after an interval of several years, at the Frankfort Opera House.

MORE COINCIDENCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I read with considerable interest Mr. J. Pitt Hardacre's letter in your last issue, under the heading "Fact and Fiction," in which Mr. Hardacre draws attention to the production of a one-act play, The Prodigal's Welcome, written by Mme. Möllers, and also an account in The People of a circumstance in real life identical with the plot of said play. Well, strange to say, I wrote and produced some years ago a four-act drama, entitled Fifty Fafty; or, The Tiger's Den, at the Queen's Rooms, Berwick-on-Tweed, with absolutely the same plot. I also produced it in conjunction with Mr. Sam Fredericks at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, and it was duly noticed in your columns. I have also played it in sketch form in London and the provinces with considerable success. I merely mention these details in case at any time Mr. Hardacre's or my interest in our respective plays should clash.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES FREEMAN.

STOCK SEASONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In your issue of March 12, referring to the stock season at the Kennington Theatre this summer, you observe that the manager's efforts are likely to be emulated by other suburban managers.

As the paragraph somewhat conveys the impression that the Kennington has given the lead to other theatres in presenting stock companies, I may mention that Mr. Stoll ran a very successful stock season here two years ago, the satisfactory results of which have emboldened him to again repeat the experiment for six weeks this summer.—Yours faithfully, BERTRAM ILES, Manager.

Broadway Theatre, S.E., March 18.

Sir,—I notice in to-day's Era that Mr. Reginald Pareezer is reputed to be the youngest theatrical manager. My nephew, Cecil C. Imeson, who has been manager of the Castle Theatre, Stockton, since a year last August, was only then a little more than eighteen years of age, and previous to that he was assistant-manager at the Theatre Royal, Middlesbrough, for one year. I trust you will publish this in your next issue. Thanking you in anticipation.—Yours faithfully,

GEORGE L. IMESON.

THE NATIONAL THEATRE.

A meeting was held on the 18th inst., at Kent House, Knightsbridge, by the courtesy of Mrs. Saxton Noble, of ladies and gentlemen interested in a National Theatre. Mr. Comyns Carr presided, and among those present were the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, the Hon. Maurice Baring, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Gosse, Mr. Laurence Binyon, Countess Benckendorff, Lady Maud Warrender, Mrs. Godfrey Baring, Lady Kenmare, Mr. H. Perrin, Mr. Frederick Whelen, and Sir Herbert Tree.

SIR HERBERT TREE said: Ladies and Gentlemen,—The object of this meeting is to help on the movement started some years ago for a National Theatre in this country. I daresay many of you know that the original idea was that in connection with the tercentenary of Shakespeare's death in 1916 there should be erected some form of national monument to our great poet. In the first instance, it was proposed that this should take the form of a statue, or, rather, of a group of statuary, emblematical of the poet and his works, subscribed for by English-speaking people in the world. But a couple of years ago the project was mooted that it would be better to utilise the inspiration of Shakespeare's memory by something of a more constructive character, and it was suggested that as this country—unlike most of the European countries—had no National Theatre, the opportunity should be taken to found a National Shakespeare Memorial Theatre. I suppose of recent years no one in London has been more immediately associated with the productions of Shakespeare's works than I have been myself, and it is therefore a satisfaction to me to feel that our National Theatre, when it is realised, will devote a large part of its energies to the presentation of the poet's works. You will forgive me if I refer to my own experience, but knowledge at first hand is often instructive, and experience may aptly be the handmaiden of theory. We can often profit by the failures of others—Wisdom is the child by Common-sense out of Misfortune.

I am at this moment engaged in organising with the enthusiastic co-operation of my brother managers who are interested in the Shakespeare movement, what will prove to be a cycle of the master's works. In years to come the National Shakespeare Theatre will, I presume, carry on throughout the twelve months of the year works of the nature that we are now endeavouring to do during the period of the forthcoming five weeks. But large movements generally have modest beginnings. Pyramids are not built from the top. To my mind, the chief argument in favour of this movement is that it would give us a continuous Repertory Theatre which would be impossible, for financial reasons, if attempted by an individual. The cares and worries of the financial side of an individual's management are apt to tie his hands and cripple his artistic effort. I believe that the greatest work in any art is done at the edge of the sword of hunger; but it must also be remembered that all those who have given their lives to the presentation of the works of Shakespeare (and they have always been actors) have remained poor men—poor in pocket, I mean. A National Theatre would be an institution which should have mighty resources at its back. I am glad, therefore, that the Committee of this Memorial Theatre has from the very first laid it down as an essential that the theatre must not be erected unless it has sufficient resources not only for its building but also for its permanent endowment. I take it that we are all agreed as to this.

In connection with my own Shakespeare Festival last year, an experience occurred which made me realise how much good can be done by a permanent institution of this character. At the close of the Festival we gave two performances to the children of the London County Council schools—on one occasion Julius Cæsar and on the other The Merchant of Venice. I realised, on hearing the full-throated enjoyment of those hundreds of children, what great pleasure and educational profit could be given to them if there were periodically, in some national building, some of Shakespeare's plays given on their behalf. I take it that one of the functions of a National Theatre would be to provide this real pleasure to the children of the Metropolis. Certainly my own experience of those two performances was the most enjoyable of any that we gave during our last year's Festival. In many of the schools after those performances essays were written by the children, some of which were sent to me, and they showed how keen was the observation and how great was the joy that these two plays had given. Even blind children who came to these performances wrote with enthusiasm about what they had heard. Deaf children from one of the schools for the deaf wrote with enthusiasm about what they had seen.

Another great feature of a National Theatre would be the opportunity it would give of keeping alive a certain number of distinguished plays which at present have very little chance of being seen by the public. I refer, of course, to classics, not to corpses. It is very rarely that any existing theatre management feels able to produce many of our great classical plays, such as the works of Ben Jonson or Beaumont and Fletcher, and, to come to the works of later days, even the works of Sheridan. At the National Theatre, side by side with Shakespeare performances and more modern plays, there would be occasional opportunities for other masterpieces which the nation would not willingly allow to fall into oblivion. That is one of the great functions of the Comédie Française of Paris—a function which, in the absence of a National Theatre in London, is too rarely filled in this country.

I am glad to see that many of my fellow actors are taking an active interest in this movement. Among the latest to do so is Mr. Martin Harvey, who has just joined our committee. There has been, I think, on the part of some of those concerned in the organising, a tendency in the past to underestimate the value of the artist in connection with a movement of this description—to consider him, indeed, of secondary importance. Shakespeare himself was not only an author, he was also an actor, and I feel very strongly that for the permanent success of this Shakespeare movement we must secure the adhesion and the active support of as many actors as possible. It is their pride to help on the cause of the theatre. It should be our pride to include in our ranks the enthusiastic artists of to-day.

I am glad to be able to tell you, on the authority of the organising secretary, Mr. Perris, that this movement is developing not only in the metropolis, but also in many of the great provincial cities. He has been during the last few days in such towns as Worcester, Canterbury, and elsewhere, and is able to report not only of London, but also of these towns as to the general desire thus to honour Shakespeare. This is as it should be. The movement is not a London movement—it is an English movement. Shakespeare is one of the joint glories of all the English-speaking people, and it is an inspiring thought that three hundred years after his death there should be opened in London a great theatre in which his works may be presented in the finest possible manner. It may serve as a national recognition of the value of the theatre and of the drama in the development of the modern stage. But I say again, we must have the confidence of the public, and that confidence must find expression in pounds, shillings, and pence. I remember the other day reading an utterance by Lord Esher in which he said that the theatre in this country was fulfilling the functions of the church and the chapel. It is only recently that people have begun to realise how much the progress of thoughts and ideas and of manners can be advanced by the instrumentality of the stage. It is well that we should recognise this, and it is well that the nation should officially recognise the art of the drama.

I have no doubt that there are grave difficulties attendant on the fruition of this cause. But no great movement ever came about without encountering and overcoming such difficulties. It is to be hoped that in their onward progress the organisers of this movement will be inspired not only by enthusiasm, but by a large-minded wisdom and a practical regard to the conditions that govern our fantastic and sensitive art. Let those who desire to build a national temple of the drama join hands with those who are the votaries of the art, and who are its natural guardians. Let them work wisely and unselfishly towards the common end to do honour to Shakespeare. Then all we need is the support of the great public for a great cause.

MR. COMYNS CARR insisted upon the importance of a National Theatre, and said in course of time, when the organisation was complete, there was every reason to hope that the repertory of such a National Theatre would be seen at the various municipal theatres that might be expected to follow in its wake.

A piece entitled A Tea Party at the House of Calphurnia, by the Hon Maurice Baring, was performed in the course of the afternoon.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier writes: "The question of a national theatre is once more in the air, and the recent public utterances of my friends, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mr. H. B. Irving, and Mr. Comyns Carr, may be taken as worthy aeroplanes to convey it to the bedrock of commonsense. Some four years ago an appeal was made to the public for £500,000 to build a theatre as a memorial to Shakespeare, which theatre was to be conducted as a national theatre. The public have not yet subscribed that sum. I venture to suggest that the reasons for this may be threefold.

"Firstly, the public may not consider that a theatre is a suitable memorial to Shakespeare, bearing in mind the overwhelming number of theatres in London to-day. Secondly, the public may not be convinced that the majority of those who are constantly making an appeal for so large a sum of money (if, indeed, it is large enough for the elaborate scheme put forth) are sufficiently conversant with the practical side of theatre work. Thirdly, the confusion in the public mind that the title put forth—namely, 'Shakespeare National Memorial Theatre'—means a theatre for the exclusive performances of Shakespeare's plays. A very important movement is shortly to take place at His Majesty's Theatre, under the title of 'The London Shakespeare Festival'—a movement in which I have taken an active part, and on the committee of which I am proud to serve in company with Mrs. Kendal, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. F. R. Benson, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. William Poel, Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Herbert Trench, Mr. Lewis Waller, and Sir Herbert Tree (our chairman). During the next few weeks this committee is presenting no less than fourteen of Shakespeare's plays, as well as selections from the old comedies, at His Majesty's Theatre, the casts including most of our leading actors and actresses now in England.

"Might I suggest that here is as national a movement as can be desired, starting from within, which, so far as can be seen, will pay its own way, the promoters being those the majority of whom have spent their lives in the theatre, and who are thus eager to contribute towards a movement not only as a celebration of the moment, but because it marks a step towards that ideal of a national theatre to which so many of us are looking? Might it not be well in the interests of all concerned that the promoters of the theoretical should at once join forces with the promoters of the practical, and so, from modest beginnings, show the public that there is something to put into a new building, if such were required, rather than by asking a large sum of money to build a theatre with nothing worth with which to fill it? With this hope, and with the additional reminder that it was from a still smaller beginning that the National Theatre of France sprang."

Such is Fame.

MR. GEORGE GROSSMITH'S amusing book "Piano and I," a sequel to "A Society Clown," contains many gems of humour. The following dialogue was overheard not long after his severance from the Savoy:—

Lady: Are you going to Mr. Grossmith's recital to-night?

Gentleman: Whose recital?

Lady: Grossmith's.

Gentleman: I never heard of him.

Lady: You must have heard of his book. I saw your daughter reading it the other day.

Gentleman: Oh, Grossmith! You mean the man who wrote "The Deserted Village." Of course I've heard of him.

Not So Ugly.

"IRVING, apart from being a great actor, was a consummate gentleman, and at a garden party I introduced my elder daughter to him. . . . My daughter, who is now Mrs. Stuart Bevan, was naturally pleased at the introduction, and when she afterwards met him at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arthur Jones she said, 'I'm Miss Grossmith.' The usual twinkle came into his eyes. He received her cordially, and said: 'Thank heaven you're not as ugly as your father!'"

On the List.

AT the time when the "Black List" was in force Mr. Grossmith was giving a recital at Pontypool, in Wales. "Two Welsh miners were discussing a large lithograph portrait of myself announcing my recital at the little hall. They evidently did not, or could not, read the details of the recitals underneath, for one miner said to the other: 'That's a very sad sight, to see a decently-dressed, respectable-looking man like that placed upon the Black List.'"

Beats Cockfighting.

AT buffalo Mr. Grossmith was interviewed. "After discussing operas and kindred subjects the reporter asked me if I thought Slavin, the prize-fighter, would beat Charles Mitchell, the English champion. I said . . . that I did not regard Mitchell as a genuine English champion. He then asked me if I were going to the 'Main' that night. I had not the least idea what he meant, but I said: 'No, I'm too tired.' The report as it appeared read: 'George Grossmith has arrived. He wrote all the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. He thinks that Slavin will "whip" Mitchell, but he does not care for cock-fighting.'"

THE "John Farmer" Festival at the Crystal Palace will be held to-day, commencing at 1.30 and continuing throughout the day. This Festival includes a choir and orchestra of 4,000 performers. An orchestral concert, conducted by Mr. Chas. Howes, will be followed by "The Coming of Christ," rendered by the Nottingham Choral Society, conducted by Mr. Albert Rudd. At 5 p.m. a concert of Farmer's music will be given by Mrs. Mary Layton's Ladies' Prize Choir in the Concert Hall, and the programme will be concluded by a grand massed concert at 7 p.m. on the great Handel orchestra. "Christ and His Soldiers" will then be rendered, the artists including Miss Kate Cherry, Miss Lucie Johnstone, Mr. Fred Williams, and Mr. A. Tucker. Mr. Partridge will be at the organ, and Mr. O'Brien will be the leader. The whole of the Festival will be under the conductorship of Mr. Howes.

EDWARD FERRIS'S GUESS.

THREE ROYAL COMMANDS AND A TOUCH OF LARYNGITIS.

If variety is a charm, then Mr. Edward Ferris, part author of the latest Lyceum success, The Fighting Chance, can be said to have had a charmed life.

Still a very young man, Mr. Ferris has journeyed round the world once, has acted in forty-seven first-class plays and sketches, is author or part-author of ten successful productions, has three more in readiness for the public, and the only penalty he has had to pay for a strenuous life is a bad attack of laryngitis, which a celebrated Harley-street physician is now wrestling with. May the doctor soon win!

Mr. Ferris started as an amateur with the Liverpool Garrick Dramatic Club. He essayed Captain Hawksley in Still Waters Run Deep with such success that, when only fifteen years of age, he was offered the part of Captain of the Guard in Once Upon a Time, by Sir Herbert, then Mr. Tree. For the same famous actor-manager he went on quite a triumphal tour with A Bunch of Violets, Hamlet, and The Red Lamp, and the company was commanded by the late Queen Victoria to Balmoral. Now, Mr. Tree was due to open in Dublin on the night following that on which the appearance before Queen Victoria was made, and as the Irish capital and Balmoral are far apart, a special train was ordered to convey the company to the Clyde. The journey was remarkable for the fact that the train ran off the line, nobody was injured, and Mr. Tree and his company arrived at the theatre five minutes before the curtain went up, minus baggage. Further, Mr. Ferris thought it necessary to have an argument with another actor in the wings, missed his cue in consequence, and kept Mr. Tree on the stage for some considerable time, repeating the line: "Accept my life—accept my life!"

The part author of The Fighting Chance went to America with Mr. Tree notwithstanding this incident, and played in Hamlet and The Merry Wives of Windsor, merely getting snowed up when within 100 miles of Washington, and with no other adventures to record. Next, Mr. Charles Hawtrey claimed his services for The Private Secretary at the Avenue, and later he was seen under Mr. Comyns Carr's management in The Benefit of the Doubt.

When Mr. Weedon Grossmith produced The Shopwalker at the Vaudeville, Mr. Ferris was a member of the cast, and he also played with Miss Fortescue in Moths.

For the next eighteen months Mr. Ferris was to be found in Australia with a répertoire company, after which he returned to the Avenue for Mr. Lionel Brough's production Baby. Mr. Forbes Robertson engaged him to play at the Lyceum in Macbeth, after which he appeared at the Vaudeville in juvenile lead with The Elixir of Youth. From that to Charley's Aunt, with Mr. W. S. Penley at the Queen-street Theatre, seemed but a step, and a suburban tour of Sherlock Holmes followed.

Mr. Ferris went to Mr. Lewis Waller for his productions of both Henry V. and also Mons. Beaucaire.

Like most well-known actors of to-day Mr. Ferris has taken his plunge into vaudeville and does not regret it. He starred with The Gentleman Cracksman and also with A Gamble for Life on the Moss-Stoll tour. His acquaintance with The Devil last year ended his career, pro. tem., as an actor. But, despite the fact that his time nowadays is very much taken up with writing, Mr. Ferris will find it very difficult to entirely forsake his old love of the footlights, and he will assuredly return to them when his voice is strong again. Time will prove if we are mistaken.

The list of plays and sketches of which Mr. Ferris is author or part author makes formidable reading. There is The White Stocking, produced by Mr. Chas. Hawtrey at the Comedy. It ran one hundred nights there, and was also produced in Australia. Then there was Nicolète at the Criterion, staged during the run of My Soldier Boy. Mr. Frohman presented his Yellow Peril at the Vaudeville, and later it was revived at the Duke of York's. Mr. Ferris's Royal Betrothal was first seen at the St. James's, and later at Penley's. The Silver Wooing was first done at Fulham. Hermann Vezin and Fred Storey were in the cast. After the Ball was extremely successful in the provinces; and Mr. James Welch took The Cabinet and Cupid on tour with excellent results. Vanity of Youth was produced at Wyndham's; and The Beggar on Horseback at the County Theatre, Kingston, with Frank Cooper as lead. A duologue, Settled Out of Court, was first seen at the Palace.

Mr. Ferris has had the honour of playing before King Edward at Windsor, the late Queen at Balmoral, and the late Prince Henry of Battenberg and Princess Beatrice at Sandringham.

Mr. Ferris tells a good story of how he had just set out to find a backer to finance one of his sketches, and was in the company of his partner, when they encountered a mutual friend who had lately inherited a fortune. In response to his inquiries, they told him it was their intention to form a syndicate to run the sketch. An adjournment to Romano's was suggested, and on hearing the details of their scheme the M.F. grandiloquently announced that not only would he find the money required, but would build a theatre for them as well. Incidentally, to show that he was a man of money, he cashed several £10 notes en route, and even a cheque for £100 at the Savoy Hotel, where he seemed to be well known. Greatly impressed with what they had seen, the partners invited the M.F. to dine with them at the Green Room Club. The invitation was accepted, and whilst at the appetiser stage the M.F. said he was a bit of an actor himself, and forthwith proceeded to give an imitation of a well-known actor, and invited the partners to guess whom it was.

Mr. Ferris did not know, but thought it policy to gag. So he dissembled and answered: "Of course, dear old chap, anyone could see whom you are imitating," and then tried to turn the conversation into another channel. The M.F. cornered the other man, and insisted that he named the actor under review. Mr. Ferris's partner likewise evaded the question. Thereupon, the M.F. got wroth, and insisted that they tell him the name of the actor.

So Mr. Ferris hazarded the opinion that Arthur Roberts was the man, but his partner thought the imitation was of Ellen Terry.

"You are both asses," shouted the M.F., "and the men who could not see that I was taking off Winifred Emery must be rotten actors themselves, and don't get any of my money for their ventures.

And away he went without stopping for dinner, and in six months had lost £10,000 on another theatrical speculation.

"He could not have done worse with mine, could he?" suggests Mr. Ferris, with a twinkle in his eye. And having regard to the magnificent business now being done with The Fighting Chance at the Lyceum, we will take it upon ourselves to add: But he might have done considerably better!

MISS VIOLET VANBRUGH AT GLASGOW.

Miss Violet Vanbrugh, in delivering the prizes at the recent meeting of the Glasgow branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, said:—"Unaccustomed as I am, &c., &c. But this is literally true, only twice before in my life have I dared to speak in public any words other than those written down for me in my part. My husband has always taken the words out of my mouth and expressed what I wanted to say for me a hundred times better than I could do it myself. But to-day I must paddle my own canoe, as he is firmly held in London by The Tenth Man, although in spirit he is here in Glasgow this afternoon, as this telegram which I have just received from him testifies. [Telegram read.] I feel I must thank you very much for the honour you have done me in asking me to give away the prizes this afternoon, and I must tell you how delighted I am to do it. I have just heard that since I was last here, nearly eighteen months ago, the membership of this branch has increased from about fifty to very nearly three hundred. This is splendidly encouraging—it shows how rapidly the study, and therefore the knowledge and the love, of Shakespeare is gaining ground. With that love of our great poet comes a deep gratitude that he, the greatest writer the world has known, belongs to us all as a nation—belongs to the English-speaking race. And we are intensely grateful to Shakespeare for the world he has peopled for us, with those great heroes and heroines of romance. Those dearly-loved friends of ours, friends who never grow cold, who are always ready and waiting to laugh with us and cry with us and to teach us their wonderful philosophy; and because they are our friends they want our love as well as our study. Hamlet, Rosalind, Romeo, Juliet, Beatrice, Wolsey, Catherine of Arragon, sweet Ophelia, magnificent Lady Macbeth, and all the others—they all want our love as well as our study, and it is to teach and foster in us all this love of Shakespeare that is the object and the endeavour of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, and not widely apart, but closely knit with this love of our great poet-dramatist is the subject which is to-day very much in the hearts of all lovers of the drama.

"The subject of a National Theatre, which will be the home of Shakespeare's plays has been discussed very seriously from within, and the day is at hand—if it is, indeed, not already here—when the foundation stone of our National Theatre will be laid. Very significant, it seems to me, is this banding together under Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's banner of many of our chief actors to give each of his best to do honour to Shakespeare at the forthcoming Festival at His Majesty's Theatre. It is, at any rate, a step—and a big step—towards forming a nucleus from which the National Theatre may spring. It seems to me it is not in the spending of large sums of money to erect a theatre as a monument to Shakespeare's memory that we must prove our gratitude to him and glorify his name, nor is it in that way that we best serve the interest of the National Theatre; indeed, we run the risk of saddling on the back of a new enterprise a load that will impede and not help its early steps. What is surely more needed to start operations is the temple not made with hands, the temple built out of materials that have no price because they are priceless—enthusiasm, labour, and love—and such are being given in this Festival at His Majesty's. Then, later on, if the public encourage and support with their approval such a venture, it will be time to think of putting it on a sound financial as well as artistic basis, and so give to the nation its theatre."

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

An excellent performance by members of the operatic class was given of Purcell's opera Dido and Æneas on Thursday evening, March 17, and once more we have to thank Dr. Cummings for an interesting revival of a remarkable work by one of our greatest English composers. Henry Purcell, born in 1658, at Westminster, came of a musical family. While still a choir boy at the Chapel Royal he composed anthems, and the year 1680 is set down as the probable date when Dido and Æneas (the first English opera to have the libretto set to music) was originally performed at Mr. Priest's boarding school in Chelsea, when the composer was only twenty-two years old. The instrumental score is written for strings and harpsichord. It was evident that great pains had been taken in the revival. Mr. Richard H. Walthew skilfully conducted a small but very efficient orchestra, a harpsichord by Pleyel had been sent expressly from Paris, and picturesque scenery painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley, while the pretty costumes of chorus and principals lent by the Royal Opera Syndicate, Covent Garden, proved an attractive feature. The story of Dido and Æneas is taken from Virgil. When sailing from Troy Æneas and his ship are driven on to the coast of Carthage, where Æneas is kindly received and entertained by Dido. Æneas falls in love with the beautiful Dido, and she is equally atracted by the hero of Troy. But the Witches plot against the lovers. A spirt warns Æneas that he must depart from Carthage by Jove's order, and Æneas obeys. Dido thinks her lover faithless, and will not accept any excuse. After Æneas has gone Dido resolves to die. She sings a death-song, then stabs herself, and thus the story ends.

The music of Purcell has a subtle charm to ears accustomed to the somewhat harsh contrasts and stormy effects of modern compositions, while one of the attractions of Dido and Æneas are the fine, rich, harmonious choruses which, as might be expected from a large school of music, were beautifully sung by the students. Miss Ethel Elmes sang Dido's music well, being very successful in the pathetic scene of the last act and the heroine's death-song, "When I am laid in earth." Mr. Eldon Dacre proved a manly Æneas, and Mr. Carl True's fine voice gave effect to the sorceress's air in The Witches' Cave scene. Miss Lilian Green appeared as Belinda and Miss Dorothy Brede as Helen, while Miss Clara Bill as the Spirit also deserved praise. Miss Jennie Hyman played the Harpsichord admirably, and the dances which form so important a feature in the opera were capitally arranged by Mr. B. Soutten and most gracefully danced by his clever pupils.

PLAY ACTORS' PRODUCTIONS.

Interest was stimulated in the Play Actors' performance at the Court on Sunday by the inclusion in the bill of two little pieces from the pen of Miss Elizabeth Baker, whose comedy Chains, recently produced by the Society, has succeeded so well. The first of Miss Baker's latest efforts was a one-act play, called

"MISS TASSEY."

Miss Tassey .....MISS ADA HATCHWELL
Miss Postlethwaite .....MISS ADAH BARTON
Miss Rose Clifton .....MISS ESME HUBBARD
Miss Limerton .....MISS JESS DORYNNE
Sarah .....MISS KITTY LOFTING

A grim little piece, in which lack of incident is hardly compensated by novel treatment or smart dialogue, is furnished in Miss Tassey. The play depends almost entirely upon the chatter of a couple of draper's shopgirls, one of whom is about to be reported for "sleeping out," but is making arrangements to repeat the offence in order to attend a fancy-dress ball with her "Percy." She attributes the fact of her being found out to Miss Tassey, another member of the staff, who lies ill in bed in a corner of the room in which the girl is trying on her fancy costume. Meanwhile, Miss Tassey sleeps silently, so silently indeed that it gets on the nerves of the younger girl, who is aware that the sleeper is addicted to drugs. Her worst fears are realised when her friend at length approaches the bed and finds its occupant dead.

A sense of the uncanny was cleverly indicated by the ladies who acted the episode. Miss Esme Hubbard skilfully affected the agitation of the youthful assistant, and her hysterical outburst at the close, when she expresses remorse for her hard words towards the dead woman, was very effective. Miss Adah Barton gave a natural portrayal of the girl's good-natured elder friend; Miss Jess Dorynne was equally praiseworthy as another assistant; Miss Kitty Lofting was a neat and authoritative dormitory maid; and Miss Ada Hatchwell moaned realistically as the dying girl.

The second of Miss Baker's pieces was a fantasy in one act, called

"CUPID IN CLAPHAM."

Cyril Waterbury .....MR. RICHARD LAMBART
Nettie .....MISS ROSAMOND MAYNE YOUNG
Bert .....MASTER ERIC RAE
Iris .....MISS CATHERINE RIVERS
Cupid .....MISS WINIFRED MAYO

Far superior in conception and treatment to the playlet just referred to, Cupid in Clapham proved well worthy of the authoress of Chains. It depicts an hour in the household of Cyril Waterbury, a "something in the City," who has been married some ten years, and has a family of three, including a demonstrative baby. Affection between the couple is at a low ebb, the husband spending his Saturday afternoons watching football matches, while the wife does the household drudgery and prepares the sitting-room for the Sunday's visitors. Cyril has even forgotten that it is the anniversary of their wedding, and is reminded of the fact with some asperity by the wife, who loads him with reproaches. Then Cupid taps at the window, and is wonderingly admitted. The little god promptly makes himself at home, commands the wife to remove the curling-irons which disfigure her hair, and to replace her soiled apron by one of the pink overalls which she used to wear in her early months of married life, but which have since been discarded. The husband is likewise taken in hand and ordered to shave using the cup that his wife had presented him with many years ago, and to put on the gorgeous slippers which Cupid himself had assisted her to make. Finally, husband and wife are induced to recall the duet they used to sing together, and even to join in a dance. The curtain thus falls on a pretty enough picture, from which it is significant to notice the children are entirely left out. A whole army of Cupids, we imagine, would not soothe the crying baby while the mother was doing the household work, and the pinkiest overall would not long survive an experience of the scullery. Though Miss Baker cannot, therefore, be said to have solved a weighty problem, the playlet is, nevertheless, a most entertaining piece of work, and secured her a hearty call. She was well served by her exponents. Miss Winifred Mayo was quite a Puck-like individual, and acted Cupid in the requisite fantastic spirit; Miss Rosamond Mayne Young, tall, fair, and prepossessing, did not succeed in making herself sufficiently uncomely as the young wife, but she acted remarkably well; and Mr. Richard Lambart played the husband in agreeable light comedy fashion. Master Eric Rae and Miss Catherine Rivers were just perfect as the youthful son and daughter of the house.

The better of the two remaining items of the bill was a sketch by Ronald Macdonald, entitled

"THE FRAME."

Anatolio Montolieri .....MR. H. A. SAINTSBURY
Celestine Lebas .....MISS LUCY WILSON
Mme. Fanchat .....MISS CLARE GREET

Strong melodrama and weak comedy go side by side in the above little piece, which, if relieved of the latter and of some cryptic references to "things" which an absinthe-soaked artist sees, would make an effective "thriller." It tells of the devotion for her lover, a Neapolitan artist, cherished by a Parisian model, who, in order to raise money to purchase an expensive frame for the picture he had sent to the Académie, had sat for the nude to another painter. She secures the frame, but hides it in a cupboard until the letter of acceptance shall have arrived from the Académie. Her lover's suspicions are aroused, and, drunk with copious draughts of brandy, he declares she has her artist employer hiding in the cupboard. He seizes a knife, and makes for the cupboard, and the girl, getting in the way, is fatally stabbed, but lives to see the arrival of the letter of acceptance, while the lover leaps out of the window to the ground some hundreds of feet below. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury gave a striking characterisation of the drink-sodden artist, grim in humour and fierce in invective. His attack of delirium tremens was artistically done. Miss Lucy Wilson played with equal vigour and intensity as the girl, and at times reached quite the Sicilian standard of passionate emotion. A Paris concierge, the object of the artist's rather cheap wit, was played by Miss Clare Greet.

Last to claim notice is a sketch, by Affleck Scott, entitled "THE GULF."

Sue .....MISS RITA TOMKINS
Meg .....MISS VITA SPENCER

The main purpose of The Gulf is good, but the author has not contrived to keep up the humour of the conception, and his dialogue becomes ridiculously improbable. It represents an interview between a coster girl and her late friend, whose father has come into vast wealth, and has removed from the East-End to a house in Park-lane. She is visited in her humble attic by Meg, who dilates on the "horrors of wealth" and sighs for the shrimps of happier days, and for the sweetheart who has transferred his affections to Sue. The characters were typically played by Miss Rita Tomkins and Miss Vita Spencer respectively, and no lack of laughter came of their efforts.

THE trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace will shortly publish for the use of visitors a "Catalogue of the Books, Manuscripts, Works of Art, Antiquities, and Relics at present Exhibited in Shakespeare's Birthplace." The volume contains sixty-one illustrations of objects on exhibition.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your report in Saturday's Era of H. Leslie Bell's Cinderella pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Falkirk, Scotland, my name is mentioned as still being in the company. I wish to state that I left the pantomime on March 2 at Motherwell.—Yours faithfully, LEW TOWERS, 1, Church Cross-street, Leeds.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Herbert Tree has surrounded himself with an incomparable company of artists for The Merry Wives of Windsor, with which he inaugurates his London Shakespeare festival at His Majesty's Theatre on Monday. Miss Ellen Terry will again be seen as Mistress Page, and the other merry wife will be played by Lady Tree. Mr. Henry Ainley will be the Master Fenton, Mr. Lyn Harding the Master Ford, and Mr. Jules Shaw the Master Page. Justice Shallow will be in the hands of Mr. W. G. Fay.

Miss Kate Phillips will be welcomed back to His Majesty's as Mistress Quickly, and Miss Iris Hoey will be a sweet Anne Page; the other characters are thus admirably disposed: Master Slender, Mr. C. H. Croker-King; Sir Hugh Evans, Mr. E. M. Robson; Dr. Caius, Mr. William Haviland; Host of the Garter Inn, Mr. Nigel Playfair; Bardolph, Mr. Edward Sass; Nym, Mr. Harry C. Hewitt; Pistol, Mr. Hubert Carter; Robin, Mr. Hermione Gingold; Simple, Mr. J. W. Braithwaite; and Rugby, Mr. Henry Morrell.

At the matinée on Saturday, April 2, Julius Cæsar will be given, with a cast including Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Hubert Carter, Mr. Shiel Barry, Mr. Edward Sass, Mr. J. W. Braithwaite, Mr. William Haviland, Miss Elinor Foster, Miss Iris Hoey, and Miss Evelyn Millard.

At a matinée of Twelfth Night on Thursday, April 7, Mr. Fred Terry will appear as Sebastian, and his daughter, Miss Phillida Terson, as Viola. The cast will also include Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Norman Forbes, Mr. Shiel Barry, Mr. Gerald Lawrence, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Edward Sass, and Mr. Hubert Carter. A diary of the Festival will shortly be published giving complete details of the five weeks' production.

Mr. Lewis Waller and his company will appear in Liverpool on Monday evening in The Rivals, and on April 4 will present the piece at the Lyric with the following cast:—Sir Anthony Absolute, Mr. C. W. Somerset; Captain Absolute, Mr. Lewis Waller; Faulkland, Mr. Cronin Wilson; Acres, Mr. Robert Loraine; Sir Lucius O'Trigger, Mr. Leonard Boyne; Fag, Mr. Herbert Jarman; David, Mr. Alec F. Thompson; Thomas, Mr. Robert Bolder; Mrs. Malaprop, Miss Lottie Venne; Lydia Languish, Miss Kate Cutler; Julia, Miss Dorothy Dix; and Lucy, Miss Beatrice Ferrar.

Mr. Charles Frohman, when he produces Chantecler in English in America will cast Miss Maude Adams for M. Guitry's part of Chantecler.

Miss Ellen Terry, who will sail for America in October to give a series of "conferences" on the heroines of Shakespeare, wishes it to be known that this will be by no means her last tour. Miss Terry expects to be away for between ten and twenty weeks.

Mr. Martin Harvey will make his reappearance in the Metropolis, commencing Monday afternoon (Easter Monday) at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, where the distinguished actor is to remain throughout the week. On the following Monday, April 4, Mr. Harvey has arranged with Mr. Robert Arthur to play a special engagement of a week's duration at the Kennington Theatre. On Easter Monday afternoon and at night, and on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Mr. Martin Harvey will appear as Lieutenant Reresby in John Rutherford's immensely successful romantic play, The Breed of the Treshams, in which he will be supported by Miss N. de Silva as Batty, and by Mr. Charles Glenney, Mr. Owen Roughwood, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., and Mr. Percy Foster, among others. A second special matinée has also been arranged for Thursday afternoon, the 31st inst., when Mr. Martin Harvey will appear in The Only Way, which famous play will be repeated on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights. During the following week the same plays will do duty at the Kennington Theatre, where again there will be a special matinée of The Only Way on Thursday, April 7.

Mr. Herbert Trench's beautiful production of The Blue Bird had its 150th performance at the Haymarket Theatre on Monday, when it was warmly applauded by a delighted audience. The Dog of Mr. Ernest Hendrie, the Cat of Mr. Norman Paige, and Miss Carlotta Addison's admirable Fairy Berylune were again greatly admired, and the pretty piece seems destined for another long "stretch" of success.

Mr. Charles Frohman is prepared to take a very long lease of a theatre in the East-End, provided it is erected on a suitable site, from plans of which he approves, in order to establish an East-End Repertory Theatre. In connection with Mr. Frohman's scheme in the East-End of New York, twenty-one "stars" have agreed to render unpaid services for one week each.

Sir Herbert Tree sends us a neat and inclusive diary of his Shakespeare Festival, which will greatly assist the public in realising the rich feast of dramatic art which he has prepared for them at His Majesty's. The names of the committee are Mr. F. R. Benson, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. William Poel, Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Herbert Trench, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mrs. Kendal, and Miss Ellen Terry. Sir Herbert Tree is the chairman. The stage-manager is Mr. Cecil King, the associate stage-manager Mr. Stanley Bell, and the musical-director Mr. Adolf Schmid. The general-manager, of course, is Mr. Henry Dana.

Mr. Walter Reynolds, L.C.C., has gone on a cruise to Morocco and the Canary Islands, and will not return until April 17.

Miss Constance Collier, whose success in America in Henry Bernstein's Israel we have fully recorded, will return to England to play Emilia in Othello to the Moor of Sir Herbert Tree and the Iago of Mr. H. B. Irving in the forthcoming Shakespeare festival.

An agitation has arisen among Berlin actresses against the demand of theatrical managers, who are accused of exercising tyranny over artists on the subject of stage dresses, making them order expensive costumes, irrespective of the consideration whether such were suitable or not. The well-known actress, Frau Annie Dirkens, who is among the protesters, gives a curious example of the methods attributed to the theatrical managers in Berlin. One manager reproached her with shortening the run of an operetta because her dressmaker was ten days late in delivering a dress she had ordered, declaring that if Frau Dirkens had had the dress at the beginning of the run the piece would have last 300 instead of 200 performances.

Mr. Herbert Trench—so great is still the public demand to see Masterlinck's fairy play The Blue Bird at the Haymarket—has had to arrange for five matinées during Easter week, namely, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday, at 2 p.m. Altogether there will be eleven performances of the pretty play that week, probably a record for an Easter week run at a London theatre.

Mr. Charles Frohman will, by arrangement with Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, present at the Comedy Theatre on Tuesday a new play by Mr. Paul Armstrong, entitled Alias Jimmy Valentine. The cast will include Mr. Guy Standing, Miss Grace Murielle, Miss Florence Harwood, Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. C. M. Hallard, Mr. Herman de Lange, Mr. Lyston Lyle, Mr. Gissing Walters, Mr. Herbert Bunston, Mr. D. J. Williams, Mr. Fred Cremlin, Mr. T. Gideon Warren, Mr. Frank Thorndike, Miss Marjory Dane, and Mr. Gerald du Maurier.

Amongst the audience which assembled at the Lyric Theatre on Wednesday afternoon to witness Signor Grasso's performance of Othello were the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, Lady Helmsley, Mrs. John Leslie, Miss Toupie Lowther, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. J. Comyns Carr, and Mr. Alan Mackinnon.

Miss Julia Neilson, we are glad to hear, has successfully undergone an operation, and is now rapidly recovering health and strength.

Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney will shortly return to England from America, and will in August commence an eight weeks' tour of the provinces with a new play by Mr. Walter Frith entitled Margaret Catchpole.

During Miss Tittell-Brune's last season in Australia, instead of the usual benefit matinée, she invited all the poor children and the child patients from the hospitals and infirmaries of Sydney to witness her performance of Peter Pan. After the performance a Peter Pan Club was formed, and they elected her president, and it was then arranged to endow a cot entitled "the Tittell-Brune Cot." Last December she visited London for a short holiday, and created a sensation as Claire Forster in The Woman in the Case. This was followed by Lady Carew, with Mr. H. B. Irving, in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde at the Queen's.

It will be some time before she returns to Australia, but her friends in Sydney have dealt with the difficulty. This Easter a monster bazaar is to be held there; and early in February Miss Brune had a letter from her friend and secretary of the Peter Pan Club (Miss Mabel Webb) telling her that everything was arranged, and asking her to send a message for the opening. Making an appointment with the Edison Phonograph Company, Miss Brune spoke her message into a phonograph, and when the audience meet at the Sydney Bazaar they will hear the voice of their favourite. Miss Brune's first appearance in Australia five years ago was in Sunday, and her last was as Peter Pan, so she has delivered a few words from the former, and the "Do you believe in fairies?" speech from the latter.

Miss Tittell-Brune is an American. She was born in San Francisco, and was making a name as a star before she accepted Mr. Williamson's offer to tour in Australia. For a year she appeared as Theodora, and later with E. H. Sothern in If I were King.

The Rehearsal company will present the following items on Friday afternoon, April 1, at the West London Theatre, Edgware-road, W.: The Bookworms, by Catherine Evelyn; In the Eyes of the World, by Fraser Wood; and scenes from Henry V. and The Octoroon. The casts will include Messrs. Frederick James, Montague Mazaran, Wilfred Fletcher, Arthur Bowyer, A. L. Burke, Clifford Heatherley, Arthur Cleave, W. B. Abingdon, F. Carlton Brown, G. E. Carlton, jun., Osborn Adair, and Clive Currie; also Misses Eva Balfour, Josie Hurst, Dorothy Tanqueray, Madeline Lesley, Letty Paxton, Marjorie Hodges, Ivy Dymond, Irene Delisse, Ursula Keene, Clarice Laurence, Irene Moncrieff, Edith Carter, Rose Macdonald, Evelyn Grey, Winnie Snowdon, Adah Dick, Maud Bowyer, Eileen Savage, Winifred Howell-Jones, and May Saker.

A record success seems to await Mr. Bennett at the Opera House, Coventry, on the engagement of Mr. Alan Wilkie and his company for this year's annual Easter and old English comedy festival week. Keen interest is being aroused not only in Coventry itself, but in the surrounding districts, such towns as Leamington and Rugby sending in their enthusiastic bands of Shakespeare lovers.

Miss Kate Walbran is making a great impression in leading rôles in Cape Town. As Mrs. Dallas-Baker in Smith she evoked the encomiums of both press and public, while her Countess, in Mr. Preedy and the Countess, was alluded to as Miss Walbran's triumph. Passing to another line of business, her Mrs. Wake, in Dr. Wake's Patient, came as a surprise, as did her Paulina, in The Night of the Party. In the new African play, Helena's Hope, Ltd., Miss Walbran made a hit as a vulgar Johannesburg parvenu, Mrs. Abraham Goldenstein. Messrs. De Jong and Black are to be congratulated upon the engagement of Miss Kate Walbran, and the lady herself upon her series of successes.

Mr. Ben Greet and his company appeared in The Rivals last week at the Garden Theatre, New York, and gave an excellent interpretation of the famous old comedy, Mr. Greet's Bob Acres being a most amusing portrayal. Lydia Languish was played by Miss Violet Vivian, Captain Absolute by Mr. Douglas J. Wood, Sir Anthony Absolute by Mr. Frank McEntee, Sir Lucius O'Trigger by Mr. Redmond Flood, and Mrs. Malaprop by Miss Alice Gale. Their impersonations and those of the other members of the company were highly praiseworthy.

A new three-act comedy entitled A Daughter of Doyle's, from the pen of Sybil Michell, a well-known local lady, is to be produced at the Worthing Theatre Royal during the first week in April.

The lessee of the St. James's Hall, Worthing, applied to the local magistrates on Wednesday morning for a stage licence for the hall. A similar application was made a month ago, but the magistrates then refused to grant the necessary permit, as certain structural alterations specified by the Bench had not been carried out. The alterations having now been effected, the licence was granted. The applicant was also given a cinematograph licence for the hall.

The Shuberts will shortly open another new theatre in Thirty-ninth-street, New York, a few doors from Maxine Elliott's Theatre. Mme. Nazimova, the Russian actress, will appear there in a répertoire of plays, including Little Eyolf, Lady Inger of Ostraat, The Wild Duck, The Fairy Tale, An Ideal Wife, and The Seagull. The new playhouse will be known as Nazimova's Thirty-ninth-street Theatre. This means that New York will have twelve theatres named after their proprietors, lessees, or leading players, and in the autumn there will be another—the George M. Cohan Theatre. The theatre builders seem to be busy not only in this city, but elsewhere. Announcement has just been made that twelve new theatres are to be built in the principal cities between St. Paul and San Francisco by the Shubert Theatrical Company. This enterprising firm will then realise their ambition, to have "a chain of playhouses reaching from coast to coast."

Mr. Acton Bond will act as honorary secretary for Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Martin Harvey's complimentary matinée to Mr. H. J. Loveday at the St. James's Theatre on Friday, May 27.

Following the lead of London, Manchester, and Leeds, Sheffield has recently inaugurated a Playgoers' Society. The inception is largely due to the efforts of Mr. J. F. Horrabin and Mr. J. H. Dowd, two dramatic enthusiasts who for several years have been prominently connected with the local School of Art Dramatic Society. A strong and influential committee has been appointed, with Messrs. Horrabin and Dowd as hon. secretaries.

Mr. Eric H. Albury's tour of Why Smith Left Home opens at the Alexandra Theatre, Widnes, on Easter Monday. The company comprises Messrs. Vernon Sansbury, Charles Clark, Stanley M. Carrington, Lawrence J. Lawrence, Wilfred Hanbury, Misses Edna Eden, Clara Nicholls, Maude Shelton, Ethel Dunbar, Lulu Stanley, Sybil Chester, and Rene Glynne. Mr. W. H. Pierpoint is the business-manager for the tour, which is booked right through the summer.

A new comedy, called The Naked Truth, written by "George Paston" and W. B. Maxwell, will be produced at Wyndham's Theatre next month. It is in three acts, the first and last of which take place in Hampstead, and the second in the boardroom of a City company. The "pivot" of the play is the existence of a ring which obliges anyone who places it upon his finger to speak the truth. Mr. Charles Hawtrey will enact the hero, who is forced by wearing the ring to confess to various offences and peccadilloes.

Mr. Frederick Whelen is still deeply interested in his scheme for the establishment of a Repertory Theatre in the East End. As will be remembered, he mentioned the idea first at a meeting of the Sunday Club, afterwards in a lecture delivered at the Playgoers' Club, and subsequently in a correspondence published in the Press.

When the new romantic Turkish drama by Mr. Janitsch, entitled The Raven's Cry, is performed at the Strand Theatre on the 29th inst., it will be "produced" by Mr. Edward O'Neill, and played by a cast including Mr. Philip Cunningham, Mr. Langhorne Burton, Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw, Mr. Arthur Skelton, Mr. E. H. Brooke, Mr. Harry Paulton, Miss Ivy Williams, and Miss Marie Polini

"Where is William?" a three-act farcical comedy by Mr. Charles Windermere, which has been touring the provinces since August, will be played for the first time in London at the Fulham Theatre on Monday.

The King and Queen have been graciously pleased to grant their patronage to the forthcoming grand opera season at Covent Garden, commencing on Saturday, April 23, and have, as in previous years, subscribed to the Royal box.

M. Huguenet, of the Comédie-Française, has not only refused to sign the contract binding him to partnership in the theatre, but has declined to renew his ordinary engagement, and will therefore leave the House of Molière in a few months. He says it is impossible to make both ends meet on the pay drawn by a member of the theatre, which is between £1,600 and £2,000 a year.

The Follies have revived their old burlesque on Hamlet, apropos, we presume, of the coming Shakespeare festival. All the principal points of the well-known "skit" are retained, with the addition of others; and Mr. H. G. Pelissier as Hamlet, Miss Gwennie Mars as Ophelia, Mr. Lewis Sydney as Claudius and Horatio, and Mr. Douglas MacLaren as Shakespeare, all contribute to the general diversion and delight.

The Liverpool Shakespeare pantomime Dick Whittington closed on Saturday night amid great enthusiasm. The curtain should have been rung down a fortnight ago, but owing to the success it was decided to continue the pantomime, and fortunately the management were able to cancel two engagements. The run was a record, which is saying a good deal considering the big triumphs the popular house has had during its existence of twenty-two years.

For his next tour Mr. Allan Wilkie has secured the services of Mr. Philip Gordon, who was for so many years the principal comedian with the late Osmond Tearle, and who is now acting with Mr. Edward Compton in a similar capacity. Mr. Wilkie has several other important engagements in negotiation.

The Sunday Concert Society's Sunday Afternoon Concerts at Queen's Hall will be extended this season up to Sunday, April 24. In the scheme of programmes arranged for these extra concerts, which begin next Sunday, Wagner is well represented, the majority of the orchestral items being drawn from the works of that composer. The Queen's Hall orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Henry J. Wood, will perform each Sunday as heretofore, and the soloists engaged include Miss Edith Evans, Messrs. Thorpe Bates, Herbert Brown, Richard Buhlig, and Percy Grainger.

Mr. Wm. J. Miller, who gives such a striking performance of the part of Baron Strelsau in From Convent to Throne, will conclude at Easter a tour of thirty-five weeks with this piece, and has been re-engaged for the same part on the next tour, commencing on August Bank Holiday and terminating at Easter, 1911.

Mr. Otho Stuart has organised an "Old Bensonian" matinée on Tuesday afternoon, May 3, at the forthcoming Stratford-on-Avon Festival. The casts will be as follows:—The School for Scandal: Snake, Mr. A. Whitby; Joseph Surface, Mr. L. Irving; Maria, Miss J. McKinley; Lady Sneerwell, Miss F. Wetherall; Mrs. Candour, Miss E. Chester; Backbite, Mr. C. A. Bibby; Crabtree, Mr. A. E. George; Lady Teazle, Miss M. Hackney; Servant, Mr. P. Soper; Servant, Mr. R. Spyers; Sir Peter Teazle, Mr. H. Vibart. The Merchant of Venice: Bassanio, Mr. O. Stuart; Gratiano, Mr. L. Faber; Duke of Venice, Mr. G. Fitzgerald; Portia, Mrs. F. R. Benson; Nerissa, Miss E. Kirby; Antonio, Mr. A. Brydone; Clerk of the Court, Mr. J. B. Fagan; Salarino, Mr. R. Spyers; Salanio, Mr. L. Buttress; Shylock, Mr. F. R. Benson. A Midsummer Night's Dream: First Fairy, Miss A. Nicholls; Second Fairy, Miss C. Saumarez; Puck, Miss L. Hanman; Oberon, Mr. H. Ainley; Titania, Miss J. Bateman; Lysander, Mr. H. R. Hignett; Helena, Miss L. Braithwaite; Hermia, Miss F. Dillon; Demetrius, Mr. C. Quartermaine; Bottom, Mr. A. E. George; Quince, Mr. E. L. Swete; Snug, Mr. E. A. Warburton; Snout, Mr. V. Stonhouse; Starveling, Mr. H. O. Nicholson; Flute, Mr. H. Hobbes. The Taming of the Shrew: Petruchio, Mr. F. R. Benson; Lucentio, Mr. C. Keightley; Hortensio, Mr. H. R. Hignett; Bianca, Miss O. Noble; Baptista, Mr. Alf. Brydone; Tranio, Mr. C. Quartermaine; Biondello, Mr. A. Whitby; Gremio, Mr. H. O. Nicholson; Grumio, Mr. N. Playfair; Major Domo, Mr. H. Jalland; Katharina, Mrs. F. R. Benson. Mr. F. R. Benson and the governors of the Memorial Theatre desire to thank the managers who have kindly given permission for the above artists to appear at the Memorial Theatre.

"The Belle of New York" will this evening start a seven nights' engagement at the Crystal Palace Theatre, two performances being announced for Easter Monday. This popular play, which has been run by Mr. J. Bannister Howard for nearly ten years, is sure to meet with a good reception. That dainty little artist Miss Dorothea Clarke, who was the charming Cinderella in the Palace panto, will be the Belle, while another prime favourite, Mr. Paddy Dupres, will be seen as Ichabod Bronson. Mr. Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill will also contribute with his wonderful whistling solos. That bright and clever little artist Miss Florence Hersee will make a welcome reappearance at the Palace in her original parts of Kissie Fitzgarter and Mamie Clancy. In the second act that much-talked-of play Chantecler will be represented, the celebrated dresses being reproduced. On April 14 the Sydenham Operatic Society will occupy the theatre for three nights and matinée in La Fille de Madame Angot.

"The One-Act Play House, Ltd," has been started with a capital of £10,000. Subscribers are to receive coupons entitling them to eight stall tickets with fifty preferred shares, while eight dress-circle tickets go to the holder of thirty preferred shares. The free seats are to be spread over the year, but there are some limitations, as seven days' notice to the box-office is required, and only two seats for any one performance can be granted.

There are preferred shares of £1 each and deferred shares of 1s. each, the former being offered for subscription. The profits of the company are to be applied, in the first place, to the payment of a cumulative preference dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. on the sum paid up, and after that distribution one-third of the balance is to go to the preferred shares, and the remaining two-thirds to the deferred. The shares offered for subscription are 9,500 preferred.

The directors' estimate of profit is an excess of revenue over expenditure of £21,200. The prospectus states that the preferential dividend will take £950 of this, and the directors think that calculations warrant them in making the statement that they anticipate paying the 10 per cent. preference dividend and returning to them the whole of the capital they subscribe within twelve months out of the profits of the company.

Taking the shares to have been fully subscribed—and theatrical enterprises generally have to call up the whole of their capital—the position of the preferred shareholders at the end of the first year on the estimates of the board would be a 10 per cent. dividend, plus £1 per share, plus so many free seats. The board estimates the return of the whole capital to the preferred shareholders in the first year, which would be £9,500. The more fortunate deferred shareholders would get the remaining two-thirds—£19,000. The prospectus states that the one-act play house will open "about the middle of April."

The Mozart Festival Week will commence on June 6. Amongst the principal artists already engaged are Misses Ruth Vincent, Zélie de Lussan, Edith Evans, Carrie Tubb, Muriel Terry, Maggie Teyte, Caroline Hatchard, Betty Booker, and Lydia O'Brée, Messrs. Joseph O'Mara, D. Byndon-Ayres, John Bardsley, Arthur Royd, John Coates, Robert Maitland, Froceric Austin, Lewys James, Harry Dearth, Alfred Kaufmann, Fredk. Ranalow, and Robert Radford.

Mr. Martin Comstock, the well-known American and European manager, was on Sunday last, the occasion of his birthday, presented by the members of Nora Carton and Beatrice Selwyn's Temptation company with a very handsome solid leather despatch box. Miss Carton, in making the presentation, said many kind words—how pleasant the tour had proved and how well things had been looked after. Mr. Comstock suitably replied.

Miss Naomi Neilson, who has just concluded an engagement with The Marriages of Mayfair in the part which she understudied at Drury Lane, has been engaged to play Mrs. Lewis Waller's rôle in The Admiral's Lady, and opens at the Kilburn Music Hall next week. Mrs. Lewis Waller will continue to play in Lost, Stolen, or Strayed, and will appear at Balham and Croydon. The Admiral's Lady will be looked after by Mrs. Waller's general manager, Mr. Leonard Robson.

Mr. Norman V. Norman will shortly commence a brief spring tour, relying chiefly on the plays that have been most popular in his répertoire. Mr. Norman has, however, made arrangements to produce two plays that were very successful in the West End which he has not appeared in before. The charming actress, Miss Beatrice Wilson, will again be the leading lady.

Mr. Walter Melville is sending out a company to South Africa, where a number of his plays, opening with The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, will be given. The company, which is under the personal direction of Mr. Bert E. Hammond, will consist of Misses Ethel Bracewell, Jessie Belmore, Nannie Meade, May Davis, Bessie Walters, and Lily Trounsell, Mrs. Bracewell, and Messrs. Wingold Lawrence, Charles Brucester, Louis Hector, J. T. Macmillan, Fred Ingram, Vernon Proctor, Alfred Richards, Cecil De Lee, Charles Kenway, and Tom Spackman.

Miss Babs Stuart, who has been playing Viola in The Prince and the Beggar Maid, has been kindly released by Messrs. Paumier and Howard to take up her old part of Annie Bloodgood in Are You a Mason?

Mr. Willie Scott has been re-engaged by Mr. Walter Melville for the autumn, and by Mr. Geo. S. King for principal comedy in a stock season at Devonport.

The Canadian curios and objects of interest collected by Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll will be lent by Her Royal Highness for exhibition in the Canadian Section of the forthcoming Festival of Empire at the Crystal Palace.

Miss Fitzgerald Creagh, the well-known amateur actress, who has played several times before the King, will shortly adopt the stage as a profession, and join Mr. Norman V. Norman's company. Miss Fitzgerald Creagh is a cousin of the Commander-in-Chief in India.

Mr. Stead and Mr. J. T. Grein have formed a syndicate with £5,000 to organise a company to present English plays performed by English players on the Continental stage. There are three classes of people on the Continent to whom a company of English players appeal: the international, cosmopolitan group who are ever anxious to secure better relations among nations; the English and American colonies in the different European cities; and the educational institutions, where a public that is interested in English literary work can be relied on to attend the plays. The players would make a tour through Paris, Lille, probably the Riviera towns, Lucerne, Basle, Zurich, Cologne, Frankfort, Wiesbaden, Dresden, Berlin, Brussels, Antwerp, Rotterdam, Amsterdam, and The Hague. They would begin with three or four Shakespearean plays and several modern plays. Viscount Esher, chairman of the National Theatre, is at the head of the syndicate, and Mr. Rouband, who has had twelve years' experience in Continental and British theatrical work, is the managing-director.

Mr. C. W. Ramsay, the acting-manager of the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, took on the 17th inst. his sixth annual benefit. The theatre was crowded, and Mr. Ramsay was the recipient of numerous presents from his wide circle of friends, including a gold albert from Mr. W. D. Forsdike, the managing-director. A special programme had been arranged, and several artists from the Empire and Hippodrome contributed turns. The Grimesthorpe Brass Band played selections, and the Caledonian pipers and the Caledonian troupe of Highland dancers in costume proved highly entertaining. The stage-management was under the direction of Mr. Herbert Fuller.

Miss Florence Baines' arrangements of the North and South companies of Miss Lancashire, Ltd., are now complete until next June. She has in active preparation a new musical farce, which she purposes producing in the autumn.

Miss Dolly Harmer has returned from her second African engagement, and a most successful tour in Australia with Mr. Harry Rickards. The popular comedienne looks as bright and bonnie as ever.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will pay another visit to America next November to act in a répertoire of eleven plays. She will open in Chicago, and will play in New York during the three weeks previous to Christmas. Then she will tour the principal cities of the East, South, and West. Mme. Bernhardt said in Paris the other day that she was to play only at the most beautiful theatres in America. She did not want a repetition of her experiences in 1906, when she was forced to play in tents, halls, and other places unsuited to dramatic representations.

On and after Monday, May 2, the Rehearsal company, under the direction of Mr. Clive Currie, will remove to the Royal Court Theatre.

The members of the Scottish Musical Artists' Benevolent Fund recently held their annual "At Home" in the Grosvenor, Gordon-street, Glasgow. There was a good attendance, the company numbering about 125 ladies and gentlemen. Among others present were Messrs. W. F. Frame, honorary president, E. J. Mozart Allan, president, James Perston, ex-president, and the Rev. Dr. W. Fulton, Battlefield Church. A dance programme was carried through, and the function was most successful. The music was provided by the Scottish Musical Artists' Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. James Booth. At an interval in the programme Mr. W. F. Frame, in the course of a few remarks, spoke of the beneficent objects of the fund, from which deserving cases in the profession were assisted irrespective of membership. The fund now stands at over £1,200.

Miss Alys Rees has played the part of Mummy Tye in The Blue Bird at the Haymarket Theatre for the last week, during the indisposition of Miss Margaret Murray.

A correspondent wants to obtain a humorous recitation by Jerome K. Jerome with the title "At the Telephone," or something similar. The author himself forgets where it was published.

A copyright performance was given at the Prince's Theatre, Preston, on March 18, of a new play, entitled The Master of the Mill. The producers are the Melodrama Production Syndicate, Ltd., who already have several other successful companies on the road. All the scenery is being specially made and painted for this new piece at their scenery stores. The production is fixed for May 23, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham Junction, after which the play will be sent out on an autumn tour, which is already booked.

The Moss and Stoll suburban theatres supply sharply contrasting but equally effective attractions for Easter week. The Alexandra, Stoke Newington, announces Mr. George Dance's company, including Marie Studholme, in Miss Hook of Holland; and at the Broadway, New Cross, Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company will be seen in The Prince and the Beggar Maid.

The repertory of the Thomas Beecham Opera Comique Season at His Majesty's, from May 9 to July 30, under the management of Mr. Thomas Quinlan, will include Offenbach's Tales of Hoffmann, Massenet's Werther, Humperdinck's Hänsel and Gretel, C. V. Stanford's Shamus O'Brien, Edmond Missa's Muguette (its first production in England), Mozart's Il Seraglio, Cosi Fan Tutti, and Nozze di Figaro, Auber's Fra Diavolo, Johann Strauss's Fledermaus, and Mehul's Joseph in Egypt.

"Mid-Channel," with Miss Ethel Barrymore as Zoe Blundell, is doing so well at the Empire Theatre, New York, that four weeks of Miss Barrymore's season "on the road" have been cancelled in order to extend the engagement in this city. It is announced that Sir Arthur Wing Pinero intends to visit America this spring to see the performance of his play at the Empire Theatre. Miss Barrymore's embodiment of Zoe Blundell is said to be entirely dissimilar from Miss Irene Vanbrugh's.

Mr. Kyrle Bellew has under consideration the Parisian success, Le Scandale, the play having been submitted to him by Mr. Charles Frohman as a suitable vehicle for next season. In the meantime Mr. Bellew is touring the principal American cities in The Builder of Bridges, which has been well received on the road, although it was treated rather coolly in the metropolis.

Mr. John Corbin, literary director of the New Theatre, New York, has sent in his resignation. It was rumoured that a speech made by Mr. Corbin a few weeks ago at the City Club had caused a disagreement with the management, but this has been denied. It appears that The Passing of the Third Floor Back was rejected by the management of the New Theatre, and Mr. Corbin alluded to this in his speech.

At the conclusion of the Easter term of the Royal College of Music on Wednesday the following awards were made by the director and Board of Professors: Council Exhibitions: Clytie M. Hine, Dorothy Grason, Maurice Soester, A. Christa Wood, Joshua L. Beswick, Winifred M. Douglas. Charlotte Holmes Exhibition (£15), to Evelyn M. Pickup; Muriel Foster (Mrs. Goetz) Prize (£10) for singing, to Matilda Bodycombe; John Hopkinson Gold and Silver Medals for pianoforte playing, respectively to Grace A. Humphrey and Grace M. J. de Rozario; Henry Leslie (Herefordshire Philharmonic) Prize for singers (£10), to Florence S. Taylor; Council Prize for organ extemporising, to Edmund L. Guest; Challen Gold Medal for pianoforte playing, to Joseph A. Taffs; Arthur Sullivan Prize for composition (£5), to John D. H. Greenwood; Scholefield Prize for string players (£3), to Philip Levine; Clementi Exhibition for pianoforte playing (about £28), to Emmie Gregory; Operatic Class Prizes, Irene Robinson, Mary Congreve-Pridgeon, Ethel D. Lebish, Bessie Jones; Elocution Prizes, Winifred L. Williamson, Evelyn B. Jennings, Hilda C. Jameson; Dannreuther Prize (£9 9s.) for the performance of a piano concerto with orchestra, to William D. Murdoch. Competitions took place for the S. Ernest Palmer (Berkshire) Scholarship and the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society's Scholarship, and were awarded respectively to Evelyn M. M. Somerville, of Reading (violin), and Robert W. Callow, of Wandsworth (violin).

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Green Bushes.

MRS. BILLINGTON, who has been giving her reminiscences in Lloyd's Weekly, has many pleasant memories of her long connection with the old Adelphi Theatre. The famous Green Bushes, in which Wright, Bedford, and Mme. Celeste appeared, proved such a success at the Adelphi that it was aptly called the "Ever-Green" Bushes. It became a regular stop-gap, and was always put up when the season began. Webster, though a martinet in matters theatrical, never interefered so far as to command rehearsals in the case of Green Bushes On one occasion disaster nearly resulted.

THE piece had begun, when Wright and Bedford, who had not played in it for some time, not being wanted in the first act, decided to run through their "lines" while dressing. To their consternation they found they could not remember the "gags" with which the humorous part of the play had always been enriched. In despair, they appealed to the dresser, an old servant of the theatre, who promptly responded: "Send for the pot-boy at the Bedford Head." The pot-boy, it appeared, had been in the habit of amusing the customers at the hostelry by imitations of Wright and Bedford, and knew the play by heart. He was sent for and "saved" the situation.

"PAUL BEDFORD, I remember," says Mrs. Billington, "had a rooted aversion to traps, stage bridges, ladders, anything that necessitated his leaving the firm level of the stage. When we were rehearsing Rip van Winkle, he, as Nick Nedder, had to make his entrance by a flight of steps. Instead, he exclaimed to Mr. Jefferson: 'Jeff, dear boy, are there any back doors to the houses in your country?' and when Jefferson replied in the affirmative, he said: "Ain't I the landlord of this place? Then I shall come in by the back door.' And so he did."

She Saw Macready.

"HAVE I ever seen Macready?" said Mrs. Billington. "Oh, yes, in my salad days I had that great privilege. Indeed, I was deputed as a gaily-dressed page to throw open the centre doors at the York Theatre, and announce, 'His Eminence the Cardinal Duke of Richelieu!' I duly performed the first part of my task; threw open the doors; but as to the second—not a sound issued from my lips. When I beheld the brilliant house, with every corner filled, I was struck dumb. In a moment I was ignominiously seized by my grand tunic and completely withdrawn, while another young actress went forward and made the announcement. What I had to endure afterwards in the way of raillery and mock congratulations on the success of my first appearance! No matter. I saw Macready play Richelieu, and what a performance it was. It has never left my memory, and never will."

Juliet in a Predicament.

"WHILE playing Juliet to Miss Cushman's Romeo," said Mrs. Billington, "I had rather a narrow escape. In Miss Cushman's arrangement of the tragedy a front scene, which is generally omitted, was retained, and, I think, wisely. The scene draws off and discovers Juliet dead on the couch. I, quite forgetting this portion of my part, had mounted three flights of stairs to my dressing room and was seated in front of a mirror adding the pallor of death to my face, when I heard the loud call for 'Miss Mortimer, the stage waits!' Suddenly recollecting myself, I darted down the stairs and took my appointed place, the carpenters—good, honest fellows—refusing to draw until I was recumbent. My efforts to conceal my agitated panting were unspeakably painful. But Miss Cushman, who might well have been angry with me, soothed and quieted me, and kept the note of the scene in accord. The audience never suspected the least disturbance on the part of either of us."

Such a Boy.

"MY first stage appearance of importance," Mrs. Billington recalled, "was with that excellent actor, Charles Dillon. In his company I appeared as the Fool in King Lear, the Boy in Belphegor, and also as the son in William Tell. An amusing incident occurred in the course of this last performance. A sudden change had been made in the company, and Dillon had engaged a lady he had never seen, and he told me I must appear as Emma, Tell's wife, while the newcomer was cast for the part of the Boy. I did not much relish the change, but, of course, had no alternative. A rehearsal was called, at which Dillon, who, of course, was acting Tell, was not present, for he was culpably careless in such matters. When, at night, obedient to the call, the new Boy came on, to Dillon's horror, she was a short and fat person, as unboylike in appearance as possible. I was rather slim, and perceptibly the lady's junior. Every time Dillon looked at her, and she had a positive fascination for him, he muttered words that were not in the text, emphasising them with looks that made him a William Tell of unspeakable ferocity. When in the play I had to exclaim, 'William, oh, William, to be the parents of a boy like that!' the house roared with laughter. At the next performance I was reinstated in the character of the Boy."

Wright as the Weaver.

"I REMEMBER Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, with the Princess Victoria, then just married to the Crown Prince of Germany, being present at a performance when the Haymarket company gave The Rivals and the Adelphi company The Spitalfields Weaver. When the curtain drew up for the farce a dozen beefeaters—it was a State performance—lined each side of the stage down to the footlights. Wright, who was acting the Weaver, and was in his best form, having walked into the drawing-room with his hat—white and of very provincial build—asked his friend Brown where he was to put it; and then, without waiting for a reply, walked over to a beefeater and offered to hang it on his halberd. If the beefeater had rehearsed the part he could not have played better. He shrank back in evident alarm, feeling his dignity as a beefeater at stake. The Queen, who was leaning out of the box, laughed most heartily at the little incident."

Mr. Goodwin's Wives.

Nat Goodwin is writing some personal recollections, which he has entitled "Why Four Beautiful Women Married Me." "No self-respecting American citizen," he says, "should take advantage of the unwritten law. If a man steals your wife, don't kill him; caution him." Mr. Goodwin's first wife was Eliza Weatherby, an English actress, now dead. Nat Goodwin describes her as an angel, and adds, "she was one of the most beautiful women I ever knew, and one of the most self-sacrificing wives that ever blessed a man with her devotion and love. Now she is at Wood Lawn, and the daisies grow over her grave."

An Appreciated Husband.

MR. GOODWIN says that Nellie Baker Pease, his second wife, married him "to get out of the maelstrom of society and into the artistic life of Bohemia." To Miss Maxine Elliott, his third wife, Mr. Goodwin devotes a long chapter. He says of her:—"Hers was the ambition of Cleopatra. She used me as a ladder to reach her goal, and found her crowning glory in the blinding glare of the myriad incandescent lights that spelled her name over the portals of the New York theatres. She was one of the cleverest women I ever met."

ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.

THRIFT AMONG ACTORS.

The annual meeting of the Royal General Theatrical Fund was held in the cosy saloon of Terry's Theatre last Tuesday afternoon. The "call" was for one o'clock, and very shortly after that hour Mr. Edward Terry had been voted to and had taken the chair.

A business-like air pervaded the meeting, which lasted just under one hour. Among those present were Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Lionel Rignold, Miss Nellie Christie, Miss E. H. Willing, Mr. George Weathersby, Miss Marie Rignold, Miss Emily Hewett, Mr. Ralph Hutton, Miss Kate James, Miss Lilian Dacroy, Miss Ada Palmer, Miss E. Malyon, Mr. Douglas Gordon, Mr. Dillon Croker, Mr. H. Evill, Mr. Chas. Rock, Mr. Arthur Curtis, Mr. A. H. Elliott, Mr. A. G. Warren, Mr. Frank Wood, Mr. Alfred B. Tapping, Mr. Bassett Roe, Miss Agnes Imley, Miss Stella Leigh, and the acting hon. secretary, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks.

Mr. EDWARD TERRY, in his opening remarks, said that once again he had pleasure in congratulating the subscribers on the results of the year's work. Their stewardship had been carried out in the proper way, which made the Fund one of the most prosperous that ever existed in connection with their profession. Unfortunately, they had deeply to deplore the very great loss sustained by them in the death of their very dear friend Mr. Charles Davies, who for over thirty-one years served them honourably and faithfully, and assisted to bring the Fund to the grand position it enjoyed at the present time. They were grateful to Mr. Charles Cruikshanks for so readily coming to their assistance as secretary pro tem. Unfortunately, Mr. Charles Davis was not the only one whose loss they were called upon to mourn. There were besides Mrs. Mellon, Mrs. Ewell, and Mr. Robb Harwood, whose loss they had to deplore. There had been a large accession of young members to the Fund, and he was sure that when the younger members of the profession considered the wonderful advantages that their Fund conferred they should be only too anxious to join. It was one of the finest insurances that any actor or actress could go in for. As would be seen from the balance-sheet, the Fund was conducted on admirable principles. There could be no question that subscribers had received full value for their subscriptions, and greater value than from any other institution of a similar character which existed. He was glad to announce that Mr. Martin Harvey had agreed to take the chair at the annual general dinner, the date of which had yet to be fixed. The Council would decide the question as to the function being held on a Sunday or on a week-day. He hoped that dinner would be a great financial success. (Cheers.)

March 19, 1910.

Miss EMILY HEWETT proposed, and Miss E. MALYON seconded, the adoption of the balance-sheet, which was agreed to. The following were re-elected and elected directors:—Messrs. Lionel Rignold, H. Evill, H. J. Loveday, H. Cooper Cliffe, F. Percival Stevens, Tom Craven, Charles K. Cooper, Robert Courtneidge, Edmund Gwenn, and Arthur Curtis. The honorary treasurer (Mr. Terry) was re-elected, on the proposal of Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, seconded by Dr. PERCY MIDDLEMIST. Sir William Allchin, M.D., Dr. R. Percy Middlemist, and Dr. Alfred Lanton Whitehouse were re-elected to the medical staff. The standing counsel (Mr. John Strachan, K.C., and Mr. Ernest De Witt) were re-elected; Mr. Theodore Lumley was re-elected honorary solicitor; Mr. A. G. Warren, honorary accountant and auditor; Mr. Walter J. Ebbetts, honorary architect and surveyor; and Mr. H. Harlem and Mr. Ralph Hutton, auditors.

Mr. A. H. ELLIOTT proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Terry for the use of the theatre for the meetings.

Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, in seconding, said that it had been suggested that it might be possible now to remove a little rule which made it impossible for any of their members to take at a certain age the money which would come to them in adversity, but which they could not touch even in moderate prosperity. Young people had said to him, "Why should I save my money in this manner, when I can get such great advantages now from an insurance company, and be perfectly certain that when I attain the age at which I wish to rest I shall get an annuity, which I cannot get from this Fund if I am in possession of more than £250 a year?" He was sure that Mr. Lumley, who had been a great friend to them, would take the trouble to inquire whether, on a perfectly sound financial basis, it would be possible to remove this restriction, because, when it was removed, he believed that the Fund would obtain a great many new members. It seemed hard that people who had been prudent in saving a little in the early part of their career, and moderately successful, should not be able to take the money which they would get if they insured in an ordinary insurance company.

Mr. TERRY agreed with every word Mr. Alexander had said. It was entirely a matter of finance. In the old days the restrictions of the Fund were very heavy, arduous, and cruel, but year by year they had been able to make them better. It did seem anomalous that a subscriber entitled to an annuity at the age of sixty should be barred from taking it because he happened to be thrifty, and if the restriction could be done away with, no one would be more delighted than the honorary treasurer. This matter would be considered at the earliest possible moment, and as soon as they arrived at something tangible they would be delighted to abolish the very unpleasant restriction. (Cheers.)

STAGE SOCIETY MATINEE,

Th three pieces by Felix Salten, translations of which were performed for the first time in England, by the Stage Society at the Shaftesbury Theatre on Monday afternoon, bear the stamp of a practised playwright, and are all distinguished by a somewhat gloomy irony. The first, which was translated by an anonymous member of the Stage Society, is entitled

"COUNT FESTENBERG."

Count Ludwig Laurentin..MR. DOUGLAS GORDON
Count Max Festenberg
MR. E. HARCOURT WILLIAMS
Neumeier .....MR. E. H. BROOKE
Countess Helene Festenberg..MISS HELEN HAYE
Aristides .....MR. LEON QUARTERMAINE
An Official .....MR. REGINALD DANE

The notion of this little play is that a waiter has managed to pass himself off as Count Max Festenberg, and has married Helene, the niece of Count Ludwig Laurentin. The imposture is exposed by the Count's son, Aristides. Then the waiter says in his defence that he has the soul of a count, and has been able to act up to the character he has assumed. In proof, he alleges the affection that is felt for him by his wife, who has never detected the deceit he has practised. Mr. E. Harcourt Williams gave a capital performance as the impostor, with whom it is impossible not to feel a certain sympathy; Mr. Leon Quartermaine was excellent as the accusing cousin; and that charming and clever young actress, Miss Helen Haye, gave a very agreeable representation of the Countess Helene Festenberg; Mr. Douglas Gordon being good as Count Ludwig Laurentin. The second item, which was translated by Mr. Hugh de Selincourt, was a gruesome but spirited drama in miniature, entitled

"LIFE'S IMPORTANCE."

Manservant .....MR. ALFRED BRISTOWE
Emilie .....MISS GWLADYS MORRIS
Dr. Konrad Hopfner ....MR. CLIFTON ALDERSON
Hugo .....MR. CHARLES QUARTERMAINE

The effect is created in this by the antagonism of two characters, a self-indulgent young gentleman and a pushing, canting man of the people, who, by the assistance of Hugo's family, has raised himself to a respectable position as a doctor. Hugo comes to Hopfner to consult him about certain symptoms, and the doctor, after making an examination, tells Hugo, with spiteful and brutal frankness, that he has only six months to live. The young man breaks down at the idea of death, and Hopfner reproaches him for his moral cowardice, whereupon Hugo pulls out a revolver, and tells the doctor that he—Hugo—is going to shoot him in a quarter of an hour. Put to the test, all Hopfner's self complacent boastings are futile. He first remonstrates, then blusters, then bursts into a paroxysm of hatred, and finally, as the quarter of an hour expires, falls in a fainting fit, Hugo lighting a cigarette and walking out, satisfied with the utter collapse of his self-righteous enemy. The piece was played more than adequately. Mr. Charles Quartermaine's keen, nervous, and acute method suited the part of Hugo admirably, and his depiction of anguish at the prospect of death was very powerful. Mr. Clifton Alderson suggested skilfully the pompous hypocrisy of Dr. Konrad Hopfner, and was excellently made up. Miss Gwladys Morris was quite acceptable in the small part of the wife; and Mr. Alfred Bristowe was good as an old man-servant. The last item on the programme was a one-act play stage-managed by Mr. Val Cuthbert, and translated by a member of the Council, entitled

"THE RETURN."

Lotti .....MISS EVELYN KIRKBY
Marie .....MISS MARGARET BUSSE
Eduard Koberwein .....MR. PHILIP LESLIE
Servant .....MR. REGINALD DANE
Konstantin Trubner ....MR. ARTHUR WONTNER
Leopold Schenk .....MR. NORMAN PAGE
Daisy Leblanc .....MISS AIMEE DE BURGH

The humour of this piece was grim, but keen. Konstantin Trubner, a rich, philosophic individual, being, as he thinks, on the point of death, has sent for an "old flame" of his named Marie, and married her, on what he believes to be his death-bed, in order to legitimise their child Lotti. As he has neglected Marie for three years, she has been living with a piano-teacher named Leopold Schenk, to whom Lotti has become attached. Konstantin unexpectedly recovers, and matters are at a deadlock. His present mistress Daisy Leblanc turns up, and he realises her heartlessness; but having made his will leaving legacies to her and to Marie, Konstantin decides to take the course nearest to dying, and departs for abroad. The acting extracted to the full the meaning of the play. Mr. Arthur Wontner was excellent as the quiet, composed, "superior" Konstantin Trubner, and a clever character sketch of the perky, comical little piano-teacher was supplied by Mr. Norman Page. Miss Margaret Bussé hit off cleverly the mild, well-meaning Marie; and Miss Aimée de Burgh looked pretty and acted with vivacity as Daisy Leblanc. Mr. Philip Leslie was brisk and smooth as the well-groomed Eduard Koberwein, and little Miss Evelyn Kirkby showed intelligence as Lotti.

"THE LAW OF MUSICAL COPYRIGHT." By Albert A. Strong, LL.B., Lond. Price 1s., post free 1s. 1d. Address, THE PUBLISHER, "The Era" Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

PLAYGOERS' CLUB DINNER.

The twenty-sixth annual dinner of the Playgoers' Club was given last Sunday night at the Hotel Cecil. The chair was occupied by the president of the club, Mr. MARSHALL HALL, K.C., M.P. There were about 350 people present; amongst them were Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird, Mr. Justice Darling, Mr. Henry Ainley, Miss Suzanne Sheldon, Mr. Comyns Carr, Mr. W. Pett Ridge, Mr. Austin Brereton, the Hon. Charles Russell, Mr. A. E. W. Mason, and Mme. Alice Esty.

The CHAIRMAN, in submitting the toast of "The Drama," said that people sometimes talked of the morality of the drama, but that, after all, morality was principally a question of clothes and geography. The drama, he said, was very different now from what it used to be; at one time the curtain invariably came down just as the hero and heroine were going to begin real life; now, as a rule, it comes down on a suicide or murder, or something of that sort. In referring to the drama of 1909-10, Mr. Hall said we had had drama of the drawing-room, of the servants' hall, of the nursery (the Blue Bird), of the Law Courts (Justice, in which there was probably the finest piece of stage-work that the year has produced—terrible in its reality, minute in the correctness of its detail). He thought that the production of a play like Justice marked a fresh era in the drama. With the toast, said Mr. Hall, he had to couple the names of Mr. H. B. Irving and Mr. Comyns Carr. Mr. Irving was one of those who, in company with others, such as Compton, Brough, Sothern, and Kemble, could form an hereditary house of acting. Mr. Hall proceeded to trace Mr. Irving's career from the time of his first appearance on the stage in Pickwick to his present fine performance in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Mr. Hall also referred to Mr. Irving's literary works, his "Life of Judge Jeffries" and "Studies of French Criminals," and mentioned the interesting papers on criminology which he had heard Mr. Irving read.

Mr. H. B. IRVING, in responding, said: A great many things are being said about the drama at the present time. There is the view that the drama has perfectly gone, and there are some who say that there is no drama save in France. Again, there are people who will tell you of wonderful old plays which might be performed if only there was somebody to act them. The drama at the present moment is in a very active condition—some people might say almost morbid activity—men of ability and genius are giving us drama of which we may be very proud; the English theatre has never been more active than it is at the present moment. We must not forget, however, that we have a drama of the past as well as of the present. A very important movement of the moment is represented by the festival which is about to be held at His Majesty's Theatre in honour of Shakespeare—an achievement of which the English theatre may very well be proud. Under the presidency of Sir Herbert Tree a number of artists have gathered together to pay tribute to the memory of Shakespeare. We must be proud of this movement, not only as a celebration of the moment, but because it marks a step towards that ideal of a National theatre to which so many of us look. I believe that if a National theatre comes it will come by a modest beginning and by the efforts of those whose lives have been spent in the theatre, to give the public something which will be full of promise for the National theatre in the future. I know there is another scheme with which I have every sympathy, as my father had before me, and which if realised will provide a National theatre as a noble monument to Shakespeare; but I must earnestly ask those interested in this scheme to consider if in all that is going to be done in the next few weeks we have not got the nucleus of this scheme. We have here a scheme, which is commencing from within, which so far as we can see will pay its own way, and which seems to me a more satisfactory way than by beginning by asking for a large sum of money—my father put it at a million, and I agree with him—in order to found a National theatre. It was from a very small beginning that the great National theatre of France began. All we have to consider is the best means to the end which I believe we all wish to see.

Mr. COMYNS CARR, whose name had been coupled with Mr. Irving's, said that he cordially echoed all that Mr. Irving had said. He felt that the movement was a most important one, and that the project which was about to take shape at His Majesty's was a noble beginning of a scheme which they all had at heart. It had been his privilege for many years to be associated with Mr. H. B. Irving's father, and he knew at what sacrifices Sir Henry Irving had held aloft the banner of the nobler drama; he knew also what sacrifices had been made by his old friend, Sir Herbert Tree, to sustain the tradition of great drama. He thought it was neglect, verging on crime, that Shakespeare should have remained until now without and monument—with the exception of one poor statue in Leicester-square—in the capital of the country which owned him.

The toast of "The Visitors" was proposed by Mr. PETT RIDGE, who, in a humorous speech, said for years we had been asking for live drama, with the result that at the present moment one could not book a reserved seat at a West-end theatre for three weeks to see a piece called The Bad Girl of the Family. Mr. Ridge supposed that Rostand's wonderful drama Chantecler was not to be seen in an English theatre because the Censor objected to its "fowl" language. He further suggested that as the Bar and the Stage seemed to be so closely allied that at the next opportunity Mr. A. E. W. Mason, president of the O.P. Club, and Mr. Marshall Hall, president of the Playgoers' Club, should be cast for the first and second grave-digger so that they might "bury the hatchet."

Mr. Justice DARLING, in responding for "The Visitors," said that it seemed odd to him that a club should be formed to compel people to go to the theatre. He knew of no club to compel people to go to the races or to church. He learned from Mr. Irving and from Mr. Carr that there was a design to establish a State theatre in honour of Shakespeare. Mr. Irving had spoken of himself as a "backwoodsman" in that hereditary chamber to which their chairman had alluded whilst proposing "The Drama." That was the phrase which Liberal newspapers applied towards members of the House of Lords who had serious convictions. If, therefore, Mr. Irving would make use of his position to introduce into the House of Lords a Bill for the founding and endowment of a National Theatre, and would introduce it in such terms that it would be rejected, it would be immediately taken up by the Government, a whole campaign would be inaugurated in its honour, and it would pass into law against the assent of the Peers. Nor would it be necessary to ask for funds, because the Government had so much money that they could do without the taxes which the people wished to pay over to them.

Mr. CHARLES E. B. KIBBLEWHITE, the popular vice-president, responded to the toast of "The Club," and a very agreeable musical entertainment which was given was contributed to by Miss Melanie Castelle, Miss Ada Colley, Mme. Alice Esty, Mr. Tom Clare, Mr. Harrison Latimer, Mr. Ernest Pike, Miss Elsie English, Miss Ruby Wilson, Mr. Hubert Connorton, Mr. J. E. Fraser, and Mr. Wilson James. Mr. W. Mansell Stevens was the accompanist. Mr. Alfred Haya's "Red Band," conducted by Mr. Thomas Batty, played selections during the dinner, which was excellently served.

"SCENE PAINTERS OF THE PAST." By George Tweddell. Price 6d. Address: The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

MRS. SIDDONS AND THE PLAYWRIGHT.

Messrs. Gibbings and Co. have published as a volume of the "Eminent Women" series, edited by Mr. John H. Ingram, Mrs. A. Kennard's biography of Mrs. Siddons. The great actress has been much written about of late; but one of the incidents of her career may not be familiar to all our readers—i.e., her dealings with a certain Mr. Pratt, a dramatist. This Mr. Pratt was a Bath bookseller and dramatist, much admired by his townsmen. This admiration was not shared by the managers of Drury Lane, who would not allow Mrs. Siddons to act in his drama the first year she appeared. She had already sacrificed herself to a failure, The Fatal Interview, which had really injured her professional reputation. Pratt maintained, however, she might have done him this service had she been so minded. She herself writes kindly of the aspirant to fame, but we can see his cause of irritation.

"Your letter," she writes in 1783 to Dr. Whalley, "to poor Pratty is lying on the table by me, and I am selfish enough to grudge it him from the bottom of my heart, and yet I will not; for just now, poor soul, he wants much comfort; therefore, let him take it, and God bless him with it!"

And again:—

"The Fatal Interview has been played three times, and is quite done with; it was the dullest of all representations. Pratty's Epilogue was vastly applauded indeed. I shall take care how I get into such another play; but I fancy the managers will take care of that, too. They won't let me play in Pratty's comedy."

All this shows us how often she was the victim of undeserved resentment on the part of slighted authors, and how, very often, the fact of doing a kindness got her into trouble. She had accepted The Fatal Interview, and now Pratt thought himself aggrieved that she would not do the same for him. Most likely at any other time she would have shrugged her shoulders at Pratt's machinations, but everything now hurt her wounded sensibilities.

"I must beg you will not mention (I believe I am giving an unnecessary caution) anything I have told you concerning Mr. Pratt. I would not wish him to know, by any means, that I have been informed of his last unkindness, because it might prevent his asking me to do him a favour, which I shall be at all times ready to grant, when in my power. I must tell you that after the very unkind letter he sent me, in answer to mine requesting the ten pounds, I never wrote to or heard from him until about three months ago, when he wrote to me as if he had never offered such an indignity, recommending a work he had just finished to my attention. He did not tell me what this work was, but I had heard it was a tragedy. To be made a convenient acquaintance only, did not much gratify me; but, however, I wrote to say he knew the resolution I had been obliged to make (having made many enemies by reading some, and not being able to give time to read all tragedies) to read nobody's tragedy, and then no one could take offence; but that if it were accepted by the managers, and there was anything that I could be of service to him in (doing justice to myself), that I should be very happy to serve him. I have heard nothing of him since that time till within these few days, when he wrote to my sister Fanny, accusing me of ingratitude, and calling himself the ladder upon which I have mounted to fame, and which I am kicking down.

"What he means by ingratitude I am at a loss to guess, and I fancy he would be puzzled to explain; our obligations were always, I believe, pretty mutual. However, in this letter to Fanny, he says he is going to publish a poem called 'Gratitude,' in which he means to show my avarice and meanness, and all the rest of my amiable qualities to the world, for having dropped him, as he calls it, so injuriously, and banishing him my house. Now, as I hope for mercy, I permitted his visits at my house, after having discovered that he was taking every possible method to attach my sister to him, which, you may be sure, he took pains to conceal from us, and I had him to my parties long after I made this discovery.

"In short, till he chose to write this letter, which I disdained to reply to, he called as usual. He had the modesty to desist from calling on us from that time, and now has the goodness to throw this unmerited obloquy on me. I am so well convinced that a very plain tale will put him down, that his intentions give me very little concern. I am only grieved to see such daily instances of folly and wickedness in human nature.

"It is worth observing, too, that at the very time he chose to write this agreeable letter, I was using my best influences with Mr. Siddons to lend him the money I told you of before. I find he thinks it is not very prudent to quarrel with me, but has the effrontery to think that I should make advances toward our reconcilement; but I will die first. 'My towering virtue, from the assurance of my merit, scorns to stoop so low.' If he should come round of himself (for I have learnt that best of knowledge to forgive) I will, out of respect for what I believe he once was, be of what service I can to him, for I believe he meant well at one time, when I knew him first, and the noblest vengeance is the most complete. Once more, your fingers on your lips, I pray."

We should like to see less mention of benefits bestowed, the ten pounds not mentioned; but this letter is a good specimen of the manner in which she was worried by applicants, and shows how impossible it was for her to satisfy them all.

The next is a regular eighteenth-century four-pager, but is so characteristic, and so sincere and full of affection, that we cannot help quoting it at the end of this chapter, as the best assurance of her possession of that heart her enemies declared she did not possess.

"Mrs. Wapshawe has been so good as to bestow half an hour upon me. She speaks of you as I should speak of you—as if she could not find words, and as if her sentiments could not enough honour you both. If you could look into the hearts of people, trust me, my beloved and everlamented friends, you would be convinced that mine yearns after you with increasing and unutterable affection. See there now—how have I expressed myself? That is always the way with me: when I speak or write to you, it is always so inadequately, that I don't do justice to myself; for I thank God that I have a soul capable of loving you, and trust I shall find an advocate in your bosom to assist my inability and simpleness. You know me of old for a matter-of-fact woman.

"Mrs. Wapshawe has revived my hopes. She tells me that you will return sooner than I hoped. Now I'll begin my cottage again. It has been lying in heaps a great while, and I have shed many tears over the ruins; but we will build it up again in joy. You know the spot that I have fixed upon, and I trust I have not forgotten the plan!

"Oh! what a reward for all that I have suffered, to retire to the blessings of your society; for, indeed, my dear friends, I have paid severely for my eminence, and have smarted with the undeserved pain that should attend the guilty only; but it is the fate of office, and the rough brake that virtue must go through; and sweet, 'sweet are the uses of adversity.' I kiss the rod.

"Mrs. Wapshawe was quite delighted with Mr. Beach's picture of you; but she tells me that you wear coloured clothes and lace ruffles; and I valued my picture more, if possible, for standing the test of such a change as these (to me unusual) ornaments must necessarily make in you. I think I shall long to strip you of these trappings."

KEAN AS IAGO.

Hazlitt's criticism of Kean's Iago is so characteristic of the great critic's style that we reproduce an extract from an essay which is always readable and interesting. Says Hazlitt: "We certainly think Mr. Kean's performance of the part of Iago one of the most extraordinary exhibitions on the stage. There is no one within our remembrance who has so completely foiled the critics as this celebrated actor. One sagacious person imagines that he must perform a part in a certain manner; another virtuoso chalks out a different path for him; and when the time comes, he does the whole off in a way that neither of them had the least conception of, and which both of them are therefore very ready to condemn as entirely wrong. It was ever the trick of genius to be thus. We confess that Mr. Kean has thrown us out more than once. For instance, we are very much inclined to adopt the opinion of a contemporary critic, that his Richard is not gay enough, and that his Iago is not grave enough. This he may perhaps conceive to be the mere caprice of idle criticism; but we will try to give our reasons, and shall leave them to Mr. Kean's better judgment. It is to be remembered, then, that Richard was a princely villain, borne along in a sort of triumphal car of royal state, buoyed up with the hopes and privileges of his birth, reposing even on the sanctity of religion, trampling on his devoted victims without remorse, and who looked out and laughed from the high watch-tower of his confidence and his expectations on the desolation and misery he had caused around him. He held on his way, unquestioned, 'hedged in with the divinity of kings,' amenable to no tribunal, and abusing his power in contempt of mankind. But as for Iago, we conceive differently of him. He had not the same natural advantages. He was a mere adventurer in mischief—a painstaking, plodding knave, without patent or pedigree, who was obliged to work his uphill way by wit, not by will, and to be the founder of his own fortune. He was, if we may be allowed a vulgar allusion, a sort of prototype of modern Jacobinism, who thought that talents ought to decide the place—a man of 'morbid sensibility' (in the fashionable phrase), full of distrust, of hatred, of anxious and corroding thoughts, and who, though he might assume a temporary superiority over others by superior adroitness, and pride himself in his skill, could not be supposed to assume it as a matter of course, as if he had been entitled to it from his birth. We do not here mean to enter into the characters of the two men, but something must be allowed to the difference of their situations. There might be the same insensibility in both as to the end in view, but there could not well be the same security as to the success of the means. Iago had to pass through a different ordeal: he had no appliances and means to boot—no royal road to the completion of his tragedy. His pretensions were not backed by authority; they were baptised at the font; they were not holy-water-proof. He had the whole to answer for in his own person, and could not shift the responsibility to the heads of others. Mr. Kean's Richard was therefore, we think, deficient in something of that regal jollity and reeling triumph of success which the part would bear; but this we can easily account for, because it is the traditional commonplace idea of the character, that he is to 'play the dog—to bite and snarl.' The extreme unconcern and laboured levity of his Iago, on the contrary, is a refinement and original device of the actor's own mind, and therefore deserves consideration. The character of Iago, in fact, belongs to a class of characters common to Shakespeare, and at the same time peculiar to him—namely, that of great intellectual activity, accompanied with a total want of moral principle, and therefore displaying itself at the constant expense of others, making use of reason as a pander to will, employing its ingenuity and its resources to palliate its own crimes and aggravate the faults of others, and seeking to confound the practical distinctions of right and wrong by referring them to some overstrained standard of speculative refinement. Some persons, more nice than wise, have thought the whole of the character of Iago unnatural. Shakespeare, who was quite as good a philosopher as he was a poet, thought otherwise. He knew that the love of power, which is another name for the love of mischief, was natural to man. He would know this as well or better than if it had been demonstrated to him by a logical diagram, merely from seeing children paddle in the dirt, or kill flies for sport. We might ask those who think the character of Iago not natural, why they go to see it performed, but from the interest it excites, the sharper edge which it sets on their curiosity and imagination? Why do we go to see tragedies in general, why do we always read the accounts in the newspapers of dreadful fires and shocking murders, but for the same reason? Why do so many persons frequent executions and trials, or why do the lower classes almost universally take delight in barbarous sports and cruelty to animals, but because there is a natural tendency in the mind to strong excitement, a desire to have its faculties roused and stimulated to the utmost? Whenever this principle is not under the restraint of humanity or the sense of moral obligation, there are no excesses to which it will not of itself give rise, without the assistance of any other motive, either of passion or self-interest. Iago is only an extreme instance of the kind—that is, of diseased intellectual activity, with an almost perfect indifference to moral good or evil, or rather with a preference for the latter, because it falls more in with his favourite propensity, gives greater zest to his thoughts, and scope to his actions. Be it observed, too (for the sake of those who are for squaring all human actions by the maxims of Rochefoucault), that he is quite or nearly as indifferent to his own fate as to that of others; that he runs all risks for a trifling and doubtful advantage; and is himself the dupe and victim of his ruling passion—an incorrigible love of mischief, an insatiable craving after action of the most difficult and dangerous kind. Our 'ancient' is a philosopher, who fancies that a lie that kills has more point in it than an alliteration or an antithesis; who thinks a fatal experiment on the peace of a family a better thing than watching the palpitations in the heart of a flea in an air-pump; who plots the ruin of his friends as an exercise for his understanding, and stabs men in the dark to prevent ennui. Nov this, though it be sport, yet it is dreadful sport. There is no room for trifling and indifference, nor scarcely for the appearance of it; the very object of his whole plot is to keep his faculties stretched on the rack, in a state of watch and ward, in a sort of breathless suspense, without a moment's interval of repose. He has a desperate stake to play for, like a man who fences with poisoned weapons, and has business enough on his hands to call for the whole stock of his sober circumspection, his dark duplicity, and insidious gravity. He resembles a man who sits down to play at chess for the sake of the difficulty and complication of the game, and who immediately becomes absorbed in it. His amusements, if they are amusements, are severe and saturnine—even his wit blisters. His gaiety arises from the success of his treachery; his ease from the sense of the torture he has inflicted on others. Even, if other circumstances permitted it, the part he has to play with Othello requires that he should assume the most serious concern, and something of the plausibility of a confessor."

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer." By Albert A. Strong, LL.B., Lond. Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d. Address; The Publisher, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

At the meeting of the Actors' Association, held on Tuesday, March 22, at 32, Regent-street, were present Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Cyril Cattley, Robson Paige, F. H. De Quincey, R. A. Green, C. F. Collings, L. Reed, H. Le Grand, Miss B. Chester, Murri Moncrieff, Miss Cazalet, Miss Spencer, Miss J. Pereira, and Mr. D. Young (secretary). The secretary read letters from J. H. Mote and Sons, Baroness St. Eon, F. E. Washburn Freund, W. H. Clemart, and Miss Una Gilbert, and received instructions as to replies.

Mr. Green proposed that a special committee be appointed to draw up a memorial for the approval of the Council for presentation to the Board of Trade, and, after discussion, Mr. Cattley moved as an amendment, seconded by Mr. L. Reed, that before a committee be formed, Mr. W. Freund's letter be sent to Mr. Vedrenne for his opinion, and a request made to him to be good enough to arrange with his committee to combine in attempting to secure some legislation re bogus management. On being put to the vote the amendment was carried.

In reply to Mr. Clemart's letter re sketch artists' gratuitous performances, the secretary was directed to thank Mr. Clemart for his letter, and to say that the Council would be very glad to hear the opinion of his committee, so that action might be undertaken as soon as possible.

With reference to a complaint re the insanitary condition of a theatre, corroborative evidence having been forthcoming, the secretary was directed on the motion of Mr. Green, seconded by Mr. Reed, to write to the sanitary authorities of the town mentioned, drawing attention to the complaints made, and urging the necessity for immediate attention.

Re Hilton fiasco. The hon. solicitor reported result of inquiries made by him at Somerset House with reference to Cleodan, Ltd., and received further instructions. It was proposed by Mr. Green, seconded by Mr. Cattley, and carried unanimously, that in view of the information given by the solicitor re above company, counsel's opinion be taken upon a point of law, and the solicitor was instructed to obtain the said opinion and report as soon as possible.

Re the licensing of agents, the secretary was directed to write to the Clerk of the Council of the L.C.C., stating that the Association would like to be represented when this matter came up for discussion. With regard to agency fee Mr. Derwent said that as soon as the Finance Committee reported it was advisable, he would suggest a reduction of the amount of the agency fee, and after discussion this matter was allowed to remain in abeyance.

Miss Agnes Hewitt was elected a member, Mr. Spencer Trevor was reinstated, and Mr. H. L. Lynhurst, Mr. C. W. Carlton Crowe, Mr. Myfanwy Newell, Miss Florence Radcliffe, Mr. P. Wheeler, Mr. Charles Graham, Mr. Alick F. Thompson, and Mr. Chas. Boulting were nominated.

ACTORS' RESIDENCES.

Mr. Dillon Croker, in that old and interesting work, "A Walk from London to Fulham," revised from materials bequeathed by his father, the late Thomas Crofton Croker, gave many interesting notes of the western suburb of London, marking the residences of those connected with the dramatic profession. He recorded that for several years John Braham lived at Brompton Grange, near St. Michael's Grove, Brompton. John Baldwin Buckstone lived at No. 6, Brompton-square; and at No. 14 resided Mr. Edward Fitzwilliam, the clever musical composer, who died at the early age of thirty-three, on Jan. 19, 1857. At 21, in the square, lived Spagnoletti, the once famous leader of the Italian Opera, between 1829 and 1833; and he was succeeded in his tenancy by Mrs. Chatterly, a lively and accomplished actress, who occupied the same house some time after her marriage with Mr. Francis Place. At No. 22, Brompton-square, lived, for ten years, George Colman, the dramatist, and here he died at the age of seventy-four, Oct. 26, 1836. The house afterwards belonged to Mr. James Vining. Liston resided at 40, Brompton-square; Yates and John Reeve at 57 and 58; and Mr. and Mrs. Keeley at No. 19. Charles Incledon lived at 13, Brompton-crescent, and George Herbert Rodwell (in 1830) at 15, Brompton-crescent. Yates, the Adelphi manager, lived at 21, Michael's-place; and at 22, Michael's-place, lived and died Mrs. Davenport, the best representative of old women the stage ever possessed. She expired on May 8, 1843, aged 84, having retired thirteen years previously from the stage of Covent Gardon Theatre, where she had been for thirty-six consecutive seasons. Mme. Grisi and her husband, Signor Mario, lived at a house called "Percy Cross," Waltham Green, previously the residence of Lord Ravensworth. At Brompton Park—long since absorbed in Exhibition-road and Prince Albert's-road—resided Mr. Benjamin Webster and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mathews (Mme. Vestris), the latter transferring the name of their villa, "Gore Lodge," to a charming house they afterwards took at Fulham. Mrs. Nisbett (Lady Boothby) lived at North End, Fulham. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wigan occupied for several years the house 21, Hans-place, Chelsea, a spot peculiarly associated with the memory of Miss L. E. Landon, most charming of poetesses. In 1829 we find John Braham, the great tenor, living at 69, Baker-street, Portman-square; John Pritt Harley at 91, Great Russell-street, Bedford-square; Edmund Kean at 12, Clarges-street, Piccadilly; William Charles Macready at 37, Weymouth-street, Portland-place; James Wallack at 37, Alfred Place, Bedford-square; Charles Young at 41, Wigmore-street; William Farren at 23, Brompton-square. In those days, as in the time of Garrick, Southampton-street, Strand, and its adjacent thoroughfares, were thickly tenanted by theatrical folk. Charles Kemble lived at 16, James-street, Buckingham Gate; Charles Farley, the great inventor of pantomimes and melodramatic spectacles, at 3, Hart-street, Bloomsbury; William Blanchard, the comedian, 17, Gower-street, Bedford-square; John Cooper, 37, Alfred-place, Bedford-square; Mme Vestris, 4, Grove-road, St. John's Wood; Miss Foote (afterwards Countess of Harrington), 34, Keppel-street; and Miss Stephens (afterwards Countess of Essex), 1, Connaught-terrace, Edgware-road. The Surrey actors of that period naturally had their habitations on the south side of the Thames. The great Robert William Elliston then lived at 1, Great Surrey-street; David William Osbaldiston at Gray's-walk, Lambeth; Sam Vale, in Bouverie-street, Fleet-street; Master Russell, afterwards the celebrated Henry Russell, at 18, Newcastle-street, Strand; Miss Graddon, the vocalist, lived at 4, Gower-street, Bedford-square; and Mr. and Mrs. Fitzwilliam at Manchester Buildings, Westminster. Davidge, of the Coburg, and afterwards manager of the Surrey, lived at 5, Charlotte-terrace, New Cut, Lambeth; and the circus by the Obelisk, Southwark, was so thickly populated by the second-rate performers of the minor theatres that it was called Theatrical Barracks. Hercules-buildings, Lambeth, had then, and for nearly twenty years afterwards, a theatrical family in every house. Stangate, at the back of Astley's, was another favourite resort; and the cul-de-sac of Mount's-place, Lambeth, where Elliar, the once-famous harlequin, lived and died, was in great repute with the pantomimic and equestrian fraternity.

HAZLITT ON THE OPERA.

"The Opera is a fine thing: the only question is, whether it is not too fine," wrote Hazlitt in one of his essays. "It is the most fascinating, and at the same time the most tantalising, of all places. It is not the too little, but the too much, that offends us. Every object is there collected, and displayed in ostentatious profusion, that can strike the senses or dazzle the imagination; music, dancing, painting, poetry, architecture, the blaze of beauty, 'the glass of fashion, and the mould of form'; and yet one is not satisfied—for the multitude and variety of objects distract the attention, and, by flattering us with a vain show of the highest gratification of every faculty and wish, leave us at last in a state of listlessness, disappointment, and ennui. The powers of the mind are exhausted without being invigorated; our expectations are excited, not satisfied; and we are at some loss to distinguish an excess of irritation from the height of enjoyment. To sit at the Opera for a whole evening is like undergoing the process of animal magnetism for the same length of time. It is an illusion and a mockery, where the mind is made 'the fool of the senses,' and cheated of itself; where pleasure after pleasure courts us, as in a fairy palace; where the Graces and the Muses, weaving in a gay, fantastic round with one another, still turn from our pursuit; where art, like an enchantress with a thousand faces, still allures our giddy admiration, shifts her mask, and again eludes us. The Opera, in short, proceeds upon a false estimate of taste and morals; it supposes that the capacity for enjoyment may be multiplied with the objects calculated to afford it. It is a species of intellectual prostitution; for we can no more receive pleasure from all our faculties at once than we can be in love with a number of mistresses at the same time. Though we have different senses, we have but one heart; and, if we attempt to force it into the service of them all at once, it must grow restive or torpid, hardened or enervated. The spectator may say to the sister-arts of Painting, Poetry, and Music, as they advance to him in a pas-de-trois at the Opera, 'How happy could I be with either, were t'other dear charmers away'; but while 'they all tease him together,' the heart gives a satisfactory answer to none of them;—is ashamed of its want of resources to supply the repeated calls upon its sensibility, seeks relief from the importunity of endless excitement in fastidious apathy or affected levity; and in the midst of luxury, pomp, vanity, indolence, and dissipation, feels only the hollow, aching void within, the irksome craving of unsatisfied desire, because more pleasures are placed within its reach than it is capable of enjoying, and the interference of one object with another ends in a double disappointment. Such is the best account I can give of the nature of the Opera; of the contradiction between our expectations of pleasure and our uneasiness there; of our very jealousy of the flattering appeals which are made to our senses, our passions, and our vanity, on all sides; of the little relish we acquire for it, and the distaste it gives us for other things. Any one of the sources of amusement to be found there would be enough to occupy and keep the attention alive; the tout ensemble fatigues and oppresses it. One may be stifled to death with roses. A headache may be produced by a profusion of sweet smells or of sweet sounds; but we do not like the headache the more on that account. Nor are we reconciled to it, even at the Opera.

What makes the difference between on opera of Mozart's and the singing of a thrush confined in a wooden cage at the corner of the street? The one is nature and the other is art; the one is paid for, and the other is not. Madame Foder sang the air of 'Vedrai Carino' in Don Giovanni so divinely, because she was hired to sing it; she sang it to please the audience, not herself, and did not always like to be encored in it; but the thrush that awakes us at daybreak with its song, does not sing because it is paid to sing, or to please others, or to be admired or criticised. It sings because it is happy: it pours the thrilling sounds from its throat, to relieve the overflowings of its own heart—the liquid notes come from, and go to the heart, dropping balm into it, as the gushing spring revives the traveller's parched and fainting lips. That stream of joy comes pure and fresh to the longing sense, free from art and affectation; the same that rises over vernal groves, mingled with the breath of the morning, and the perfumes of the wild hyacinth; it waits for no audience, it wants no rehearsing, and still—

'Hymns its good God, and carols sweet of love.'

This is the great difference between nature and art, that the one is what the other seems to be, and gives all the pleasure it expresses, because it feels it itself. Mme. Foder sang as a musical instrument may be made to play a tune, and perhaps with no more real delight; but it is not so with the linnet or the thrush, that sings because God pleases, and pours out its little soul in pleasure. This is the reason why its singing is (so far) so much better than melody or harmony, than bass or treble, than the Italian or the German school.

"The Opera is the most artificial of all things. It is not only art, but ostentatious, unambiguous, exclusive art. It does not subsist as an imitation of nature, but in contempt of it; and, instead of seconding, its object is to pervert and sophisticate all our natural impressions of things. When the Opera first made its appearance in this country, there were strong prejudices entertained against it, and it was ridiculed as a species of the mock-heroic. The prejudices have worn out with time, and the ridicule has ceased; but the grounds for both remain the same in the nature of the thing itself. At the theatre we see and hear what has been said, thought, and done by various people elsewhere; at the Opera we see and hear what was never said, thought, or done anywhere but at the Opera. Not only is all communication with nature cut off, but every appeal to the imagination is sheathed and softened in the melting medium of Siren sounds. The ear is cloyed and glutted with warbled ecstasies or agonies; while every avenue to terror and pity is carefully stopped up and guarded by song and recitative. Music is not made the vehicle of poetry, but poetry of music; the very meaning of the words is lost or refined away in the effeminacy of a foreign language. A grand serious Opera is a tragedy wrapped up in soothing airs, to suit the tender feelings of the nurslings of fortune—where tortured victims swoon on beds of roses, and the pangs of despair sink in tremulous accents into downy repose. Just so much of human misery is given as is proper to lull those who are exempted from it into a deeper sense of their own security: just enough of the picture of human life is shown to relieve their languor without disturbing their indifference—it is calculated not to excite their sympathy, but 'with some sweet, oblivious antidote,' to pamper their sleek and sordid apathy. In a word, the whole business of the Opera is to stifle emotion in its birth, and to intercept every feeling in its progress to the heart. Every impression that, left to itself, might sink deep into the mind, and wake it to real sympathy, is overtaken and baffled by means of some other impression, plays round the surface of the imagination, trembles into airy sound, or expires in an empty pageant. In the grand carnival of the senses the pulse of life is suspended, the link which binds us to humanity is broken; the soul is fretted by the sense of excessive softness into a feverish hectic dream; truth becomes a fable; good and evil matters of perfect indifference, except as they can be made subservient to our selfish gratification; and there is hardly a vice for which the mind is not thus gradually prepared, no virtue of which it is not rendered incapable!"

BUCKSTONE'S ENGAGEMENT.

When Buckstone was a young man he was a member of the company of the Royal Coburg Theatre, where he played comedy parts, and made himself useful, and all for thirty shillings per week; but, being dissatified with his position there, and fancying if he could cross Waterloo Bridge from the New Cut he might do better, consequently he set about thinking how this could be accomplished. Having tried his hand at dramatic composition, and with some success, he wrote a drama entitled Luke the Labourer, with a view to its performance at the English Opera House, now the Lyceum, the characters in which drama he designed for Messrs. T. P. Cooke, Rayner, and Miss Kelly, with a small rustic part that he intended for himself if the piece was accepted, and he could get an engagement to perform in it; but to his disappointment the drama was rejected by Mr. Arnold, the proprietor and then manager of that theatre. At the end of its season, Mr. T. P. Cooke being engaged at the Adelphi Theatre, Mr. Buckstone sent his manuscript to that establishment, but without inserting his name or address. For a long time he patiently waited for some intelligence respecting it, when, after repeated calls at the stage-door, without hearing anything concerning his drama, and no one appearing to know anything about it, he gave up his manuscript as lost, and resigned himself to the Royal Coburg and his thirty shillings. About this time a Mr. Scott, who had built the Adelphi Theatre, then called "The Sans Pareil," having disposed of his theatre to Messrs. Rodwell and Jones, of "Tom and Jerry" fame, who afterwards parted with the house to Terry and Yates, Mr. Scott, to please his daughter, who had been the writer of many successful pieces performed at "The Sans Pareil," bought the Olympic Theatre. Now Mr. Buckstone, still clinging to his desire of crossing Waterloo Bridge into the Strand, not only applied to Mr. Scott for an engagement, but not being able to obtain his original manuscript of Luke the Labourer, prepared another from memory, and sent it to the Olympic. Shortly after Mr. Scott desired Mr. Buckstone to call upon him, when he expressed himself pleased with the drama, and not only offered the comedian £2 per week as an actor, but £5 for his manuscript. £10 were asked for but firmly refused. He then said he would accept the £5 for the drama if Mr. scott would add 10s. to his acting salary. This was also objected to by Mr. Scott, who proposed a few days for thinking the matter over, at the same time expressing his resolution not to alter the terms named. Love in a Village was about to be produced at the Royal Coburg, in which Mr. Buckstone was cast for the character of the Cook in the scene of the Statute Fair, but as he aspired to play Hodge, he expostulated with the manager, who replied in certain gentle and encouraging terms, frequently used by some of the minor impresari of those days, upon which he immediately set off to cross the bridge and accept the hard terms offered by Mr. Scott. He had not proceeded far up the Waterloo-road, when the hall porter of the Royal Coburg ran after him with a note which had been left at the stage-door that morning with instructions that it should be immediately delivered to Mr. Buckstone. On opening the note, its contents were:—

"Theatre Royal, Adelphi, Oct. 24, 1826.

"Dear Sir,—After many inquiries we have discovered that you are the author of a drama called Luke the Labourer, which has been mislaid at this theatre for many months. I wish to see you concerning it immediately.—Your obedient servant,

"Daniel Terry.

"To Mr. Buckstone, Royal Coburg Theatre."

Instead of walking to the Olympic Mr. Buckstone turned his steps towards the Adelphi, where, being taken on the stage, he found, to his surprise, that his long-lost drama was in rehearsal, and to be produced in a few evenings. Mr. Yates, on inviting the author to his room, stated that Mr. Terry and Mr. T. P. Cooke were so pleased with their characters, that, wishing to discover the author, they considered the best course to take was to bring the piece out. When, after its being read in the green-room, Mr. Charles Tompkins, then the scenic artist of the Adelphi, being acquainted with Mr. Buckstone, informed the managers where he thought the author was to be found. Mr. Yates then wished to know his terms, but that question being entirely lift to Mr. Yates, the author was well pleased to learn that he was to receive one guinea for each night of representation, and to be secured a performance of thirty nights. Mr. Buckstone, considering that 30 guineas were better than £5, agreed to the arrangement, and then turned his steps to the Olympic, where he was received with great cordiality by Mr. Scott, who asked him if he had thought the matter over as to his proposed terms, to which the author replied that circumstances had occurred which prevented his acceptance of those or of any other. "Indeed!" said Mr. Scott, "don't talk to me of circumstances; if you have not thought the matter over I have done so, and am now ready to give you ten pounds for your drama, but can only offer you two pounds per week for acting." Mr. Buckstone then related all that had occurred during the morning, and that his drama was to be produced at the Adelphi the following week. Mr. Scott, on hearing this, rose with great indignation, placed the manuscript written from memory in the author's hands, and sternly desired him never to put his foot within the door of the Olympic again. Luke the Labourer was produced, and with such success that Mr. Yates sent for the author to ask him if he could not write a farce or some little comedy for him. Mr. Buckstone replied he would try, and the result was a piece called Twenty-three, John-street, Adelphi. This also being a success, Mr. Buckstone was invited to join the Adelphi company at a very liberal salary.

Mr. William A. Brady produced The Detective, by Rose O'Neill, of London, at Redbank, N.J., on the 4th inst. It is described as a drama of English social and official life, with a story of the theft of important plans from the War Department, the inability of Scotland Yard to obtain a clue, and the eventual solving of the mystery by a Mrs. Aarons, who is employed by a private detective agency. The "big scene" of the play showed the harassed Minister of War as a somnambulist and the thief as the former husband of the lady detective. Miss Leonora Harris appeared as Mrs. Aarons, the company including Misses Barbara Huntley, Isabel West, and Grace Thorne, and Messrs. J. H. Benrimo, Ethelbert Hales, and Courtenay Foote.

Giovanni in Ireland was performed, for the first time in Dublin, in 1822, a former representation being merely, as the bills facetiously termed it, a "dressed rehearsal." The house was but thinly attended, and much disapprobation was expressed. The next morning the bills contained the following piece of unequalled insolence:—"Giovanni in Ireland, on its first performance last night, was received with tumultuous approbation, every factious effort, previously organised, being completely overpowered. The numerous communications on this subject that have been received will in due time appear before the public. The piece will be repeated every evening." With respect to the overpowering of factious efforts, it was said by the Times newspaper that ruffians were stationed in various parts of the house, to knock down or intimidate everyone who ventured to hiss.

THEATRIC declamation was very different among the ancients to what it is and ought to be with us, from the nature of the thing itself, and from the difference of circumstances. Numberless passages in Quintilian, and other ancient historians, critics and grammarians, evidently prove that the ancient dramatic declamation was subservient to the rules of the musical rythmus; and by this according to Aristides, their action, as well as recital, was regulated. But to explain this seeming paradox, it will be necessary to make here some preliminary remarks. The ancients gave a much more extensive signification to the word music (musica) than we do, which they derived from the muses, or at least from some of them. It is for this reason that the same Aristides and Quintilian defined it to be "an art that teacheth all that relates to the use of the voice, and the manner of performing all the motions of the body with grace: "Ars decoris in vocibus et motibus." Therefore poetry, declamation, dancing pantomimes, and many other gestures and exercises, were subservient to this art.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1910.

THE SICILIAN SCHOOL.

The remarkable reading of the leading parts in Othello which has been given at the Lyric Theatre this week by Signor GRASSO and the Sicilian company should be seen by every young actor and actress who is ambitious of success in his or her profession. We are far from recommending a servile imitation of the Sicilians and their methods. There are many departments in the domain of the drama, and the methods of Sicily would certainly not suit all of them. But the Sicilians present an object-lesson on one of the weaknesses of the English stage at present, and one which has done a good deal to bring about the recent depression in theatrical business in the provinces.

There are many advantages which are now lost to us in the old system of training for the stage. In the first place, in the old times the stage was held in such ill-esteem, and the wages paid to the beginner were so small, the work so hard, and the conditions under which the earlier years of experience were passed were so onerous and disagreeable to anyone but an enthusiast, that few cared to take to the stage as a comfortable and easy way of getting a livelihood, still less to pay to be allowed to appear on it. The enormous amount of study which had to be undergone in order to meet the requirements of a constantly-changing bill was another thing which kept people off the stage. Actors were a despised class; and the "barnstormers" and strollers who formed the "ruck" of the profession assisted to create a contemptuous estimate of the player and the playeress.

But this system had its good side. Those bred up under it were, after going through the mill, seasoned and hardened valuably. It was pointed out to us the other day, by no less a mentor than Mr. HENRY NEVILLE, that the very fact that the young men of his generation had not time to study their parts thoroughly forced them to make up by passion and earnestness for weakness of memory and departure from the text. It was impossible for them to recite their parts, for they rarely knew them; so they had to form a conception of the character and the situations, and work on that. They were, in short, forced to think and to act.

Acting in its highest form is the expression of great emotions. The passion of an Othello, a Lear, or a Macbeth is above that of ordinary men. It is ordinary human feeling raised to the nth degree. Immense emotions demand large treatment. Audiences are not to be raised to the highest pitch of enthusiasm and excitement by anything but the strongest form of expression.

The danger of dramatic art at present is that it may become uninteresting. We have never had so many well-educated, well-dressed, and respectable people "taking to" the stage; but the crop of genius and individuality is not encouraging. The modern "discussion play," in which the characters are always arguing and never coming to any conclusion, is dead against improvement in this direction. As a writer in this week's New Age says very pertinently: "Characterisation cannot be fully achieved by speeches. Three hours is much too short a time for an audience to learn about the persons on the stage merely by what each says. The weakest men are often the best talkers; they bluff the world. Richard the Second, in time of peace, might well have appeared a strong character. It was in time of trouble that he failed. If you want to know what a man is like, you do not listen to him. You watch his behaviour in an emergency. The crisis in drama—the dramatic event, in short—has the same effect of self-revelation. . . . The truth is that life is too short for the discussive method on the stage. This method is a healthy and natural reaction, a protest against the fatuities of a drama without ideas at all; but it will not produce great works of art."

The essence of the highest art is virility. The word effeminacy will soon, we are told, have lost its meaning, the women having progressed in masculinity and the men having degenerated in manliness. At present, however, it may be used to describe a tendency which was certainly absent from the drama of the last generation. The effeminate and neurotic play and the cautious, self-restrained, half-indifferent actor and actress have, no doubt, their places in the artistic whole. The danger is that they may come to set the fashion.

The Sicilians point a moral and indicate a danger. The effect they create is by giving themselves utterly and recklessly up to the passion they are imagining. Signor GRASSO has many things in his way in representing Othello. He is somewhat short and thick in stature, he sees the character necessarily through a foreign medium, he speaks in a foreign language, and yet he raises his audience to a pitch of excitement which may be fairly described as furore. This he does by absolute self-abandonment in his scenes of emotion. He is so obviously hors de soi-même, he conceals so artistically the fact that, in the very torrent and whirlwind of his passion, he is quite master of his general aim, that he appeals irresistibly to those eternal primitive sympathies which may be obscured by affectation, but exist in every theatrical audience. Defective as his performance may be in some of the qualities in which our present English school of acting is strong, he yet sets us an example in other directions which it would be well for us to consider. The only genre, as a French author has said, is the genre that is tame and tiresome; and we can forgive exaggeration and even bad taste in details as long as the root of the matter—the representation of passion—exists.

"THE MARAUDERS."

Play, by Mrs. Caleb Porter, Produced at the Adelphi on Monday, March 21.

Michael Mackenzie ....MR. STANLEY TURNBULL
Lieut. Jack Sherbrooke, R.N. MR. WERNHAM RYOTT
Eleanor Sherbrooke ..MISS KATHERINE KENNEDY
Simmons .....MR. JOHN BYRON
Angelina .....MISS DOROTHEA DESMOND

In front of that truly British piece The House of Temperley was produced on Monday a playlet by Mrs. Caleb Porter entitled The Marauders, which is quite uninteresting and ineffective. The authoress starts apparently with the idea of teaching a lesson of philanthropy, but her courage seems to fail her. The trifle opens strongly with the arrest, in a darkened flat, of Angelina, a street waif, who has stolen the watch of Michael Mackenzie, a magistrate. His companion, Lieut. Jack Sherbrooke, of the Navy, questions the girl, but we learn little or nothing of her sad story. She gives up the watch that she has concealed in the bodice of her dress, and Jack, discovering that she is wet through, directs her to go into his sister's room and put on anything she can find. The transformation from a dirty-looking waif to a fashionably dressed girl is soon accomplished, and Angelina is invited to take supper. The sudden return of the sister, who is not expected, upsets the little party, and a tactless remark on the part of the indignant newcomer, who hints that Angelina is no better than she ought to be, is strongly resented by the girl. Tearing off the fashionable dinner dress and replacing it by her ragged skirt, she departs, but not before she has handed to Mackenzie a valuable brooch that has been mislaid. The magistrate Mackenzie remarks that he will send the court missionary in the morning to the address whispered in his ear by the unhappy girl. Miss Dorothea Desmond, in the occasional flashes of humour of the outcast, showed considerable ability. Mr. Stanley Turnbull as Michael Mackenzie did well with the poor material of his part; Mr. Wernham Ryott was a breezy and natural Lieutenant; and Mr. John Byron was effective in the few lines he had to say as Simmons. Miss Katherine Kennedy played the part of the sister with sufficient asperity of manner.

There are several alterations in the cast of The House of Temperley. Mr. Blake Adams, who now plays Ginger Stubbs in the place of Mr. Edmund Gwenn, keeps up a fine flow of drollery all through the piece. He makes us laugh in his description of his master the Captain's fighting qualities, and the interviews with Lucy, played by Miss Polly Emery, who has far too little opportunity, are as mirthful as a couple of real good comedians can make them. Mr. Claude King, who succeeds Mr. Charles Maude, gives an impersonation of Jack Temperley that is robust and breezy; and Mr. Charles Rock again rouses the house to enthusiasm by his furious outburst in the committee-room of Watier's Club, and his Sir John Hawker remains unapproachable. Miss Lydia Bilbrooke makes a pretty and interesting Ethel Morley, and Mrs. Russ Whytal a distinguished but somewhat hysterical Lady Temperley. Mr. A. S. Homewood needs no further proof of his versatility than the clever way he plays the two rôles of the Duke of Broadwater and Joe Berks, the aggressive pugilist. Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. Spencer Trevor, Mr. Bassett Roe, Mr. J. J. Bartlett, Mr. Ernest Cosham, and Mr. Stratton Rodney are all responsible for extremely clever work, and the wonderful fight at Crawley Down, so cleverly arranged by F. Binnington, and the perfect stage-management, add appreciably to Mr. Herbert Jarman's fine record as a producer.

THE annual benefit of the universally respected acting-manager of the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, Mr. C. W. Ramsay, is the big night of the year, and the 17th inst. saw the large house crowded to the doors when the genial beneficiaire made his sixth annual "appeal." The performance was largely of a variety nature, artists from the Empire and Hippodrome contributing songs, &c. Mr. Augustus Barry appeared successfully in a scene from Othello, and local talent was represented by Mr. Curley Jackson, the Scottish Pipers, and Mr. J. Foulkes. Mr. Ramsay was enthusiastically cheered on coming forward to make his "annual address," and he received many valuable and useful presents, including gifts from Mr. W. D. Forsdike, Mr. Foradike, jun., the orchestra, the staffs in front and behind, Mr. R. Thompson, &c. The Lord Mayor (Earl Fitzwilliam) and the Master Cutler gave their patronage.

THE New Theatre, New York, is to undergo a number of changes before the next season opens. The present gallery will be done away with, as the ceiling is to be lowered. The foyer stalls, too, in the first balcony, will disappear, and the founders' boxes will take their place. The removal of these boxes from the lower floor will make room for several more rows of orchestra seats. The acoustic properties of the New Theatre have been generally regarded as unsatisfactory, and it is expected that an improvement will be effected by these changes. On the roof a small theatre is to be built, with a seating capacity of 500, occupying the space originally intended for a roof garden. There will be no performances of opera at this house next season.

SICILIANS AT THE LYRIC.

On Friday, March 18, the Comedy, in three acts, by L. Capuana, entitled "CAVALIER PEDAGNA."

Cavalier Pedagna CAV. UFF. GIOVANNI GRASSO
Proposito Balata .....R. SPADARO
Notaio Scofitti .....CAV. A. MUSCO
Donna Lia .....C. BALISTRIERI
Donna Maria .....ROSALIA SPADARA
Elsa .....SIGA. MARINELLA BRAGAGLIA

The Cavalier Pedagna has reached the stage of foolishness—middle age—when he thinks himself violently in love with a singer—a Signorina Elsa, who has apparently flattered the vanity of the rich, good-natured, and vain nobleman, who tries to hide his age by dyeing his hair. Incidentally, we may mention that the Cavalier in side whiskers, and in the person of Signor Grasso, had very much the appearance on Friday evening, of the great singer of laughing songs, Jolly John Nash, who always wore a resplendent chestnut-coloured wig on and off the stage. The Cavalier's infatuation, unfortunately enough, makes him insensible to family ties, fortifies him in his obduracy to his only daughter, whose runaway marriage with the man of her choice he will not condone. In an interview with Elsa, the doting lover of fifty proposes that she shall stay with him for good and give up singing. This she refuses to do, and departs. The daughter, Donna Lia—now a widow—comes to plead for forgiveness in the second act. She has affectionate advocates in the notary Scofitti and in the priest, who use their most persuasive arguments on her behalf, but to no purpose. The Cavalier will not see her, and Elsa becomes furiously jealous when she sees another woman in the house, going away in a terrible temper. In the last act the foolish old man learns that Elsa is accepting the favours of a Baron Scalia, and gives orders that the singer shall not be admitted to his house any more. The more common-sense attitude of the father is considered favourable for the cause of the daughter, and the priest and the notary again urge upon the Cavalier the duty of forgiveness. He still steels his heart against her, but agrees to give her a pension, the necessary papers being prepared by the notary. It is, however, torn up as soon as drawn up; but there are more eloquent advocates for forgiveness in Lia's two children, who wind themselves round the grandfather's heart, and bring him to tears. On a pretty domestic scene the curtain falls.

It must have been quite a recreative evening for Signor Grasso to play such a part as Cavalier Pedagna, and his light-hearted behaviour in the first act, when cajoling the fickle Elsa, was in strong contrast to his outburst of obstinacy when urged to forgiveness of the repentant Donna Lia by his staunch friends the notary and the priest, played with much cleverness by Cav. A. Musco—with a make-up strongly reminiscent of Ibsen—and R. Spadaro. Signora Rosalia Spadara was a voluble and amusing Donna Maria; and Signora Bragaglia was really wasted in the part of Elsa. Signor Carlo D'Amato's Sicilian mandoline and guitar orchestra played some delightful selections during the entr'actes.

On Monday, March 21, in Italian, was performed Shakespeare's tragedy of Considerable interest was felt in the appearance at the Lyric Theatre on Monday last of Signor Giovanni Grasso in the part of Othello. From his previous performances at the Lyric it was inferred that the Sicilian actor would express the passion of the part to the full; and the expectation was not in any way disappointed. The version used by the company was freely "cut" and re-arranged, only the essentially dramatic portions being retained; and the revival moved very briskly, the comparative simplicity of the scenery much assisting this result. Of Signor Grasso's Othello it may be said that, while somewhat deficient in the personal distinction and nobility of presence and bearing required for the fullest interpretation of the character, it came as a thrilling novelty to those who had never seen a "Latin" version of the rôle, with all its utter self-abandonment, uncontrolled anguish, and degenerate despair. In the scenes of Othello's distress Signor Grasso divests the Moor of all dignity and reserve, and shows him, not only overcome by his sufferings, but indifferent to the display of them. Not that his Othello is in any way weak. The manner in which the General bears down opposition after the scene of riot at Cyprus, the fire and intensity of his delivery of the celebrated speech to Iago, "Villain, be sure thou prove," &c., and the power displayed in the final act of murder and death, proved Signor Grasso an actor of immense earnestness, activity, and vigour. In certain details he seems to have followed Salvini, notably in the business after the speech just referred to, when Salvini used after throwing Iago on the ground, to put his foot upon him, and then start back with loathing. If we remember rightly, the method of Othello's suicide adopted by Signor Grasso—throat-cutting instead of stabbing—is that originated by the greater Italian actor. Besides being inconsistent with the text, the alteration is objectionable, as it gives Signor Grasso excuse for a needlessly realistic imitation of a man suffocated with his own blood, and for some ungraceful grovellings on the floor. These, however, are but minor defects in what is on the whole a very fine thrilling and striking performance. Signora Marinella Bragaglia is a charming Desdemona, refined, expressive, frank, and feminine; and an Emilia of remarkable vigour and spirit is Signora C. Balistrieri, whose denunciations of Othello and Iago in the last act are full of fiery indignation. Signor A. Campagno's Iago is a careful and commendable, but not quite satisfying reading of the rôle; it has a touch of low comedy which rather detracts from the diabolical wickedness of the character. But, on the lines laid down by the artist, it is very ably and cleverly played. Signor R. Spadaro puts plenty of force and energy into his Brabantio; Signor P. Florio is an agreeable Cassio; and the Doge has a crisp and careful exponent in Signor Arcidiacono. The minor parts are carefully sustained, and the scenery, which is not elaborate, serves well as a background to the play, which was received on Monday by an audience of mixed nationality with cheers, frantic applause, and a profusion of presented bouquets.

MR. DALLAS WELFORD, of Mr. Hopkinson fame, and Mr. George Richards, who appeared in many of the Hoyt farces, are to be the principal comedians in The Dancer of Cairo, in which Miss Valeska Suratt will "star" in America under the management of A. H. Woods. A prominent part will be played by Miss Amelia Summerville, the "merry mountain maid" of Dixey's Adonis.

MR. WILLIAM FAVERSHAM appeared recently at the Murat Theatre, in Indianapolis, in a new play called The Winding Way, by Charles B. Sommers. The scenes are laid in the South, and the story is one of love, racial antipathies, and the flexibility of the law. In the last act there is a strong emotional scene.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LE BOIS SACRE."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by MM. G. A. de Caillavet and R. de Flers, Produced at the Variétés on March 22.

Francine Margerie .....MME. JEANNE GRANIER
Adrienne Champmorel ..MLLE. EVE LAVALLIÈRE
Mme. Fauchel .....MLLE. PRINCE
Mme. de Cernay .....MLLE. CHAPELAS
Mme. Gorgelin .....MLLE. DERMYES
Paul Margerie .....M. BRASSEUR
Champmorel .....M. GUY
Comte Zakonskine .....M. MAX DEARLY
Des Fargettes .....M. PRINCE
Benjamin .....M. MORICET
Durieu .....M. AVELOT

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 24.—MM. de Caillavet and de Flers' new comedy is a skit on our Fine Arts Ministry, for which reason they have called it Le Bois sacré (The Sacred Wood), the mysterious spot where Apollo and the Muse congregated. It is brightly written, with a witty dialogue; but these two clever playwrights did not take advantage of the opportunities offered them, and the work, therefore, was in measure disappointing. The plot is not complicated. Francine Margerie is a charming woman, who adores her husband Paul, a great sportsman. Like many women of the present day, she has "taken to literature," and has brought out a book "l'Irrésistible." This book has been read by Colonel Zakonskine, director of the Imperial ballet in St. Petersburg, one of the most amusing characters in the play. Zakonskine is delighted with "l'Irrésistible," and he calls on Francine to make her acquaintance. Francine, faithful to her husband, does not fall a victim to the Colonel's charms; but Adrienne, the wife of Champmorel, director of the Fine Arts—a lady of an inflammable disposition—at once throws herself into the Russian's arms. Francine, priding herself on her broad views, has always derided those members of her sex who intrigued to have the Cross of the Legion of Honour. When, however, she accidentally hears that one of her rivals in literature is about to receive this distinction, she at once changes her opinions, and wants the cross à tout prix. Champmorel being the man who dispenses these crosses, she calls on him to enlist his sympathies, but the man's sympathies take such a tangible form that Francine is compelled to box his ears. Francine, however, is resourceful. Where she has failed, her husband might succeed, and she asks him to pay his court to the frail Adrienne Champmorel, who, of course, as the wife of Monsieur le Directeur des Beaux-Arts, can make her influence felt. Paul pays his court so well that he becomes Adrienne's lover, a development Francine had not foreseen. And when, in the end, she receives her much-coveted ribbon, she is inconsolable at the loss of her husband. Adrienne, fortunately, is good-natured. She sees Francine unhappy, and she throws off Paul for somebody else, for the Russian, it need hardly be said, disappeared already long ago. The great hit in the play was a Russian ballet, danced by the Colonel (Max Dearly) and Adrienne (Eve Lavallière), which was received with roars of laughter. It was altogether capitally acted by the Variétés company—one of the best in Paris—which included Mme. Jeanne Granier, Mlle. Lavallière, M. Brasseur, M. Guy, M. Max Dearly, and M. Prince.

ON the 15th of next month Mlle. Alexandrowicz will make her début at the Opéra in Rigoletto. This young artist, who is only seventeen, is a pupil of M. de Reszké. Some time ago he spoke about his talented pupil to the managers of the Opéra, who, having heard her once, immediately signed an engagement with her for five years.

"DORE SŒURS."

Comedy in three acts, by M. Charles Simon, Produced at the Mathurins on March 21.

Gaby .....MME. JANE ELRIC
Mme. Patouillat .....MME. CHALON
Marthe .....MLLE. ADRIENNE BREITNER
Mme. Pierret .....MLLE. JANE DOE
Mme. Rivolat .....MLLE. JANE HETT
Dubreuil .....M. NUMÈS
Journet .....M. BRUNIÈRE
Boissière .....M. ST.-BONNET
Lajoie .....M. CHARPENTIER

Tastefully decorated, the Théâtre des Mathurins, under the able management of Mme. de Montfort, has been reopened under brilliant auspices, and is certain to be largely patronised by all strangers visiting Paris. The novelty produced there was Doré Sœurs, by M. Charles Simon. The scene is laid in the dressmaking establishment of Mme. Patouillat, aided by her two daughters, Gaby and Marthe, the latter married to Boissière, who holds the post of the cashier in the house. Gaby has lost her heart to Journet, an intelligent youth, anxious to become rich as quickly as possible. Journet loves Gaby, and would gladly have made her his wife, but he hesitates because he thinks that a rich marriage might give him at once the funds he requires for his big undertakings. Gaby, deeply hurt, resolves never to marry Journet, yet it is she who secures him the necessary money, making him believe that it is her brother-in-law, Boissière, who advanced it. Journet is now a wealthy man, and he once more thinks of Gaby, when things take an unexpected development. Under the euphonic name of Doré Sœurs, the dressmaking establishment has opened a huge place in the Rue de la Paix, thanks to the money Journet has invested in the concern. After a while, however, Journet wants his capital back, and it then transpires that Boissière has robbed the firm of a big amount, which he has spent on a worthless creature. Lajoie, a shady lawyer, offers to put things straight if Gaby consents to become his wife, and the girl, in order to save the family from disgrace, consents. Fortunately, Gaby's sacrifice is unnecessary. Journet learns the whole truth, and, in a charming scene between the two lovers, Gaby at last consents to become Mme. Journet. The play, which met with an excellent reception, was very brightly acted. Mme. Jane Elric, who was delightfully natural in the difficult rôle of Gaby, will soon become a great favourite with the public. Mlle. Adrienne Breitner supplied a pleasant sketch of Marthe; M. Numès was an amusing Journet; and the remainder of the cast also rendered efficient aid. The scene in the dressmaking establishment, when the mannequins walk past, arrayed in all the latest fashions, will in itself prove a big draw.

THE Théâtre des Bouffes has given us Xantho ches les Courtisanes, a comedy in three acts by M. Jacques Richepin. There is very little plot, but that little is so spicy that it is impossible for me to enter into any details. Sufficient to say that Xantho, a young Greek matron, goes to a house inhabited by courtezans, where she wants to acquire some practical knowledge in the art of pleasing men, for, alas! her husband, on whom she dotes, is sadly neglecting her. As it happens, she meets her husband there, and in the end they return together to their house in Myrrhine, very much in love with one another. Mme. Cora Laparcerie looked and played the rôle of Xantho to perfection, and she was ably assisted by M. Hasti, an amusing Phaon. The work was preceded by Le Jeune Homme Candide, a smart little sketch by M. Pierre Mortier, wherein Mlle. Clarens impersonates with great tact the rôle of a lady who returns to her fiancé, from whom she has been separated during three years.

NEW plays are cropping up every day in America in spite of the lateness of the season. Waste, a drama dealing with "race suicide," by Porter Emerson Browne, was performed for the first time at the Court Square Theatre, Springfield, Mass., on the 7th inst., and Mother, by Jules Eckert Goodman, was produced on the same date at Plainfield, N.J., by Mr. William A. Brady, with Miss Emma Dunn in the title-rôle.

A LIFE OF SAMUEL FOOTE.

Students of the stage will welcome the Life of Samuel Foote, actor, author, and mimic, by Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, with whom the work has been manifestly a labour of love. Mr. Fitzgerald, whose valuable additions to dramatic literature include a "Life of David Garrick," "Reminiscences of Charles Lamb," and a "History of the English Stage," brings to his work a comprehensive knowledge of the period that could not well be surpassed. The book is filled with anecdotal reminiscences of the contemporary celebrities, and, while refreshing one's memory on past events, supplies a good deal of matter that is entirely new, the author's own commentaries furnishing not the least fascinating of his appreciation.

According to his historian, Foote was "the most remarkable and one of the most gifted persons that ever figured on the English stage. It would indeed be difficult to decide whether he was more remarkable on the stage or off it. No actor has been so successful as dramatist, no actor such a wit or humorist, and, finally, no actor has had so stirring and adventurous a course. He was a gentleman by birth and breeding, yet grew up and was trained in taverns and pothouses. He spent his life mimicking respectable people, making them odious and ridiculous, and thus secured a handsome living—yet was never challenged or chastised."

The beginning of the year 1720 saw the birth of Samuel Foote. He was educated at Worcester Grammar School, where numberless boyish freaks, of which he was the leader, gave a correct indication of his character. At Worcester College, where he went to complete his studies, Foote's irrepressible hunt for fun, and his utter contempt for discipline involved the forfeiture of his scholarship. After coquetting with the law, Foote turned his attention to the stage, making his début at the "New Theatre in the Haymarket," in the February of 1774, in a tragic part—no less than that of Othello, which proved little better than a failure. His efforts in "straight" comedy were no more encouraging, and eventually Foote realised that he could never hope to make his fortune in legitimate drama. He reckoned up his resources, and determined upon the line of business which brought him fame and fortune—that of mimic, a species of entertainment that was much in favour at the time.

"Among his companions at the Bedford and the coffee-houses, more probably at the Covent Garden pothouses, he had been obtaining great applause for his imitation of friends and boon comrades that were well known to the company, and it appears he 'took them off' in a most vivid, striking way, and to immense applause. He was the first to elevate mimicry into a regular profession or dramatic system, breaking into the ranks of society to secure material, and actually compelling society to furnish him with subjects. Foote determined to make of his mimicry a system. It should be a dramatic entertainment. Then he found, perhaps to his surprise, that he had yet another resource by him, the power of writing lively sketches of characters and amusing dialogue. At once he constructed some very lively scenes, which were a complete novelty for the public."

Foote's success as author and mimic was immediate and complete. Everyone from the highest to the lowest was looked upon as fair game, and none was exempt from his mordant satire. Personalities flowed freely in his plays, and all alike experienced the biting power of his pen and his impersonation. Mr. Fitzgerald gives an exhaustive analysis of the plays, over a score in number, written and acted by Foote, with a wealth of appreciative commentary. Several chapters are devoted to Foote's adventures in Dublin, and some of the most entertaining incidents in the work are the result. It was there he introduced to the public Tate Wilkinson, who was to prove so formidable a rival to his patron, both in that city, and in London.

Foote had his difficulties with the law, from which, however, he emerged in triumph. He was about to produce his comedy The Diversion, at the Haymarket, when the authorities stepped in. Hither from "the alarm excited in the theatres royal, or the resentment of most of the performers who smarted under the lash of his mimicry, the civil magistrates of Westminster were called upon to interfere; and, under the sanction of an Act of Parliament for limiting a number of playhouses, sent a posse of constables, who, entering the theatre, dismissed the audience, and left the laughing Aristophanes to consider of new ways and means for his support. But Foote," writes Mr. Fitzgerald, "was not to be daunted. Within a few days he had devised a second scheme of an elusive kind, destined to be extremely successful and bring him much money. On Friday, April 24, the town was informed that 'On Saturday noon next, at twelve o'clock, at the new Theatre in the Haymarket, Mr. Foote begs the favour of his friends to come and drink a dish of chocolate with him; and 'tis hoped there will be a great deal of good company and some joyous sprits; he will endeavour to make the Morning as Diverting as possible.' No further interference was attempted; he proceeded with his work, growing bolder and more popular every day."

The unaccountable enmity which Foote continuously displayed towards Garrick is interestingly touched upon by Mr. Fitzgerald. Garrick was kindness itself to Foote; "his money, his theatre, his service, were always ready. But Foote was an everlasting thorn in his side. Threats of exhibition on the stage, quarrels—such was the return; but nothing could ruffle or interrupt the prudent Garrick's kindnesses."

The enormous advance that has been made in popularising Shakespeare is displayed in the relation of an amusing account of one of Foote's attacks on Garrick. At this day the Shakespeare Celebration extends over a month, and is contributed to by the leading representatives of the stage. How was it in 1769?

"The pompous celebration at Stratford in honour of the bard," writes Mr. Fitzgerald, "was really intended as a glorification of Garrick. The Mayor and Corporation approached him with their apocryphal mulberry-tree, and with many flatteries persuaded him to undertake all the trouble and risks of the business. Foote cared little for the bard; he went simply with the one motive—that of plaguing Garrick. His companion was Murphy, and the ill-natured pair went above prying into everything, laughing at everything, and disheartening poor Garrick as much as they could. In pursuance of his laudable intention, Foote went about talking to everyone and cracking jokes on the patron. Taking a walk by the Avon, he was recognised by the crowd, whom he regaled with jokes and remarks, producing peals of laughter. A great stout man was passing by—an important personage covered with gold lace—who paid his court to Foote, wishing to be seen with so famous a wit. The latter chaffed him good-humouredly, and finally asked him jeeringly: 'Had the county of Warwick the honour of giving birth to him as well as to Shakespeare?' 'No, sir,' said the other; 'I come from Essex.' 'And, pray, who drove you?' said Foote."

Garrick's magnanimity and generosity, however, rose superior to all attacks, and it was he who stood by the side of his comrade till the last. Foote died at Dover in October, 1777, and his end is described by Mr. Fitzgerald with eloquent pathos. A striking picture of Foote, after the painting of Sir Joshua Reynolds, adorns the title-page, and the work, which is published by Chatto and Windus, is admirably printed.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Alfred Moul is back in sunny London, after a most agreeable stay on the Continent, where he has been recuperating after his operation. The popular director has entirely regained his health, and feels full of energy. He has been receiving many hearty congratulations on his robust appearance, and is entering on the spring campaign with his customary enthusiasm.

Mr. Walter Gibbons, lessee of the New Grand, Clapham Junction, has now established an entente cordiale with the shareholders, and the transference of the lease to the London Theatres of Varieties, Ltd., is a decided step forward, when the possible developments of the Butt, De Frece, and Gibbons control, that is now in being, are considered.

Mr. Fred Williams, the well-known comedian, who has been associated with the New Grand company for sixteen years, and with the late Herbert Campbell helped to find half the capital, welcomed Mr. Gibbons as a new director in the place of Mr. John Parker. The directors at the close of the meeting joined in the fervent refrain of "Hales, smiling morn!"

Mr. I. N. Lyons, after some delay, has completed the purchase of the Middlesex. Messrs. Frank Matcham are proceeding rapidly with the preparation of the plans for a theatre of spacious magnificence, to be known as the New Middlesex Empire.

Messrs. Walter De Frece and Co. have removed the offices of their circuit to Randvoll House, Charing Cross-road, where the Gibbons Circuit is located. This change of address is due to the establishment of the new variety controlling combination.

Houdini, the Handcuff King, is absolutely the first professional to fly. Whilst in Germany last November and December he purchased a Voisin biplane, and was able to make several successful flights, snapshots of some of which have already appeared in aero periodicals. Houdini now holds the further distinction of being the first successful aviator in Australia, where he has been giving a series of exhibition flights on his biplane, and creating a great sensation.

There is no greater comedienne on the world's stage to-day than Gabrielle Réjane, the well-known French actress, who, on Monday, April 4, appears at the London Hippodrome in that delightful comedy Lolotte, by Henri Meilhac and Ludovic Halévy. Meilhac has always been one of Réjane's favourite authors, and in Lolotte she has many appropriate passages wherein to exhibit her genius.

A heated argument between the Baron and Baroness Pouf is interrupted by Croiselles, the lady's lover. She informs Croiselles that she has merely invited a well-known actress to show her how to act two parts—a cavalier and a peasant girl—in a play that is to be produced at a private entertainment. Anxious that the Baron should not know of her taking part in theatricals, she suggests that he should leave the house.

At this point Lolotte (Réjane), who is deeply in love with Croiselles, enters and proceeds to instruct the Baroness in the two rôles. Some writing in an autograph album attracts Lolotte's attention, and on closer inspection it proves to be the same inscription as Croiselles had made in her own book. Lolotte at once concludes that the Baroness is in love with Croiselles, and gives the Baroness a piece of her mind. Just then the Baron enters, and Lolotte, perceiving him, changes her voice and demeanour, saying, "That is the way, madame, to play the scene." The Baron asks for an explanation, and Lolotte makes him believe that it is a scene from her répertoire which she is teaching the Baroness. The Baron accepts this explanation and compliments Lolotte.

The Magic Circle is a society, founded in 1905, for the purpose generally of promoting the welfare and advancement of the art of magic; and for the purpose especially of preventing as much as possible the public exposure of magical secrets, and of protecting, by an honourable understanding among its members, the presentation of new magical effects in favour of the inventor thereof. The society consists of some 300 members. Among these are to be found the best known British magicians, and several of the most celebrated American and Continental exponents of the magic art.

Miss Lil Hawthorne, accompanied by her husband, Mr. John E. Nash, sailed for New York per s.s. Adriatic from Southampton last Wednesday. She received numerous bouquets and telegrams from her many friends and admirers. The committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, of which Miss Hawthorne is one of the founders, sent a beautiful bouquet of white roses. Miss Hawthorne returns to England in time to commence her London season in June, having been booked by the Syndicate halls for the next three years.

Mr. Roy Cochrane will produce on Easter Monday, on a scale of considerable grandeur, a sketch on the subject of Rob Roy at the Surrey. The entire depth of the stage, 97ft., will be utilised for the cataract of real water, and pipers and a host of auxiliaries will be engaged. Mr. Cochrane, who is a direct descendant of the picturesque and famous freebooter, has played the part of the Macgregor hundreds of times, and we may be sure of every detail being correct. Miss Edith Lewis will be the Helen Macgregor.

The Empire ballet, Round the World, wisely condensed in several important particulars, the wild Siberian scene being now cut entirely away, has been renamed East to West. The first scene is in the Tokyo Garden, a joyous paradise of almond blossom. Here we have an entirely new dance from Miss Lydia Kyasht, entitled "Les Papillons de l'Orient," which is exquisite in its grace and charm. It also serves to introduce a lithe and nimble male dancer in M. Adolf Bolm, from the Imperial Theatre, St. Petersburg. The number brought down the house on Monday night, and Miss Kyasht, who looked very pretty in a sweet butterfly dress, was recalled with her companion. M. Bolm appears only in this one scene.

In Scene 2 Miss B. Collier and Mr. Fred Farren retain their "Danse Creole," which has something of the Apache complexion. Mr. Fred Farren is the life and soul of the Moscow Scene, which now ends the ballet, and his eccentric dance is quite in his best vein. Miss Phyllis Bedells scores also in a most effective solo.

Mr. Bransby Williams writes: "I have been sent all the way from New York, three days and two nights' train journey, to open the New Walker Theatre, Winnipeg to-day (March 7). What would some of the 'boys and girls' say to that for a week-end journey? I am making the speech for the proprietors, and having a personal reception at lunch to-morrow. I have yet to return to Chicago, Indianapolis, Toronto, and then I have a farewell week in New York, so that I shall miss my opening at the Coliseum, but re-open for Mr. Stoll at Manchester. I have had some pleasant chats with Forbes Robertson and Chas. Cartwright, and Geo. Fawcett (Big Bill, in White Man), who sends his love to England."

Linn and Darius, with their original instrumental and vocal scena, open at Barnard's, Chatham, on Monday.

The Dardinis (jugglers) leave England next Friday, having been engaged for Harry Rickards' Australian tour through Tom Pacey's Agency.

Maude Marshall and Fred Parr, refined vocal and comedy artists, will make their first appearance on Monday at the Coliseum, in a novel act.

Mr. Chas. A. White, who has been stage-manager of the Hippodrome, Coventry, for the last eighteen months, has been engaged as resident-manager for the New Pavilion, Rothesay-on-the-Clyde.

It is announced that the Regent Theatre, Salford, will be closed from July 2 for the reconstruction of the gallery—a requirement of the Watch Committee. The house will probably reopen on August Bank Holiday.

Managers and artists are informed that Will Lund's Variety Agency, late of 27, Islington, Liverpool, has removed to more convenient premises in Seymour-street, where messages can be answered day or night.

The funeral of Charles Gibbs, coloured comedian, took place on Friday (18th), the remains being interred in Streatham Park Cemetery. The arrangements were superintended by R. R. Tull, of Brook-street, Kennington, S.E.

Miss Dora Healey had to undergo a serious operation on her nose and throat on Tuesday. With skilled attendance, it is hoped that she will make a complete recovery, and resume engagements that have been unfulfilled owing to illness.

The Urban Council of Erith invite offers for the use of the bandstand in the Erith Recreation Ground for alfresco entertainments during the summer season. Application should be made before April 6, to J. Kennedy Allerton, Council Offices, Erith.

Miss Gertie Gitana met with an ovation on returning to the Olympia, Liverpool, last Monday. After she had rendered three of her best songs the audience would not allow her to depart, and even though another artist came on the stage, he was obliged to retire until Miss Gitana had reappeared.

Mr. Carl Lyle, with his farcical comedy sketch company, will be the leading attraction at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh on Monday, April 4, when he will present that excellent absurdity, A Married Microbe. Mr. Lyle will be supported by Miss Alice Drummond, Miss Peggy Webster, and Mr. Allyn Whyte.

The Theatre Royal, Colchester, of which the sole proprietor is Mr. Chas. Macdona, is closed for Passion Week. On Monday next it opens with two shows nightly for a season of vaudeville under contract with the Co-operative Varieties, Ltd., Mr. Leo King acting as the resident representative of the syndicate.

At the Barrasford Hippodrome, Sheffield, Mr. Claude Bowlby, who has made a high reputation as a local amateur, this week commences a six months' salaried engagement on the Barrasford circuit. Mr. Bowlby is featuring a "rinking" song composed by Mr. J. G. Hahn, the talented conductor of the Hippodrome orchestra.

Mr. Harry Burns, the well-known provincial agent, known professionally as "the Hustler," sails on the Lusitania for New York on Saturday, April 9, returning on the Mauretania on Wednesday, May 11. Mr. Burns will be accompanied by his charming and talented wife, Miss Helen Charles, the well-known entertainer at the piano, and intends combining business with pleasure.

Harry Ross, thirty-five, a tailor, of Gibson-square, Islington, and William Thompson, thirty-nine, a fitter, of Risinghill-street, Pentonville, were charged on remand on Wednesday with being concerned in breaking and entering 16, Furlong-road, Islington, and stealing three diamond rings, a diamond pin, and bracelets, value £150, the property of George D'Albert, the well-known music hall artist. The case was committed for trial.

Mr. S. T. Newsome desires through our columns to thank all the artists who so generously contributed to the excellent entertainment on behalf of the Lifeboat Charity on Saturday afternoon at the Hippodrome, Coventry. He fears that in the rush of business on that day he may have unwittingly omitted to thank personally one or other of the artists who so kindly gave their services. The matinée was a great success.

The Harrogate Kursaal is now open for the season, and there are a number of popular and well-known artists announced to appear. Among them may be mentioned Vesta Tilley, Margaret Cooper, R. A. Roberts, Lawrence Brough, Auguste Van Biene, the Follies, Little Tich, Harry Randall, Harry Lander, Geo. Robey, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, Harry Fragson, Madame Melba, Barclay Gammon, and a host of others.

Allan Fitzroy Maclean, a music-hall agent, carrying on business in St. Martin's-lane, W.C., as Maclean's Agency, estimates his liabilities at £860 and the assets at £62. His failure is attributed to losses during the time he was connected with the Stock Exchange, also on entertainments which he had arranged, and to other causes. The meeting on Wednesday was adjourned in order that the debtor might have an opportunity of submitting a proposal.

In the Chancery Division, on the 18th inst., before Mr. Justice Eve, Mr. P. Ogden Lawrence, K.C., moved on behalf of Messrs. Elkin and Co., proprietors of The Blue Bird, now running at the Haymarket Theatre, and of the musical rights, to restrain Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter from publishing a piece of music called "The Blue Bird Waltz." Counsel for the defendants said that they had not had time to answer the affidavits, and the motion was allowed to stand over until next term.

Mr. Geo. Rhodes Parry, who came from Grimsby only last Christmas to take charge of the Crouch End Hippodrome for Mr. B. P. Lucas and his syndicate, last week left to undertake the management of the Bristol Empire, run by the same circuit. His departure was made the occasion for several presentations, Mr. Harry Goodson presiding over an interesting farewell ceremony. Mr. Parry is succeeded in the management at Crouch End by Mr. Fred H. Phelps, formerly of the King's Theatre, Longsight.

Considerable improvements have recently been made in the stage lighting of the beautiful Empire Palace, Sheffield, and the result adds greatly to the exhilarating feelings induced by acts of a spectacular nature, which demand the aid of brilliant and frequent changes of colour. In addition to the footlights and borders, extra illuminants are provided for "flooding the stage in a sea of light." Some artistic new scenery has also been painted, and the new proscenium wings and borders are beautiful specimens of painted drapery work.

The Foresters will start again on Monday with the ordinary variety programme.

The five years' lease of the Paragon, we are given to understand, has been sold to Mr. Harry Jacobs, of Wonderland, who takes it over on May 23, and will run boxing shows there.

Mr. Dan Lipton's novelty entitled Songland will have its first West End production at the Hippodrome on Monday. Miss Eva Kelland, the popular principal girl from the Lyceum, makes her appearance in this production.

The directors of the Empire Theatre have re-engaged Mr. George Robey on account of his enormous success on his previous visit, and the popular comedian will appear on Easter Monday, March 28, for a period of six weeks.

Prof. Thos. Howard, eldest of the Howard Brothers (known as the Wonderful Howards), has been seriously ill for the last sixteen weeks with bronchitis and rheumatism, but is now recovering. He hopes to resume business again in a few weeks' time.

Mr. Fred Barnes was the recipient in Bradford last week of a very novel present from some admirers. It consisted of a gold cigarette-case with engraved front depicting a flock of sheep, of which one was enamelled entirely black. Underneath were the words: "With every success to the black sheep of the family."

We are to have a comedy riot both at the London and Queen's, Poplar, on Monday, when Walter Bird's company will be seen in a screamer entitled Her Husband, which has been convulsing audiences in the States as The Burglars. Mr. Ernest Long plays the chief comic part.

Miss Winifred Ward, the "immaculate boy," who has just finished a highly successful season at the Oxford and Tivoli, London, is winning golden opinions on the Moss and Stoll tour, where she is now starring. Miss Ward has been specially engaged by Mr. J. Macready Chute to play the title-rôle for his next Christmas production at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol.

Plans are approved for the building of a new Empire Palace of Varieties to be erected in the Bell-road, Hounslow. The performances, which will be of a high-class order, will be conducted on the two houses a night system. Building operations are expected to start shortly. The architects are Messrs. F. Boreham and Son, of 75, Finsbury-pavement, London, and the contractors are Messrs. J. Chessum and Sons, of South-place, E.C.

The committee of the Johnny Alexander benefit fund beg to thank the following for donations, in addition to the list already published:—Messrs. W. H. Atlas, Jack Lotto, Frank Boyce, Paul Cinquevalli, W. Jackson, and especially Messrs. O'Malley and Brown for the large sum they have collected in the provinces. The total amount, we are glad to say, comes to over three figures.

Owing to the instantaneous and enormous success of Miss Helena Millais' sketch, The Mask Torn Off, by Ward Bailey and Edward Thane, it was immediately booked by Mr. Walter Gibbons to open at the Holborn Empire on Easter Monday, the 28th inst. Miss Millais will be supported by the original company, which includes Mr. John Dennys, Mr. Stuart Cleveland, and Mr. Edward Thane.

Mr. Harry Tate's challenge cup, presented for competition to the Music Hall and Theatrical Football League, has been won this year by the Tivoli team, a doughty lot of sockers, who made a plucky fight for the trophy during the 1908-9 season. The cup will be presented to the winners at a banquet at the Horseshoe Hotel, Tottenham Court-road, on Sunday, April 17, when Mr. Harry Tate will take the chair.

Mr. T. H. Poulton, of the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court, is opening the fine grounds opposite the hotel on Easter Monday, with a first-class band and variety entertainment. No expense has been spared to ensure the comfort of the visitors. The grounds have been beautifully laid out. The band is under the direction of Mr. Wm. Tomlin, and the stage arrangements, &c., are in the capable hands of Mr. Pat Carey.

Miss Nance Maries, serio-comedienne, passed away at St. Thomas's Hospital on Thursday, the cause of death being consumption. The deceased artist was known to but few of the present generation of music hall frequenters, as she had not been seen on the halls for some time. Of late years she was interested in business.

Her last appearance was at the Empress, Brixton, at her own benefit. She made her first appearance at Bob Botting's hall, the Marylebone, some twenty years since. In its halcyon days this hall was regarded as a nursery of talent, and Little Tich, Gus Elen, George Lashwood, Joe Elvin, and other stars appeared there in the days of their youth. On the site of the old hall flats are now built.

Messrs. Lewis and Russell, of Burnley, have kindly forwarded to Mr. G. H. Chirgwin 100 1lb. tins of their celebrated Stumike digestive coffee, to be sold for the benefit of the benevolent funds. The tins, price 6d. each (postage 2d. extra), are on sale at the offices of the V.A.B.F. and Institution, 18, Charing Cross-road, and are being quickly snapped up, for artists know a good thing when they taste it, and Miss Ellen Terry says "It's delicious," and Mrs. Chirgwin affirms that "It is delightful." Mr. Harry Blake, hon. treasurer of the funds, disposed of forty tins in no time last Sunday night at the Water Rats lodge meeting.

In Dolly's Deception, now being played by John Scott's company on the Moss-Stoll tour, the greatest interest is everywhere aroused by the appearance of a tiny four-footed member of the company, carried by one of the ladies. Opinions in the pit and gallery appear to be evenly divided as to whether it is a monkey or a very small live Teddy bear. As a matter of fact, Tinker Toots is a highly-bred Pekinese spaniel, and a rare one at that, being a perfect albino. It may be added, that although only 3lb. in weight, he shows at least as much intelligence as many a much more massive "mummer." Dolly's Deception is to form part of the holiday programme at the Shepherd's Bush Empire next week.

Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., on behalf of the committee, begs most gratefully to acknowledge the following: Miss Ray Wallace, donation, 9s.; Miss Fannie Harris (Dent and Harris), donation, 10s.; Miss Louie Davis (Ward and Davis), collecting, £1 1s.; Mr. Ben Abrahams, Queen's, Poplar, box collection, £1 7s. 11d.; Miss Lottie Albert, twelve pairs baby's wool boots; Miss Lil Hawthorne, baby's new underclothes; Miss Fannie Harris, baby's new clothing; Miss C. Talbot, lady's costume; Mr. Alex Barish, one pair men's new boots; Mr. Alfred Keeping for his enclosure; Mrs. James Horne, boy's suit; Mr. Dennis (Dennis and Morris), for his gift of a handsome set of new leather band books (per Sisters Macarte), which are for sale; and to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vento (Clacton-on-Sea), for gift made by himself, of house and butcher's shop, also for sale, and to be seen any day at the Guild rooms. Funds, boots, and clothing are urgently needed.

The annual general meeting of the Terriers Association was held on Sunday at the Three Stags Hotel, Kennington, the president, Terrier G. P. R. Burgess, in the chair. There was a good attendance of Terriers.

The elections of president and officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—President, Terrier H. H. Griff; hon. trustees, Terriers Harry Gage and S. N. Salter; hon. auditors, Terriers H. Cory Woodrow and Albert Voyce; hon. solicitor, Terrier G. P. R. Burgess; public auditors, Messrs. Turquand, Turquand, and Co.

It was agreed that Terriers who retire from the profession and reside abroad should be eligible for the various benefits under existing rules. It was also agreed that life honorary members may be elected at the annual general meeting, and Terrier Arthur Simmons was thereupon accorded the honour. It was decided to retain the present badge.

No. 2 Account was abolished, and a new account, called the Emergency Fund, was substituted. It was arranged to award a specially designed jewel to any member who had rendered meritorious service to the Association, such recommendation to be made by the committee, and to come before the members at the annual general meeting. Votes of thanks were accorded to the president, retiring officers, the secretary, and the chairman. The result of the voting for the vice-presidents and committee will be announced next week.

Mr. Harry Hildyard, stage-manager Balham Hippodrome, was presented last week with a very handsome watch by Mr. John Lawson.

Mr. Alfred Butt made special arrangements whereby every scene and incident in the aquatic struggle of the 'Varsity crews, from start to finish, was shown on the Urbanora bioscope at the Palace Theatre on Wednesday evening.

Miss Chummie La Mara finishes her London season to-day, and commences on Monday a twenty weeks' provincial tour. Her song, "Kelly's gone to kingdom come," for which she has provincial rights, will take the place of her "Harrigan" number, with which she was so successful.

The Merrie Romantiques, under the direction of Reginald Thomas and Harry Lea, met with great success at the Hippodrome, Crouch End, last week. Miss Lucy Elliot's song, "Lady Moon," was a big hit, as were also the numbers rendered by Mr. Reginald Thomas (baritone) and Mr. Harry Lea (comedian).

The new firm of impresarios, Messrs. G. W. Gerald and Frank Coyle, of 160, Woodhouse-street, Leeds, have done good business this week in booking Charlier, the celebrated ventriloquist, at the Palace Theatre, London, for one month certain, also two full Moss and Stoll tours, and seventeen weeks with the Morris Circuit in America. He is also booked fifteen turns with the De Frece Circuit.

Mr. Gardner Allen writes: "May I claim a little of your valuable space for the purpose of bringing to the notice of a few unthinking members of both the theatrical and variety professions what cruel torture they unwittingly inflict upon some unfortunate people on this earth by giving imitations on the stage of stuttering. Out of charity one can only assume that such performers are utterly ignorant of the deplorable effects resulting from stammering. I can assure them that any stammerer listening to such a performance is not only far from being entertained, but his feelings are deeply wounded.

"Handicapped as the stammerer is at every point in life by his unfortunate affliction—ridiculed and mocked by the crass-minded—only a stammering person knows what a life of mental horror is his, and if he seeks to forget his trouble for an hour or two in a variety theatre, is it creditable, is it just, that an imitation of a terrible infirmity should haunt him even in his moments of pleasure? These are strong words, some may say, but they are not a tenth part strong enough to convey the racked feelings of a tortured being.

"I cast no reflection on the talent of any performers giving such mimicry, but for their information, I can personally vouch for cases of suicide caused only by stammering, and in these days of education and civilisation I am amazed at the wrong unthinkingly inflicted on these unfortunate people. Let me impress upon artists that the few laughs raised by such imitations would be but poor consolation to them were they to realise the bitterness raised in the very souls of stuttering persons listening to them."

In the Court of Session, Edinburgh, on Monday Ernest George Wragg, a music-hall artist, of New Brighton, professionally known as George Reeves, was awarded £100 damages against Messrs. D. C. Thomson and Co., of Dundee, for libel. Plaintiff, when appearing in pantomime at the Gaiety, Glasgow, saw in the Glasgow edition of the defendant's paper, the Weekly News, a paragraph headed "George Reeves Shoots Wife Twice, then Ends His Own Life. X-rays Save the Woman." The defendants stated that the paragraph had no reference to the plaintiff, and could not reasonably be held to relate to him.

Miss Madge Temple makes her reappearance in London on Monday next after a most successful tour in the provinces, where she has been a great attraction at the Barrasford halls. Miss Temple has been devoting her spare time to visiting the poor in each town she has been entertaining. The greatest poverty, she says, reigns in Leeds. If the various companies at the different halls would only give a few shillings each artist and jointly visit the various places and help those most in need it would, she feels sure, be another feather in the cap of the profession, who are always so willing to extend a helping hand. But the profession has the problem of its own poor to face, and many are the distressing cases reported at the weekly meetings of the V.A.B.F.

Mr. John Clempert, who is at Buenos Aires, in a letter to us gives information about South America which he thinks may be useful to artists appearing there. "First everybody should remember that the Argentine money, which is called pesos (paper money), according to English value, is 1s. 9d., but you can go about as far a head with it as you could in England with 6d. The Customs make you pay duty on printing; the stage hands or general hands are very lazy; and if you want anything done you will hear one answer, and that is 'mañana,' which means 'to-morrow.' Ladies with talent and respectability are not wanted." During Clempert's act on many occasions people have rushed the cabinet, and in order to get a look in have even cut the cloth from it.

"Always be sure of a big salary, at least three times as much as that obtained in England. Have signed contracts in English, and insist upon having in writing the stipulation only to do your show the same as you do in England. Make your contracts for a definite time without troubling about options, and get your money in paper at buying rate." In his strictures of native management and native audiences, Mr. Clempert doesn't allude to the Palacio Novedades, Buenos Aires, as that place is run on reasonable lines; but he has made exhaustive inquiries about other places, and trusts that every brother and sister artist will consider his information of value.

Imro Fox, the well-known magician, died at Utica, N.Y., on the 4th inst., at the age of sixty.

In an acrobatic turn at the Surrey on Friday, the 18th, one of the Cumberland Brothers, while attempting a double somersault, fell heavily to the stage. On his removal to Guy's Hospital, it was found that he had broken a collar-bone.

Merton and Rydon, the popular comedy duo, who have just returned from Australia and Africa, have been doing quite a lot of globe trotting. Leaving last May for Sydney, they returned to England at the end of November just for one week, thence to Africa and back, covering 42,000 miles in the round trip. They report a splendid time at Sydney, Melbourne, and Johannesburg.

La Belle Alva, the gipsy peasant girl, who made such a success at the London Pavilion in November last, opens again at that West-end house on Easter Monday. On her previous engagement her barefoot sand dance was so successful with Pavilion audiences that she was specially retained for a lengthened period by Mr. Frank Glenister. She has during the past week received an offer for the Continent.

At the moment of writing, the prospects of a fine Easter look particularly rosy, and the exodus of Londoners to daily in primrose paths or to listen to the murmuring swell of the sea should be prodigious. But the first public holiday of the year is also associated with the visit to the metropolis of crowds of country folk, and for their behoof managers and proprietors of variety theatres make a special effort at the provision of popular attractions. These for the most part used to be found in the return of comics and comedians from the theatres where pantomime has reigned, but with the shortening of the runs of these mixtures of fun and folly and frolic, the rule is by no means so absolute as it used to be.

The Palace Theatre, which promises one day to be the centre of a cosmopolitan variety circuit, relies mostly on its ante Easter attractions, with the addition of Horace Goldin, who will appear in new and puzzling illusions. Someone—a lady—once suggested to this famous conjurer that his show might gain in attractiveness if he talked. "No, madame," said he, with just a faint twinkle of humour in his eye, "remember the proverb, 'Silence is Goldin.'"

Easter Monday at the Tivoli brings back Harry Lauder after his successful American tour. His new songs will include "Queen among the heather," "The picnic," and "Breakfast in my bed on Sunday morning." Wilkie Bard also makes his first appearance after his Drury Lane pantomime success in new songs. An entirely novel feature of the Easter bill will be a Russian wordless play, entitled She Pays the Penalty, tried in the provinces during the week. Mark Sheridan, Ernest Shand, and others complete the strong bill.

Mr. George Robey, who made so popular an appeal during his last appearances at the Empire, will start a welcome return visit and an exclusive engagement there on Easter Monday. Hullo, London! continues on its triumphant way, and besides these attractions the new version of the delightful Empire ballet, now entitled East to West, is in full swing, with new dances for Mr. Fred Farren and Mlle. Lydia Kyasht, the latter introducing a special number, in which she is supported by M. Bolm.

An important engagement has been made for the Coliseum next Monday, in the person of Lafayette, aptly described as "The Man of Mystery." No more fitting or comprehensive title could be found for him, with his bewildering necromancy. His most effective items are "The Sculptor's Dream," "From Dust to Dust," "The Lion's Bride," and "Dr. Kemser; or, Solving the Great Negro Problem." The last is a surprise, in which Lafayette, in full view, paints a live and kicking coal-black negro into a semblance of the King, and then in a twinkling, and by some miraculous process, becomes the negro he is painting, while the real black is discovered in a hamper in the wings. "The Lion's Bride," too, is a daring and sensational illusion, written and invented by Lafayette, which deals with a story of the Orient. Huntley Wright and company, in The Little Father of the Wilderness; King's College Boys, Tom E. Finglass, Howard and Harris, the Boissets, in A Trip to the Continent; the Lancashire Singers, Marshall and Parr, the Four Jumels, and Mme. Ella Russell complete the Coliseum company.

The holiday programme at the London Hippodrome is of exceptional merit. It includes Miss Ada Reeve, with her sparkling songs; the Grotesques, in their merriest of burlesques; Mr. George Ali as a Buster Brown dog—a remarkably clever piece of comedy work; the police dogs of Paris, which have won the approval of leading detectives; Miss Hetty King, just returned from a successful American tour; Dan Lipton's company, in a vocal scena; Lydia and Amelys, French dancers; H. O. Wills, the comedian; and the Twelve Fezzans, daring acrobats from the Sahara.

The holiday programme directed by Mr. Blyth Pratt will be given twice on Easter Monday at the Oxford. Harry Randall, Ernest Shand, Phil Ray, Clarice Mayne, Arden and Abel, the Poluskis, Jack and Evelyn are among the principal turns on the very full bill.

At the Metropolitan the generous provision of holiday entertainment by Mr. Henri Gros includes the droll burlotta, Happy Holland, played by Jake Friedman and company, Viviana and company in The Toy Shop, and Mark Sheridan heads the comedians. Other turns are the Rawsons, Barry Lupino, Herbert Rule, and others.

Chelsea Palace audiences will welcome the return of Miss Madge Temple, Joe Peterman and company, Pick, Tholl, and Taylor, Angus Strong, Victor Widdicombe and company in Her Devonshire Dad, and several others.

Mr. B. P. Lucas, who since last Easter has added the Imperial Palace, Canning Town, to his circuit, is presenting at the Bedford on Monday My Fancy, Karno's Jail Birds, Stephen Adeson and company, the Man of Forty Faces, Marion Armitage, Tom Dunmore, and others.

The Empire, Camberwell, list, includes Fred Conquest and company, Fred Neiman, the Cameron Quartet, Jessica Brooke, the Royal Tokio Troupe, Cissie Dryden, and others.

The principal performers in the Easter programme of the suburban Moss-Stoll Empires are: Hackney.—Reano's Band, the Carmos, O'Gust (mimic), and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden. Holloway.—Harry Tate and company, in Fishing, Jessie Preston, Wilson and Waring, and the Five Vernons. New Cross.—Karno's Dandy Thieves, Leslie Brothers, and Gwennie Llewellyn. Stratford.—Empire Comedy Four, Lydia Yeamans, Oswald Williams, and Lupino Lane. Shepherd's Bush.—Arthur Roberts and company, Olga, Elgar, and Eli Hudson, and the Lyric Quartette.

The attractive holiday bill at the Standard will include Fred Maxwell and company, in The Girl I Love, Lowenwirth and Cohan, Jack Lorimer, May Mate, The Whittakers, Gicardo, Baby Vi Davis, Marion Armitage, Harry Maxam, Three Glenvilles, Bert and Ruby, Johnny Cecil, and several others.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MESSRS. FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER, who are the sole publishers of all Mr. Hermann Darewski, jun.'s, songs, have secured a very dainty number entitled "To welcome my Sadie to me." The pretty lyric is by Lester Barrett.

MARK SHERIDAN will shortly feature a new number from the pens of Arthur C. Findon and Hermann E. Darewski, jun.

ON Monday the great Metropolis will welcome the return to town of numbers of its favourite artists, who have since Boxing Night and earlier been amusing our country cousins in many a gorgeous "annual," and, pantomime being now a thing of the past, all the said artists, who but a short time since were supplied by Messrs. Francis and Day with their "plums" for Christmas, have again turned with one accord to the same source for "Easter Eggs," with which to delight and amuse their admirers. Needless to say, in every instance they have been supplied with œufs d'or from the best strains of those Minorcas of minstrelsy and Brahmas of brainy burdens who own allegiance to the "Chantecler of Charing Cross Road"—which, as Mr. Harry Randall would say, is "Sunday language for 'Cock of the Walk'"!

THAT fine ballad "If I had the world to give you," which Messrs. Francis and Day publish, has been acclaimed wherever heard as one of the finest songs of the present time, and it is already one of the greatest trade successes of late years. It is by J. Hayden Clarendon. It has been arranged as a cornet solo by Warwick Williams.

AT the London Hippodrome on Monday Mr. Dan Lipton's "Songland" will be presented. It will be found to be the last word in song exploiting, set in a frame of dazzling splendour, and enhanced by unique electrical and scenic effects. Miss Eva Kelland, the charming principal girl from the Lyceum, is sure of a welcome from her myriad admirers, and among the numbers heard will be "Take me back to Pompeii" and "Gretna Green," by C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, and "In my bouquet," by Dan Lipton and J. A. Glover-Kind. All three are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

AMONG the many bright particular stars that will shine in the Oxford's constellation, none will be more welcome than that delightful artist Miss Clarice Mayne, who (once more with the assistance of Mr. Jas. W. Tate) will delight her audiences with the great American song success entitled "Take me up with you, dearie." It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day. The gifted comedienne will also essay an entirely new song by Fred W. Leigh, the title of which is "Put on your tat-ta, little girlie."

MR. GEORGE H. ELLIOTT, who, at the Empire, Portsmouth, has once again been adding to his laurels, has just acquired a song by Bert Lee and A. J. Lawrance, entitled "I want to be there if there's a girl there," which has been secured for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day, who also are adding to their catalogue yet another ditty of the chocolate-coloured coon, written by himself in collaboration with the aforesaid Bert Lee and A. J. Lawrance. The title is "Hullo! my dandy!"

A SONG that will be talked of is Mr. George D'Albert's new one from the pens of Weston, Barnes, and Maurice Scott. The title is "Don't do away with all the piers (peers)." Messrs. Francis and Day are publishing it.

MR. WHIT CUNLIFFE'S new song, "Follow me, girls!" is also by R. P. Weston, F. J. Barnes, and Maurice Scott, and will be likewise issued by the firm of Francis and Day.

AT the London Coliseum during the forthcoming Easter week the fine band of the gigantic house will be heard, under the leadership of Mr. Louis La Rondelle, in Felix Godard's quite new two-step "The Monkey's Serenade," which Messrs. Francis and Day have just acquired, and which will be furnished to musical directors after Easter. The whole of the music to be played between the various turns has also been selected from Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue by the talented musical director.

A PRETTY number about to see the light, and which will bear the imprint of Messrs. Francis and Day, is entitled "Just as the crow flies." It is by Harry Staunton, Donovan Meher, and Hermann E. Darewski.

To the already lengthy list of noteworthy waltzes which help to make Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue the weighty tome it is, has been added yet another, composed by Emil Meene, and entitled "Dawn."

MR. JOE ARCHER'S newest song "Don't take me away from the girls" is from the practised pens of Charles Collins and Fred Murray, who have also written for Mr. Archer a quaint ditty, entitled "Oh, my friends!" The former has already been accepted for publication by Messrs. Francis and Day

IT used to be "Handsome Jack" whenever the name of the popular Mr. Barnes, of the Adelphi, was mentioned, and now it threatens to be "Fascinating Fred" on the numerous occasions when our Mr. Barnes of the variety stage is discussed, especially by the members of the fair sex. At the Empire, Hull, he has been going great guns with the fine song from his own pen, entitled "The Scapegrace of the Family." It is published by Messrs. Francis and Day. Mr. Barnes is booked till the year 1817.

THE Manchester Press has been loud in its praises of Mr. Charles R. Whittle in his song "I'm Dunn—Mister Dunn," in which the comedian again portrays one of those delightful character studies of an apparently simple and child-like Yorkshireman in London, who appears to be a likely pigeon to be easily plucked by the wily sharps of the Metropolis, but who are circumvented and foiled at every turn by the man from the North, who is evidently a distant relative of that artful, wight Billy Muggins. The song, which has been already placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day, is by Edgar Bateman and Charles Ridgwell, the latter of whom is responsible not only for "Billy Muggins," but also for many of the most renowned songs of the past few years, songs both humorous and serious.

MISS JULIE JEWEL, the new chorus vocalist, has in study for immediate production two big numbers, "I might have known" and "One word—Yes," by Fred Carr and Arthur Parry, the well-known Liverpool composer.

ANY song which touches a domestic chord is always sure of a hearty welcome, and in "Take Great Care of the Baby" Mr. Alf. Rick registers another winner. Messrs. Levy and Cardwell were the first to feature it in their Hop 'o my Thumb pantomime, and its outstanding success led to its immediate publication by Price and Reynolds, who, having made it a free song, anticipate a record success. Professional copies are now ready, and enterprising chorus singers will write to 41, Berners-street without delay.

MR. LEONARD TEEL has just purchased for early use a novel number, entitled "No one can cure me," from the pen of Mr. Wilfred Chandler, composed by John McColl.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE HIPPODROME.

The training of dogs for the tracking of criminals is a subject of growing interest to the police of Paris and London, and from the former city on Monday came Mlle. Arlette Clary, to give a demonstration of the cleverness of a trio of canines specially trained to hunt down the Apache. The three animals—Wolf, Perlot, and Max—were put through their paces by Mlle. Clary before a strongly interested Hippodrome audience on Monday. Wolf is at present a bit of a novice but quite enthusiastic in his work, and showing all the sagacity necessary to become an adept in his tracking. Perlot, a bullhound, is a ferocious cuss, and as a realistic exhibition of his prowess might have resulted in injury to the gentleman taking the part of the Apache he was muzzled. Max, the cleverest of the trio, scales a wall 8ft. 10in. high, and can keep in "touch" with a criminal as well as defend his mistress. The dogs have been trained to refuse food from strangers, this precaution preventing danger from poison. Max winds up the show by jumping through the window of a house and holding up a burglar until the police arrive.

A really funny animal is Sport, the Buster Brown dog presented by Mr. George Ali, whose performance is as interesting and amusing as it is clever. He again appears in Papa's Day Off, and is well supported by Master James Hollom and Mr. Fred Grove. Miss Louie Freear was unable to appear on Monday, and her place was taken by the Brothers Egbert, who were funny "on the carpet" and under it. Capital clowning and clever acrobatism were never more happily associated. The Grotesques return with their skit on a village concert. Master Lupino Lane—quite a big boy now—need not wear baby collars any longer for his really clever acrobatic dance; and Cruickshanks, musical jester, is responsible for wit and drollery.

Miss Ada Reeve is delightful in her song "When Richard the First was King," which she sings with wonderful spirit and entrain. She is vivacity itself, too, as Madame Pirouette, and finally revives her famous song "Sue," supplemented with a dainty dance. There is only one Ada Reeve, and who can compass her versatility? Miss Amelia Bingham, in her "Moments from Great Plays," chooses scenes from La Tosca, Madame Sans-Gêne, and A School for Husbands. In the first-mentioned play we have the murder of Scarpia, a piece of tragedy to which the commanding style and superb presence and diction of the actress do complete justice. The fun of the scene between the Duchess of Dantzic and the Queen of Naples is rather overlarded with business, worked up probably for country audiences; but, apart from this, the wordy warfare between the two women is very effectively done. The mounting in all the scenes is elaborate and artistic.

A musical turn that appeals to cultured ears is exploited by the Miles-Stavordale Quintet, consisting of harp, guitar, and mandolines. They choose for their first selection that well-known song "The Admiral's Broom," by no means a commonplace selection, and wind with a most expressive rendering of "Love's old sweet song," with wonderful vocal effects, which evoke enthusiastic applause. The Miles-Stavordale combination in its refined and cultured performance affords an example of the great advance music has made in the variety theatres. Other turns in the bill are the Black Diamonds, and Great and Good, grotesques with a side-splitting act.

TOTTENHAM PALACE

Despite rival counter attractions in the way of an almost adjoining picture palace and skating rink, Manager T. S. Mayne contrives with little effort and generally good programmes to command a substantial following. Local patrons will long find a little corner in their conversation for That Dreadful Detective, with Mr. E. D. Nicholls filling the title-rôle As Detective Inspector Dripping he is screamingly funny, and scores point after point. The company enter into the spirit of burlesque in whole-hearted style. Next, perhaps, in popular favour here are the Rawsons, a duo of young entertainers still in their teens. They should hold their own with the best in their line. Clever pianoforte manipulation, banjo playing, and charming vocalism find prominence in their varied act. They are possessed of voices which blend sweetly together. Master Rawson's particular winner is a whistling monologue. The title, "Life's Stages," itself suggests the theme. "The cotton picker's lullaby," given local colour by an effective banjo accompaniment, is another feature of their repertoire.

Those who have seen the Martineks are hardly likely to do the "bar act" when their name occurs in a programme. Their "Rag Doll" dance is the most perfect piece of dummy simulation that we know. Comedy juggling is the forte of the Dardinis, who are past masters in the art. As a smart dancer with a finished, well-timed step Master Cliff Diamond quickly gains the good graces of his audience. The Five X Rays in their "mad acrobating" are very smart; and Wilson Hallett, jolly of face, lets you know that he is going to please you at the outset. Armed in every sense of the word with his life-like figure of a baby, he sets fond mothers screaming with laughter by his imitation of certain phases of domestic bliss (?). Miss Ethel Stephenson is blessed with a striking contralto voice, which she "lets go" tastefully in Tosti's "Good-bye," and the Sisters Grovini display remarkable elasticity of limb in graceful acrobatics and tricky tumbling. A choice selection of pictures completes the bill.

SHOREDITCH OLYMPIA.

Many interesting items are being presented at the above hall this week. Foremost on the bill appears the name of Mr. John Lawson, who is appearing with his company in his latest production, The Miracle, presented in eight scenes, all excellent examples of brushwork, and each making a beautiful stage picture. The company, too, is one of high capabilities. Mr. John Lawson plays with power and distinction as the blind Talmudist, Joseph Emmanuel, his acting being intensely touching in parts. Mr. F. N. Grimstone, a young actor, plays with cleverness the part of Cohen Goldstein. Mr. F. Joynson Powell, too, in his delineation of Lorenzo Vacheli, plays with the callousness due to the part, and is very successful. Mr. Geo. Bushra, a darkey, does wonderfully well as Wallah; and Mr. M. Cohen is satisfactory as the reader. Miss Lucille Sidney plays prettily, and with charming effect as Ena Leveson. The piece is staged in Mr. John Lawson's usual lavish style.

Mr. Edward Lauri and Miss May Beattie score a decided success in their musical comedy protean mélange, entitled In Her Boudoir. Both artists have capital voices, and use them with good effect in their various numbers. In the piece Miss Beattie assumes male disguise, and Mr. Edward Lauri dresses as one of the opposite sex, the result being highly diverting. The Four Rosebuds, smart vocalists and dancers, sing "In Jungle Town." The telepathy act of the Days is popular. The lady, blindfolded, tells in a mysterious manner, the nature of anything presented to her brother by any of the audience. Baby Myrtle Grove, an extremely clever child, should have a brilliant future. She sings "Mr. Johnson" and another song in capital style, and dances well. Miss Jean Wallace sings, "I've got rings on my fingers" and "Mr. Man in the moon" with taste, and dances with care and skill. The Five Glima Boys, in an exhibition of wrestling, show in an effective and convincing manner some methods of self-defence against hooligans. Their distinctly novel turn has an enthusiastic reception.

Mr. Thomas Brooklyn and company appear in their farcical absurdity, Algy's Advertisement. Mr. John E. Conan, comedian, sings a dame song in good style, and is deservedly applauded; and Mr. Revill Hall tells in verse of the troubles caused by a live electric wire. The Bioscope brings an interesting performance to a close with attractive pictures. Mr. Fred A. Vernall discharges his duties as manager here with marked ability.

ILFORD HIPPODROME.

The programme of entertainment being submitted here this week is fully in accord with the popular taste, and Mr. G. Wells, the courteous and genial manager, is to be heartily congratulated on his choice selection of artists. Special mention must be made of Lew Lake and his comedy company in their humorous drama My Pal Jerry, which is brimful of screamingly funny situations. An excellent "turn" is Genst and Newlyn, the Hebrew and soubrette, who give some clever step-dancing and sing a novel song, "Levi, my Yiddisher cowboy." The Sisters Mawdsley, juvenile duettists and speciality dancers, come in for hearty applause, and their song "On the banks of the Rhine" is an excellent number. Another feature of their performance is their neat and dainty dancing. Martinet and Wallis give a very novel and clever musical act, the saxophone duet "Alice, where art thou?" being warmly applauded, as also is their rendering of "The old folks at home," on an unique instrument, composed of tubular rattles.

A funny vaudeville tit-bit is cleverly played by Newham and Latimer; and Miss Pauline Potter is a dainty comedienne. Geo. Bendon, the white coon, sings well, and his "catchy" number, "Post yourself to me," is pleasing. Celeste, the marvellous king of the slack wire, gives a very thrilling performance, introducing some wonderful balancing feats, a special feature being his climbing of a ladder balanced on the wire whilst swinging. The ever-popular Six Lancashire Lasses come in for rounds of applause for exquisite singing and clever clog-dancing. Some amusing pictures on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope terminate an excellent programme.

KILBURN EMPIRE.

Mr. C. Foster-Marner, the able manager at this cosy resort, has a programme for the current week which is well up to the average, and is attracting capital audiences. Mrs. John Lawson in the thrilling sketch Sally in our Alley is proving an immense draw, and the playlet is causing quite a sensation. Mrs. Lawson as Hazel Grove, the model, plays with great force and intensity. She is supported by an excellent company, and the staging and effects are on a lavish and artistic scale. Clifford Morgan is a vocalist of great ability, and scores heavily with his contribution to the programme.

A very acceptable turn is that given by the Boys of England, a tuneful lot of young fellows, who sing melodiously and look very smart in their uniforms. They were accorded a fine reception, and might well have extended their turn had time permitted. Hal Forde, always well supplied with good songs, is particularly happy just now in the possession of two winning numbers. The first, "The slide," is a diverting tale of the various people who meet with misfortune on a slide; the other is "My night out to-night," and Mr. Forde makes it go with a fine swing, the chorus being readily sung by the audience. David Poole provides a most amusing turn with his ventriloquial sketch, introducing a deal of diverting patter; Miss Louise Zetland is a charming vocalist, who sings with great taste and skill, and is greatly applauded; and Miss Bessie Butt, fresh from her pantomime triumphs, is scoring with "One of the girls," which she sings in a rousing manner and looks very smart in the latest and most immaculate of male attire.

A striking song-scena, entitled The Gainsboro' Girl, is presented by Miss Dora Lind, who sings very sweetly and looks a veritable picture amid the capital setting which surrounds her. Miss Lind sings "The Holy City" with a very artistic background representing the Eastern city, and the whole reflects the highest credit on Mr. Richard Frank, who, unhappily, is totally blind, but has mounted and arranged the production. Miss Lind is to be congratulated on her artistic show. Virto and Venita prove themselves to be accomplished musicans, playing a variety of instruments with great skill; Fred Karno's company is here with The Bailiff, and this merry concoction goes with a swing from start to finish. Perkins is impersonated by Mr. Harold Wellesley, a fine comedian, who is scoring heavily in the part. The Bioscope concludes. Mr. Horace Sheldon and his orchestra, as usual, put in good work.

PUTNEY HIPPODROME.

On the occasion of our visit to this popular house this week, an audience to delight any manager's heart was assembled. Evidently out to enjoy themselves, they gave unstinted applause, but didn't fail to give utterance to their feelings when the pathetic verged on the ludicrous. A strong programme has been arranged, including The Romanys and also Pride of Regiment. Both sketches have been fully described in our columns already, and it is only necessary now to congratulate the artists engaged on the result of their efforts.

In Pride of Regiment Miss Eugenie Vernie sustains the part of the Mother, Mr. George Howard that of the Father, and Mr. Neville Graham the Son. Unqualified praise may be given to the really admirable acting of Miss Vernie. The way the Mother handles "father" in the early part of the sketch, soothing him and pleading the cause of the scamp of a son, makes an excellent contrast to the blaze of anger which comes later. Mr. George Howard as the Father depicted faithfully all the old soldier's "pride of regiment." Mr. Neville Graham as the Son had only a small part, but it was excellently rendered.

Moore and Harcourt, in their comedy act, Saving the Situation, go well, and are a welcome feature. They are bright, lively, and full of go. The Four Mexicans give a clever and particularly interesting exhibition of lariat-throwing, and the audiences are giving a great reception to the feat of turning a 60ft. lariat. Other items are provided by the Lyndens, Doris Warsaw, the Four Cecilians, and Henry Haytor. The music is under the able direction of Mr. Thomas Kearney.

THE PARAGON.

For this week Mr. Jack E. Cohen is submitting a most interesting programme, and in scrutinising the list we find names rather new to us. Among them is Miss Agnes Ellis, who is certainly an acquisition to the halls, for she possesses a sweet soprano voice, which is heard to great advantage in that delightful song "Carmena." The young artist is also quite at home in humorous numbers at the piano. Another new comer is Miss Lily Hayes, who sings a couple of bright little songs, and concludes with a quick step-dance which is particularly neat and smart. The Three Dixons (Nelly, Lily, and May), billed as champion bâton swingers, banjoists, singers, and dancers, show considerable versatility, and get a rousing reception when engaged in an extremely tricky dance accompanied by them on banjoes. Miss Katie Scott Blair, though quite a youngster, dances delightfully, her exhibition in the toe style being distinctly good.

The Two Anartos, smart comedians, continuously amuse with endless quips and gags, their style being quite original. They have a good song in "We did enjoy ourselves in London," for which they get an excellent reception. Marguerite Ismay and Coons are a bright and well-dressed turn, their fine dancing throughout being a great feature. The coons are three pretty young girls, who make a fine stage picture. Mr. Fred Russell, a ventriloquist who is as humorous as he is smart, is most entertaining with his new chatter and business, both of which are greatly enjoyed. Miss Lily Eyton, a pretty little lady, sings daintily a tuneful little Chinee song, "My Ching, Ching Loo"; her second contribution is that tuneful ballad which is rapidly becoming popular, "If I could lock you in my heart," which she renders with much expression.

The Schaffer Four's smart and bright act is certainly full of surprises, and many properties are used, the opening scene being quite novel. The quartette, who dance and sing, are also good musicians, their finale being well rewarded with cheers. Mr. Bruce Green, a good comedian, portrays the Dame character well, his "Ballet" song being extremely funny. Mr. Harry Claff and Miss Alice Tremayne, in their burlesque on pantomime, viz., The Demon and the Fairy, supply an interesting few minutes, their songs "I wonder if it's true" and "Queen of Love" being perfectly rendered.

Miss Phœbe Mercer and company, including Mr. Frank Harrison and Mr. Mark Joyce, are playing The Interviewer, a new comedy sketch. Miss Mercer, as a journalist who calls on Dr. Davis, a great scientist, and finds him in his bath, gets much amusement from the character, which is greatly enjoyed. Other good turns are Mr. Arthur Royce, Gladys Nelson, San Remo Girls, Leonard Teel, the quaintest possible impersonator of downtrodden woman, and Joe Elvin and company in that drollest of sketches The Hansom Cabby. The orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Kennedy Russell.

CONSUL NOT DEAD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you allow me to correct the erroneous report of Consul's death, referred to in your last Saturday's issue? Consul, I am glad to inform you, is alive and well, and is this week astonishing and delighting thousands of the inhabitants of Wigan by his wonderful performances in the local Hippodrome. The same evening that a London paper announced the "Death of Consul in America," my disclaimer appeared in the Star, and the next morning in the Morning Leader.

I shall feel obliged if you will publish this letter in your next issue, as the statement made by you last week has already led several managers who have booked Consul to write asking how I can keep the dates.—Faithfully yours,

HAROLD L. HILLIARD,
Director of Consul Tour

MR. WALTER REYNOLDS, the well-known publisher and impresario (of Price and Reynolds, 41, Berners-street) has been fortunate enough to secure the publishing rights of several new sparkling numbers, written and composed by Miss Wodnil, and now in the press.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

Messrs. B. Feldman and Co., who have eclipsed records in the sale of "Somewhere," are unremitting in their efforts to find fresh fields to conquer, and their consistent endeavours have certainly been crowned with success if the list of new productions successfully exploited by the variety profession since Christmas be any criterion. The daily applications to the firm for songs from artists of repute all over the country have been eloquent testimony to the quality of the numbers supplied by the Feldman clientèle for professional use.

Miss Ada Reeve, at the Hippodrome next week, will produce no less than three new numbers, all published by B. Feldman and Co., to wit: "Oh, boys, I've seen you there!" by John P. Harrington and John Neat; "Nobody knows—nobody cares," by Chas. K. Harris; and a new version, specially written for Miss Reeve by John P. Harrington, of Hough, Adams, and Howard's famous American song, "I wonder who's kissing her now?" Furthermore, Miss Reeve has also in preparation yet another Feldman publication, "Foolish questions," by William Lee and A. Baldwin Sloane.

During the current week, at the London Pavilion and Walthamstow alike, plaudits loud and long have rewarded Mr. Arthur Aldridge for his masterly rendering, not only of his already popular ballad, "The Garden of Roses," but also for Feldman and Co.'s other song of sentiment, "I'm longing for one sight of you," which was an instantaneous and complete success. In both of these numbers the Arthur-street firm have two new winners far above the average. Mr. Aldridge, at Southsea next week, will produce a third Feldman number, "Mary, you're a big girl now."

Mr. G. H. Elliott, the famous chocolate-coloured coon, has made a prodigious success at the Empire, Portsmouth, this week, with "Moon, moon, moon," by Percy Edgar, Alf. J. Lawrance, and Harry Gifford, and as his other successful new song is entitled "By the light of the silvery moon," this clever artist may be said to be pretty well monopolising "Luna's pale orb" just now. Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. are the fortunate publishers of both these latest Elliott winners, and as this clever artist always has an enormous "following," they are to be heartily felicitated on this latest addition to the number of star artists singing their songs this season.

Miss Cissie Curlette, who opens at the American, New York, under engagement with William Morris, in some six weeks' time, will specially feature three popular Feldman songs on the other side, to wit, "Molly O'Morgan," "We can't go into the parlour," and "The green, green ribbon," all of which should suit this versatile artist to perfection for American exploitation.

Miss Helene Mohr is creating a veritable furore at the Camden Theatre and Standard, Pimlico, this week, with two of the Feldman successes, "It's the Alpine dress you're wearing" and "Molly O'Morgan," and her auditors at both houses heartily aid the fair singer to sing the catchy choruses attached to each of these delightful numbers.

Little Bella Terry, who made such a hit at the Coliseum recently with Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's pretty number, "When the school bell is ringing," will produce the same tuneful number at the Shepherd's Bush Empire next week, and at all her other engagements. This is one of the Feldman publications.

Mr. Fred Barnes returns to Leeds next week, where he made an enormous success on his last visit. He is taking there the delightful number which Messrs. Feldman and Co. are specially featuring, "I'd rather be beside the fireside," and anticipates this will be greatly to their liking, as Mr. Barnes thinks this the greatest chorus song he has ever exploited.

No alfresco artist should fail to secure Von Tilzer's big Pierrot Book containing fifty of the recent successes of such star artists as Sam Mayo, Fragson, Harry Ford, Fred Earle, Ernest Shand, Harry Champion, Whit Cunliffe, Arthur Reece, and others. With such a wide selection as offered in this book a large répertoire can be selected to suit any audience. Von Tilzers are issuing this book solely for the use of alfresco artists, and they undertake to forward same by return of post on receipt of one shilling.

Miss Gertie Gitana has just produced a new song entitled "When the summer days are o'er, Anna Gray," which has proved an instantaneous success, and promises to become as big a favourite as the ever-popular "Dear Louise." Von Tilzers have secured the song for publication

Arthur Reece is singing two excellent songs entitled "Good-bye bachelor days" and "Oh, Joe, I want to go to the picture show," both of which are received with hearty applause. Von Tilzers are the publishers.

Ernest Shand is featuring two of Von Tilzers' songs with enormous success, "That broke up the party" and "Poor Noah Moore," both written and composed by Worton David and Bert Lee.

"THE CHINESE IDOL."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Henry Gold, Produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, March 21.

Mr. Shiller ..... Mr. Frank Lilliput
Mr. Clapton ..... Mr. Fowler Thatcher
Mrs. Ananias Smith ..... Miss Doris Laine
Lady Henpeck ..... Miss Lily Langley

The numberless farces which have been founded upon the impersonation of lay figures have been added to this week by the production of the sketch named above. This time it is a Chinese image that is the subject of comic treatment. One of the little gods from the Flowery Land has been bought by a dealer in curios, who purposes disposing of it at a substantial profit. He accordingly advertises his purchase for sale before it has been sent home, and there is a brisk demand for the article by post, one lady expressing her determination to acquire it at any cost, even if she has to fight for it. A lady arrives to take the idol away, and in order to avoid a charge of fraud the dealer is constrained to deck himself in characteristic raiment and pose as the image. The customary diverting incidents occur, and, despite many pranks played by the idol, the lady decides to purchase it. Her intention, however, is frustrated by the arrival of another member of the fair sex, who flourishes a dog-whip, and a tussle for the possession of the figure ends in its clothes being pulled to pieces and the deception revealed.

The quaint personality of Mr. Frank Lilliput, a diminutive comedian with a penetrating voice, was particularly adapted to the embodiment of the idol, which he made extremely funny. The dialogue is not overburdened with humour, but he made the most of it, and his antics caused frequent laughter. Mr. Fowler Thatcher gave to the rôle of Mr. Clapton, the dealer's friend, who undertakes to interview the clients, the benefit of his long experience, and worked up the fun cleverly. Miss Lily Langley acted in light comedy style as Lady Henpeck, and Miss Doris Laine was properly aggressive as Mrs. Ananias Smith.

"THE RECKONING."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Ellen Lancaster-Wallis and Florence Kirkham, Produced at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, March 21.

John Daunton ..... Mr. C. Douglas Cox
Pete Billings ..... Mr. Creagh Henry
Tim Ryly ..... Mr. George Bobran
Blazer ..... Mr. S. J. Warmerton
Joe Wyld ..... Mr. S. F. Horn
Arthur Derenham ..... Mr. Charles Weir

Several clever comedicttas already stand to the credit of Mrs. Lancaster-Wallis, but the above-named playlet, in which the famous actress has collaborated with Miss Florence Kirkham, is of an entirely dramatic character. The effect of the title is rather discounted by the fact that there are three existing plays bearing the same name; but if the title is old, the theme is certainly freshly treated. Though the cast boasts not a single lady character, the feminine interest is conspicuous, and makes an immediate appeal. It intrudes itself into the log-cabin of a mining camp in Colorado on the eve of Christmas Day. Hospitality is craved and granted to a stranger who enters worn out with hunger and fatigue. The miners' kindness is ill repaid by the man, who, after eating and drinking his fill, is invited to a game at cards, and is caught with aces up his sleeve. The "boys" would fain lynch the cheat, but John Daunton, the "boss" of the camp, has recognised in him a scion of nobility named Arthur Derenham, who in the days gone by had ruined his daughter. For years the old man had preserved the portrait of his girl's betrayer, hoping that he might some day confront him, and at last the chance for a reckoning has come. Waving the "boys" aside, he claims the man for his own, and relates the story of his daughter's shame. He scorns to take an advantage, and offers Derenham the choice of two revolvers, one only of which is loaded. Derenham makes his selection, but when the signal to fire is only half given he pulls the trigger without any result. He is thus at the mercy of his opponent, who ruthlessly fires, and Derenham "hands in his checks."

The cast, of course, was composed entirely of men, who made a most picturesque group. The lead was taken by Mr. C. Douglas Cox, who as the sturdy and inflexible Yorkshireman John Daunton acted unostentatiously, but with convincing force, the touching lines being delivered with eloquent elocution. Mr. Charles Weir, though a little too rough-spoken, looked the character of the aristocratic ne'er-do-well, and his agonised expression during the recital of his wrong-doing was well assumed. Excellent impersonations of the other miners were given by the actors concerned, Mr. S. J. Warmerton being particularly effective in a fiery outbreak when Blazer discovers he has been cheated at cards. The little piece received close attention at the hands of the audience, who twice recalled the principals at the end.

The Bishop of London conducted a service at the Paragon on Good Friday at 7.30 p.m.. All seats were free, and there was a great attendance.

MUSIC HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS LILY VINE.

Starting her career when quite a child, Miss Lily Vine, the clever little principal with Bonnie Goodwin's Picks, appeared first at private concerts in mimicry of different well-known music-hall artists. Her professional début was made in speciality songs and dances in the pantomime Dick Whittington at the Elephant and Castle, where the following year found her doing similar work in Puss in Boots. Back again for the third year at the Elephant with Mr. Ernest Norris, she made a distinct hit by singing to the principal boy from the gallery, in addition to her speciality acts. She then went on tour with Mr. Norris, playing Cupid in Puss in Boots. This was followed by a short experience of the music halls with song and dance.

Miss Vine then returned to the theatres. One Thursday night, while sitting in the circle at the Elephant and Castle, Mr. Ernest Norris asked her if she knew an Irish song and dance, as he wanted her to do one on the Monday. She neither knew an Irish song or reel, but told Mr. Norris she would learn one for Monday, and although she had only the Saturday in which to accomplish the task, she mastered three verses and chorus of the song. "I prayed fervently that something would happen," says Miss Vine, "as I heard the overture being played, simply because I suddenly failed to remember one word. Well, my prayers were answered, for when they started to raise the fireproof curtain, it would not move an inch, so we did not play that night. On the Tuesday I did my Irish song and dance satisfactorily."

Subsequently, Miss Vine went on tour with Tommy Atkins, playing Little Jack, and following that came a part in Robinson Crusoe on tour. Then she once more turned to the music halls, and was engaged with Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies, being called upon at 4.30 in the evening to open at the South London at 6.55, then Holborn Empire, and back to the South, working four turns. Miss Vine had only seen the act once previously, but she accomplished twenty-six shows that week, as may be said to have had a fair initiation. She has been with the act as principal ever since—now two and a half years. Miss Vine, it may be added, was born in London, and has just passed her nineteenth birthday.

"COCK-A-DOODLE-DOO"!

A Satirical Sketch, in One Scene, by Mr. Andrew Stanley, Produced at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, on Monday, March 21.

Theodore ..... Mr. W. Lazard
Arabella ..... Miss Dorothy Vernon
Christabel ..... Miss M. Sadie
Marmaduke ..... Mr. Arthur Stanley

The belief that Mr. Stanley's sketch, with its unusual title, had something to do with a farmyard, was justified on its production on Monday night at the end of a capital programme of variety turns. Theodore is a Brobdignagian rooster, described in the bill as "an audacious chin-tickler." Arabella is a duck of gargantuan proportions; Christabel a "broody hen" of equal proportions; and Marmaduke a poodle of the familiar stage type. The scene in which "they have their exits and their entrances" is a chicken-run. Though these big birds have a good deal to say to one another, and no reference is made to M. Rostand's famous play, yet one is driven to the conclusion that it is meant to be a skit on the Chantecler play in Paris. During the quarter of an hour or so that it lasts one gathers that the rooster has a penchant for the hen, and that the poodle has a lurking affection for the duck. Their conversations about their own private affairs, arising as they do over the coquetry of the duck with the rooster, the consequent jealousy of the hen, and the escapades of the poodle, who, in revenge, feasts upon a brood of young chicks, as well as some allusions to matters appertaining to the human family, are all very entertaining. It is altogether a novel little sketch, and one upon which an infinity of pains has been expended. The scene, which is a most effective one, is painted by Mr. A. G. Betts; the new music is by Mr. Hugo Reynold, the chef d'orchestre; and the poultry dresses were designed and carried out in the wardrobe of the theatre under the direction of Mrs. Peter Davey, wife of the managing-director, under whose guidance the piece was produced.

SUNDAY DEFENCE COMMITTEE.

At the last meeting of the Committee, held recently at the Variety Artists' Federation Offices, Mr. Clemart in the chair, the following other members of the committee were present: Messrs. Robson Paige, Duncan Young, Charles Coborn, C. Jesson, L.C.C., and the hon. secretary, William Johnson.

The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were duly adopted. A large number of replies were read from clerks of county and borough councils with reference to the regulations suggested by the Committee in regard to Sunday entertainments. Many of these replies intimated that Sunday entertainments were not permitted; that licences were issued for six days only; and, in other cases, that the views of the Sunday Defence Committee would be considered.

The following additions to the list of vice-presidents have been received: The Archbishop of Canterbury; the Bishop of London, the Bishop of Croydon, Canon H. Scott-Holland, D.D. (St. Paul's), Canon H. B. Ottley (Secretary to the Imperial Sunday Alliance), Mr. Wilkie Bard, Mr. James Carew, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, Mr. H. Gosling, L.C.C., Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. Harry Lauder, Mr. Ian Robertson, Mr. R. A. Roberts, and Mr. Eugene Stratton.

The objects of the Committee were revised, and now are intended to apply to entertainments given on Good Friday and Christmas Day as well as Sundays. Copies of the objects of the Committee have been circulated throughout the United Kingdom.

The chairman and secretary of the Committee were appointed, in response to an invitation, to attend a meeting to be held in the Town Hall, Reading, on April 12, on the Sunday-labour question. The Mayor of Reading will preside, and among other representative men who will speak is the Bishop of Oxford. An invitation to send a speaker to a meeting in Manchester on April 4 has also been received by the Committee.

It is stated that there are about 120 theatres, music-halls and picture palaces now open on Sundays in London, and the Sunday Defence Committee regard the present state of affairs as a very serious menace to the security members of the profession have previously enjoyed in regard to Sunday as a day of rest. The Committee are still considering the advisability of calling a meeting of the whole profession, and they will doubtless invite the most strenuous resistance to the developments which have taken place and which are likely to spread. It is also a serious matter for the London County Council, as there is no doubt but that their regulations are being evaded, and that, in their present form, they are quite inadequate for the purpose.

The Sunday Defence Committee are accumulating evidence upon the practices now in vogue, and they invite anyone employed on Sunday for these entertainments to furnish the secretary with the conditions of employment imposed. Letters and copies of agreements have been received, and the following is a sample, the original of which will be supplied for the inspection of the London County Council:—

"Theatres Committee.

"Sir,—In view of the London County Council's decision that picture theatres must not be open on Sundays except for charitable purposes, it will be necessary for me to make new agreements with the staff, by which the weekly salary will be paid for six days only, with extra for Sundays, upon which day no employee will be asked to work unless voluntarily desirous of doing so. Any employee not wishing to work on any particular Sunday must give notice to the manager not later than the previous Thursday.

"Your wages, including Sunday, have hitherto been 40s. per week. In future they will be 28s. per week, with 12s. extra for Sunday work for every Sunday you wish to work.

"If you are agreeable to continue in your position under the altered conditions, please sign the enclosed agreement and return to the manager.

(Signed) "————."

From this notice it will be seen that the proprietor fixes the rate of pay for Sunday, and the employee would thus be in the employ of the proprietor on that day, and it is obviously a violation of Clause 2 of the London County Council regulations, which state that "the . . . licensee or his servants will have nothing to do with the arrangements for the concert" (i.e., the engagement of artists or employees, etc. Moreover, it is clear that the amount deducted from the weekly wage for Sunday work (12s.) is altogether out of proportion to the week-day rate, and shows the methods resorted to to comply with the London County Council regulations. In this case several employees refused these terms and were dismissed.

The London County Council have already asked for copies of the agreements between the licensee and the society or funds whose name is used for Sunday entertainments, and also for a statement of accounts. It may be possible, when these particulars are furnished, to discover whether, as is rumoured, many societies and funds have lent their names on sharing terms, that is, they take 25 per cent. of the gross receipts. This arrangement is contrary to the London County Council regulations, as it leaves the licensee in control and gives him an incentive, by way of trade and personal gain, to open on Sundays. The statement of accounts will also show now much "charity" there is in the agreements.

"Won't you come rinking?" is the name of a new number sung this week by Miss Ray Wallace at the Manchester Hippodrome, and the refrain is already being whistled "all over the town." It is going to rank amongst the season's catchiest songs.

Its authoress, Miss Gabrielle Wodnil, has written both words and music. She is better known in variety circles as Hilarie Hayden.

Miss Wodnil, who started dramatic journalism in her teens, is one of the youngest and most versatile of our song writers. For some time she "ghosted" songs. On one of them becoming universally popular, she decided to publish under her own name.

"Brunette or Blonde," written for and sung by Maurice Farkoa (published by Messrs. Ascherberg, Hopwood, and Crew) is a favourite concert number, and "Fifine found a farm" (of which a star artist has acquired the sole rights), a dainty, simple life song with an arrestive, melodious refrain, is in Miss Wodnil's most light-hearted vein.

Some beautiful films have been shown at the St. George's Hall, Belfast, including The Galley Slave, The Child Benefactor, Father's Baby Boy, &c. Mr. Harry Algar, a first-class comedy juggler, appears at each performance.

An attractive programme of animated pictures is presented nightly at the Theatre Royal, Ryde. This week the chief films are the Life of Washington, A Telepathic Warning, The Human Ape, and Nick Carter, Detective, in the episode of The Double. The programme is varied by songs in character by Chris Masters.

The picture shows at the Bridlington Royal Victoria Rooms, which had to be suspended three weeks ago in order that a fireproof erection might be constructed to house the film apparatus, were renewed on Monday evening, when Mr. Palmer was rewarded with a full house. The principal film is a very fine Gaumont, The Story of Adolf Beck. The other notable pictures are The Rivals, and a most laughable one entitled The Motor Cycle.

MUSIC HALL HOME SHILLING FUND.

4,001 SHILLINGS.

As was arranged last year, a solid gold medal will be presented by The Era to the collector who obtains the largest amount for the Fund up to March 31, 1910, the lists closing on that date.

RINKING GOSSIP AND NOTICES.

A Pattern for all Rink Managers.
Owing to the enormous success of the winter season, the directors of the Empress Rink, Earl's Court, announce, that they will keep the rink open through the summer. It will be remembered that the Empress Rink is the concern that on a capital of £4,000 has not only paid 300 per cent. in dividends during the past eighteen months, but on that capital has also equipped and ran successfully seventeen other rinks in London and the provinces. Had all other rinks been as carefully financed and managed, we should not have had the troubled shareholders' meetings of the past two weeks. Rinking is a healthy pastime—not a craze, as so many writers term it—and if all rinks were managed with the strict business methods and economy to be found at Earl's Court it would stay with us permanently.

Suitable for Rinks or Picture Palaces.
A remarkable private demonstration was given at the Empress Hall, Earl's Court, between sessions the other night to a small party of rink proprietors and entertainment managers. As we have mentioned before in these columns, Mr. P. W. Willard some time ago secured the entire output of Gavioliphones in the market, and he has disposed of a goodly number to owners of small rinks and picture palaces. Naturally, provincial proprietors want to see what they are being asked to buy, and as there were quite a large number of applicants Mr. Willard on the occasion in question was showing would-be purchasers what a Gavioliphone can do. The very latest music was played on it equal to a military band strength of sixty performers. Again on each instrument the volume of sound was curtailed to the efforts of fourteen insrumentalists, and finally the soft sounds of a quadrille string band of seven was given. Apart from the commercial aspect of the exhibition, the function was extremely interesting from the point of view of showing the marvellous extent to which mechanical ingenuity, in conjunction with musical knowledge, can go.

Herbert W. Izod's Benefit.
By permission of the directors of the Empress Rink, Earl's Court, a special ticket benefit will be given to the manager, Herbert W. Izod, on Friday evening, April 15, when the rink will be open from 7.30 p.m. till 12.30 a.m. Mr. Izod will present a special programme, which will include a carnival, a gymkhana, a waltzing and two-step competition, racing, and brilliant moonlight and rainbow dances. The programme will finish with a confetti battle.

Aldwych Skating Club Dinner.
The Aldwych Skating Club held its first annual dinner at the Florence Restaurant last Friday night. The chair was taken by Mr. E. Lewis, and among those present were Messrs. J. Harvey, E. Cohen, Walter Stanton, H. G. Brockman, H. O'Hagan, W. Soper, and S. Casey. Mr. Harvey spoke eloquently upon the bearing that roller skating could have upon the physique of the "younger nation," and Mr. W. Soper expressed the opinion that if the club continued to progress in the same way that it had begun it would soon occupy a prominent position in the roller world. The most important speech of the evening was made by Mr. Brockman, who pointed out the present enthusiasm for roller skating, and expressed the opinion that such clubs as the Aldwych would keep alive roller skating for many years to come. An admirable musical programme was arranged, among those who contributed being Miss Walker, Mrs. Warwick, Miss Bessie Barnes, and Messrs. Walter Walters, J. Robertson, and W. Clements.

F. G. Stumcke's Benefit.
On April 6 a benefit will be accorded to Mr. F. G. Stumcke, the rink manager of the Crystal Palace. Mr. Stumcke's ability, skill, and untiring energy as an instructor during the season have made him a great favourite with patrons. Several well-known artists have promised to appear on this occasion, and they include: Mr. Walter Stanton, the amateur figure skating champion of Great Britain, winner of the Richardson Challenge Cup at Maida Vale Rink on March 16, 1910; Mr. C. D. Phillips, the champion free skater of England; Mr. Syd Martin, Mr. S. F. Casey, and members of the Crystal Palace Figure Skating Club, introducing graceful waltzing and two-step dancing, burlesque hockey match, ladies v. gentlemen, push-ball on skates, and speed contests by the leading amateurs and professional speed skaters of the world.

Lava S.C. Easter Tour.
The Lava Skating Club started its Easter tour yesterday (Good Friday) at the Empress Rink, Leicester To-day (Saturday) Luton entertain the Londoners until Bank Holiday, when the team proceed to Ipswich. Owing to the fact that the heats for the five miles championship are to be decided on Tuesday next, the tour has been somewhat curtailed. Mr. Sidney Martin, the amateur trick skater, who is also a first-grade Lava Club speed member, will give exhibitions at Leicester and Ipswich. On Easter Monday, at 9 p.m., the Lava II. team are holding an inter-club contest with Ealing S.C. at the Lava Rink.

N.S.A. Five-Mile Championship.
The five mile Amateur Championship is being run under the auspices of the National Skating Association at the Maida Vale Rink next Wednesday. This will be the first occasion upon which the N.S.A. have held a championship event at a distance of five miles. E. J. Little, the holder of the one-hour record; L. Meredith, the long-distance cycling champion; and F. W. Stent have already intimated their intention of competing.

John Davidson at Leytonstone.
The managing-director, Mr. James White, has added to the attractions of the popular Leytonstone skatery during the week by the engagement of John Davidson, who has twice daily given exhibitions of his rinking prowess.

Gymkhana at Wandsworth.
The gymkhana which took place at the Central Hall Rink, Wandsworth, on Friday, March 18, was held under the auspices of the Wandsworth Roller Skating Club, which is to be congratulated on its success. The races and results were as follows:—Ladies' Hoop Race (4 laps): 1, Miss M. Wilkinson, work cabinet; 2, Mis Linda Harrison, silver manicure set. Time, 1min. 50 2-5sec. One Mile Open Amateur Handicap: 1, E. J. Colley (30yds.) (Ealing), canteen of cutlery and fish carvers; 2, J. Lunn (15yds.) (Wandsworth), tantalus; 3, A. Sutton (35yds.) (Wandsworth). Time, 3min. 58 3-5sec. Ladies' Scratch Race (7 laps): 1, Miss A. B. Josland, jewel case; 2, Miss Agnes Bright, copper kettle; 3, Miss Maude Wilkinson. Time, 2min. 22 1-5sec. One Mile Club Handicap: 1, A. Sutton (15yds.), epergne; 2, J. Lunn (scratch), set of carvers; 3, H. L. Collins (65yds.). Time, 4min. 4 2-5sec. Open Mile Backward Scratch Race: 1, R. Pooley (Wandsworth), silver hot water jug; 2, S. E. Hunt (Wandsworth); 3, E. J. Medgett (Wandsworth). Time, 4min. 47 3-5sec. Handicapper for open events, Mr. H. G. Brockman, N.S.A. Clerk of the course, Mr. C. W. Pannell, N.S.A. Judges, Mr. H. Y. Evans, N.S.A., Mr. Allan C. Rose. Handicapper for Wandsworth Roller Skating Club, Mr. W. Doland. Starter, Mr. L. Morley, W.R.S.C. Timekeeper, Mr. Duff W. R. S.C. Track stewards, Messrs. Cox, Medgett. Withall, and Hicks.

The Fastest Amateur.
The mile record of 3min. 17 1-5sec., recently made by J. T. Cooper, of Birmingham, is the first amateur record ever held by a provincial.

Attempt to Break Mile Record.
Mr. H. Taylor made an attempt to break the English amateur mile record at the Dublin Olympia on Saturday night. The track was specially laid out under the superintendence of Mr. T. Turner Harley, Provincial Representative of National Skating Association of Great Britain. The timekeepers were Messrs. Atkinson and Medcalfe, official timekeepers of Cyclist's Union. Taylor reached the half mile in 1min. 37 2-5sec., and completed the mile in 3min. 18 3-5sec

Racing Tours.
The Lava Club and also the strong Brixton Club are going on a racing tour at Easter, and the former, in visiting Northampton, Luton, and Leicester, will meet some good-class speed skaters, and although neither town has sufficient to enable them to win a four-a-side contest, still the tour should do much to stimulate inter-team rivalry.

Just What We Think.
"A great amount of fuss has been made about the resignation of Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins from the directorate of a group of roller rinks, and what is more regrettable is the fact that the incident has been made a peg upon which to hang deprecatory references to the present revival of roller-rinking in general. If their hands are too full and their interests too spread, their resignations will make room for men able to give closer personal attention to the concerns they direct, to the ultimate benefit of rinking at large." This is an opinion printed by the Pall Mall Gazette, in which we heartily concur.

St. Patrick's Carnival at Belfast.
A fancy dress carnival inaugurated by the American Roller Rink came off at Cliftonville, Belfast, on St. Patrick's night. Prizes were gained by Miss Edna Whyte (who was attired as an Indian lady) and Miss Muriel Whyte (Music), Miss H. Duddy as "Catch My Pal" (the most amusing costume), Mr. Wm. H. Hotham (who was attired as a Zulu), Mr. H. E. Morley, and Mr. W. H. Wann. The judges were the Lady Mayoress, Miss McMordie, the Lord Mayor of Belfast, and Col. Donner. The entire arrangements were satisfactorily carried out by the manager, Col. F. W. Roberts, V.D.

The Blackpool Skateries.
The popularity of the Pleasure Beach Skating Rink, Blackpool, never wanes. At each session the spacious floor, which has an excellent skating surface of 16,200ft., is the scene of pleasure-seekers obtaining the maximum amount of enjoyment. Rink hockey matches take place here periodically. The Swiss Roller Rink at Switzerland never fails to attract large throngs of rinkers.

Messrs. Counter and Phillips, Proprietors.
The large number of provincial towns in which Messrs. Crawford and Wilkins have started skating rinks does not include Bournemouth. They have never opened or controlled a rink in that town. The Bournemouth American Skating Rink is, and always has been, the sole property of Mr. Harry Counter and Mr. W. Lloyd Phillips.

A Cumberland Carnival.
The Penrith (Cumberland) Skating Carnival proved decidedly successful. There was a great variety of costumes, and the rink presented a very animated and picturesque appearance. Miss D. Herd as a Persian Princess and Mr. W. H. Evans representing the Knight of the Swan were granted the premier awards.

New Manager for Dover Rink.
The Dover Pier Pavilion Skating Rink authorities have appointed Mr. H. Wilkinson, hitherto musical director there, to be manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Anslow go to Paris.
Mr. and Mrs. Anslow, the floor manager of the Dublin Olympia Rink, and his wife introduced the new skating Barn Dance into Ireland. They gave an entire change of fancy skating at the carnival at the Olympia Rink before their departure for Paris last week.

Dundee Rink Re-opened.
After having been thoroughly renovated and overhauled, the Melrose Terrace Roller Skating Rink was reopened last Saturday. Mr. Alfred Ross, for long connected with the Dundee Palace Theatre, has been appointed manager. The Olympia Skating Palace is still going strong. On Thursday a Sports Night was held, the items including a grand hockey match—Submarine Depot v. Olympia.

Hockey at Gloucester.
Mr. Percy S. Reiss, manager of the Gloucester Olympia Rink, has introduced many innovations. Mr. Reiss has already formed a hockey club known as "The Gloucester Rink Hockey Club." On Tuesday they received a visit from Ross, when the teams lined out as follows:—Ross: Parkes (goal), Llewellyn (back), Holloway, Blake, and Higgins (forwards). Gloucester: E. F. Davies (goal), Bert Harris (back), A. L. Crowe, W. Freeman, and P. G. Harris (captain) (forwards). Referee, Mr. Phillip Chance. Goal judges, Messrs. W. Matthews and Meredith. At half-time Gloucester were leading by three goals. After the interval Gloucester had things all their own way, and added four goals through Crowe (3) and W. Freeman.

Animated Pictures at a Rink.
An innovation has been introduced at the Strand Skating Rink, Park-street, Grimsby in the form of ordinary animated pictures. This is the first time anything of the kind has been shown in a skating rink in Grimsby. The films are thrown upon a large screen at the extreme end of the rink, where they are in full view of both "rinkers" and spectators alike; meanwhile, the lights are turned down fairly low, the effect being most pleasing. The pictures are shown each night—one about every ten minutes.

On Rollers at Maidenhead.
The Pavilion Rink, Maidenhead, presented a picturesque and animated appearance on the occasion of its first Fancy Dress Carnival on Thursday, the 17th inst. There was an immense attendance both of skaters and onlookers, among whom were the mayor (Mr. F. W. Porter) and the deputy-mayor (Mr. D. Bidmead). His Worship presented the prizes. During the evening a clever step-dance on wheels was contributed by Instructor W. S. Martin, and a remarkable exhibition of fancy skating by Leonard Young drew forth rounds of applause. Another carnival is arranged for April. A rink hockey club has also been formed, Mr. John Webber (Craufurd-rise, Maidenhead) being secretary.

Kelvingrove Masquerade.
A masquerade carnival was held at the West-End Roller Rink, Kelvingrove, on Thursday in last week. The event was a popular one, and spectators crowded all parts of the building. The arrangements made by Mr. Norman Allan were of a most complete and elaborate nature. The "Chantecler" craze proved to be one of the most interesting types of costume present. The judging was in the hands of Mrs. Seligmann, Messrs. W. R. Gemmell, A. Jamieson, and R. M. Thorne. Manager H. S. Cameron was most indefatigable.

Carnival at Paisley.
Gratified with the success which attended the first fancy dress carnival at the Paisley Rink, Mr. E. H. Bostock held his second one last Tuesday evening. There was a large entry for each of the various competitions, and handsome prizes were provided by the management. Mr. Jack Bostock, the popular manager, terminated the proceedings with a confetti battle.

"She Waltzed Perfectly."
A novelty in the form of a waltzing competition took place at the Porth Rink last Saturday, in which several couples took part, Miss Nicholas and Mr. Hopkins, of Treorky, taking first place, who, according to the judges, "waltzed perfectly."

Martine for Rugby.
Martine is playing the Alexandra Rink, Derby, this week, and has been specially engaged for the opening, next week, of the new skating rink at Rugby.

Rink for Wallsend.
Wallsend is to revel in rinking. It is surprising that the craze did not reach there sooner, seeing that the junior Tyneside borough is between the city and the coast, where the recreation has flourished exceedingly. It is proposed to erect a skating rink in the town. The site is near to the park, and the structure will be a permanent one. A maple floor will have a length of 300 feet, by 80 feet wide, and will be overlooked by a large gallery.

To Open on Whit Monday.
Warrenpoint, the pretty and progressive seaside resort near Belfast, is to have a rink with a floor space of about 20,000ft. It is now being built, and will be opened on Whit Monday.

FULHAM THEATRE.
Lively, bright, and talented entertainers, the Rainbows, have gladdened the hearts of Fulham Theatre patrons this week. Their constitution is on conventional lines, but that matters little when one remembers with pleasure the long list of songs, dances, and sketches that go to make up the programme given—all well sung, all well danced, all well acted. We are introduced to the Rainbows—three ladies and four gentlemen—on Pierrot Island. And a very happy, delightful place it looks as the sun is rising in the early morn. And the young people, garbed almost in the accepted costume of the seaside pierrot, with just a dash of colour here and there to give an idea of the hues of the rainbow, are seated very easily and comfortably in the midst of a charming woodland scene, quite ready, one of their number assures us, to commence the day's work. That consists of no less than fifteen numbers, a burlesque entitled A Twenty-First Birthday Party, and a musical absurdity, A Midsummer Night's Scream. It is quite impossible to give all the praise one would like individually to the eight people who sustain between them a programme lasting nearly three hours. We must, however, especially mention Mr. Harry Daunt's haunting number, "A Kansas City coon," with its extremely nimble and clever dance. Mr. Lionel Howard's impersonations of Sir Herbert Tree, Mr. Wilkie Bard, and Mr. H. B. Irving were decidedly good.

The tit-bit of the Rainbows' programme is undoubtedly A Twenty-first Birthday Party. The scene is laid in the dining-room of a conventional vicarage, where a conventional clergyman, who has a conventional wife, with conventional friends, is celebrating the coming of age of an extremely conventional son. The whole thing is a screaming skit on the ways and manners of suburban villadom. Mr. Basil Mercer's idea of how the Rev. Simon Sofsope would entertain, and his idea of a jolly evening, is the best thing of its kind we have seen for a long time, and he is well supported by the other Rainbows. We hope to see great deal more of Messrs. Stewart and Lorraine's small but clever company of comedy artists.

Closed on Good Friday.
All Scarborough's skating rinks were closed by order of the local authorities on Good Friday.

FREEMASONS AT WORK.

CHELSEA LODGE.

The first regular meeting of the present session of the Chelsea Lodge 3098 was held at the Town Hall, Chelsea, on Friday last, under the presidency of Mr. W. H. Hitch, W.M., assisted by Messrs. W. H. Atlas (acting S.W.), G. H. Dyball (acting J.W.), W. S. Lyon, P.M., L.R. (treasurer), C. J. Doughty (secretary), Douglas White, P.M. (acting S.D.), Frank Hardie (acting S.D.), A. E. Nicklen (acting I.G.), Angelo Asher (organist), G. H. Hill (steward), J. H. McNaughton, P.M. (tyler). Owing to the great distance away from the meeting place at which the majority of the appointed officers of the Lodge were engaged, the W.M. had to appoint for the afternoon members to fill five vacancies, and it was a matter of congratulation to all to know that lay members could so efficiently do the work. A ballot was taken for admission as joining member of Mr. Harold Pinden, and as initiates Messrs. Tom E. Hughes and Will Cromwell (Knox). The same having proved unanimous in their favour, the W.M. initiated the last two gentlemen into the ancient rights and privileges. Messrs. W. H. Wallis, Augustus Dale, and J. R. Elvio were advanced, and the ceremony in connection with the admittance of Messrs. Bert Powell and J. R. Elvio was completed by the W.M., assisted by Mr. H. Chenery, P.M. of the Asaph and Knightsbridge Lodges, and an honorary member of the Chelsea Lodge. Previous to the lodge closing, the W.M. and members congratulated Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon, L.R., the treasurer of the lodge, on being selected by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to office in the Grand Lodge of England. The following members, in addition to those already mentioned, were present: Messrs. John Grant, Ernie Mayne, Bowker Andrew, Burt Ralland, Fred Nieman, Pete Murray, Fred Camp, Harry Kato, Josh. Clifton, T. S. Burnetti, C. H. Burton, Bert Powell, W. H. Wallis, Erne Warsaw, Albert Felino, Dan Lipton, Augustus Dale, Sydney Chaplin, H. C. Lovell, and as a visitor Mr. Frederic Arnold. After the closing of the lodge the members adjourned to the Six Bells Hotel for refreshment.

LODGE OF ASAPH.

At the March meeting of the members, held at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London, on Tuesday, the master, Mr. Chris Hilton, was supported by Messrs. W. J. Holloway, acting as I.P.M.; A. B. Tapping, S.W.; James Weaver, P.G.Std.B., acting as J.W.; Charles Cruikshanks, P.A.G.Std.B., treasurer; James W. Mathews, A.G.D.C., secretary; Frank Lister, S.D.; George H. Dyball, Third S., acting as J.D.; George Highland a visitor, acting as I.G.; Tom Clare, organist; and John Gilbert, T. Mr. James W. Mathews undertook the duties of director of ceremonies.

Mr. A. B. Tapping, who was abroad at the time of his appointment as S.W. of the lodge, was invested with the insignia of his rank.

There were also present Messrs. Arthur Garrett, Oscar Grimaldi, Robert P. Black, Cecil Harry Phillips, Ernest R. Abbott, Charles J. Taylor, F. R. Arnold, Charles Joyce, F. Lyndhurst Schmitz, Harry Lockett, Frank Desprez, Geo. E. Sherras, Jesse Birch, and Herbert Chenery, P.M. and assistant-secretary. Mr. C. Rider Noble attended as a visitor.

Mr. Harry Raymond Mathews was advanced a step in his novitiation, the ceremony being performed in an impressive manner, and supplemented by the delivery of the second lecture by Mr. George Highland, who undertook the duty on short notice, and performed it admirably. The usual banquet at Simpson's followed.

BOHEMIAN LODGE, NO. 3294.

There was a very large attendance at the last meeting of this exceedingly popular lodge at the Masonic Chambers, Hamilton-street, on Tuesday. The 1st Degree was rendered by W.Bro. A. J. Thompson, P.P.G.W., and Bro. James Moie, of the Palais de Luxe Cinema, Liverpool. Arthur Richards, of the same, and F. A. Parker, of the New Century Hall, were initiated. Bro. Wighton proposed his district manager, Bro. Horace Cole, as a joining member, and other joining members proposed were W.Bro. Mathison, P.M. of the Wavertree Lodge, Meredith, P.M. of the Toxteth Lodge, &c. Seven candidates were proposed for initiation, including Mr. Kempson, the local manager of Gaumont's films; Mr. J. F. Wood, the proprietor of many cinematograph shows, and many other well-known local gentlemen. Bro. Frank Weston, the manager of the Birkenhead Hippodrome, has obtained the consent of his directors to have a matinée at an early date in aid of the charities, when a huge attendance is expected. An emergency meeting of the Lodge will be held at the Masonic Chambers, 9, Hamilton-street, Birkenhead (opposite Hamilton-square Station, Mersey Railway), on April 6, at 1.30 p.m., when the W.M. will be pleased to welcome any Brethren visiting the neighbourhood. The installation meeting will be held on April 22, at Thornton Manor, Thornton Hough, by kind permission of Bro. W. H. Lever, at 12 o'clock noon. Conveyances will be provided. Brethren in the profession will receive further particulars on application to the secretary, Bro. W. Jones, 34, Cable-street, Liverpool.

North York Defeats Durham.
At a hockey match last week, under the Durham and North Yorks Rink Hockey League, Bishop Auckland Olympia Rink Club beat the newly-formed Durham Club by six goals to one. In response to a much-expressed desire, a roller-skating club has been formed in connection with the Durham Olympia Rink. A large number of the patrons have joined, and the manager, Mr. Vivian D'Alby, is giving every assistance to make the club successful.

The "Era Annual," 1910. The most complete theatrical dictionary of dates ever published. It will also be found to be the most interesting annual of the year, containing, as it does, many stories told by members of the dramatic and musical professions. The Fight for Mitcham Fair.

THE Showmen's Guild executive officials have had a busy week at Mitcham. A committee-room has been opened in the centre of the town, close by the fair green, No. 1, Buck's-parade. Large posters setting forth the people's claim to retain their ancient fair are seen on every hoarding, and every elector will receive by post the Guild manifesto against the abolition of the people's fair. Public meetings are being held on the fair green and in various parts of the parish. Everything that careful forethought and organisation can do to keep the electors well informed on the fair question is being done by the Guild. Next Tuesday, March 29, at 8 p.m., in the Mitcham Vestry Hall, a public meeting convened by the Guild will be held. Councillor Dant wil preside. The Rev. T. Horne and F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., will be the principal speakers. Several of the members of the late council favourable to the retention of the fair are expected to attend and support the work of the Guild. The election is fixed for Saturday, April 2—this day week. There is an immense amount of hard work to be done between now and then, and only a week to do it in. Will London showmen ready to help, if only for a few hours any day next week, report themselves to the Guild secretary, committee-room, 1, Buck's-parade, Mitcham? There is a great amount of useful work to be done, canvassing the electors and distributing leaflets, taking part in meetings, &c. We know it is Easter week, yet after Monday a little time might be spared even by the busiest London showman. It must be remembered that this is a fight for London as well as Mitcham, that if we lose the battle at Mitcham it will be taken as a sign of failure by other outlying districts, and other fairs will be attacked.

The Local Press on the Fight.

The following paragraphs from the local Press will be of interest to our readers :—

"To turn from Imperial to local politics it is interesting to notice that the showmen are taking a strong interest in the Parish council election. This is due to the originator of their Guild being put forward as a candidate. I have no doubt that he allowed himself to be nominated as the result of the persuasive powers of the executive committee, or of the Rev. T. Horne, the energetic chaplain; and if he goes to the poll he will very likely receive a good many votes from the working classes, who have never disguised their partiality for the fair, though it induces them to spend more money than they can afford.

"Indeed, the fair question is being brought up once again in a prominent way, and from what I hear the showmen do not intend to let the people forget it. In the list of candidates are those who both advocated and oppose its abolition, and others who wish to see it removed to a more convenient spot. The showmen, being endowed with common-sense, can see that while the fair remains on the green it will be opposed by an ever-growing proportion of the people, and they are therefore in favour of its removal."

"This is the gist of the arguments contained in what is described as a manifesto which the Guild have issued. They do not object to the fair being removed "by common consent" because they are "pledged to a reasonable scheme," and they want to see the election of men to the Parish Council who will adhere to a pledge of some kind. At present the majority on the Council are, I believe, in favour of abolition, but they are quite aware of the difficulties, and think that it would be well to choose the lesser of two evils and agree to the fair being removed. As it has been frequently pointed out, there is very little prospect of the fair being abolished while the present state of things exists at the Board of Conservators, the members of which are by no means unanimous.

"Whatever opinion one may have of the Guild's manifesto, it has a useful effect in drawing attention to the whereabouts of the amount voted by the parish to go towards the purchase of the fair rights. That sum of money has disappeared, and the parish has nothing to show for it. At this juncture it is not unreasonable to ask if the Board of Conservators, or the holders of the franchise, are trying to find some way out of the difficulty. For months the public have had nothing official on the subject, and I think it is time that some information was vouchsafed to those who helped to pay for the purchase of the rights from the person who previously owned them."

Bostock and Wombwell on Tour.

BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S Royal No. 1 Menagerie paid a visit to Oldham last week, opening on Friday, and continuing on Saturday, and were visited by large numbers of people, who were very much interested in the varied collection of animals and birds, some of them very rare. Performances were given at intervals with the performing lions, and also the bears, which were witnessed with great and breathless interest. Amongst the collection are included the smallest pony and the largest dog in Britain, and also a team of Sussex horses, prize-winners at the Agricultural Hall, London.

Norwich Fair.

TOMBLAND pleasure fair opened at Norwich on Thursday with numerous and novel attractions. Messrs. Barker and Thurston's motors and gondolas; Mr. Charles Thurston's magnificent cinematograph show; Mr. Charles Chrichton's picture show; Williams' racing cycles; N. Richards' cakewalk; Messrs. Aspland's racers; Cheeseman and Parkins', George Hearn's, and Mr. Abbot's shooting saloons; Mr. J. Holmes' gallery and houp-la, and others. Mr. Charles Thurston is again to the fore by opening the Agricultural Hall, and with his racing cars and other amusements does well in catering for his patrons. The fair will continue on Saturday, and Monday and Tuesday in Easter week.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD AND MITCHAM FAIR.

IMPORTANT SPEECH BY THE GUILD CHAPLAIN.

In pursuance of the active propaganda to defend the people's rights in their fair at Mitcham, the Showmen's Guild has definitely entered the field, and is carrying on an active work at Mitcham. The following bill was extensively circulated in the district :—

MITCHAM PARISH COUNCIL ELECTION.
The People's Fair Rights.
The REV. T. HORNE,
Chaplain of the Showman's Guild, will address
a Public Meeting on the Fair Green, Mitcham, on Thursday Evening, March 24,
at 7.30.

A Resolution to defend Mitcham Fair will be submitted to the Meeting.

Local Gentlemen and Candidates for the Parish Council in favour of retaining the Fair will also Address the Meeting.

COME AND DEFEND YOUR ANCIENT FAIR RIGHTS.

The result was—a large gathering on the old Fair green. The main object of the meeting was well secured, and an attentive and sympathetic audience, mainly composed of the working classes, gave the Guild Chaplain a good hearing. Amongst the crowd were a number of the candidates for honours at the ensuing election. There can be no doubt that the frank and straightforward statement of the Guild Chaplain has impressed both the candidates and the general body of electors.

In his opening remarks Mr. Horne referred to the work that the Guild had already done in order to preserve the people's fair at Mitcham. Reviewing the history of the movement to abolish the Fair, he pointed out that the abolition movement originated with the small group of gentlemen who were determined to kill Mitcham Fair, whether the people of Mitcham wished its death or not. These gentlemen were determined to have their own way; they had never relaxed their efforts, they had used every possible means to gain their ends, and, as far as he could gather, they were as stubbornly determined to-day to abolish the Fair as when they first started to accomplish that purpose.

The Guild did not Interfere in Local Politics.

At the very outset of his address he wanted to clear the ground and to place the position of the Guild in a proper light before the people of Mitcham. The Showman's Guild of Great Britain had no desire whatever to interfere in local politics. The showmen, organised in their trade union for the defence of business in life, were careful never to take a partisan view or a political view whenever they were compelled to defend their interests. The Showman's Guild of Great Britain was a non-political organisation; they neither knew nor cared to know what political party had nominated a candidate. To the Guild the only inquiry that they made of the candidate was—"Are you in favour of maintaining the people's Fair rights"?

Into their local politics the Guild had no desire whatever to meddle; the course of action pursued by the organised showmen was the legitimate and constitutional one open to all workers and traders of defending their trade and business whenever and wherever attacked.

Over three years ago Mitcham Fair would have been lost but for the alarm sounded by several local champions of the people's rights. It was at that point that the Showman's Guild intervened and co-operated with the local defenders of the Fair. The Guild petitioned the Home Office against the proposed abolition. Public meetings, protesting against the attacks upon the people's Fair, were held, and a monster petition of the people against abolition was sent to the Home Secretary.

The Home Secretary Refused to Abolish the Fair.

The decision of the Home Office was a triumph of hard work on the part of the Guild and of the people of Mitcham. The attempt to abolish the Fair under the Act of Parliament failed. The next move on the part of the abolitionists was to purchase the Fair rights—that was to say, the right to draw the tolls or to refuse to take the tolls. It was by the determined action of the organised showmen in refusing to recognise the right of any authority to abolish a fair, without the sanction of the Home Secretary under the powers of the law of the land, that the fairs have been continued, and would be continued until a just settlement had been effected.

Straight Talk to the People.

The Guild Chaplain concluded his address by warning the electors that the coming election was their only chance of striking a blow for the defence of Mitcham Fair. Their power was at the ballot-box, and he advised them to use their voting strength to return only such men to their Parish Council as would represent their views. The people elected the Parish Council, the Parish Councillors elected the four Conservators of Mitcham to act upon the Board of Conservators. Let the people take care only to send to the Parish Council men who were known to be the friends of the people's Fair. He advised them to make the Fair a test question at the election and not to accept any evasive answer. The enemies of the Fair persisted in their action. It was for the people to be equally persistent in their determination to maintain their Fair by all proper and constitutional means. Their demand of each candidate ought to be : "Are you for the people's rights in Mitcham Fair?"

Mr. Grange, one of the candidates for the Parish Council, addressed the meeting on the financial gain that would be theirs if the Fair was maintained and brought under local control

A resolution in support of the people's Fair rights was passed, with but one dissentient, and the meeting closed.

Notes from Yorkshire.

THE second week of Halifax Spring Feast had for its entertainers Messrs. J. W. Waddington, with motor-cars, racing cockerels, and steam yachts; Johnson and Morley, with swings, steamships in the air, and bicycles. Throwing games, houp-las, and variety frames, provided by Messrs. Turner, Jameson, Redfern, Daley, Hughes, Ratcliffe, Johnson, and other caterers; high-fliers, by Riley; and Hale's mystic swings completed the list at Halifax.

AT Gomersall Feast Ashington's cinema pavilion and marionette theatre continues to be the principal show attraction. The machine novelties are :—Messrs. Marshall and Sons' gallopers and gem horses; Burgin's steam swings; Blake and Brooke's juvenile sets; Holdsworth's shooting gallery; and throwing games, houp-la, ring and dart boards, coker-sheets, and pannum stalls in great variety, by Messrs. Bassett, Blake, Castle, Brooke, Crowther, Towers, Middlebrook, and Holdsworth. The refreshment saloon was provided by Mr. Parkinson.

BATLEY Spring Feast was well maintained by Marshall and Sons' palace of delight and splendid set of racing motors; Procter's swings; and throwing games, by Messrs. Holdsworth, Mitchell, Guthrie, and Procter.

AT Heckmondwike for a short season of private business were Harniess' galloping horses, Bean's art and crafts exhibition, and shooters, emmas, and houp-las by Messrs. Bean and Rhodes.

CHAPLAIN OF THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

THE REV. T. HORNE VISITS RETFORD. SOME INTERESTING PARTICULARS OF HIS WORK.

The Retford and Worksop Times has the following :—

Retford had a visit on Sunday last from one of the most striking figures in the Church of England, and the parson with the largest—or should we say, the most extensive—cure of souls in the country, the Rev. T. Horne, organising chaplain of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain. This Guild is in itself an evidence of the change that has come o'er the spirit of showland. The days when "we went a-gipsying" are no more—new times, new manners, and new methods, and the show business is now conducted on the lines of other modern businesses. There is a vast amount of capital engaged in it; the attractions are up-to-date—they found the money-drawing powers of the cinematograph before the London financiers, who are now investing so freely in electric theatres—and showmen have to be fertile in ideas, philosophic at losses, and prepared to spend money freely. "The Guild," says its chaplain, in the current annual year book, "has to fight the common foes—the Puritan who looks upon the fair ground as the ante-room of hell, and the show folk as the sons of Satan; and the faddist reformer, whose zeal for repressive legislation runs riot."

The chaplain is not only the chaplain of the Guild. He is the lawyer, the spokesman, the father, of showmen. Born in a van himself, he has never lost interest in the van-dwellers, and never, even in his Oxford days, lost touch with them. North, south, east, and west he travels to preach to them and to visit them, and he has established a connection with parochial clergymen all over the country, who act as local chaplains and assist in the work. That the showmen are deeply appreciative of the chaplain and his work is saying but little. They recognise readily all he has done for their welfare morally and materially, and few clergy have such loyal and thankful parishioners. The year book, which is compiled by him, contains a list of all the fairs in the Kingdom, with the populations of the towns in which they are held, and the dates on which they are held, information regarding local by-laws, and also information relating to legislation which affects showmen.

To a Times representative, who found Mr. Horne busy in the fair ground on Monday forenoon talking to the people to whom he has dedicated the rest of his life, Mr. Horne said he was anxious at present about the effect on showmen the new regulations for cinematograph shows would have, but he said the Guild had been successful in getting a clause inserted which would permit the Home Secretary to make regulations which would override those of local authorities .

As the new regulations are stringent, and as the showpeople have many thousands of pounds invested in cinematograph shows, the matter is of the deepest importance to them. "There is no class which has lifted itself up and improved itself so much," said Mr. Horne, "as the professional showman. Of course, you will see the reason for that. A travelled man is an educated man. Travel is education. It broadens the mind and enlarges the sympathies. They are more receptive than the average stay-at-home individual, and I claim for them that they are more up-to-date. In some cases they are not only up-to-date—they are a day before the fair.

"Practically all these people have good settled homes, where the children are sent to school, and they are not taken into the business until they pass the standards. They are anxious to give their children a good education.

"They are men of substance and capital. Take this place (Messrs. Tuby's Coliseum, where the service was held the previous night); it cost at least £6,000, and the roundabouts cost at least £3,000 or £4,000. They employ a great deal of labour, and not only labour, but skilled labour."

himself is a short, squarely-built man, with white beard, who looks, shall we say, like the best type of Labour leader turned parson. One can understand how splendidly he gets on with the people he works for when one speaks to him. Not only does he always champion them; but he has a homely, unaffected style of talking to them or to you; and there is a breadth and kindliness of manner which attracts. He is an eloquent preacher, with a powerful voice, and a vigour of delivery which appeals to his audiences. As is natural, perhaps, he knows when to use the dramatic note, and he has gifts of pathos and humour which make him the ideal showmen's preacher. For the last seventeen years he has been interested in the work; for the past three years he has devoted himself to it. One of his greatest supporters is the Bishop of London, and he always, he says, obtains the co-operation of the parochial clergy. He proved a great "draw" also to Retford people—the number attracted to hear him at night in the Coliseum was so large that the "house full" notice might have been truthfully put up a quarter of an hour before the service started. But the police kindly lent their aid, and there was no crush or disorder. The musical portion of the service was led by Mr. John Swannack and his excellent orchestra, the selections from which prior to the service were much appreciated. The Mayor of Retford (Councillor W. Loseby) had a seat in front of the platform, and besides the Rev. T. Horne were present the Rev. J. T. Mumford (vicar of East Retford and an hon. chaplain of the Guild), and the Rev. C. Leeper.

The Rev. J. T. Mumford said they must remember that the service was in the first place for showmen and show women and their families, and also for others who cared to join. They wished to show Mr. Horne, who was with them that night for, he believed, the first time at a Retford Fair service, how the Retford people would join with the showmen and their families in making that a thoroughly good and hearty religious service. They thanked Mr. Tuby for so kindly letting them have the use of his Coliseum; and Mr. Tuby's men, who not only did all they could for them, but did it willingly and cheerfully. He was sure they would wish him to convey to Mr. Tuby, his sons, his manager Mr. Watson, and all his men who had done so much to make them happy and comfortable, their thanks. And then they had, as they ought to have,

His Worship the Mayor,

At every service he had held in that Coliseum he had always insisted that the Mayor should be present; and the Mayor did not take much persuading—he was only too glad to come. He must also say how grateful he was to Mr. Swannack and the members of his orchestra, who had come there to play for them, making their service so bright and beautiful.

The Rev. T. Horne, in the course of a stirring address on the lessons of Palm Sunday, said that the heart of man was so built, his mind so constituted, he was so complex a being that, however suppressed by sorrow, toil, or trouble, he would seek some outlet, some escape from the dullness and drabness and misery of his life. When a travelling showman came to Retford twice a year to provide them with amusement there was something more in it than that he came there in the pursuit of a legitimate calling, earning a little money. He provided amusement,

He Provided Life,

he brought light into the dull, drab existence, and he held that that man was a benefactor to the race. He might in pursuit of his business earn a living, but let them remember this: he was amusement-provider for people, and a showman was a person carrying on a business that was a necessity for the work-a-day life of the people of this country. And he wanted them—all who were in authority and had to do with the administration of the affairs of that town—to realise that showmen would be better showmen, and would bring better shows if those in authority would hold out inducements; would treat him not as a man who took money out of the town, but a man who was giving a pennyworth for a penny every time he took a penny at the door. Many a poor worn and weary worker when he came to a fair from the whirl of machinery in the machine-shop, and spent his few pence in open-air amusements enjoyed himself in such a way that memory was dulled for a time, his trouble and worry were driven from his mind, and he was just like a little boy again. He wanted very little amusement. Let those who joined in that service remember that there was a desire deep down in all human life for brightness; for some mode of expressing joy and the brightness of life, and the old-fashioned fair would give the opportunity to the toiler and moiler of doing this. "And so," added the chaplain, "showmen—all men, God bless you to-night. Live a true life; help your brother; love your God. To leave this sad-eyed world better than you found it, and give all you can for the betterment of humanity—that is the Gospel message of Him who on this day as a King went forth to victory."

In conclusion Mr. Horne expressed his thanks for the great kindness shown by the Vicar, and the host of kind friends who had rallied under his inspiration. In the midst of a strenuous life it was a breath of refreshment to these hard-working show people to have their fellowship in God and Christian worship.

Special hymn sheets were printed, and the large congregation entered heartily into the service.

Showmen's Letter-Box.

LETTERS await Anderton and Rowland, W. Haggar, W. Biddall, and J. W. Chipperfield at The Era office.

WITH Eastertide the showman world begins business in earnest. At all the great centres of life and industry, at every pleasure resort of the people, the showman will be found supplying popular open-air amusement. Throughout the great Midlands, Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Durham, the great industrial belt of England, will have on every fair-ground its gathering of shows and amusement caterers.

THE great holiday resorts of London, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds, in Wales, and in the West will have their shows and showmen.

AT Mirfield for the Spring Feast were Waddington's motors, Gavin's scenic slide, and throwing games, houp-las, &c., by Joy and Wood.

Performing Monkeys.

AT a sitting, before Mr. Registrar Linklater, for the public examination of Frank Taylor, described as of Ravenscourt Park-mansions, Hammersmith, it appeared from his statements and the Official Receiver's observations that he had for the past thirty years been engaged as a trainer of animals for stage and circus purposes. His last engagement was with Mr. E. H. Bostock to act as manager and animal trainer on a tour with his (Mr. Bostock's) menagerie in South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand.

IN consequence of disagreements as to the management of the menagerie, the debtor, in March, 1907, left the show in New Zealand and returned to London. In April, 1908, Mr. Bostock brought an action against him for the recovery of six monkeys, and for an account of the earnings and expenses of the menagerie, &c. The matters in dispute were referred to the Official Referee, who ordered delivery to the plaintiff of a monkey called Potch, also that the debtor should make him certain payments, and judgment was obtained against the debtor for £449, together with the costs of the action.

IT was further stated that the debtor, after his return to England in 1908, commenced touring in England with performing monkeys at music-halls, and made a living in this way until he was directed to give up the monkey, Potch. Subsequently his wife got together a show of performing monkeys, and at the date of the receiving order he was acting as her manager. Accounts were filed showing unsecured debts £790, and assets nil, the debtor attributing his insolvency to the loss of the action above mentioned. He said it was a great loss to him to have to give up Potch, as that was his star monkey. The examination was closed.

Leeds Coliseum.

THE British Animated Pictures are still doing good business here twice daily, under the proprietorship of Mr. Henry N. Phillips. Yesterday (Good Friday) two performances were given of special subjects.

Living Pictures in Siam.

ACCORDING to an American consular report, cinematograph pictures have become the favourite amusement of all classes in Bangkok.

A Tyler Development.

A SERIES of demonstrations was held at the Rehearsal Theatre last week by Messrs. Walter Tyler (Limited), of the Tyler-Ernemann cinematograph projector "Imperator." The most important development is the Tyler automatic light cut-out and motor stop, which cuts off the current supplying the arc and the motor when the machine is not working, or in the event of the film breaking, by which the risk of the film becoming ignited is avoided.

AT the King's, Hanley, fine films include The Cowboy Millionaire, From Kidnapper to Rescuer, The Hempen Bag, Custer's Last Stand, A Late Guest, Novel Navigation, etc. Sam Vereker, a juvenile of the Lashwood type, is a very promising "dandy."

FILM GOSSIP.

Latest from Lubin's.

THE SAMARITAN'S COURTSHIP is one of the best of the Lubin list just issued. A young lady arrives at a railway terminus, and then discovers that she has left her purse at home. The Samaritan, a young man, pays the cab fare and provides the cash for railway journey. He meets the lady at the house of some mutual friends a little later, and falls in love with her. She is not, however, to be won so easily; but an accident in the shape of a twisted ankle proves to be the man's opportunity, as when this occurs he takes the lady home in a taxi-cab. In the end he succeeds in gaining the heart of the lady of his attention.

Twice Nightly "Picturedrome."

THE Picturedrome, Bradford's latest picture palace, opened its doors to the public last Monday. The venture is to be run on the twice-nightly basis, at seven and nine o'clock. The building, formerly the old Bridge-street Chapel, has been in the hands of the joiners and builders for some time, and the interior has been transformed into a cosy modern theatre with seating accommodation for 1,000 persons. The apparatus is installed in a separate compartment erected in accordance with the new Act of Parliament, and there are ample exits in case of emergency. Mr. Victor Hamilton is manager.

Mr. Edison's Moving Picture Income.

LITIGATION in the American Courts concerning moving picture patents, which has resulted in a victory for Mr. Thomas A. Edison, has revealed the fact that Mr. Edison receives £1,450 a week in royalties from the moving picture business in the United States.

The Moving Picture Cure.

IT has been demonstrated after six months' trial that moving pictures are beneficial to the insane. At the Columbus (U.S.A.) State Hospital a machine has been used weekly to entertain the patients. The films have been carefully selected from the best comics with a few dramatics in use occasionally. Not only have the pictures made a hit, but, as diversion is one of the chief methods for the cure of insanity, it is believed that the "moving picture cure" will be largely introduced in other institutions for the insane. Pictures are found to have a soothing and beneficial effect upon the mind, and the 500 patients who are able to attend at the local institution have been much benefited by the shows.

New Theatre for Hammersmith.

THERE are at present three theatres within the same number of minutes from each other now open at Hammersmith, and three more in course of construction, so it may be said that the people living hereabouts are well catered for in the entertainment line. The next opening will be another of the Electroscope Theatres, under the control of Mr. A. F. Wilson, situated in King-street, opposite Ravenscourt Park, a first-class locality. This hall will be fitted up in the latest style. Two of Gaumont's projectors will be installed, and from the past excellent results from them, it is most probable the film contract will be theirs also. The programmes will consist of nine separate subjects, changed three times weekly, and lasting from an hour and three-quarters to two hours.

Vice-Versa.

THIS is the title of a "Lion's Head Brand" picture, issued by Messrs. Cricks and Martin. At a private entertainment a conjuror is performing some wonderful tricks by the aid of his "Vice Versa" wand. During the performance he invites a small boy to assist him. Tommy soon discovers that it is the wonderful wand that works the tricks, and at the first opportunity gains possession of it. Rushing from the house, he meets a man being taken to the police-station, and decides to try the effect, and is agreeably surprised to find that on waving the wand the positions are immediately changed, and the policeman receives some rather rough handling from his former prisoner. Being elated with success, he uses his ability at every opportunity, and the many laughable changes must be seen to be appreciated. He at last makes a fatal mistake when he tries to paint a white marble statue black, and is caught by the Professor, who regains his wand.

Thornton Heath's New Theatre.

THORNTON HEATH'S own cinematograph theatre was opened by the Mayor of Croydon last Wednesday. It seats 800, and is furnished with every regard for comfort. The whole of the staff are Thornton Heath people, Mr. Horace Fry and Mr. Nevill Briggs (both residents for many years) being the manager and assistant-manager. A retired inspector of the London Fire Brigade (the possessor of three medals and certificates for saving life at fires) lives on the premises, and is on duty during the performance. This theatre is run by the Electric Palaces, Ltd., of Marble Arch, Brixton, Lewisham, &c.

Old and New Fashions Bioscoped.

A REMARKABLE novelty in the way of moving pictures is being shown this week at the picture palace at Lordship-lane, Wood Green. A lengthy film depicts the fashions in clothes that have prevailed since the year 1859, and some very wonderful costumes are to be seen. The dresses are most effectively shown on living models, and the pictures are charmingly coloured.

Moving Picture Licences.

FRANK STEBBINGS, of Rivers Hall, Rivers-street, Essex-road, was fined £5, with two guineas costs, for contravening the Cinematographs Act, 1909. Mr. Chilvers prosecuted for the London County Council, and it was complained that the defendant had given exhibitions without a licence from the Council, using, it was said, inflammable films. The defendant was understood to say that he had dropped the use of such films.

Standard Electric Theatres.

THE Standard Electric Theatres, Ltd., have posted letters of allotment and regret.

Decision Reserved until April 1.

BEFORE Messrs. J. R. Henshaw (in the chair), H. T. Hatt, F. Young, P. Browning, and J. H. Colmer, Mr. F. E. Weatherly applied on behalf of Mr. J. Bannister Howard for a licence for an electric theatre at 22, Westgate-street, Bath, last week, and also for a temporary music and dancing licence for the theatre. After a retirement the magistrates decided to go down and view the premises. On their return the justices decided to reserve their decision on both licences until the special session on April 1, as the premises were to be open on April 2. They had no desire to delay matters, but felt that this course was necessary.

A Kensington Picture Palace.

A SPLENDID programme has been arranged by Mr. Grant for Easter Monday next and during the week at the Kensington Picture Palace. Owing to many requests, the film of the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race will be included in next week's show of pictures.

Strand Theatre de Luxe.

MR. C. T. FITZGERALD'S programme this week at the Theatre de Luxe, 65, Strand, W.C., has included the following subjects :—A Ranchman's Rival, Canadian Prairie Towns, The Frozen Ape, Oxford and Cambridge Boatrace, A Little Heroine, The Unfortunate Day, and Beneath the Gas.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. W. Whitaker Thompson (Chairman) presided at the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday.

THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS COMMITTEE.

The Special Committee of Selection recommended that the Theatres and Music Halls Committee for the ensuing three years be constituted as follows:—The Earl of Dunmore, Col. W. F. Cavage, and Messrs. Jocelyn Brandon, J. A. Dawes, J. W. Domoney, H. J. Greenwood, J. Stanley Holmes, W. Lloyd-Taylor, E. M. Preston, H. R. Taylor, and Howell J. Williams.

The recommendation was agreed to.

STANDING IN GANGWAYS.

On Feb. 1 last the Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported the condition that had been attached to the licences granted under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, for premises which were not licensed for music, music and dancing, or stage plays. They also stated that except in one case the licences had been granted for short periods pending the completion of the works considered necessary to the premises. Since the issue of the licences the regulations made by the Secretary of State under the Act which are endorsed on the back of the licence, have been revised and very considerably altered, and the Committee thereupon proposed, instead of further extending the existing licences, to issue as soon as possible fresh licences containing the amended regulations. They thought that advantage should be taken of the opportunity to add to the conditons imposed by the Council the regulation relating to standing in gangways which is enforced in all premises licensed for music, &c. They accordingly recommended that licences granted under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, in respect of premises which are not licensed for music, music and dancing, or stage plays, be subject to a condition as follows—that persons be not permitted to stand or sit in any of the intersecting gangways, and if standing be permitted in the gangways at the sides and rear of the seating, sufficient room be left for persons to pass easily to and fro.

Agreed to.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

The Council on May 4, 1909, decided that no application for permission to hold concerts on Sundays in premises licensed for music, &c., should be considered unless certain conditions were complied with, and on Feb. 15, 1910, it was decided to apply the same conditions to the holding of cinematograph entertainments on Sundays in premises licensed under the Cinematograph Act. On March 1 and 2, 1910, the Council supplemented the conditions upon which it had been decided to consider applications to give cinematograph entertainments on Sundays, by conditions requiring the submission of a monthly balance sheet of the entertainments and the production of a copy of the agreement between the proprietor of the premises and the society or organisation arranging the entertainments. The Committee considered that the conditions applicable to Sunday concerts in premises licensed for music, &c., should be the same as those imposed in the case of cinematograph displays, and recommended that the conditions upon which the Council on May 4, 1909, decided to consider applications for permission to hold concerts on Sundays and other days prohibited by the licence in premises licensed for music, music and dancing, or stage plays, be supplemented by conditions to the following effect, viz., (i) that a copy of the agreement between the proprietors of places of amusement and the societies or organisations which have been given permission to organise Sunday concerts shall be supplied to the Council, and (ii.) that an approximate balance-sheet of the concerts be presented to the Council monthly.

Agreed to.

SUNDAY OPENING OF CINEMATOGRAPH HALLS.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported: "The licences granted by the Council under the Cinematograph Act, 1909, prohibit the opening of the licensed premises for cinematograph entertainments on Sundays, and the Council on Feb. 15, 1910, decided that no application for a relaxation of the prohibition should be considered unless certain conditions were complied with. In a few cases premises were opened on Sunday, Feb. 20, contrary to these conditions, and we therefore instructed the solicitor to take legal proceedings against the responsible persons." The particulars appended showed that in two cases fines of £2 were imposed, and in the third case the defendant had to pay the costs only, 2s.

Agreed to.

THE NEW GRAND.

The Committee recommended approval, subject to the usual conditions being complied with, of a drawing, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., showing a proposal to re-arrange the seating in the stalls at the New Grand Theatre of Varieties, St. John's-hill, Clapham Junction, and to form a new exit from the stalls to lead into Severus-road.

Approved.

ILLEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

The Committee reported that it was recently found that public music was being given in connection with roller skating at the Queen's Hall Skating Rink, High-street, Peckham, although the alterations required to render the premises suitable for public music had not been executed, and the provisional music and dancing licence had not been confirmed. Proceedings were therefore taken against the licensee for keeping the rink open for public music without the Council's certificate. The summons was heard on March 1, at the Lambeth Police Court, and the defendant was fined £2 and ordered to pay to the Council £2 2s. costs.

"Lonely Lives," by Gerhard Hauptmann, is to be performed in New York under the auspices of the American Dramatic Guild, at a special matinée in April. American playgoers will soon be better acquainted with the dramas of Hauptmann than they have been, as Mrs. Fiske will shortly produce Hannele at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. E. H. Sothern appeared in The Sunken Bell at the Knickerbocker Theatre nine years ago.

Some capital films have been exhibited at the New Alhambra Theatre, Belfast, including A Western Maid, The Grand National, 1910, A Dog's Thanks, A Bohemian Girl, &c. The vaudeville element is sustained by the Milsted-Belt Trio, who appear to great advantage in Three Sharps in a Flat, and Mr. Arthur Weber, a bass vocalist of remarkable ability.

A candidate for the stage applied in 1823 to the manager of Drury Lane Theatre for an engagement. After he had exhibited specimens of his various talents, the following dialogue took place between him and the manager:—"Sir, you stutter. So does Wilkinson.—You are knock-knee'd. So is Gattie.—You are very short. So is Kean.—You are lame of a leg. So is Mathews.—You have a damn'd ugly face. So has Yates.—You squint abominably. So does Jones.—You drawl intolerably. So do you.—You are a mere monotonous mannerist. So is Holland.—You have a perpetual whine. So has Cooper.—You are but a miserable copy of Kean. So is Booth.—In comedy you are quite a buffoon. So is Liston.—In tragedy you are a perfect bore. So is Terry.—You sing as ill as you act. So does Taylor.—You are ineffably vulgar. So is Incledon.—You are a vile mummer. So is Bromley.—You exactly resemble a man milliner. So does Russell.—But you have all these defects combined. So much the more singular."

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

Cinematograph Operators.

The annual luncheon of the Cinematograph Operators' Association will be held in the Sheraton Hall, Lyons' Popular Café, on Tuesday, April 19, at 1.30 for 2 o'clock. Tickets, price 3s. 6d., may be obtained from members of the committee, Mr. Merritt, hon. secretary, and Mr. A. Malcolm, the president of the Association, who will occupy the chair at the luncheon. As on former occasions, the certificates awarded to successful competitors in the examination on April 5 will be presented at the luncheon by, it is hoped, Mr. Bowerman, M.P. A number of representatives of the trade are to be invited. Mr. W. A. Appleton, general secretary of the Federation of Trade Unions, will be one of the guests. Non-members who are interested in the work of the Association will be welcome. Any friends may obtain a ticket on application, as above, for the price named.

Theatrical Sports.

The committee who have organised the sports in previous years are anxious to elicit the views of the staff and others at the various theatres, music halls, and picture palaces. In previous years Tuesday, Thursday, and a Saturday have been tried with a view of securing the general support of the profession. The sports were given on a Saturday last year, but the balance available for the Benevolent Funds was so small as to make the adoption of that day unwise. The committee feel that it is not worth the trouble to organise the sports and unwise to take the financial risks involved without there is some substantial promise of support from those for whose benefit and amusement these sports are given. The committee will be glad, therefore, if those interested will notify Mr. Wm. Johnson, of 29, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C., what day the staff at their house would prefer, in the fourth week in June or the second week in July, and whether the committee may expect such staff to support them in organising the sports. If there is no satisfactory response to the committee's request for this expression of opinion the sports will probably be abandoned.

The Provident Fund.

Members of the Dramatic and Variety Theatres Employees' Provident Fund are notified that, owing to the death of a member's wife, a levy of 3d. per member is now due, and must be paid within three weeks from this date. The amount of sick pay this year exceeds £55. Non-members who wish to join from the current quarter are notified that the second quarter commenced on March 19, and that a doctor's certificate of health must be provided by all new members.

Employees who are working in theatres and music halls or picture theatres are requested to notify the N.A.T.E. as to the conditions of employment. The minimum rates of pay recognised by the N.A.T.E. and its branches are as follows:—For Sunday work: Operators 10s. 6d., stage-managers 10s., electricians 10s., stage hands 4s. for the Sunday evening performances (any work done during the day on Sunday in preparing for the evening performances to be paid for in addition). In the West End in some cases the amounts are in excess of those stated above.

"THE CATTLE THIEF."

Dramatic Episode, Produced at the Camden Hippodrome, Monday, March 21.

Ben Mardo	Mr. George A. Street
Jess Helton	Mr. Frank Zara
Dan Biglow	Mr. F. J. Ford
Red Danvers	Mr. Fred Hardy
Judge Stickney	Mr. Leslie Mitchell
Pop Larson	Mr. Will Desborough
Clara Mason	Miss Alyce Blore

This capital episode, which is making such a marked success, is in three scenes, and the story deals with a phase of ranch life in Wyoming. Cattle-raiding has been going on for some time, and no trace of the thief is to be discovered. Suspicion, however, falls on Ben Mardo, who is often absent, and never explains the reason. The stock-breeders hold a meeting, and decide that Mardo is the thief. Judge Stickney urges that the evidence is only circumstantial, and suggests that the best solution is for Mardo to be told to go away altogether.

In the final scene, at Mardo's shack, his innocence is proved. Mardo himself discovers the culprit to be an old acquaintance of his, and he gives him means of escape. Mardo's mysterious absences, it seems, are due to his going to see "his pal," a little girl whose life he had saved when she was a baby, and whom he had had educated. The child proves to be Clara Mason's child, thought to have been killed by the Indians. Finally, Mardo, despite his having cleared himself, leaves those who had so misjudged him. The characters are all capably handled, notably that of Mardo, which receivevs fine treatment at the hands of Mr. George A. Street, whose company it is. Mr. Leslie Mitchell makes a capital Judge Stickney; and Clara Mason is well portrayed by Miss Alyce Blore.

Misses Fanny Robini and Florence Cooper, having made such a great success, were re-engaged for another week at the Palace, Nelson. In these go-ahead days one week's engagement at each hall is the rule.

Blarney and Bland are once more pleasing audiences at Shoreditch and Poplar. Their act should be seen in the West End.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra, 1⅞; Empire (15s. pd.) 1⅞, ditto (10s. pd.) 1⅛; London Pavilion 3⅛, ditto pref. 5; Metropolitan, ⅝; Moss' Empires, 4⅛; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace Theatre (9s. pd.), 1; and Tivoli, New, 6⅜.

In December, 1823, just before the hour of commencing at the Exeter Theatre, a slight explosion of gas took place, but no material damage was occasioned. A paper of the time said:—"On examination, it was found that one of the leaden conducting pipes beneath the flooring of the gallery had been eaten through by rats; and there being no vent for the escaping gas, it had accumulated so as to overcome the quantity of hydrogen: a light being brought to it, an explosion was the natural consequence. The pipe bears numerous marks of the rats' teeth; and as these animals have often been known to gnaw through leaden pipes in search of water, it is concluded that it was in this instance the object of search, as a water pipe adjoined it. Mr. Brunton has discontinued the gas, and will in future light the theatre with patent oil lamps and wax candles."

Indispensable! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

IBSEN'S NATIONALITY.

"Why Ibsen abandoned the historical and adopted the modern polemic drama is very unsatisfactorily explained by Mr. Gosse," says Mr. William Archer in an article on "Ibsen as a Norwegian" in the Nineteenth Century. "You are almost getting the impression that Ibsen did so because he became convinced that in the historical drama, especially in Lady Inger (1854), he had not succeeded in such realism as he had intended. I feel quite sure he never imagined his Lady Inger to be a true picture of the Lady Inger of history. I do not believe he chose this subject 'purely for its value as a study of contemporary intrigue.' On the contrary, he desired by means of Lady Inger to show his countrymen how to fight for the maintenance of an independent Norwegian nationality, thus rousing the present age by a picture of the past. It was not till long after he had entered upon new lines in dramatical poetry that a Norwegian historian (L. Daae, 1874) sketched the real Lady Inger.

"The fact is that his adoption of the modern drama was due to a violet crisis of his mind, which was closely connected with an important episode of Norwegian politics. To all those who had fixed their hopes on the movement for a union of the three Scandinavian countries—and Ibsen had passionately cherished this hope from his early youth—the year 1864 was a most cruel disappointment. In a separate work in German, about Norway and Sweden's policy towards the Dano-German conflict from 1048 to 1864, I have recently tried to show what an important change in the domestic and foreign politics of the two united kingdoms was marked by the year 1864: it was a policy of peace enforced by democracy that triumphed over the romantic tendencies of an upper class towards acting the part of a Great Power. The victorious political realism helped to pave the way for literary realism, and in no case is this effect more clearly demonstrated than in the life of Ibsen.

"When Norway and Sweden refused to assist Denmark, although previously not only representative statesmen but also numerous ordinary citizens, and particularly the students of the Universities, had solemnly promised the support of their countries, Ibsen's mind was upset to such a degree that it could not easily be set at rest. During the first year of his stay in Rome (1864-1865) he was hardly able to talk about anything else, and all his previous poetical schemes, amongst them a new historical play based on events which occurred in Norway in the sixteenth century, were forced aside by this dominant subject. It appeared to him as if his countrymen had failed in the final test, when words had to be redeemed by deeds. 'It was all nothing but lies and dreams then!' he wrote in a letter in the autumn of 1864, and he continued by alluding to a poem of Byron's then just translated into Norwegian: 'Our ancient history now has to be effaced; for the Norwegians of the present day obviously have no more to do with their past than the Greek pirates with the generation which sailed for Troy and enjoyed the help of the Gods.' The nation, to quote an expression of Wergeland, had 'got drunk by the gloom of a barbarian past,' and Ibsen felt himself an accomplice. In poems and dramas he had helped to delude the nation by her ancient greatness, and he felt impelled to vent his resentment at the national sin in violent invectives against his country as well as against himself. Once more he felt deeply ashamed of the pusillanimity of his contemporaries, just as upon a similar occasion in 1849 he had written the sonnets 'Wake up, Scandinavians!' which are included in the volumes recently published. As he then had invited the Norwegian skalds to forsake the 'enshrined past' in order to interpret the sufferings and longings of the living people, so he now addressed a poem to 'the accomplices' in order to carry them off from 'the saga of the past that lay murdered in their souls' and lead them into 'the misty realm of the present,' where he should 'confess the guilt of the people and unbind its aspirations.'

"The poem 'To the Accomplices,' not published till after Ibsen's death in 1906, was intended to be the introduction of the epos that contained his original sketch of Brand. When this epos at last appeared in 1907, Mr. Karl Larsen, its Danish editor, justly called attention to the resemblances which connected it with Welhaven's poetic challenge to the young Norway of Wergeland (Norway's Dawn, 1834). Ibsen obviously thought himself the continuer of the struggle of Welhaven; for his poem distinctly represents Wergeland as the type of a hero of national cant, and ridicules the brilliant speech Wergeland made in 1834 on continuity in the history of a nation. But the poetic platform which, at the same time, he builds for himself is in its essential structure just that of Wergeland. What matters to him now is to carry out ideas in life; he frankly rejects art for art's sake, claiming that poetry should be a moral power in life whose ultimate aim is to build up character.

"His modern social dramas grew out of this view by a natural development. It is not difficult to trace the progress from Brand and Peer Gynt through The League of Youth to The Pillars of Society, A Doll's House, Ghosts, The Wild Duck, and onward. The whole series of social dramas offers a strong contrast to the artistic tendencies of Heiberg and Welhaven. Ibsen in this part of his work, together with Björnson and many fellow fighters in the seventies and eighties, carried on the struggle that Wergeland had begun.

"The idea that permeates all the writings of Ibsen since Brand (1865) is that every man has a right and a duty to 'realise his own self' in all respects, and he has formulated the watchword of his fight in the famous speech that sums up The Pillars of Society (1877): 'The spirits of Truth and Freedom are the pillars of society.' 'Truth and Freedom' is what Nora (1879) claims for herself; it is the platform of Stockmann, the people's enemy (1882), as well as of Rosmer, the silent visionary (1886). This idea is entirely that of Wergeland. 'Truth, Freedom, and Charity' was the programme that he had set down, not only for his great epic-dramatic world poem 'Man' of 1850, but for his whole life, and he understood the words in the same sense as did Ibsen: they meant the right of each individual to be himself and to develop according to his own needs. It is characteristic of Ibsen that he omits Charity; although it would be unjust to contend that he was blind to the social aspect of human life.

"Owing to the strenuous manner in which both Wergeland and Ibsen vindicated their rights as individuals, they were both brought into open fight with the society they lived in. But Ibsen lived long enough to enjoy his victory in this fight. As a matter of fact, he was better treated by the authorities of his country than most other poets of revolt have been, both in Norway and abroad. He made himself an exile for many years, but his exile was not like that of Heine or Byron: he went abroad subsidised by the Norwegian State.

"Misguided by his polemic attitude towards Norway, his biographers have often taken it for granted that he was badly and unjustly treated by his native country. I believe those who consider the matter impartially will have to admit that such a view is in the main erroneous. His home having been broken up while he was still a youth, he was early compelled to support himself or to be helped by his friends. But he had the good luck, at a time when Catilina was still his only literary merit, to be appointed for several years a stage-manager and playwright at the new 'Norwegian Theatre' at Bergen."

ADAPTATIONS & ALTERATIONS.

"It was the fashion among some of our earlier dramatists of the period of Mrs. Centlivre, and of the school of 'The Busy Body,' to take, as the French also did, their plots and subjects from the Spanish stage," wrote J. Palgrave Simpson, in an article on plagiarism. "There was a rich orchard there to cull their fruit from, and then work it up in their own dainty dishes of preserves and jams. The country of the 'cloak and sword,' of exciting adventure, of amorous intrigue, of chivalrous sense of honour, of duels, of dark lanthorns, and devices 'cunning and rare,' teemed with incidents, affording fine dramatic situations, of which the Spanish dramatists made excellent use. These combinations were too tempting not to be clutched by dramatists of other countries. When the rich mine was discovered, French and English alike plunged their hands into the 'diggings,' and pulled out splendid nuggets. One of these was destined to whole series of transmutations. It was fashioned first—although, by the way, I may be in error in this 'first,' it may have been set in some other shape before; well, then, 'first' to my knowledge—as The Way to Keep Him, of Murphy, in which, by the way, the episodical scenes of Sir Bashful and Lady Constant are a reproduction of the Ami de la Maison, of Sedaine, then transmuted into Le Mari à la Campagne, of Messrs. Bayard and Co., adapted into English again as The Serious Family, from the last-named piece, by Mr. Morris Barnett, and not left untouched by the late Mr. Stirling Coyne in his Everybody's Friend. Scarcely less fitful in its wanderings from country to country was the farce of Twice Killed, by Mr. Oxenford, originally, if I am not mistaken, derived from the German, then adapted into the libretto of the little opera Bon Soir, Monsieur Pantalon, with Grisar's charming music, and then re-adapted into the English version, Good Night, Signor Pantalon. May we not one day expect to find this most amusing little plot touched up, with local colouring, into an 'original' Chinese comédie de mœurs, so peripatetic is its nature? It would be impossible to enumerate all the forms taken by the subject treated by Leigh Hunt as The Legend of Florence—the story of the lady buried as dead, exhumed in a fit of delirious passion by her former lover, found to be alive, and, as if all her vows were broken by death, marrying her first adorer. Their name is legion. Germany has taken a large share of them. In France alone, the subject has been handled so often—the most notable examples being the opera of Guido et Ginevra, at the Grand Opera, and the exciting drama of Mademoiselle de Faille, at the Ambigu—that one might have supposed another version was impossible; and yet it has lately cropped up again in a new form, as a new melodrama, at the same Ambigu, under the title of Le Sacrilège, to the fresh delectation of the Parisian public. To render any account of the many pieces derived from the Spanish stage, which, worked up into French form, have been afterwards adapted to the English stage, would be to give a long, dry, and not very interesting catalogue. In this manipulation, Scribe—though, at the same time, I rank him as the dramatist the most ingenious in device, the most admirable in construction, the most tasteful in arrangement and effect, of all modern dramatic writers, I might say of all time—headed all others of the French dramatists. But he had the art to make all that he derived from foreign sources so completely his own, that any so-called plagiarism was very difficult of detection. At the same time, he did not disdain to glean from the English stage any materials which he could work to his purpose with advantage. For one of his earlier comedies he came, without much disguise, to English soil and transformed Tobin's Honeymoon into his own Lune de Miel; although he transferred the scene to Russia, and somewhat exaggerated, rather than strengthened, the situation, by making the Duke Aranza of the original assume the character of a serf; whilst Tobin, even in his easy-going days, did not escape the accusation of plagiarism, never very strictly defined, of having derived his subject from a foreign source. In the same way, Monsieur Scribe boldly laid hands on The Lady of Lyons, itself said to have been founded on the French subject of La Pérouse the Bellows-Mender, and adapted it, transferring the story now to Spanish soil, as the text of an opera-book called Le Guitterero, given with Halévy's music at the Opéra Comique. He even did me the honour to found a comédie-drame on my own little piece of Poor Cousin Walter, the main idea of which was already derived from a five-act play by the Princess Amelia of Saxony, called Der Landwirth. I will leave Monsieur Scribe with this brief, and very incomplete, enumeration of some of his raids on British territory, for another of the mighty dramatists of the French stage. Alexander Dumas lived in days when English literature came to be better known, and even popular, in France; but there were very pretty pickings to be gleaned from another country; and he cast longing eyes on Germany. He, himself, was entirely ignorant of any language but his own, much as he may have affected, in his Impressions des Voyages, a smattering of Italian and Spanish. But he was able to employ a translator who did know German; and he thus contrived, secondhand, to take possession of a mass of subjects adaptable to his own purposes. Poor old Kotzebue, with his vast store of simple but most ingenious plots, had been somewhat used up already by Dumas' compatriots, who had already culled, right and left, in the same prolific garden. But Iffland's theatre was still a terra incognita to the French; and the great annexator, having discovered it like another Columbus, stepped in and took possession, fully expecting to escape all remonstrance from rival powers among the critics. Das Verbrechen aus Ehrsucht, of Iffland, was transmuted, and very cleverly transmuted too, by Alexander Dumas, into his own La Conscience, and played, with considerable success, at the Odéon Theatre. Perhaps among the students, who generally throng the pit of this theatre of their quarter, there were some Teutonic spirits, who were induced to assert the due rights of the Fatherland. Certain it is, that critics began to doubt the great author's 'original' authorship. Dumas boldly asserted his originality. A paper war ensued; and the mighty dramatist got the worst of it. But Dumas was unwilling to have salaried a German translator for nothing. He made another attempt to produce another drama of Iffland's, Die Jäger, as his own, under the title of Catherine Blum. Managers, however, were less easy to deal with now; and the pretensions of the celebrated dramatist were enormous in the way of primes. Iffland was not again allowed to mount the Parisian boards in the disguise of Dumas; and the materials were worked up by the ready-witted author as a novel, still known as 'Catherine Blum.' Had I been able to wade through all the hundred and one volumes of Iffland's somewhat heavy and long-winded plays, I might, doubtless, have again traced the German dramatist in such plays of the Frenchman as Le Comte Herman, as well as in his inexhaustible works of fiction. Kotzebue, in his day, went through more processes of transmutation in dramatic alchemy than almost any other author. I am not able to go back into 'the night of ages' to detect how much he himself derived from predecessors, or perhaps I might discover that 'nothing new under the sun' was just as true in his time as in ours. The ghost of Kotzebue still stalks on the French and English stages in foreign attire. Menschenhass und Reue still revisits the glimpses of the footlights as Misanthropie et Repentir, on the boards of the Théâtre Français, and as The Stranger, seldom, in our own country."

COUNSEL WAS REQUESTED TO ADVISE

Whether, having regard to the terms of Clause 16 in the model contract attached to the Arbitrator's Award, the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option.

(a) In the event of the Artiste having filled by engagements made either wholly or partly after the date of the contract, all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intention to exercise the option, and

(b) In the event of the Artiste having in similar manner, partly filled his time so that the number of vacant dates within that period is insufficient to comply with the option.

COUNSEL'S OPINION.

In my opinion the clause requires the Artiste so to arrange his or her engagements, made after the date of the contract with the Management as to render it possible for the artiste to fulfil a re-engagement with the Management, should the latter exercise the option conferred upon them by the contract; and that it is no answer for the Artiste to say that he or she cannot fulfil such re-engagement because of engagements made by him or by her after the date of the contract.

(a) In my opinion the Management are entitled to insist upon the exercise of their option, although the Artiste may have filled up all vacant dates within 18 months after the date of the notice of intentionto exercise the option, provided such engagements were made wholly after the date of the contract. So far as these engagements were made before the date of the contract, the Artiste is entitled to fulfil them, and the Management cannot insist upon such engagements being a breach of the artist's contract with them

(b) In my opinion the Artiste is bound to reserve sufficient dates to enable him to fulfil a re-engagement by the Management. If, therefore, he accepts engagements after the date of the contract which prevent him fulfilling his re-engagement in its entirety, he commits a breach of his re-engagement.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.—All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier. Artists employing agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents. New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, and DISTRICT.—MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, and DISTRICT.—MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, and DISTRICT.—MR. HORACE COLE, The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.—MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.—MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

TOURS COMMITTEE.—LLEWELLYN JOHNS and DISTRICT MANAGERS.

EMPIRE THEATRE, SOUTH SHIELDS.—Artists and Agents wishing to submit TRIALS for their Acts in the North, should apply to the Manager, as Matinées are held every Wednesday for that purpose.

N.B.—MR. OSWALD STOLL or MR. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously. Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.—Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled. It is important that separate bill-matter, blocks, pictorials, &c., for Dublin, Belfast, and South Shields, be sent direct to Mr. Frank Allen at the Co-operative Offices. IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities. ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

BUSINESS MANAGERS.

How the Affairs of a Theatre can be Most Efficiently Controlled by the Adoption of Systems of Internal Check.

BY CUTHBERT E. SMEDLEY, A.C.A.

Price 3/6. Post free, 3/9.

"Theatrical Accounts." By Cuthbert E. Smedley (The Era, Ltd., 3s. 6d.). Shows how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check. Specimen pages of the books to be kept are given. Receipts, tours, book-keeping, and accounts, audit—each is allotted a separate chapter. In the appendix is given "a form of agreement with artists for touring engagements."—Morning Post, Jan. 27, 1909.

"Theatrical Accounts for Business Managers." By Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A. 3s. 6d. The Era, Ltd., 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. The work of accountants has now been brought to a fine art, and in almost every branch of business a different system has been elaborated. The present work deals in a small compass fully and clearly with all the special features of theatrical management on the business side.—Financial Times, Feb. 1, 1909.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. J. Withers; Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—A grand variety bill is the excellent holiday attraction here. At the top of the bill, the Big Four, vocalists, dancers, and comedians, are well received; Archie Watts, comedian and dancer, gains applause; Mlle. Polo is a graceful trapeze artist; the Dana Comedy Sketch company in their screaming farce gain favour; Billie and Burke, in Minding the Baby, are funny; and Jack Harrington Weeks, comedian, Miss Hazel Hood, comedienne and dancer, and the Dutrees complete the bill.

ABERDARE. — NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—The Aberaman Serenaders' Operatic Society are here in The Gondoliers, and are playing to crowded houses.

ABERDEEN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Fires of Fate occupies the stage this week, with its richly-coloured scenes of the Soudan, and its vivid portrayal of Dervish life. The acting of Mr. Stephen Ewart as Colonel Egerton is a notable effort, and admirable support is accorded by Mr. Herbert Vyvyan, Mr. Charles Francis, Mr. Edward Coventry, Miss Ruth Bower, Miss Gwendolen Floyd, and Miss Alison Trent.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Percy H. Gallagher.—In a capital variety programme, pride of place is given to the Sutcliffe Troupe of Scottish pipers, dancers, and acrobats; Harry Dent and Fanny Harris appear in their novel mélange, The Indian Bottle; and other turns are contributed by Geo. Lawrance, right comedian and actor-vocalist; Bugler Carr, the marvellous equilibrist and musical puzzle; Alice Golding, vocalist; the Mezzettis, in their gymnastic act, "The New Recruit"; and Louie Tracey, the "dandy dapper boy."

ABERTILLERY.—METROPOLE THEATRE. — The stirring drama Geoffrey Langdon's Wife is being presented here by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Percy Brown's company. Mr. Wilson Coleman gives a capital impersonation of Felix Beverley; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt scores well as Geoffrey Langdon; Miss Amy Elian's Mary is greatly appreciated; Mr. John S. Milward is a good Jack Sterling; Miss Minnie Goepel as Sweet Nancy does well.

PAVILION.—Mr. George Sheldon and Mr. F. Rawson Buckley's company in Before the Dawn top the bill here. The programme also includes the Maningoes in their head and hand balancing; Wat Tyler, character vocalist; Baby Boden, a marvellous child entertainer; Sidney Burns, comedian and dancer; and Richard Finberg in character studies of Dickens, Shakespeare, &c. Excellent Bioscopic views end a capital performance.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Raynor and his répertoire company opened here on Monday in a capital version of Moths. Mr. Raynor submits a powerful and convincing impersonation of Lord Jura; Mr. Clinton Baddeley undertook the rôle of Prince Zouroff with fine dramatic effect; Mr. Milton C. Curtis ably portrayed the Duke of Mull, and Mr. Conrad Heywood handled the part of Raphael de Correze with care and discretion. Miss Dora Dench quickly won the sympathy of the audience as Vere Herbert; Miss Cecilia Dare played the Duchess de Sonnaz with incisive power and artistic finish; Miss Frances Waring was very successful as Lady Dolly, and Miss Hilda Blanche gave a commendable rendition of Fuchsia Leach. Still Waters Run Deep, Jim the Penman, and David Garrick are also billed.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. Edward Platt's marvellous child trio of actor-musicians are the premier attraction here, and are received with great favour; Coram, the popular versatile ventriloquist, keeps his audience in the best of humours; Captain Kettle is very smart as a coin and card manipulator; Ray and Lingford, in a comedy duologue, have a flattering reception; Tony Freedman, comedian, Juno Salmo, and Clyde and Clancy, comedians, are also in the bill.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A fine Eastertide bill is presented here. Two sketches are included in the programme, Mr. Powis Pinder's company, in The Revellers, topping the bill. This is a charming little playlet, in which Mr. C. E. Payton (an old Aldershot favourite), Mr. Powis Pinder, Mr. Eric Langham, Misses Ruth Thorp, Ethel Quarry, and Dorothy Frostick appear, the last-mentioned young lady especially shining with her exquisite dancing in "Visions of Salome." The other playlet, Liane, added to the programme at the eleventh hour, so to speak, is of the musical dramatic kind, and well played by Messrs. Lawrence Rea, Chas. Ray, Chas. D. Wright, Julian Gardin, and Misses May Hollorn and Alice Favier. Shirley and Montrose, in a drawing-room entertainment, do well; M. Jules Charmettes, an Anglo-French eccentric, amuses with song and patter in French; Fox, called the human encyclopædia, answers questions on dates of notable events, &c.; Fred Kendal, in Jewish song and patter, is a favourite; Miss Dora Christian has a fine appearance, and sings with good effect; Miss Kitty Grey as a ballad vocalist is successful, and Miss Daisy Mercer, comedienne, Tom Garrick, a clever dance comedian, and Stuart Gordon, Scotch comedian, are all acceptable.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is presenting Little Phil's Mother. As Phil, the crippled boy, Miss Gertie Renaud is tenderly pathetic; Miss Maud Russell has a very arduous rôle as Ruth Towers, but she sustains it with ability; Miss Florence Dalton as Elspeth gives the part all the emphasis needed; Miss Leslie Warner as a Lady of Means and Miss Shine as a Wardress do satisfactory work; Mr. Percy Ballard makes a manly Frank Towers; as Oscar Titherton Mr. Henry Ellesmere gives a good study of a callous scoundrel; Mr. Gifford Reynolds supplies a very able portrayal of a doting old father; a very good study of the Scotch gamekeeper, Donald Taggerty, is given by Mr. J. P. Marsden; and a humorous Cockney rascal is well hit off by Mr. J. E. Tomlinson. Mr. Frank M. Thorne, the director of the company, plays the humorist as Sam Perkels, Miss Leslie Warner seconding his efforts very happily as his partner.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jesse Bursiem.—The programme here is headed by Washington W. Evans' company, in the American musical sketch Paradise Alley; Arthur Aiston is a favourite; George Robinson, in the character of a seaside waiter, is good; Metz and Metz (Arthur and Jack), comedians, perform a unique dance; Sterling and Cashen, comedy duo, have a new mirthful episode; the Sisters Florencie, duettists, introduce some graceful dances, which they accompany with song; John S. Leick and Mabel Keith, American premier cornettists, and "The Sousa Girl" give an entertaining interlude; the Bioscope shows Poor Luck's Honeymoon and When the Boss Came Home.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. A. Sims.—The week's pictures furnish good entertainment at the Pavilion. Cupid and the Motor Boat is both picturesque and exciting; An Angry Sea shows a hurricane on the Main; and Cloister's Touch is a thrilling story. The Up-to-Date Imps is a comic film, as is That Skating Carnival; and other subjects are A Scientist's Nightmare, Brother and Sister, and the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race. The speciality artists are Mr. Chas Coll, who sings humorous ditties; Mr. Arthur Page, Lancashire dialect comedian; and Mr. Alan Wright, who sings "Will-o'-the-Wisp" (illustrated).

THE ODDFELLOW'S HALL.—Lessees, the Ashton Entertainments Syndicate; Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Marks.—The pictures for the Easter week include After the Fall of the Eagle, a very exciting presentment of stirring events; The Western Maid, depicting life on the prairies; My Daughter, The Subterfuge, The Orderly Let Sleeping Dogs Lie, A Pair of Slippers, and The Cheesemonger's Dog. The variety turn is Mr. W. H. Dawson, a clever boy whistler and bird mimic.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Leckie.—The story of the Boer War, named The Highlander's Defiance, is as good as anything we have seen pictured in battle scenes; there is some really pretty scenic mounting in that exciting drama. A Dog's Thanks; and Taking a Day Off, The Forgotten Watch, and The Secondhand Stove are all comic films. Also in the bill are Marie's Handkerchief, The Pearl Necklace, A Shopping Week, and some pageant pictures. For variety business the services of Mr. Arthur Harris, a baritone vocalist, have been secured; and Miss Kitty Kearns is a sweet singer and smart dresser.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—The holiday attraction here drew large audiences on Monday. Some excellent films included a sensational drama, The Fireman's Wedding. Mr. Clive Cattley, light comedian, is meeting with success, and Mr. George Smith, in new songs, is retained for a second week.

PICTURE PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Matt Raymond; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward King.—A splendid Easter holiday programme was provided here, and highly appreciated by crowded houses. A thrilling and absorbing picture, A True Indian's Heart, a tale of the West, was the leading feature. Vaudeville turns are provided by Miss Clarise Mignon, aptly styled the "Banjo Queen," and Mr. Arthur Bright, vocalist and piper.

AYR.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. Walter Steele's company occupied the boards with the sensational drama A Fast Life. For the last three nights Mr. Edward Compton and company appeared.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—With Edged Tools, by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company, is the holiday attraction. Miss Marie Leonhard is delightful as Jocelyn Gordon, the clever and sympathetic treatment received at her hands makes it an exquisite character; Miss Marguerite Collier displays marked ability in the rôle of Milicent Cheyne; Mr. Hamilton Deane has a nice easy style, and his Jack Meredith is very effective; Mr. Campbell Goldsmith is most realistic as Victor Durnovo; Mr. Henry Nunn is admirably suited to the part of Guy Oscard. All the other characters are in capable hands. The scenic and lighting effects add very considerably to the success of the production.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. C. Routledge.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company, with The Woman in the Case, is appearing here. Miss Florence Tyrrell displays great power and ability in the exacting part of Claire; Miss Beth Elliot is admirable as Margaret Rolfe, particularly in the emotional parts; Mr. Cecil Newton's Julian is clever and natural throughout. The lawyer, a splendid character part, is admirably sustained by Mr. W. T. Elworthy. The play is well staged and the dresses handsome.

TIVOLI—Lessee, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Wood.—Mendel is the premier turn, and he demonstrates his ability in no uncertain manner; he had a hearty reception; Margit and Lener, in an eccentric act, Wet Paint, are most amusing, and their acrobatic and tumbling performance is clever; the Cheers, with their educated cats, that perform some smart tricks, give an interesting entertainment; the Sages are very good in a vaudeville act; Neville Delmar is a refined comedian; the Lovelaces' American illustrated songs quite catch on; Capt. Ellis and Son, in an American act, are well received; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—A revival of the comic opera, The Chieftain, and the operetta Capt. Billy, by the Bath Amateur Operatic, for the whole of Easter week, is proving a great attraction. The professional services of Mr. Avalon Collard as producer have resulted in a finished and delightful ensemble, and Mr. W. F. C. Schöttler, the resident musical director, as conductor, has added greatly to the excellent results secured.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The Donaldson Bros. and company, in their amusing sketch Sports in a Jungle, arouse great hilarity here; the wonderful contortionist feats of Sim Movee, "the indiarubber Mahommedan," are watched with interest; Chas. Gardiner wins applause for his comic songs; and Norah Emerald as a comedienne. The Zampas, vocalists, dancers, and bâton jugglers, Nellie Nora, in her musical speciality act, Shelton and Chicks as vocalists and dancers, and the pictures are other attractions.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, in Miss Hook of Holland, has been drawing big houses. Mr. Charles Sims appears in an excellent make-up as Mr. Hook, and his performance is decidedly clever; Mr. Robert Selby has an imposing presence as Captain Paap; and Mr. Frank G. Dunn pleasingly portrays the Bandmaster. Mr. Frank Attree is good as Schnapps; and much amusement is caused by Mr. Edward Kipling as Slinks. Miss Biddy O'Brien is a charming Sally, and her songs are much appreciated. Another popular member of the cast is Miss Madge White, who very cleverly impersonates Mina. There is a full chorus and an augmented orchestra, and the whole production is exceedingly praiseworthy.

BELFAST.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a visit from the popular D'Oyly Carte Opera Company. On Monday at matinée and evening The Mikado was presented. In the title-rôle Mr. Leicester Tunks acquitted himself admirably, his fine voice being heard with much pleasure; and praise is due to Mr. Henry A. Lytton for his clever impersonation of Ko-Ko; a noteworthy reception was extended to Mr. Fred Billington, an especial favourite in Belfast, in his impersonation of Pooh-Bah; Mr. Henry Herbert furnished a capital interpretation of Nanki-Poo, his delightful vocalism gaining him a deserved reception; Mrs. Arthur Ronsbey must be congratulated on her charming interpretation of Yum-Yum; the rôles of the other wards of Ko-Ko, Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo, were acceptably filled by Miss Beatrice Boarer and Miss Marjorie Stone; Miss Louie Rene's Katisha left nothing to be desired, and the cast was completed by Messrs. Sydney Granville and Fred Drawater. On Tuesday evening Patience was the attraction; and during the week H.M.S. Pinafore, Trial by Jury, Yeomen of the Guard, and The Gondoliers have also been produced.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Mr. Warden is presenting his patrons with a superlative Easter attraction in Williams's sixth annual pantomime, Dick Whittington, which was produced here at a matinée on Easter Monday, after a triumphant tour in Scotland. The title-rôle and Alice are represented by the Sisters Cora, who speedily made themselves favourites with their charming vocalism and clever dancing; Mr. Sam Thompson created roars of laughter with his droll impersonation of Idle Jack; and the rôle of Alderman Fitzwarren was capably sustained by Mr. W. Glanmore Jones; Mr. George Westland also adds considerably to the success of the pantomime by his inimitable impersonation of Mary Ann, the cook; Mr. Michael Kemble, who appears as the King of Rats, sings with great effect "The white squall"; Mr. J. Randle Wilson appears as Captain Bailey and the Sultan, and acquits himself with distinction, and Miss Connie Irwin appears to decided advantage as Fairy Bow Bell, her rendering of "Dear old Bow Bells" being hailed with pleasure; Mr. L. C. Young was good as Tom, the cat; and Miss Topsy Johnstone, who appears as Princess Halfid, sings in pleasing style, "I used to sigh for the silvery moon." Other rôles were satisfactorily filled by Miss Rene Wilson, Miss Ruby Ashwood, and Messrs. Gosling and F. Wilfred. The scenery was beautiful, and during the course of the pantomime specialities are provided by the Sisters Cora, Four Killarney Girls, whose dancing is very smart, and the very excellent Celestas Comedy Quartette. Mr. Eccleston acts as musical director, and it should be added that the pantomime was strikingly successful on its initial production in Belfast. Mr. J. Randall Wilson fills the arduous duties of stage-manager.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The star here is Mr. Arthur Prince, the clever ventriloquist, who made a great success on Monday; Edward Lewis and company appear with unbounded success in their farcical interlude, The Three Wishes, Mr. Lewis himself being inimitable; Jock Whiteford makes his customary bit; and the three Cape Girls are smart comediennes and dancers; Miss Belle Braham, pictorial song-stress, has been accorded a hearty reception; and the musical act of the Carina Sisters is one of the best; Cestria is a good comedy acrobatic juggler; and also here are Sam Fay, comedian, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Laidler.—The leading attraction here is the remarkably clever performance of Chung Ling Soo, which has nightly been hailed with unbounded enthusiasm; Mr. Tom Lloyd's comic songs have been much enjoyed; and the Royal Delomes introduce with much effect their novel speciality The Phantom Clogs; Miss Bella White is an accomplished comedienne, with good songs; and Rossi Ashton, the war artist, in Song Sketching returns to this city and achieves a pleasing success. Also on the programme are the Sisters St. Julian, duettists and dancers, Mr. Chas. Lee, comedian, and the Bioscope.

BIRKENHEAD. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert M. King.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company, in The King and the Unknown Woman, forms a suitable holiday attraction. Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is prominent with a forcible rendering of Prince Menski. Mr. James Stilwell does full justice to the important rôle of Prince Loris, and Mr. W. R. Winning as General Platz makes the most of his opportunities. Miss Eugénie Magnus displays considerable ability as the Countess Melveitch; Miss Violet Carlisle is an irreproachable Zora; and remaining principal parts are in able hands. The scenic effects and costumes are on an elaborate scale.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Keating.—A really strong and effective company includes Miss Ella Retford, a charming and accomplished comedienne, and Miss Mabel Morgan, a clever Australian comedienne. The comedians comprise Mr. Tom Costello, always a favourite here, who is renewing previous successes; Mr. Will H. Fox, the popular piano monologuist; Mr. Paul Barnes, a sterling American artist; and Mr. Charles Norton, an exceptionally clever mimic; the Four Royal Scots, in a clever vocal and instrumental show; Drew and Alders, pantomimists; George Carney and Frank Armstrong, song and dance artists; Miss Money Mine, singer and dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Phenomenal business is the rule.

HIPPODROME.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Will Sley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—F. Marriott Watson and James Ussher's company, in a condensed version of The Face at the Window, constitutes a strong attraction. Mr. T. W. Dunscombe scores heavily in the rôle of Paul Gouffet; Delgado is powerfully interpreted by Mr. W. Houghton Macauley; and Miss Clare O'Sullivan plays Marie with excellent effect.

BIRMINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; General-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway. — For many years A Royal Divorce has been an Easter attraction at this house, and it has lost none of its popularity, judging by the generous patronage it has been given during the week. The play is ably presented by Mr. W. W. Kelly's London company. Miss Violet Ellicott is an admirable Josephine; and an excellent study of Napoleon is given by Mr. Keith Fraser; Miss Dorothy Garth is a vivacious Stephanie; and others deserving special mention are Miss Winnie Tempest, Mr. J. H. Roberts, Mr. Charles Stirling, Mr. Ernest Plumpton, Mr. H. A. Allen, Mr. G. Hudson, Miss Florence Cuddipp, and Miss Julia Wren.

PRINCE OF WALES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnstone.—Mr. George Edwardes's delightful musical comedy, The Dollar Princess, is here, and late-comers meet the board "House Full." The music and lyrics are charming and effective, the dresses and scenery are exceedingly beautiful. The comedy element is in good hands, and the respective rôles are taken with unqualified success. Always dainty and natural, Miss Clara Evelyn as Alice sings prettily; Mr. Louis Bradfield is quite at home as Conder, his bright and sparkling performance meeting with well-merited general approval; Miss Norma Whalley is convincing as Olga; Mr. Leonard Mackay's singing is quite a feature of the production, and he makes a capital Fairfax; Mr. Eric Thorne is responsible for good broad humour; and Mr. Paul Plunket and Miss Daisy Elliston should also be signalled out for special mention.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Barnardo; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The Aladdin pantomime closes down this week after a fourteen-weeks' record run. Unfortunately the bright and vivacious principal boy, Miss Ethel Beech, has been absent from several of the last performances through illness; but Miss Ida Gwynne, a local artist with a promising future, has deputised admirably. She makes an attractive "boy," and renders her songs in pleasing style.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Crowded audiences have attended the performances of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in the Lyceum version of The Christian, during the Easter holidays. The company does full justice to the play, Mr. Henry Wolston taking with great effect the part of John Storm; Miss Gladys Purnell achieves a notable triumph as Glory Quayle, and wins unstinted applause; Mr. Wilfred Noy is clever in the character of Horatio Drake; and Miss Molly Haydon is excellent as Mrs. Callender. Other good performers in the cast are Mr. Royce Milton (Lord Robert Ure), Mr. Charles E. Dering (Archdeacon Wealthy), Miss Gladys Vernon (Polly Love), Mr. Thomas Barry (Father Lamplugh), &c.

METROPOLE.—Proprietor, Mr. Andrew Melville; Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Easter attraction here is the drama, Married to the Wrong Man. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is well suited to the character of Jack Gladwin; Miss Mary Pemberton scores a success as Ruth, the dumb heroine; the heavy business is cleverly sustained by Mr. George Arthur as Captain Deering and Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Jasper Skinner; Miss Cissie Bellamy is a careful Rose O'Connor; and Mr. R. Marius St. John is prominent as Dr. Archie Bird.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Manager, Mr. F. Martin Morris.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's capable company is presenting the romantic play Who is She? before enthusiastic audiences here. Miss Georgette Thierry displays ability in the title-rôle; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlon plays the important part of Prince Bora with true dramatic power; and Mr. James Stillwell makes an admirable King Vladimir. Mr. Bernard Leill is well chosen as Chang-See; and other clever performers are Miss Alice Barber (Countess Ladori), Mr. C. H. Henderson, and Miss B. Moore.

CARLTON THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mr. Charles Harrington's No. 1 company is presenting a fine version of Uncle Tom's Cabin, and the piece has been a splendid attraction during Eastertide. Mr. J. H. Boehm gives a careful study as Uncle Tom, and is a great favourite; Mr. A. Hayes is good as Phineas Fletcher; Miss Annie Watson acts realistically and sings well as Topsy; Miss Gem Lloyd proves a clever emotional actress as Little Eva; and Mr. Victor Gardom gives a good account of his abilities as Legree. The setting is particularly effective, the principal scene depicting a plantation festival which is taken part in by a versatile company of negro entertainers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Williams.—Miss Evie Greene is enjoying a cordial welcome, and delights crowded audiences with selections from a well-selected répertoire. Miss Margaret Parker and company play a leading part in the humorous section of the programme in a sketch, Lucky Jim. Patrons are pleased to renew acquaintance with Pip Powell and Katie Vesey in their musical comedy duologue, "A Perfect Woman"; Frank H. Fox, a Birmingham comedian, convulses hearers with his antics and patter; Charles J. Johnson is a pleasing singer and clever dancer; Horace Wheatley is a first-class Irish entertainer; the humour of Dusty Rhodes acts as a rejuvenating elixir; Musical Silvo extracts delightful music from bell-toned instruments; and Lucy Coventry is another popular contributor.

THE GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Foster; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Lucas.—Harry Roxbury presents his new musical sketch, On the Track, for the first time in this city, and the production is delighting crowded audiences. Roxbury has full scope for his quaint humour in his many disguises as Detective Longfellow. The Roll Call is the title of a military spectacle presented by Mr. George Leyton, who renders a catchy chorus song, and his tableau is made effective by the introduction of a number of local military veterans. Mlle. Marjutti is an exceptionally clever contortionist; a delightful vocal entertainment is provided by the Dandies; Verno and Voyce appear successfully in a racing sketch; Conn and Conrad are up-to-date comedians; and Loyal's trained dogs give a remarkable performance. Ray Wallace and Harry Bedford are absent through illness, and Dusty Rhodes and Frank M. Fox deputise.

GAIETY.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Pride of place in a good holiday programme is worthily held by Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company, in the sketch Nana, the title-rôle being well played by Miss Elsworthy. Mimicry figures prominently in the programme, Wilson Hallett being a favourite imitator of children of all ages; Harry Leybourne, a popular comedian and impersonator; and Alice Maude, a charming student of male characters. Henry Carlton and his comedy team appear in a laughable sketch entitled One Night Only. The Four Scoreys prove themselves clever instrumentalists in an amusing mélange; Hess and Chivers are smart figure and solo skaters; Winifred Norman is a quaint Dutch character; and Fred Lincoln, an entertaining comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasfords, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. P. D. Eibourne.—A mirth-provoking sketch, entitled The Prince of the Dandies, is the chief item in a good all-round bill. Mr. Arthur Watson as "Sprouts" never fails to create laughs; and the Empire dancing troupe play a conspicuous part. The Derringtons are expert trick cyclists; Albert Le Fre performs juggling and acrobatic feats to the accompaniment of a song; Albert St. Clair is an established favourite with his double-voiced singing; the Markies present a pleasing vocal and instrumental scena, The Professor's Studio; Willie Atom and company score in Wiggles; "Jimmy" Basnett is a good descriptive vocalist; Lily Hayes is a popular serio and dancer; Ernest Rees achieves success as a comedian; the Eight Elves are clever juveniles; and the Kebbles are smart duettists and dancers.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Aston Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—Messrs. Joe Peterman and George Ricketts, in the dramatic sketch, The Pawnbroker, head the company here; Miss Mollie Seymour is a capable violinist and vocalist; the Austral Trio present a refined musical cat; the Keppels are pleasing operatic vocalists; Fred S. Howard entertains with songs and lightning sketches; Fred Lyndo is a popular comedian; and the Ongars are applauded in a smart dancing turn.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—This week Mr. George Edwardes's company is playing to capital houses in The Merry Widow. Mr. Robert Needham's portrayal of Prince Danilo is remarkably good, and Mr. H.

Dear Sir,—I consider that I have now had an opportunity of thoroughly testing the Waterproof qualities of the overcoat you did for me by your "Slydoffo" process, and I must say that the result is most satisfactory. It fully realises all that you claim for it, and should be very popular.
Yours truly, E. HILL.

Specially recommended for—LADIES' JACKETS, COATS, and TWEED DRESSES, GOLF OUTFITTING, MEN'S OUTDOOR CLOTHING.

CONTRACTORS TO H.M. OFFICE OF WORKS.

The many years' experience which we have had as GENERAL CLEANERS and DYERS places us in a position which is SECOND TO NONE for the many varieties of work necessary at this season of the year.

Write for our latest Catalogue (free) which is full of interest.

Sinclair Cotter provokes roars of laughter as Baron Popoff; Mr. Ronald Pomeroy is an effective Jolidon; Mr. Harry Emerie is a merry Nisch, and Mr. Cecil Warwick a clever General Novakovitch; Miss Mabel Hope does exceedingly well as Natalie; Miss Neste Laurel is a capable Frou-Frou; Miss Mary Ridley plays the title-rôle to perfection.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, the Hippodrome (Bishop Auckland) Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi.—Les Piccolinos, in their pot-pourri act, are capable dancers, wire walkers, and crack shooters; J. W. Hall is a very amusing comedian. The Lecardo Bros., in their bakehouse scena, provide a clever turn as acrobats; the McConnell Trio are especially pleasing in their comedy sketch; and Allis and Casatti, Parker and Parr (comedy artists), and Billy Adair (Irish comedienne) are effective turns.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is paying another visit, and giving delight to music-lovers. Il Trovatore, Faust, Lohengrin, Samson and Delilah, The Masked Ball, Daughter of the Regiment, and Carmen are included in the programme, the principal rôles being sustained by Miss Grace Nicoll, Mme. Beatrice La Palme, Miss Lilian Matthews, Miss Helen Culver, and Messrs. John Child, William Anderson, Albert Bowyer, Dudley S. Marcus and Graham Barr.

Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Harrop.—The Gay Gordons, played by a company under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour, is doing excellent business here. Mr. Frank Lincoln gives a capital rendition of Angus Graeme; and Miss Clarice Lockstone is thoroughly suited to the part of Peggy Quainton. Nervy Nat is ably accounted for by Mr. Arthur Ricketts; and the other parts are also in capable hands. The chorus is a strong one, and the orchestral numbers are excellently rendered, under the direction of Mr. Leonard Leslie.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Barnold's animal actors are proving a decided draw, the antics of Dan, the intoxicated dog, being the wonder and admiration of everyone; Syd. May, the mimic, is also a great favourite; and Bert Errol, the lady impersonator, is another remarkably clever turn. Ted Karno and company, in a sketch; Beatrice Allen, comedienne; Fasola, the Indian magician; the Daunton-Shaw Troupe of cyclists; Merton and Rydon, comedians and dancers; Sisters Allen, duettists; and Cavallotti Brothers, instrumentalists, are also well received.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Pantomime once more forms the attraction here, Mr. Gilbert Payne presenting The House that Jack Built, and meeting with a favourable reception. Mr. Payne, in the rôle of Sir Niggley Grabbe, proves successful; as Sunshine Miss Fanny Adamson wins favour; the Jack Trot of Miss Nellie Dyson is a pleasing performance; Miss Ethel Errol is an amusing Tommy Tucker; the Marjorie Daw of Miss Hilda Deacon is satisfactory; Messrs. Lapham and Wallen are funny as Jossem and Jewen, and the Godfrey Girls are smart speciality dancers.

BOLTON. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr John Moncur.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company is here with The Dollar Princess, the brightness and attractiveness of which are greatly admired. In the title-rôle Miss Norah Barry is in every respect pleasing; and Miss Madeline Seymour (Olga) and Miss Peggy Primrose (Daisy) also have the power to charm and amuse. Mr. Alec Worcester as Freddy Fairfax, sings and acts with admirable expression; Mr. Leslie Holland is an excellent exponent of Harry Q. Conder; the Bulger of the cast is Mr. W. H. Rawlins, whose quips and gags are always welcome; Mr. Hugh Henson is good as the inane swell Dick; the Earl of Quorn has a bright representative in Mr. Sidney Lyndon; and Sir James McGregor is agreeably hit off by Mr. Willie Warde, jun. The chorus and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden, is an outstanding feature in this magnificent production.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent company comprises the Griffiths Brothers, eccentric comedians, in their burlesque wrestling, &c.; Nan Farren, chorus singer and expert dancer; Fred Carr and Ada Rose, in their singing sketch, After a Night Out; Horace White, ventriloquist; James and Jenny Jee, on the tight and revolving wire; Irene May, soprano vocalist; the Zenary Bros., in a clever acrobatic act; Walter Stanley, comedian; Haverley and Homer, comedians, patterers, and dancers; Sammy Shields, Scottish comedian; and the Premier Imperial Pictures.

Harrison.—The holiday programme submitted here embraces Alan Holt and company, in the dramatic episode, A Society Woman; Ada Whitton, refined burlesque actress; Marcus Boyle, comedian; Lillian Sivado, lady gymnast; Lidian Lowe, vocalist; The Dunlops, comedy cyclists and skaters; Michael Madden, comedian; Harry Cotton, comedian; Britain's Invasion, a spectacular production by Prof. Selkirk; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's répertoire company, under the direction of Mr. David McFarlane, is here. They presented Almost His Bride the first three nights of the week. The company consists of Mr. Arthur Dudley, Mr. David McFarlane, Mr. Stephen Pritt, Mr. Percy Warlow, Mr. R. F. Stacey, Mr. Barton White, Mr. Henry Houston, Mr. George Cross, Miss Nellie Hook, Miss Lily Prescott, Miss Adela Liddow, and Miss Louie Peebles. A Woman's Passion was announced for the remainder of the week.

Winter Gardens.—Messrs. Adeler, Sutton, and Allandale's Peirrots present the laughable musical comedy, entitled The R.M.S. Loosertanner, which goes with a merry swing from start to finish. Mr. Kennedy Allen as the Crew and Mr. Richard Parry as the Mate keep the audience in continuous laughter; Mr. Fred Allandale makes a very efficient Captain; and the Four Mimins as the Officers are responsible for some very clever harmonising. The favourite Mr. Tim O'Connor displays remarkable talent as a dancer; and Miss Belle Brocade and Miss Kitty Kennedy Allen sing themselves into favour.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—In Mr. Preedy and the Countess the management have secured a capital Easter attraction which is resulting in highly satisfactory box-office returns. Mr. Weedon Grossmith can always be relied upon to extract the utmost humour from the parts he characterises, and in Hamilton Preedy he has unlimited opportunities for the display of his versatility; Miss Ruth Mackay, a great favourite with local playgoers, portrays the Countess of Rushmere with her customary charm, ease, and good humour; the impetuous Earl of Rushmere is truthfully depicted by Mr. Ronald Squire; Mr. Oswald Marshall presents a capital study of Lord Kinslow; other efficient characterisations are the Hon. Robt. Jennerway (Mr. Edward Bonfield), John Bounsall (Mr. Frank J. Arlton), Mr. Sidgrave (Mr. Edward H. Wynne), Reginald Saunders (Mr. Frank H. Denton), Mrs. Sidgrave (Miss Lydia Rachel), Emma Sidgrave (Miss Evelyn Kerry), and Harriet Budgen (Miss Lynn Fontanne).

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The revival of Les Cloches de Corneville by Mr. John Hart and Mr. Milton Bode has furnished a fine attraction here. Mr. E. St. Albans interpretation of the part of Gaspard, the miser, was a clever dramatic effort; as Henri Mr. Stuart Alexander bore himself well and sang with effect; Mr. Wensley Russell played Grenicheux well, and his vocalism was very good; Mr. Mark Lester was delightfully humorous as the Bailie; and as Gobo Mr. Alfred Selby was very funny. Miss Lucy Kipling made a smart Christophe; Miss Vera Dorian sang sweetly, and invested the part of Germaine with grace; and Miss Gurney Delaporte with much charm and brightness played the saucy Serpolette. The new scenery is beautifully painted, and the stage effects are very fine.

Invaluable During the Spring.—LAIT-LAROLA is the most perfect emollient ever discovered for preserving the skin and complexion from the trying changes of weather usually experienced at this time of year, and keeps the skin Soft, Smooth, and White all the year round. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d. each, of all chemists and stores. M. Beetham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. M. Hamilton.—Mr. Frank Lindo's company is here this week with the well-known drama Home, Sweet Home, and Mr. Lindo (the author) gives a vigorous performance of the young fisherman Stephen Armitage, Miss Marion Wakeford supporting him well in a charmingg portrayal of Joan, the adopted daughter of David Armitage, a part well played by Mr. Norton Shields; and also claiming special notice are Mr. Sidney Dench as the Duke of Ancaster, Mr. L. Laurence as Lucas Lyle, Mr. Bert Dench as the Hon. Percy, Mr. Eric Crowther as Dick Redmayne, Mr. E. Cameron as Lord Silvermere, Miss Nellie Benson as Lady Summerton, and Miss Helene Thomson as Sybil Fay "of the halls." The piece is finely staged, and an extra attraction is introduced in the third act in the form of "Musical Revels" by the smart juveniles prominent in Mr. Laidler's late pantomime, The Forty Thieves, rare ability being shown by Miss Lena Booth (in a song by Mr. J. A. McAlister), Minnie Grossman, and Margery Holmes.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—A notable feature of the bill here is a sketch by Harold Nuttall's company, viz., The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, which is very enjoyable, and in which Martyn Roland scores a success as Hirst. Francis and Alfred, in their juggling act, "Science and Drollery," are clever and amusing; Fatmah Diard's vocalism, of exceptional quality, is well appreciated; Millie Payne, comedienne, with good songs and a smart "Chantecler" satire, scores well; in his protean sketch, Dan the Outlaw, Herbert Shelley is as effective and successful as on his previous visit; Charles R. Whittle, comedian, is on his native heath here, and he meets with well-merited success; J. A. Wilson and his clever dog Towser prove as amusing as ever; Sydney James' Strolling Players again present their acceptable pastoral entertainment; Mona Vivian, comedienne, pleases with song and dance; and there are some entertaining pictures shown by the Bioscope.

The Palace.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Sweet harmony by the Two Darntons finds favour here this week, and a capital turn is provided by Edwardes and Edwardes, comedy artists; Cavalli, a very smart ventriloquist, gives a good entertainment on novel lines; a very acceptable turn is presented by May Poulton, comedienne; in a clever juggling and club-throwing act Les Zanonis are well applauded; Julian Mack, the topical "Dame" comedian elicits very hearty laughter; Ray Royal, with her illustrated songs, continues for yet another week; and J. W. Rickaby, the diverting comedian, is as popular as ever.

BRIDLINGTON. — Royal Prince's Parade.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The fine orchestra which Mr. Megone has secured are giving some capital promenade concerts in the Grand Pavilion. The Easter attractions also include "The Go-Bangs," a company of entertainers, under the management of Mr. Chas. Conyers.

The Spa and Gardens.—Managing-Director, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The season at this fashionable resort was inaugurated on Thursday evening last. For his opening venture Mr. Tunbridge had secured Julian Kandt and his famous Band, who have created quite a furore during the holidays by their truly magnificent orchestration, under their talented conductor. The vocalist is Miss Evelyn Vernham, a pleasing soprano.

New Hippodrome.—Manager Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The Easter holiday attractions here include Lucio Delgardo, the "man of mystery," in a series of illusions; Joe Burgess is a capital comedian and mimic; Sam Paul, an actor-vocalist of ability; and Doris Strathmore comedienne and dancer; Alice Glenwood, comedienne, and Gertie Martini, vocalist and impersonator all do well. Carl Zently, "the tramp at the piano," is a clever artist, and Harry Rutland shines as an elocutionist.

BRIGHTON. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr Ernest Gates; General-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here this week with Driven from Home. Mr. Felix Pitt merits high praise for his masterly impersonation of Anthony Raybrook; Miss A. M. Ryder imparts great feeling to her enactment of Laura Raybrook, and also appears as the young Walter Hatherleigh, whose father is ably represented by Mr. P. G. Beresford. Mr. Harry Cornwall submits a good character study as the old servant Jabez Thomas; Mr. John B. Shinton is forcible and convincing as the scheming Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Percy Dawsone is effective as Willie; and Mr. Fred C. Imbert as John Anderson and Miss Susie Beaven as Margaret Bailey are very amusing. The drama is finely staged and mounted.

Alhambra. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Smith.—Charles Coborn wins enthusiastic applause for his admirable songs; Farlie, Rennie, and company are highly amusing in The Terrible Tailors; Hugo and Smit are very smart in a novel acrobatic single-bar act; the Whitworth Trio perform with great skill in a cycling turn; Terry and Bentley are diverting in comedy business; Arthur Leslie is an entertaining comedian; J. C. Inman is a pleasing light comedian; Ambrose Thorne, comedian, wins cordial applause; and Emmie Harlow, a chic entertainer, is well received.

Barrasford's Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Bertram J. Brown.—Charles T. Aldrich, an American quick-change artist, is wonderfully smart; George H. Elliott achieves distinct success with his coon songs and delightful dancing; A. Wood and company are entertaining in the sketch Ten Minutes; Mabel Mignon is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Tom E. Hughes, "one of the Upper Ten," gives a capital turn; Orpheus is distinctly effective in a high-class musical act; the Three Cunards are smart dancers; Phil Bransby is a good coster comedian; Jewel St. Leger is very artistic; and Ryder Slone, comedian, merits praise.

West Pier.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is here this week with The Little Damozel. Miss Roxy Barton submits a charming enactment of Julie Alardy; Mr. Mark Blow achieves great success as the Hon. Fitzroy Lock; Mr. Lemmon Warde gives a finished portrayal of Recklaw Poole; Mr. W. Matthews is well placed as Walter Angel; Mr. J. H. Twyford makes an admirable Captain Partington; Miss Angela Murray is a pleasing Sybil Craven; Mr. C. R. Stone's Papa Bartholdy is a neat character study; and able support is given by Mr. C. Clarke, Mr. R. Ravenscroft, and Mr. A. Redmond.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jay and Mann; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wilfred H. Kent.—Messrs. Daniel and Frank's company is here this week with Making a Gentleman. Mr. Arthur Gibbons gives an excellent impersonation of Sam Carey; Mr. Dudley Stuart achieves much success as Archibald Carey; Miss Dorrie Roberts deserves high praise for her artistic portrayal of the Baroness Von Ritzen; Miss Molly Crichton makes a winsome and charming Milly Chambers; and able enactments are submitted by Mr. Harry Hayes (Lord Parkhurst), Mr. Percival Madgewick (the Hon. Lionel Trenning), Miss Victoria Bray (the Hon. Mrs. Trenning), Miss Caroline Fenton (Mrs. Revell), and Mr. Clifford Lomer (Geoffrey Carleon).

Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Maud Barrasford; Manager, Mr. F. J. Thompson.—An excellent series of animated pictures is exhibited here this week. The Keeper of the Lighthouse conveys a strong stirring tale of the sea; The Yellow Devil and Three-Fingered Jack are intensely dramatic, while great amusement is afforded by The Theatre Pass, The Conquering Hero, and Kingdom of Lilliput. Mr. Osland Denner contributes baritone songs in good style, and the duties of pianoforte accompanist are admirably carried out by Mr. Arthur W. Briggs.

Theatre de Luxe.—Proprietors, Electric Theatres Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. H. Cousens.—This theatre opened on Easter Monday with an attractive series of animated pictures. The Woodcutter, On the Border, and A Voyage to Brittany are very interesting films; the recent Grand National Steeplechase and Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race are splendidly depicted; and the amusing pictures include New Burglar Alarm and The Tenor's Conquest.

BRISTOL.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company opened here on Saturday evening last with The Flag Lieutenant, the successful naval play being well staged and capitally performed; Mr. Edward Kent acts remarkably well as Dicky Lascelles; Miss Dorothy Ripley is graceful and convincing as Lady Hermione Wynne; Mr Montagu Love displays much ability in his impersonation of Major Thesiger; and Miss Florence Jackson does excellently as Mrs. Cameron.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mrs. Emma Carpenter; Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—A Woman Worth Winning is being played here by Mr. Percy Norman's company. The play is well staged, and the uniforms are appropriate. Miss Margaret Nobie acts in earnest and painstaking style as Roma Pauloff; Mr. A. B. Makay is consistent in the heavy part of General Borinsky. Mr. Carl Kirzo is manly and soldierlike as Fergus Lovinsky; and Miss Ida Mackay makes the most of the comic part of Katherine Kiess.

Palace.—Local Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Assistant-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welcaman.—La Pia, "the enchantress," occupies the leading position on the programme here, presenting four of her most successful dances, the settings for which are very elaborate. La Pia's dancing is both graceful and artistic. Miss Teddy Edmonds and company score with their sporting farce The Lady Jockey; Gwen Francis is an exceptionally pleasing comedienne; Sandy and Carl amuse with comedy, dancing, and boxing; Harris Coonie, coloured comedian, is an expert dancer; Fetter Brothers entertain with their gymnastic speciality, "The Page's Recreation"; the Phœnix Trio, harmony singers and dancers, present an acceptable turn; and the Three Prestons score with The Village of Shift 'Em. Animated pictures conclude.

Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Carrie Moore, comedienne, heads the programme and has a good reception, her songs and dramatic monologue going remarkably well; the Six Brothers Luck amuse with their funny act, The Demon of the Cellar; Henry Herne and company score with their dramatic sketch, The Colleen Bawn, the stage being converted into a lake of real water; Arthur Rigby, comedian, obtains applause; Violet Lloyd and Horace Lane please with their comedy act Visitors; the Stavordale Quintette present a pleasing musical entertainment; Kenneth and Kane, comedy duo, do a smart turn; Ada Oxley and company do well with their farcical sketch Peggy; Edie Veno is a pleasing comedienne; Billy Rex, comedian, has some good songs; and interesting animated pictures conclude.

Colston Hall.—Ralph Pringle's animated picture show opened here on Saturday evening last. There are several novelties for this season, including an actual pictorial representation of The Blue Bird, the beautiful play now running at the Haymarket Theatre, London. The Sins of the Fathers, The Heroine of Mafeking, Belshazzar's Feast, The Zoo at Antwerp, and many others, both comic and serious. There is a good band and a capable variety company, including the Wittington Trio, Miss Dora Barrington, and the Five Musical Tritons.

Zoological Gardens. — Superintendent, Captain E. W. Villiers.—There was a very large attendance here on Easter Monday. The artists engaged for the variety entertainment included the Victas, in their clever acrobatic barrel jumping act; the Bordellas, pattering gymnaste and flying ring performers; Brothers Western, patter comedians and dancers; Brothers Graham, comedy acrobats and hand balancers; Fred Marco, comedian; Norman and Allan, knockabout comedians and dancers; Vesta Ondra, serio and dancer; and Levbar and Satello, triple bar performers. Mr. George Walker was the pianist, and the amusements were provided by Mr. Tom Wood, Whitehall-road, Bristol which also included the usual country fair. Mr. Tom Weymouth's quadrille band played selections and for dancing; and Messrs. W. and J. Wilder, of Birmingham, gave a grand display of fireworks.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. James Cramer; Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Was She to Blame? has been presented here by Mr and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company. Mrs. Kimberley (Miss L. Addison) ably portrays Kate Roselle, and Wm. Clarke is well played by Mr. F. G. Kimberley. Mr. George Keene makes a good hero of Captain George Courtney, and a charming heroine (Lilian Norman) is presented by Miss Constance Laurie. Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Timothy Swales and Miss Nita Owen as Sarah Swales keep the comedy in front. Mr. Clavering-Craig makes a fine villain of Frank Roselle. The other characters are capably sustained.

BURNLEY.—Empire Theatre of Varieties—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The place of honour here is occupied by the Two Lilys, in a delightful performance of equilibrism and hand balancing; the Eight 'Varsity Girls also make a first appearance, in "A Musical Evening"; as a mimic and comedian Alf Holt is entertaining; and good work is done in laughter-making by the Milwards. Harry Briggs is received with enthusiasm for song and mimicry; and the Brennans (May and Will), in a dancing turn, are clever. Andy Higham, coon comedian, is good; and the Grand National is shown by the Empire Theatrescope.

Palace Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. R. Badcoe.—The Villions are a brilliant combination of trick cycling and Continental dancers; Joe Cookson is received with laughter and applause for a funny ventriloquial turn; and Jimmie Pullen keeps the audience mirthful with clever songs and patter. Burnetti, besides being a good musician, is a remarkable quick-change artist; the Eight College Girls introduce a pleasing singing and dancing act; Jeil and Laval show much dexterity in barrel and trick jumping; clever knockabout work is performed by Bill and Bellay; and the Palace pictures contribute a fine dramatic picture, Lily Boheme.

Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Passing of the Third Floor Back is doing good business here. Mr. Ian Robertson is fervently admired as the passer-by; Miss Jeannie Thomas is realistic as a Cheat; and Miss Helena Parsons is delightful as the Slut. Miss Drusilla Wills makes a pathetic figure of the Painted Lady; Mr. Herbert Garthorne gives a fine performance of a Cad; the Bully is capitally represented by Mr. Gedge Twyman; and a repulsive stage figure is made of a Satyr by Mr. W. O. Billington. Miss Lena Delphine and Miss Blanche Ripley are highly praiseworthy as a Shrew and a Snob; and Mr. Stanley Brown is very smart as the Rogue. Miss Barbara Everest and Mr. J. Woodall Birde are also very good as a Hussy and a Coward. The play is preceded by a pleasing playlet, Come Here!

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. De Hague Body.—Mr. Jas. Welch's company with When Knights Were Bold is drawing crowded houses here this week. Sir Guy is undertaken with complete success by Mr. Langdon Bruce; the sentimental Lady Rowena has a sympathetic representative in Miss Ernita Lascelles; Mr. Chas. Lloyd (Isaacson) and Miss Ethel St. John (Miss Isaacson) are capital character sketches, as is also the part of Sir Bryan in the capable hands of Mr. Gerald Venning.

BURY (Lancs.).—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company occupies the boards, in The Midnight Mail. The cast is particularly strong, and able representations are given of all parts. Messrs. John F. Traynor, Fred G. Evison, Henry W. Hatchman, Misses Marie Longden, Mildred Carr, and Trissie Humphrys are especially noticeable.

Circus of Varieties. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—An attractive series of pictures continue to draw large audiences. The Soho Trio of singers and dancers, and David Fuller, vocalist, are also in the bill.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—The Seven Wulfrunas, in comedy acrobatic speciality, provide the principal turn. Others in the bill are George Hall, light comedian; the Quality Quartette, male vocalists; Ernestos, juggler; Eugene, girl with a baritone voice; the Zaid Trio, Spanish Moors; Charles Baker, in song and story; and the Glenroy Troupe of dancers and vocalists.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—Theatre Royal.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Cecil Woodhouse's company, in Oh! Susannah! forms the holiday attraction here. Mr. Woodhouse is exceedingly good as Dr. Sheppard, being well supported by Mr. Frank Kingsley (Lieut. Merry) and Mr. Eric Williams (Hon. Waverley Vane). A first-rate portrayal of Mr. Plant is given by Mr. Alfred Ibberson; and Mr. Iver H. Smith is good as Tupper. As Aurora, the "slavey," Miss Adie Boyne is clever; Miss Eve Mansell is quite satisfactory as Susannah; and the rôles of Flora, the doctor's bride, and Mr. Plant's daughters are nicely played by Misses Frances Carlyle, Mabel Leatham, and Ethel Marsden. A curtain-raiser, Dream Faces, precedes the comedy.

BUXTON. — Opera House. — Proprietors, The Buxton Gardens Co., Limited; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—Paid in Full, played by Mr. George Waters' company, is the Easter attraction here, and a capital play it proves. Mr. George Waters travels a first-rate company, including Miss Jessica Waters as Emma, a really excellent characterisation. Mr. Arthur Poole as the kindly Jimsey is greatly popular; and Mr. Aidan Lovett does very useful work as the despicable Joe Brookes. Mr. Bert Morley is excellent as Captain Williams; and Mr. Cyril Percy does well his small part of Sato. Mrs. Harris is well represented by Miss Lydia Bush; and Miss D. Brinsley Hill is a dainty Beth Harris.

New Electric Theatre.—The Pavilion Theatre has been leased by the Anchor Picture Theatres, Ltd., and entertainments are being given to full houses twice nightly. The venture is under the direction of Mr. Rollo Balmain.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—In an Easter attraction Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company gave an extremely well-thought-out rendering of The Luck of Roaring Camp. Mr. Douglas Murray was excellent as the hero, Will Gordon; Mr. Charles E. Johnson as the villain Tom Barnes was thoroughly well hissed; his companion Gonzales was played wholeheartedly by Mr. Ernest Clarke; and Mr. Horace Stewart (Ebenezer) and Mr. Harry Benson (Paddy McGinty) supplied the comic element. Miss Elizabeth Dundas made a dainty and lovable Nell Curtis; Miss Agnes Verity (Jovita de Sutro) rendered the character with particular effectiveness; Miss Mary Morrell made an ideal Irishwoman as Mrs. O'Fynn; and Mr. J. O. Cuthbertson was also good as the Sheriff.

CANTERBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. G. Falcon.—Mr. Charles Carte and company have been here for Easter, giving representations of A Noble Brother and Ruined by Drink. Mr. Carte himself has portrayed Jerry, the tramp, as played by him over 2,000 times, and Coupeau. Miss Birchley makes a charming Nana Leigh and an equally effective Gervaise. The other parts are capably filled.

St. Margaret's Hall.—The Electric Picture Palace.—Managers, The Messrs. Lloyd.—The Smugglers of Fingall's Cave is alone worth the admission money. The other pictures, both varied and interesting, include No Man's Land, The Obstinate Mule, The Gentleman Thief, An Ingrate Brother, Foolshead Pays a Visit, For my Papa, The Lazy Boy, and A Midnight Adventure.

CARDIFF. — New Theatre. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, with The Arcadians, is doing tremendous business. Mr. Walter Passmore in the rôle of James Smith gives a rendition of this laughable character quite worthy of his previous well-remembered performances in Cardiff; Mr. Oliver J. Round is well appreciated as Peter Doody; the vivacious acting of Miss Billie Sinclair as Eileen Cavanagh and the clever portrayal by Miss Veronica Brady of Mrs. Smith are thoroughly recognised; Miss Ethel Erskine as Sombra and Miss Mabel Munro as Chrysea are delightful in their respective characters; and prominent among other important rôles is Mr. Harold E. Pearce as Jack Meadows. The augmented orchestra is directed by Mr. Edwin Thornton.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Taylor.—Crowded houses on Monday appreciated to the full extent the strong holiday programme. The prince of jugglers, Paul Cinquevalli, once again demonstrated his marvellous dexterity and precision, and gained unbounded applause; King and Benson, in their new musical burlesque, Around the Town, maintain their reputation for versatility, humorous patter, and first-class singing; the Marco Twins, comedians, scored heavily with their quaint eccentricities; and John Macaulay, fine character ballad vocalist, gained his fair share of the evening's applause. A capitally-contrived sketch, Beauty and the Burglar, is presented by Miss Millie Engler and company, Miss Engler herself appearing to great advantage; Barnard's Mannikins, in The Coon's Revelry, provide an exceptionally clever marionette performance; and Harry Clifford, comedian, causes uproarious fun. As a lady mimic Florence excels; and the Rohda Brothers are remarkable gymnasts.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Graham Morrison; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. E. Clay.—Her Forbidden Marriage is presented by Mr. Frederick Melville's company. The Mother Superior is creditably undertaken by Miss Gladys Newcombe; Charles Devereux has a skilful representative in Mr. W. H. Porter; Mr. Laurence Tessier is a manly exponent of George Maddison; as Lucy Miss Alice Powes is charming and painstaking; while Miss Grace Lester as Lady Lucretia acts with confidence born of experience. Mr. Fred de Vere is still in the comedy rôle of Timothy Tuttut, ably assistance being accorded him by Miss Sybil Hare as Patty Lovejoy. Good business has been done during the holidays.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. William A. Jackson.—Large audiences have fully enjoyed the programme here. Admiration is freely expressed at the evolutions of the Narow Brothers, premier comedy cyclists; John Donald, a fine baritone, in a vocal scena, A Scottish Exile's Dream, wins much approbation; Geoffreys and Benson, comedy sketch artists, put the house in the best of humour; as vocalists and speciality dancers Shenton and Chicks are really good; and Colin Mail is a light comedian of much ability. Edith Chantler, vocalist; Karr and Kooney, "Royal" pantomime favourites; and two interesting films add to a capital bill.

CARLISLE.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—On Saturday last the Scottish Répertory Company, from Glasgow, paid a special visit here, and gave two performances, which met with most gratifying support. At the matinée Admiral Guinea and The Price of Coal were the pieces presented, while the evening's performances consisted of George Paston's Cockney sketch, 'Tilda's New Hat, and Mr. G. J. Hamlen's new Scotch comedy, Barbara Grows Up. For the holiday week the revised version of The Manxman, entitled Pete, is a big attraction. The company, under the direction of Mr. Henry R. Smith, is strong all round, and a capital performance on the opening night gave the utmost delight to a large audience. Mr. Austen Milroy, who appears in the title-rôle, is a tower of strength, his pathos and humour being alike natural and convincing; Miss V. Malcolm Barnett in the trying part of Kate is also a big success, her emotional acting gaining her unstinted appreciation; Mr. Alfred Gray makes an excellent Philip; and in the heavy rôle Mr. J. Edward Fletcher gives a telling performance. The other characters are all in good hands, and the dressing and staging leave nothing to be desired.

The Palace.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. D. Askew.—A capital programme has attracted huge audiences. Andos' Happy Little Japs top the bill, and their wonderful balancing and contortionist feats, clever tight rope and cycling tricks are performed with extraordinary dexterity and smartness; The Merrions contribute a bright, original, and humorous turn; Guy Rider's whistling is well received; and Akbar is expert on the silver rings. Fallows and Beaumont give a vocal and humorous act in capital style. Kitty Cameron, a pleasing comedienne, Bella Leaburn, in descriptive songs, and some fine pictures complete.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—For the first time this season we have to chronicle a visit of a pantomime, the company being that of Mr. Wm. Pardoe. Dick Whittington is lavishly staged, and the dresses are gorgeous. Miss Lottie Holland is a popular civic hero; as the cat, Mons. Pauli proves himself a student of feline eccentricities; as Alice Miss Nellie Rose charms everybody with her vivacious manner and admirable singing; Miss Rose Finnettie fills the rôle of Lord Dedbroke in a praiseworthy manner, and Miss Beattie Howard as Miss Tellum supplements her performance with some pleasing vocalisation; Miss Cissie Loveday makes an attractive Fairy, and sings with taste and expression; Mr. George Hyam keeps the audience convulsed with laughter; Miss Daisy Volbecque is an amusing Sarah Cook; Mr. Tom Griffitt as King Rat submits a fine rendering of "Revenge"; Mr. Tom Hulme makes a comical Fitzwarren, and Mr. Alf. Grady causes merriment as Jim; Mr. Dill Robb makes a capital Capt. Binnacle, and the Emperor is well played by Mr. Joe Venora; Miss Elsie Kedward is an admirable Princess. Enjoyable specialities are contributed by Pauletti (acrobatic cyclist), Pardoe (trapeze artist), Miss Lottie Holland in a scena, "Shadow of the Pyramid," Sisters Volbecque, comedy pair, and the Edengales, Continental dancers.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, the Castleford Queen's Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Chas. H. Beanland and W. H. Emerson.—The place of honour in the bill is occupied by Mr. Ernest Chas. Gittins' company in The Daughter of the Regiment, and the excellent singing gains full appreciation. Difficult feats are performed by H. R. Fiscary as a top hat manipulator; Chard's well-trained dogs go through a clever performance; Jack Hartley, comedian and patterer, is thoroughly enjoyed; Cissy and Wally win applause for pretty songs and dances; Robb Gilmore as a burlesque policeman in a song-scena raises many a hearty laugh; Will and Roze are a pair of very amusing and clever acrobatic conjurers, and the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are interesting.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—This week marks the first appearance here of The Arcadians, which is staged in really excellent style by Mr. Robert Courtneidge. Miss Mysie Devine makes a delightful Eileen Cavanagh; Miss Marion Edwards is rewarded with bountiful applause for her vocal contributions; and Miss Katie Yates makes a praiseworthy Chrysea. Mr. Gus Oxley proves himself a comedian of resource and ability as James Smith and Simplicitas; Mr. Frank Collins has a fine conception of the part of Peter Doody; Mr. Roy Sidney makes a popular Jack Meadows; and the part of Bobby is in the safe keeping of Mr. Roy Lorraine. Miss Madge Haines is well chosen as Mrs. Smith.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, The Coast Development Corporation, Ltd.—Will C. Pepper's White Coons are making their first appearance here, and have become favourites; Mr. Ben Lawes creates roars of laughter, and Mr. Bromley Carter is also very funny; Miss Rosa Dallow sings sweetly and is heartily encored. Mr. Allan Thomas makes a decided hit with his banjo song; Mr. Joe Morley also scores with solos on the same instrument, and Miss May Windsor's humorous items at the piano are irresistib

Signor Arvi and his artistic mystery "Metalloscope," which is well received; the Three Krakes, with a comedy act, entitled The Electric Car Conductor, cause roars of laughter; Taree, the Australian musical bushman, Harriett Rose, comedienne, Allen and Austin, comedians and dancers, Carew and Russell, assisted by the Avril Juveniles, in a vocal scena Little Gleaners, and the Hipposcope pictures complete a fine programme.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. E. Burnett.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company is here in The Lighthouse Robbery. Mr. Percy Beresford infuses character and force into the part of Tom Manley; Mr. J. Cameron is a capital David Morris; Mr. E. K. Taylor and Mr. J. Summerville are capable exponents of William Farren and James Hammond respectively; good comedy is provided by Mr. Rupert Talbot as Sam Kidder, assisted by Miss Clarice Jenner as Ruth Manley; Miss Hilda Baynton wins much appreciation for her charming Rose Prescott; and Miss Alice Dent is good as Mrs. Manley. A feature of the performance is the wonderful acting of Baby Freda as Little Nellie.

ALBERT HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Holden, Manager, Mr. J. Morris.—The Hargreaves Trio are favourites in their comedy act; Sisters Kelsall, duettists, are well received; and Mark Stuart, patter comedian, causes amusement.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent.—The Derby Operatic Society, in an excellent all-round rendering of Merrie England occupy the boards here this week. Mr. Sydney T. Sadler, Mus.Bac., merits praise for his work as conductor.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes.—First position on a good holiday programme is occupied by Yangar, a conjuror and illusionist of first-rate ability; Marie Piera and partner submit very neatly a sketch, entitled Two Doors and a Passage; Ruby Emmerson, comedienne, attains great popularity; the Saletos do much that is clever in the way of head and hand balancing; T. E. Johnstone is a versatile character vocalist; Syd Crossley, comedian, keeps his audience in a continual roar of laughter; the Litz Bros. are cyclists whose turn is both clever and amusing; and Daisy Graham, with highly trained birds and dogs, is in every way entertaining. The Bioscope adds to the general enjoyment.

DEVONPORT. — HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Remarkable violin selections contributed by Jan Rudenyi in The Power of Music are loudly re-demanded; Bob Hamilton is a comedian and concertina player of unquestionable ability; Cummin and Seaham furnish a first-rate eccentric acrobatic act, entitled The Ragman and the Postman; the Real Mackays, juvenile singers and dancers maintain a high standard of excellence; Cromo and Hamilton entertain with an amusing little pantomime skit, in which the Chantecler fashions are excellently burlesqued; Lee and Kingston work hard in a comedy duologue, entitled A Resourceful Lover; and Flo Barrett has a couple of taking chorus songs.

METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Coal King is staged in first-rate style by Mr. A. C. Olderson's company. As Walter Hartford, the evil genius of the piece, Mr. Robert Faulkner works hard, and is a great success; Miss Winifred Love creates a fine impression by her charming delineation of the part of Grace Shirely; Mr. Henry Deane is quite at home as Tom Roberts; and Mr. Sam Roberts is genuinely amusing as Jim Williams.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Mrs. Fred W. Clive's company, in the drama The Outcast of the Family, holds the boards here. Mr. J. D. Clyde is to be congratulated on his admirable depiction of the hero Harry Thorne; Miss Gertrude Morella deserves high praise for her capital study of Ruth; Sir Henry Thorne is in the able hands of Mr. Fred W. Clive; the villainy of Richard Martin receives the fullest illustration from Mr. Bert Oates; and Miss Maud Leslie Cudd successfully plays the part of Grace Redburn; Mr. Herbert Bentone as the village blacksmith is responsible for some well-studied acting; Mr. Edward W. Cudd as Abram Wasper causes much hilarity; some very amusing love-making is provided by Miss Freda Beckett (Mrs. F. W. Clive) as Nancy Brown and Mr. Tom Armitage as Joe Bushell, who keep the house in continuous laughter. The scenery and effects are admirable.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. G. W. and G. E. Smith; Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Heading the bill here is George the First, the educated chimpanzee, introduced by Dandy George. The animal is almost human, and is greeted with much applause; Ernie Myers, comedian, is the hit of the evening with his patter and humorous singing; Dewson is a clever entertainer at the piano; a novel turn is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon-Wilde, the talking and singing shadowist; the Crisps are successful in a capital dancing scena, "The Little Deputy"; much merriment is caused by Rose and Challoner in their speciality act, "The Porter and the Singer"; Lily Lonsdale has an excellent voice, and goes well; Edmund Casselli is an excellent banjoist. Edith St. Clair, comedienne, and animated pictures complete a very attractive holiday programme.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—The Arthur Gallimore Trio in their comedy act are immensely popular; La Vie submits a series of artistic poses; Ada Jenner and Percy Curry, in a very funny sketch, The Lady Barber, soon establish themselves favourites; the Percys appear in a mirth-provoking comedy act; St. Ruth and Conyers are a couple of melodious operatic vocalists; Doyle and Gibson, comedians, create plenty of fun; Charles Bradford is similarly successful; and a capital display of animated pictures is given on the Harriscope.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A Country Girl in London is the holiday attraction here. Mr. Charles Halling is an excellent John Hamilton, and Mr. W. V. Garrod, in the rôle of Frank Gordon, is a prime favourite. Mr. William Bradford's Godfrey Clinton evokes warm appreciation; as Job Smithers Mr. Owen Redmonde is a success; and Mr. Frank Dallas as Heinrich Oppenheim, Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat, Mr. Edward Ashton as Joe Button, a farm hand, and Miss Alice Clarke as Adelaide Puddyphat are responsible for the humorous element, of which they contributed a generous share. Miss Ethel Crawford is a captivating Gwendoline Gordon; and Miss Bertha Kingston, in the titular rôle, does well.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Artists at the Hippodrome this week include the Vigoranto Trio with a sensational ring performance; Bromley and Fontein in The Man Behind the Music-stand; the Violet Shelley Trio in their clever sketch The Ideal Woman; Howe and Hardie in a comedy speciality; Kimberley and Melbourne with smart patter and songs; Harry Taylor, Lancashire comedian; Will Godwin, descriptive vocalist; and Ida Katherina in her catchy song The Dolly Girl. Hippodrome films complete.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Terry.—Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree's company is paying a short visit here in Pinkie and the Fairies, which is being heartily enjoyed by large audiences. Miss Iris Hawkins displays considerable ability in her portrayal of Pinkie, and Miss Hilda Antony is a bright and pleasing Molly; Master Philip Tonge gives a remarkably clever study of Tommy, and Master Burford Hampden makes a very good Herald. In the part of Uncle Gregory Mr. Ambrose Manning is highly amusing, and Miss Kate Foster gives a delightful portrayal of Aunt Imogen; Miss Florrie Lewis is an admirable Fairy Queen, and as Pickle, Whisper, and Twinkle the Misses Patty Jacob, Mimi Crawford, and Olga Hope are good; Miss Augusta Haviland is most amusing as Aunt Caroline; Miss Gwennie Brogden is excellent as Cinderella; and Dick Whittington is charmingly played by Miss Doreen Wyllis and Mr. Walter R. Creighton excels as Mr. Irons.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frederick Mouillot; Resident-Manager Mr. Charles Hyland.—The Dublin Amateur Operatic Society occupy the boards here this week, rendering several operatic works under the conductorship of M. Esposito.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Marriott-Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wright.—The special engagement for the Easter and following week is that of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company in a new pantomime, Hop o' My Thumb, which is being heartily enjoyed by the large audiences. Miss Kitty Trewhitt makes a fine, dashing Prince U-No, and sings very well; Miss Kittie Rafferty, charming as the Princess Meadowsweet, acts and sings in perfect style; Little Georgie Harris is an exceedingly clever child, and in the part of Hop o' My Thumb delights everyone; Mr. Vivian Wakeman, who acts the Dame, does really smart and clever comedy business; Mr. E. W. Selman and Messrs. Cowley and Rick are also worthy of praise; Miss Gladys Wyse sings Scotch songs in capital style, assisted by a ballet; Harold Pyott, who is stated to be the smallest man in the world, being only 23 inches high, 23 years of age, and weighing 24lb., creates quite a sensation. Scenery and dresses are very picturesque.

ABBEY THEATRE.—Lessee, Miss A. E. F. Horniman.—The artists of this theatre are playing a triple bill, which has attracted excellent houses. The first on the programme was W. B. Yeats' legendary play Deirdre, in which Miss Sara Allgood again successfully portrayed the title-rôle; Mr. Arthur Sinclair was particularly fine in his reading of King Concobar, and Mr. Fred O'Donovan cleverly presented the character of Naisi. Lady Gregory's comedy, The Workhouse Ward, which followed, was heartily enjoyed. The parts of the paupers, Macinerney and Miskell, were realistically portrayed by Messrs. Arthur Sinclair and Fred O'Donovan, and as the countrywoman, Mrs. O'Donohoe, Miss Maire O'Neill is admirably suited. The Showing-up of Blanco Posnet concluded, and was acted in clever style, the principal characters being played by Mr. Arthur Sinclair (Elder Daniels), Mr. Fred O'Donovan (Blanco Posnet), Mr. J. A. O'Rourke, Mr. Sydney J. Morgan, Mr. J. M. Kerrigan, Miss Sara Allgood, and Miss Maire O'Neill. For Friday and Saturday The Glittering Gate and the revival of The Eloquent Dempsey are announced.

EMPIRE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The Albert Edmunds troupe hold the premier position here, and cause roars of laughter in their pantomimic sketch, The Tower of London; Hilda Mascot, comedienne, sings her songs particularly well; Woods, Wells, and Wilkins do a clever and funny act entitled The Piano Tuners; Jules Kiaro wins appreciation for a first-class equilibristic performance; John Walter Curtis is a good comedian. The following artists also appear with success:—The Vanderbilts, Sam Williams, and Chas. Penrose, a new series of Empire pictures concluding.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Havanna troupe of pantomimists cause no end of laughter in their amusing acrobatic act; Ray Raymond is a pleasing comedienne; Kioto and Esa are entertaining Japanese Marvels; Barney Murphy and Rosie Lee give entire satisfaction in their clever and interesting imitations of well-known artists; Hearn and Palmer submit a capital comedy turn; and Steel and Laing prove themselves to be a versatile comedy couple; Barnes and West and Donal M'Dougal also appear, and the Grand National on the Bioscope is excellent and interesting.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA.—The original Irish Animated Picture Co. commenced their annual Easter season here on Monday with a series of up-to-date pictures. The full string orchestra of the Royal Scots Fusiliers Band, together with several local artists, complete an excellent and interesting performance.

WORLD'S FAIR.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles A. James.—The Easter company comprises Storey and Hughes, pleasing duettists and dancers; a capital musical entertainment by Harry Delmar; Edna Ray, an excellent vocalist and dancer; Jennie Hughes, a favourite balladist; Torie and Torie, most amusing in their sketch; Wee Willie, who pleases everyone with his capital Scoton songs; and Ben Storey, very successful as a comedian; up-to-date pictures on the cinematograph conclude.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—A special attraction this week is the Dudley Operatic Society, the members of which are giving a week of the popular opera The Yeomen of the Guard in aid of local charities.

EMPIRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The following artists make up an excellent programme:—Grant and Stewart's company in comedy illusion, Phantoms of the Wood; Orville Pitcher, original stump orator; Sarony Sisters, whirlwind dancers; Bert and Ruby, in song, dance, and patter; Pete Robinson, coloured comedian and dancer; Coda and Danton, in funny comedy act; Half a Man; Dolly and Madge McCalla in song, story, and dance; Hurman and Arthur, original comedy jugglers; and the usual high-class Empire pictures.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—A strong attraction is provided in Alice in Wonderland, presented by a numerous and talented company, under the direction of Mr. H. Cecil Beryl. A more delightful Alice than Miss Ivy Sawyer could not be imagined, her acting, singing, and dancing being exceedingly dainty; Mr. Franklyn Vernon is excruciatingly droll as the Mad Hatter; Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. Roland Henry as the Mock Turtle and Gryphon and as Tweedledum and Tweedledee cause hearty laughter; Miss Iris Damon as the Queen of Hearts and the White Queen acts with appropriate vigour; Miss Girlie Le Claire makes a graceful Cheshire Cat; Miss Ada Danks as the First Fairy and the Lily sings with much expression; Mr. Dan Leno, Jun., as the Caterpillar and Red King gives a performance full of mirthful energy, his quaint dancing being skilful and clever; Miss Doris Walker contributes a neatly executed hornpipe, and the various dances by Misses Marjorie Neville, Phyllis Munro, Doris Kent, and Marjorie Landport are agreeable features of the production. Praise is due to the chorus, and the tuneful music is done full justice to by the orchestra under the able direction of Mr. Archibald H. Benwell.

KING'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—An enjoyable bill is topped by The Slave Dealers, an Asiatic acrobatic and balancing novelty, which creates quite a furore, the effect being heightened by the weird singing and playing of the Orientals. Thora scores with his cleverly worked ventriloquial act; May B. Brilliant is a pleasing singer and expert dancer; Stewart and Morris are popular; Mac Walten and Partner contribute a farcical act entitled An Artist's Studio, which is hugely enjoyed; Dolly Golden wins encomiums for her graceful speciality dances; Robb Wilton is a refreshingly original comedian; and the Kingscope has several capital films.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Manager, Mr S. McIntosh.—A powerful and exciting drama entitled Dalt Tommy, or Greeley's Millions, is presented by Mr. Majilton's company. Mr. H. Hesslegrave succeeds in extracting great fun from the title-rôle; Mr. A. Entwistle plays with ease and distinction as Harry Greeley; Lawyer Grimeton is portrayed with subtle force by Mr. George Hunter; Guy Grimston is successfully impersonated by Mr. John Loughron; Mr C. Richards gives a realistic impersonation of Don Silvio de Gaspardo; Mr. Jim Bond represents Abner Harwood in breezy fashion; the Doctor gets a good rendering at the hands of Mr. Majilton; Miss Maddie Majilton acts pleasantly the part of Marion Beryl; Miss Lena Vali creditably undertakes the rôle of Lucretia de Gresle; Miss Nelly Clifford contributes a charming study of Helen Greeley and Miss Kate Perowne is successful as Maggie o' Morton's. The drama is excellently staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—The programme submitted here this week is quite up to the usual standard of excellence. An outstanding film is The Bagpipe Player. The scene of the incident is amidst the rugged grandeur of a Highland lochside, and the principals are a chieftain's daughter and a stalwart piper. The excitement reaches a climax when the piper, in order to gain his sweetheart, swims from an island to the mainland through a stretch of turbulent waters. Amongst a host of other pictures are A Betraying Mirror and Won by a Hold-Up.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. J. Bennell; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. W. Austin.—A fine assortment of films is exhibited this week, and the enthusiastic reception awarded the various items speaks volumes in support of the capital entertainment provided by the management.

DURHAM.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes.—The principal attraction here is Mr. Herbert Darnley's comedy company, in The Brigands of Tarrogona, with Mr. Charles H. Bell as the waiter, Bepo; Witty Watty Walton has an enthusiastic reception for his character specialities; Wane Langley causes roars of laughter with Tyneside patter and songs; and Major Arnold is a skilful conjurer. Rozel is loudly applauded for sensational feats on a slack rope; and Joe Humphreys is a pleasing actor-vocalist. The Cathedoscope concludes.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—The lessees and managers have their own company appearing here this week in The Catch of the Season. Mr. Murray King works hard and well as the Duke of St. Jermyns, and his singing, dancing, and acting in characteristic style please the audience well; Mr. Cyril Mandeville does capital and pleasing work as Lord Dundreary; Mr. Ardene Linden is admirably suited as Sir John Crystal; Master Willie West is a prominent success as Bucket, and with fitting opportunities he should go far as a comedian; Mr. Jamie Dallas is a sprightly William Gibson, and his dancing is again clever and popular; Miss Gladys Guy gives a very dainty and charming performance as Angela, in which part she is appealing, girlish, and sympathetic; Miss Norah Dwyer, too, does capital work, and sings delightfully as Honora; Miss Belle Rivers is an effective Duchess, Miss Evelyn Shelley as Lady Caterham interprets the humour of the part with refreshing animation, Miss Mildred Cottell is a handsome and stately Duchess, and many other alluring and pretty ladies fill the remainder of the cast. On Tuesday afternoon the famous Sicilians appeared here in Omerta. The intense and realistic acting of Cav. Grasso held the large audience in a firm grip of interest throughout, and his work as Saru was applauded most cordially. The splendid work of Sign. Marinella Bragaglia as Assunta was wonderfully effective, and at the end of the play the whole company was called again and again.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—The first performances of the season were given here on Thursday of last week, when Mr. Haidane Crichton's admirable company appeared in The Cingalee and attracted big houses. During this week Mr. Neville Claude's company is occupying the stage in The Girl from Kay's; Miss Florence Millington takes a goodly share in the general success, and as Winnie Harborough she sings, dances, and acts in a most charming manner; Miss Irene Vere is again a bright and talented Ellen, and her clever and graceful dancing deserve the fullest praise; Miss Blanche Courtenay fills the part of Mrs. Chalmers with much cleverness, and other capable ladies too numerous to mention ably help. Mr. Henry Adnes is the chief fun-provider, and as Hoggenheimer he is conspicuously successful as a comedian; Mr. Claude Dampier as the hall-porter gets many laughs out of the part; Mr. C. A. Kingston does good work as Percy; Mr. J. A. Lathan sings well as Harry Gordon; Master W. H. Pink displays a rich gift for fun as Pepper, and minor parts are well played. On Tuesday afternoon every seat was occupied at the performance given by the Follies. Mr. H. G. Pelissier loomed large as the spirit of the entertainment, and the four ladies and four gentlemen comprising the Follies present such an unusual collection of talent that the audience was kept laughing without pause, and the visit was a very great success. On Thursday afternoon the Clifford Essex Pierrots will appear here.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. F. Woodward.—Heading the bill here this week are the Scottish Meisters, whose picturesque dress, tuneful and taking singing, and merry fun make up a clever and popular performance; Miss Lydia Dreams has a ventriloquial performance which gives the greatest satisfaction; Colley and Scott sing, dance, and patter to the delight of the audience; Clown Argo is a clever and funny mimic; the Pelins, as eccentrics, contribute a good turn; Miss Edith May Allen is a pleasing contralto vocalist; Miss Grace Mortimer sings and dances well; Miss Daisy Hicks deputises cleverly for Miss Barr; and new films are shown.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Bert Bowden meets with success as a comedian; Frank E. Ford is a smart exponent of the art of wooden shoe dancing; Miss Dorothy Dane, a local young lady, makes her début as a professional vocalist and meets with well-merited applause; Miss Jennie Johns is a great favourite; Miss Beattie Foster shines as a comedienne; the Four Mayos are popular in their comic skating act; Wallace Whitney is a capital comedian; the Gascoignes provide a good turn as comedy equilibrists; the Mysterious Marriotts are thoroughly successful in their endeavours to mystify the audience. Wanted, a Good Watch Dog, is shown on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Mr. John Tiller's production of the spectacular musical comedy Amsterdam is made attractive by the beauty of the ballets, which are plentifully scattered through the three acts of the piece. Miss Enid Erroll, assisted by an army of dancers in the Tiller troupes, and the twelve Manchester mites, proves herself an accomplished première danseuse, and the movements of the numerous coryphees in their beautiful costumes provide very striking pictures. Many amusing interludes are supplied by the characters in the cast; and there is no lack of pleasing song and chorus. Mr. T. W. Volt gives a quaint impersonation of Frau von Stoop; Miss Dorothy Firmin's Gretchen and the Hans of Miss Nancy Hearne are bright performances; Mr. Sidney Vincent makes an excellent study of Van Dunck; and Katrina, his daughter, is well played by Miss Florrie Page. In the rôle of Toozleveldt, the Dutch American, Mr. Arthur Stigant is very amusing; and Evelyn Anna is made prominent as a vivacious Transatlantic belle by Miss Lulu Valli; Mr. Charles V. Sandford in the part of a dude, Mr. Frederick Smythe as Jan, and Mr. Charles Verno as the donkey Cornelius, complete an efficient company.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Mr. F. W. Wyndham and Mr. Geo. J. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—A scene of remarkable enthusiasm was witnessed here on Monday last, when Mr. Herbert Sleath's company began a week's engagement with The Woman in the Case. The actors were recalled again and again, and at the close of the powerful scene in the third act the curtain had to be raised eight times in response to the vehement applause drawn forth by the artistic acting of Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Miss Ellis Jeffreys. Miss Vanbrugh's impersonation of Claire Forster is a creation which deserves the warmest recognition. The part demands exceptional qualifications in an actress, but Miss Vanbrugh is equal to all the claims upon her powers, and acted with consummate art. Miss Ellis Jefferys was no less successful as Margaret Rolfe. The struggle of the woman to save the good name of the man she loves was shown with powerful effect, and there was a charm in the love passages with her husband that was infinitely touching. Miss Mary Griffiths acted with much humour and skill as Nell Hughes; and the minor parts of Elsie Brewster, Dora Miller, and Louise Mane were admirably rendered by Miss Gwendoline Wren, Miss Cicely Grey, and Miss Eileen Orry respectively. Mr. Herbert Sleath was manly and unaffected as Julian Rolfe, and exhibited an intensity of feeling in the tender scenes with Margaret that was deeply moving. The character of the lawyer Thompson was acceptably filled by that clever actor Mr. Wm. F. Grant; and Mr. Wm. Kershaw and Mr. Fred Benton were very good as Jimmy Smith and Louis Klaufferty. The drama was preceded by a little piece entitled By Mutual Agreement, in which Miss Wren, Mr. Kershaw, and Mr. Grant gave adequate expression to a charming story.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Tschin-Maa and his band of Chunchuses Mountebanks perform cleverly as conjurers, acrobats, contortionists, and musicians; Wal Croft, admirably supported by Miss Kathleen Naughton, appears with unqualified success in the pathetic sketch The Last Roll-Call; Miss Marie Dreams, the possessor of a fine baritone voice, is heard with great pleasure in a selection of songs; and Miss Maude Mortimer, a bright and vivacious comedienne, sings with much spirit and effect. Popular comedienne turns are furnished by Miss Jessie Templeton and Miss Radena Dey; George Prince is in great demand as a crazy comedian; Ray and Calden contribute a characteristic American scena; and Miss Hanid Alexander is a clever entertainer at the piano.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Mr. R. G. Knowles is the principal attraction in an excellent programme here, and he is appearing in the rôle of lecturer at a series of matinée performances. Mr. Knowles's lectures, which he terms "Travelaughs," are educative and entertaining, and at the evening performances Mr. Knowles is as bright and alert as ever. Miss Gladys Mavius dances in a graceful style; Miss Anna Chandler sings with expression; and Miss Katie Butler gives a pleasing turn; the Brothers Egbert are exceedingly funny in their merry sketch; Vanando is an admirable ventriloquist; the Kratons are very good in a deft hoop-rolling act; Mr. Ted E. Box, a comedian with a quaint manner, submits a laughable turn, his whistling being extremely well done; and Mr. Tom Stuart is also on the programme.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. J. H. Sanders.—The pictures here, dramatic and humorous, are, as usual, of much merit, and include Run to Earth (a detective story), The Gordons' Defiance, U.S. Cavalry Riding Bareback, and The Woman from Mellins.

PRINGLE'S PICTURE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edmunds.—The Reformation, The Daughter of the Sioux, and a stirring series depicting the Grand National are the features in the programme here. Rey and Douglas (comedians) and George St. Helen (in a song scena) give capital turns.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—A strong holiday attraction here is the appearance of Messrs. Alban and Bernard Limpus' company, in The Thief. In the exacting rôle of Marise Chelford Miss Georgina Wynter is seen to distinct advantage, winning unstinted approbation; another remarkably fine impersonation is the Richard Chelford of Mr. Bernard Limpus; Mr. F. Morland is a natural and convincing Raymond Leyton; Mr. Carl W. Lindsay is very successful as Harry; and Miss Mary Forrester as Isabel Leyton and Mr. W. Somerset as Detective Protheroe are responsible for excellent work.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Karno; Resident- and Acting-Manager Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Packed houses welcomed Marie Lloyd, who has paid us a return visit this week. On Monday "England's Queen of Comedy" had a tremendous reception, and the management are to be congratulated on securing such a holiday attraction. Exceedingly clever acrobatic feats are contributed by Baines and company; Harry Bent mimics leading stars in delightful fashion; the quaint patter of the Brothers Hannaway proves popular; Zenora is an equilibrist of exceptional ability; and Marie Blythe renders catchy chorus songs in attractive style.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—The boards at this popular playhouse were occupied the first three days of the week by the Compton Comedy Company, headed by Mr. Edward Compton, and it goes without saying that the audiences, which were large and appreciative, were treated to dramatic fare of the highest order, the staging, acting, dressing, and appointments being distinguished by finish and artistic excellence. On Monday night The School for Scandal was staged, on Tuesday The Road to Ruin, and on Wednesday David Garrick. Mr. Compton was in his best vein, and gave finished and convincing representations of Charles Surface, Charles Goldfinch, and David Garrick. He was admirably supported by Messrs. Henry Crocker, Philip Gordon, Frank Royde, J. W. Austin, Clifford Marquand, and Misses Kathleen Leigh, Lorraine Stevens, and Nell Compton.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Alexander Leighton's company is here in Havana. As Jackson Villiers Mr. J. Savill Foster sings well and provides a capital performance; Mr. J. Brian Ridout proves a good representative of the Hon. Frank Charteris; Miss Hebe Bliss makes a fascinating Consuelo; Miss Winnie Brown as Anita sings and acts with delightful dash and vivacity, her dances with Mr. William Pringle being encored again and again; Mr. Pringle's humorous impersonation of Nix is greatly enjoyed; he is ably seconded by Mr. Reg Edwards as Reginald Brown; Mr. T. Percival as Adelpho acts and sings in good style, and Mr. Charles is all that can be desired as Diego. Excellent work is done by Mr. Lauri Aster as Bambito del Campo and Miss Edith Barwell as Isabelita.

GILLINGHAM (Kent).—The Public Hall was opened on Easter Monday by Messrs. Barnard Bros., with a high-class picture and variety entertainment. Large audiences assembled at each house, and fully appreciated the excellent films. Interspersed were some refined variety turns by Billy Hubbard, comedian; Baby Gilbert, a clever juvenile; Sisters Barri, vocalists and dancers; and the Bros. Hamilton.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and G. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy O. Humphrys.—Peter Pan is running here for two weeks with its usual success. Miss Pauline Chase is once again the hero, and is more sprightly and airy than ever; the Windy of Miss Gertrude Lang is another impersonation that seems to improve with time; the part of Hook is taken by Mr. Frederick Annerley this visit with conspicuous success; Mr. and Mrs. Darling are capitally represented by Mr. Walter Pearce and Miss Sybil Carlisle; and the children, John and Michael, have most engaging representatives in Masters Harry Duff and Herbert Hollom; Mr. Edward Sillward is highly diverting as the Dog; the Smee of Mr. George Shelton is again most characteristic; Mr. Charles Trevor does good work as Starkey, other well-filled parts being Panther (Mr. Humphrey Warden), Tiger Lily (Miss Margaret Fraser), and Lisa (Miss Tessie Parke). Mr. A. C. Grand is stage-manager, and Mr. Maurice Jacobi musical-director, while the staging of the play is up to the standard of all Mr. Frohman's productions.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. W. Wyndham and George T. Minshull; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—A holiday audience, in the best of moods, extended a hearty welcome to Mr. George Edwardes's company, in Our Miss Gibbs, on Monday. In the part of the attractive shop-girl Miss Alice Pollard acts, sings, and dances with unfailing energy and go; Mr. George Gregory revels in the fun of the Yorkshire lad Timothy Gibbs, and works like a Trojan all through the piece. Every song and dance in which he was concerned was accorded an encore. Mr. Lionel Mackinder is most amusing as the Hon. Hughie Pierrepoint, the amateur cracksman, and his "Yip-i-addy" song went well; the Slithers of Mr. Robert Nainby is a clever performance; and as the French manager at Garrod's Mr. Ernest Mahar gives a smart performance. Miss Marie Wilson is a bright and animated Lady Elizabeth; Miss Grace Wixon as the stately Duchess of Minster and Miss May Marton as the impecunious Mrs. Farquhar contribute clever studies; and an excellent bit of acting was given by Miss Dora Sevening as Madame Jeanne. Mr. H. V. Crofton made a first-rate lover as Lord Eynsford, alike in singing and acting; Mr. Campbell Bishop, Mr. Myles Clifton, and Mr. Ellis Holland ably sustained the other leading parts. Miss Florence Phillips contributed a weird dance in the second act. The staging and dresses of the play are on a specially lavish scale.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Sub-Lessees, the Scottish Repertory Theatre; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Wareing.—This week the Repertory Theatre company presented Macpherson on the first three nights of the week. Mr. M. R. Morand gave a clever portrayal of Archie Macpherson; Mr. Campbell Gullan's John Latimer was an exceptionally brilliant performance; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon invested Lilian Latimer with natural ease and refinement; Mr. P. Perceval Clarke must also be commended for his interpretation of Charlie Stuart; and Miss Muriel Pope made a winsome and attractive Clotilda. On the last three nights Admiral Guinea, preceded by Tilda's New Hat, was presented.

GRAND, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. L. Sealy.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here with Can a Woman be Good? by C. Watson Mill. Mr. J. Millane makes an admirable hero; Herod Steinburg is represented in an awe-inspiring manner by Mr. Harry C. Robinson, who is ably backed up in his stage evil-doing by Mr. J. Leicester Jackson as Ralph Desmond; Mr. Ernest St. John's Ostler Jim is a fine study; Mr. Joe Bardsley as Jasper Mordan is also successful; a most striking performance of Naomi Merrick is given by Miss Florence Hunt; Miss Blanche St. Alban as Esther Howard is pathetic; and Mr. J. R. Tyrell as Curly Dabbs and Miss Winifred Barton as Slithers cause much amusement.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The attraction here for the Easter week is The House that Jack Built, presented by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company. Jack is well portrayed by Miss Daisy Wood, and Jill by Miss Dolly Dodds, both of whom have ample scope for their abilities. The other leading parts are capitally filled by Mr. Jimmie Watson, Peggy M'Dounall, Graham and Barron, and Miss Jenny Marsden.

METROPOLE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—At the "Met." this week there is a complete change from the usual drama. Mr. John Leopold's company, including the original Leopolds, appear in their musical absurdity entitled New Frivolity. There is plenty of bright singing and clever dancing. Mr. Harry Ugar and Mr. Watson Hume are the life and soul of the piece, all the other parts being ably sustained. Miss Cathleen Cavanagh is very bright and vivacious. A feature of the evening is a remarkable acrobatic display by the Four Kellys, which wins great applause. An athletic absurdity, entitled The Stadium, precedes the principal piece.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—This week Mr. Herbert Fuller presents his stirring Anglo-Indian drama, Passion of Life, with capital effect at the popular Govan house. As Captain O'Neal Mr. R. Neime Grasswell makes good use of his opportunities; Mr. Percy St. Clair is amusing as the young officer MacKenna; Jack Kenny is played in manly fashion by Mr. Hubert Helliwell; and as the villain, Flint, Mr. S. Leigh Courtney acts and makes up most creditably. In the rôle of Dan Sprouts, a particularly smart cockney, Mr. Herbert Fuller has a part in which he reveals, while the kindred character, Tilly Tripp, is cleverly portrayed by Miss Emily Lewis; the strong part of Belle O'Neal is taken by Miss Florence Delmar with every success; as Princess Nita Miss Agnes Collier is pleasing; as also is Miss Madeleine Courtney as Alice and Miss Lily Fuller as Kazeeka.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Evan Good; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Foster.—May Moore Duprez, who made such a phenomenal hit in the recent panto. at the Grand, is starring here, and proving a great draw; Wee Georgie Wood, the infantile comedian, gives one of the funniest turns seen here for a long time, and is a decided success; Amy Augarde and company present a clever operatic farce, The Sicilians, and the lady is in excellent voice, and gives her various numbers with striking effect; Hanvarr and Lee contribute their also enacted by Messrs. Edgar J. Coyne, Bert Gunther, F. Bannerman, Aries Conway, and Bernard Rale, Mmes. Ethel Russell, Emmie Wallace, Madge Beresford, and Edith Summers.

GRAVESEND.—Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—For the holiday week good houses have been the order. Mr. J. Wright Aitken's company present the sketch The Battle of Life, a story full of heart interest; Daisy Rhyl sings popular illustrated songs; Yoshie, the Japanese lightning picture painter, is extremely clever; the Godfreys, in their musical act, keep the house in a merry vein; Smith and Gibbs, athletes, submit a quiet and quaint turn; more humour is forthcoming from Teddy Denham, character comedian, and Parker and Bracy's yellow coloured coons are extremely original.

New Public Hall.—Secretary, Mr R. Feaver Clarke, J.P.—The Popular Picture Palace has been going very strong with new films. Miss Saxon Devon in a vocal scena, "Youth and Age," and illustrated songs, and Mr. John King, character vocal artist in "The Miser," have been the attractions.

Rosherville Gardens.—Lessee, Mr. Swift.—A goodly number of visitors were here on Easter Monday, and a good list of amusements was provided. The café chantant was voted very acceptable, the principal vocalists being Alec Davidson, Fred Hone, J. C. Jennings, Alice Towers, and the Two Dominoes, all of whom did well.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Nightingale. —The Yarmouth and Gorleston Lyric Society are presenting here Les Cloches de Corneville, which has been produced by Mr. Henry Furnival.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. George Zalva.—The Norman and Leonard Trio as itinerant players are popular with their artistic renderings of classical solos; Syd Herman, the Hebrew comedian, is amusing; Harry Marlow scores with his songs; Claire and Paston are successful as comedy duettists; Miss Effie White deserves praise for her kaleidoscopic dances; and the Bioscope display is first class.

The Gem.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. V. Barr.—The excellent display of pictures this week is attracting large audiences. The principal film is descriptive of the adventures of Sexton Blake, and Wanted, a Mummy, is very laughable. Miss May Palmer scores with her song-scenas.

GREENOCK.—King's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Robert Hewland's company opened on Monday with The Shadow of a Crime. In the part of Jim Murdock Mr. Whitmore creates an excellent impression; Mr. Victor Gordon gives an effective performance of the villain, Ralph Esmond; Captain Harry Bullington is well played by Mr. Paul Neville; Miss Madge Severne as Loyale Norman proves herself an able and accomplished actress; Miss Violette Vivienne as Mrs. Brown, Mr. Harry Creamer as Samuel Brown, and Mr. Tom Maynard as James Todd are very amusing; Miss Hettie Jeffries as Sarah Murdock is good, and as Winnie Murdock Miss A. Arthur acts creditably.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—At the top of the bill are the Five Whiteleys, who provide plenty of sensation, novelty, and daring in their acrobatic wire-walking and musical pot-pourri. Further entertainment is provided by Cole and Rags, comedy jugglers; Lindsay and Harte, sketch artists; Carlton, conjurer; Dan Frazer, Scotch comedian; May Gibson, vocalist; and the Boriskis. Pictures on the Dromoscope are also included in the programme.

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J. J. Bennell; General-Manager, Mr. J. B. Lawton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. L. Clayton.—The pictures here continue to attract large audiences. The principal items are An Egyptian Maid, The Woman from Mellon's, Foolshead, Chief of Reporters, A Western Maid, The Poet's Wooing, and a singing picture, entitled The Blind Boy.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The return of The Eyes of the World is being welcomed with special interest, as the play was produced at this theatre fifteen months ago. Miss Ethel Van Praagh is again seen as Hélène de l'Orme, and realises the emotional requirements of the part with convincing earnestness; Mr. Chas. O'Connor gives a polished representation of Hector de l'Orme; Miss Flora Hastings vividly portrays the haughty Esmé de Carnac; Mr. Will Casey is dignified as Gaston de Carnac; Mr. A. Wilson Wynne acts with sincere feeling as Octave de Carnac; Miss Elsie Capeli portrays Avice with charming ingenuousness; and the light comedy parts of Achille and Susanne are suitably played by Mr. J. Edward Whitty and Miss Nellie Garside.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. F. Verner Walford.—Florrie Gallimore is again receiving a hearty welcome, and her new répertoire of songs is much appreciated; Russell and Held are a couple of American artists with original ideas, and their quick-change dancing is very attractive; the Vagabonds are a vocal comedy quartette of considerable talent; an interesting sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance, is presented by France and Stewart; Mahatma gives an exposition of second sight; Tom Lee contributes pleasing comedy and dancing; and Walker and May are clever coloured comedy artists.

GUERNSEY.—Theatre St. Julian's.—Joint Lessees Messrs. Ed. Marris and Albany Ward; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. A. Deighton.—Albany Ward's Imperial Electric Picture Entertainment has this week attained record business. Again the films shown are of all-round excellence, those worthy of special mention being The Unlucky Day, 'Twixt Red Man and White, The Heroine of Mafeking, Life on a Cocoanut Plantation, and The Great Johnson-Burns Fight. The Sarnthaler Troupe continue to please with their musical numbers and clever dancing.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Heathen and the Christian is the attraction here this week. Mr. Frank Adair gives an excellent rendering of Id, the avenger; Mr. Fred Witmer's Lung Hi is a good portrayal; Mr. Ger. Shirley plays Lieut. Lord Allendale well; George Berresford finds an able exponent in Mr. Ellis Carlyle; Mr. Charles Lack is a conspicuous success as Bah Lamb Gentle; Miss Louie Adair is interesting as Mira Sampson; and May Berresford is a success in the hands of Miss Stanley Burt. Miss Eva Reid as Becky Fibbins keeps the house in a roar.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The Three Alskarnos are excellent risley performers and acrobats; the Lyons trio contribute an amusing absurdity; George F. Hall, a Yankee story-teller, is excellent; Ross and Grayson, in Stage-struck Maggie and Her Mentor, are a huge success; Mlle. Dalmere's table circus of rabbits, doves, cats, dogs, and rats, is a very clever turn; Little Miss Muffett, the Canadian mite; Joan Deering vocalist-violinist; and the Palace pictures complete a good bill.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Madame Albani, assisted by Herr Jan Zakovsky, violin virtuoso, is the star turn this week. Madame Albani has given a change of songs each evening; Solo and Mayo are clever duettists and dancers; Miss Sidney Hayes and company present an admirably played and strong dramatic sketch, The End of the Chapter. Max Waldon's protean and dancing act brings down the house; Walter Wallis, eccentric comedian, is good; Elsie Bernard, American comedienne pleases the audience; Stanley Waller, comedian at the piano; and the Grand pictures complete.

HAMILTON, N.B. — Hippodrome. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; General-Manager, Mr. René Clayton; Musical-Director, Mr. J. Millar.—The Tenka Troupe of Japanese magicians, in a series of mystifying illusions, are here, and are a big draw; Austin Rudd is decidedly humorous; Vere and Nelidon are bright and smart; Billy French is an exceptionally clever wooden shoe dancer; Helen Martin vocalises prettily; Arthur Croxon, in a burlesque song and story turn, is good; Hinton and Wooton's cycle polo is clever; and Charles Rowin, together with the Bioscope, concludes the entertainment.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding-Smith.—The holiday attraction here is Mr. Geo. Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland. In the title-rôle Miss Gertrude Melville is charming; Mr. E. Russell is all that could be desired as Mr. Hook; Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., is excellent as Ludwig Schnapps, and is ably seconded by the talented Miss Sephton as Mina; Mr. Mansev as Capt. Paap enacts his small part well, and Mr. J. Campbell as Van Eck makes one of the hits of the evening. The chorus is good, and the band well conducted by Mr. H. A. Dyer.

The Kursaal.—Manager, Mr. John E. Wilshere.—The attractions here comprise the inimitable Charles Pond in his famous glimpses of life, Miss Ruby Helder, the remarkable "girl baritone," and the Brownies, a party of entertainers.

St. James's Hall.—New Century Animated Pictures.—Manager, Mr. E. Boden.—The programme here is an excellent one. The Light, at the top of the bill, is a beautiful, pathetic picture. The Love of a Mother and the Galley Slave also prove popular. New humorous pictures include A Windy Day, Worried to Death, and The Fire Extinguisher. Miss Amy Stewart, owing to her great success, has been re-engaged for this week.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. E. Scutt. — Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here in Don. Mr. Gordon Bailey sustains the title-rôle in an interesting manner; Mr. Arthur Willoughby does well as Canon Bonnington; as General Sinclair Mr. Chas. Tyrel is natural and convincing; Mr. Chas. Harely makes the part of Albert Thompsett sufficiently aggressive; Miss Violet Harley gives a good rendering of Mrs. Thompsett; the comedy of Miss Emma Hutchison as Mrs. Bonnington is excellent; Miss Viola Garland is a charming Ann Sinclair; Fanny is played with finish by Miss Dorothy Gordon; and Miss Celia Gordon quite realises the character of Mrs. Sinclair. The little drama is preceded by Her Dearest Friend.

Pier Pavilion. — General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter; Musical Conductor, Mr. Surtees Corne.—Mr. J. D. Hunter is introducing an Easter extravaganza, Jack and the Beanstalk, which is attracting large audiences. Miss Vera Dudley makes a bright and vivacious Jill; Jack, the hero, is cleverly taken by Miss Lallah Melrose; the Sisters Edwardes represent Boy Blue and Bo-Peep; Miss Renee Ashley admirably depicts the Man in the Moon; Mr. Matt Melrose, Mr. Fred Back, and Mr. Phil Inglis are responsible for a great amount of fun as the Wicked Squire, Johnnie Stout, and Tommy Green; and Mr. J. D. Hunter as Dame Trott rouses a continual ripple of laughter.

American Palace Pier, St. Leonards-on-Sea.—Resident-Manager, Mr. M. Leopold; Pier Master, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Montague Lane, assisted by Miss Ida Chapman and company, are producing here The Money Spinner. As Lord Kengussie Mr. Montague Lane is interesting; Mr. William Mallalieu as Baron Croodle gives an amusing sketch; Harold Boycott is presented by Mr. Norman Cannon in a finished manner; and Mr. Philip Renouf plays with judgment the character of Jules. Millicent Boycott as played by Miss Ida Chapman is conspicuous for charm, and Miss More Dunphie easily wins her way to favour in the rôle of Dorinda, Margot finding a lively interpreter in Miss Gertrude Savage. The Balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet precedes.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING. — Gaiety.—Proprietors, Messrs. Hall and Ainsley.—This week Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Osmond present the absurdity Miss Plaster of Paris, by Henry Wardroper and Henry L. Osmond. Mr. Charles Tolcher as Numskull Nubbs is clever in his humorous vocal efforts. Mr. Harry Ed. Ray is a typical waiter; Eliza Plaster, the head barmaid, is well portrayed by Miss Celestine Brandon; Mrs. H. L. Osmond is an excellent Medea.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Bellew and Stocks' company of entertainers known as the "Romps" contribute some bright, vigorous, and tuneful singing; Bros. Lawrence dance well together; Miss Alice Maple sings and dances gracefully; Irve Hayman and company appear with effect in a touching little episode, Christmas Eve; the Creedons are a pair of expert ball-punchers and club throwers; the Forrestiers play smartly a dramatic playlet entitled A Society Sinner; the Alberto troupe are a daring and clever set of acrobats and equilibrists; and the pictures are an amusing selection.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr Frank Macnaghten Manager, Mr. Herbert Garside.—At the top of the bill are Miss Marie Santoi and her merry Japs in the charming musical arrangement, entitled A Night in Japan, which is well received. Also appearing are the Zanfrelias, in novel and difficult feats of equilibrism; Miss Norah Desmond, with some taking and beaut-fully illustrated songs; Albert Letine, a highly entertaining female impersonator; the Newman bicycle troupe, daring and clever youths, whose work is original and smart; Bros. Ford, a pair of light-footed dancers An unnamed comedian who appears as deputy and the pictures complete the programme.

HULL.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The Easter attraction is Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Miss Sophie Lingwood's reading of the title-rôle is quite acceptable to the audience; the Miss Hazy of Miss Rita Carlyle is a diverting representation; Mr. Harry G. Wright plays the bounder with great skill. There is an intelligent piece of acting displayed in the Journalist of Mr. W. Clifton and Miss Ruhannah Calton is a graceful Lovey Mary. The rest of the character representations accord well with the spirit of the play.

Alexandra Theatre.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager Mr. Geo. Morton.—For Love of a Woman is a drama likely to appeal to the special audiences of the Alexandra. Miss May Day is a young lady of much histrionic promise, and renders her rôle with intelligence; Mr. Edmund Grogan's Ned Merrick is a performance that the audience relished. The heavy rôle is well played by Mr. Ernest Regent; Mr. Chas. Ninian plays the Mayor with good effect. The other rôles are filled with credit.

ILKESTON. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Messrs. Chattell and Denton's company is here in Through the Divorce Court. Mr. Robert Purdie does justice to the rôle of Lord Robert Penarth; Miss Hettie Chattell's reading of Lady Dolores is quite enthralling; little Constance Dagmar as Sybil is charming; Miss Patty Groves is well placed as Rachael Dobbins; Mr. E. W. Thomas is a clever exponent of Peter Pettigrew; Mr. John Campling a successful Leon Di Valdiz; Mr. Jack Denton is amusing as the Hon. Algy Fitzmaurice; and Mr. Harry Colbeck (Patsy Rafferty) and Miss Nellie Sheffield (Dinah) are both very good. Miss Edith Cruikshanks as Lady Hilda Fitzmaurice makes the most of an unpleasant part. The evil genius Mendoza finds an excellent representative in Mr. Henry C. Cooper.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in Hall Caine's play, The Prodigal Son, is here. Mr. Ernest Owttrim shows much ability in the part of Magnus Stephenson; Mr. Marcus D. Draper submits a good study of Oscar; Mr. Charles Sewell is a dignified Stephen Magnusson; Mr. Arthur E. Holland filling the part of the factor Oscar Neilson; the acting of Miss Una Gilbert as Anna Magnusson is good throughout; Miss Sara Dudley doubles the parts of Thora Neilson and Elin, and is much applauded; the difficult part of Helga is undertaken by Miss Lily Crammonde; and a touch of comedy is imparted by Miss Maud Locker as Margaret Neilson; the Sheriff is in the hands of Mr. William Curzon; and Mr. Harold Clemson is Dr. Olsen; Neils Finsen is played by Mr. Wilfred Jessop; the pastor by Mr. John Fleming, and Eric Arnasson by Mr. Claude Casey. The scenic effects are admirable, the tableau at the end of the second act being cleverly contrived.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Arden and Abel's company are diverting in Three of a Kind; Miss Mabel Thorne is a clever comedienne, and has a variety of catchy songs; Les Wartanas, three clever young lady jugglers, give a capital turn; Miss Florence Burns uses an excellent voice to effect in high-class songs; Paul Cavalli gives a marvellous exhibition of physical culture; Mark Henton is an amusing patter singer; and the Sisters Selwyn are good comediennes and expert dancers; Amy Anderson and company have a comedy scena, called Black and White, in which there is some skilful tumbling; and the bioscope completes the bill.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Lionel Locke.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company is paying a welcome visit with Diana from Dobson's. The part of Diana was carefully handled by Miss Molly Tremaine; Mr. Leslie Rea was a capable Captain Victor Bretherton; Mr. A. Harris a satisfactory Sir Jabez; Miss Hilda Francks an excellent Mrs. Cantelupe; and Mrs. Whyte Fraser had an excellent representative in Miss Mary Crewe. The assistants at Dobson's were cleverly portrayed by Miss Nannie Hume, Miss Leonard Boyne, and Miss Cicely Oates, and other excellent portrayals were Miss Marie Ault as Miss Pringle and Mr. Leslie Crowther as Constable Fellowes. The piece is preceded by a smart playlet, entitled Out West.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—"Standing room only" was announced here on Bank Holiday some time before the commencement of the performance. The main feature of the entertainment provided is Mr. Albany Ward's Electric Pictures, which includes a gorgeously coloured tragic poem from Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra, and a fine film of the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race. The most enjoyable turn was a sketch from The Dandy Doctor, splendidly rendered by Mr. Edward Marris, Mr. Arthur Clark, and Miss Ella Wilmer. Other successful turns were given by Mr. Arthur Clark, who made quite a hit with "I like to be where the money is," and Miss Ella Wilmer, who wound up her performance with a daintily executed dance.

KEIGHLEY.—Hippodrome.—The Valdo Bros. are here; an excellent performance is given by the Sylvesters in A Dressing-room Rehearsal; Harry Russell and company, in the comedy sketch Milk Oh! create much merriment; Miss Dorothy Sephton sings well; and Will Norrie possesses a sweet tenor voice. A smart conjuring entertainment is given by Austin Temple; and Sinclair's Three Diamonds and the Mayers complete the bill.

KETTERING. — Victoria Theatre. — Managers, Messrs. Alf Bailey and Co.—The holiday attraction here is Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, with The Prodigal Son. Mr. Hugh Montgomery presents a very powerful rendering of Magnus; and the character of Oscar is admirably portrayed by Mr. S. H. Humber; Mr. Ernest Rivarz as Stephen Magnusson and Mr. Philip Renouf as Oscar Neilson play with great success; much artistic ability is displayed by Miss Elsie Wood as Thora and Elin; and Miss Betty Castle as the designing Helga is deserving of the highest praise.

KIDDERMINSTER. — New Opera House. — Licencee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr R. C. Gudgeon.—The holiday attraction is Miss Dot Stephens' company in A Child of the Street. Miss Stephens is seen in a pleasing and natural characterisation of Doris Graham; Miss Nellie Torne Hallam is to be commended upon her Gertrude Graham; and Miss Yoxa Summer depicts Lorna Carstairs in an artistic manner. Sir John Graham is in the capable hands of Mr John Erroll; Mr Leonard Airedale's treatment of Lawrence Craigie is marked by much skill; Mr. Norman St. Tracy does excellently as Lieut Jack Ainsley; and Mr Chas. Freeman ably portrays Robert Wallace.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Pareezer.—For Easter Monday and two following nights Messrs. O. Silverstone and A. Wright's company presented The Nihilist. All the parts were well sustained, Mr. Geo. Mitchell doing capital work as Ian; in the hands of Mr. O. Silverstone Prince Alexander was a typical villain; Mr. Hy. Wright as Bobby Smart provided considerable fun; as Alexina, Miss Edna Clare was pathetic; Miss Adaline Raby was a dignified Princess Olga; and Mrs. O. Silverstone a bewitching Katrina.

KIRKCALDY.—New King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Cavanah.—Mr. Herbert Vere's company is presenting here Napoleon the Great. In the title-rôle Mr. Herbert Vere does well; Mr. Charles A. Lincoln makes a good Colonel Lavarennes, while as Colonel Jules Moulon Mr. Vivian Charles scores a hit; Mr. Charles Brandon cleverly enacts the rôle of Paul Lacinska; Miss Kate Walfred exhibits marked ability as Marie Walewska; Miss Kate Norris, Miss Maggie de Haile, and Miss Nancy Roberts are able exponents of their respective parts; Mr. George Millard as Pierre Pomponnet and Miss Lily Mann as Lisette are worthy of special praise for their comedy.

LANCASTER. — Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. C. Howitt.—The Russell Rosse Répertoire Company is the Easter attraction here. On Monday A Pair of Spectacles was presented before a packed house. Mr. Arthur Hare appeared with much success as Benjamin Goldfinch. Mr. Maurice Denham as Uncle Gregory did very well; Mr. St. Barbe West was effective as Dick; Miss Ida Phillips gave an exceedingly clever portrayal of Mrs. Goldfinch; Miss Madge Monte made a pleasing Miss Lorimer; and as Joyce Miss Mary Williams was interesting; Mr. Walter A. James as Lorimer also demands a word of praise. For Friday Caste was billed.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Longden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Halifax.—A strong holiday attraction, which is proving a great draw, is provided by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company in The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey gives an artistic portrayal of John Strong, with a fine figure and manly bearing; Miss Maggie Edwards displays much ability as the smith's wife; and Miss Pauline Garside acts little Harry Strong in talented style. Mr. Joseph Carter impersonates Capt. Leo with considerable distinction; and Mr. Fred Haming Billy Twigg with great success. Miss Rosie Kearns makes her Martha Mopps an interesting study; and other artists worthy of commendation are Mr. Thomas E. Marshall, Mrs. T. C. Livesey, Miss Cassie Le Grande, Mr. A. Walker, and Mr. Edwin Maydew. The wrestling scene between the smith and Capt. Leo is very thrilling.

Electric Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Gillsmiths, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Harry Plant.—The outstanding feature of a fine programme is Pharos, the Egyptian magician, assisted by Ibkar. Crowded houses are the rule, and Pharos is creating a great sensation with his wonderfully clever and mysterious performance. The picture programme is much above the average, and interesting and amusing subjects include The Wrong Road, a powerful dramatic production; The Flirt, another dramatic film; The 1910 Grand National; Wild Birds in their Native Haunts; That Secondhand Stove; Pity the Poor Blind; and The Three Thieves. The baritone, Mr. Harry Lewis, is as popular as ever.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Carl Rosa Opera company is here. On Monday The Bohemian Girl was played, Mr. Frederick Clendon's acting and singing being exceedingly fine; Mr. Alan Turner's Count Arnheim was a good study; Mr. W. O'Connor created much laughter as Florestein; Miss Beatrice Miranda as Buda, Miss Douglas Wilson as the Queen of the Gipsies, and Miss Phyllis Archbold rendered satisfactory service.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Francis Laidler; Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. C. Watson Mills's company is here in A Wrecker of Men. Miss Ruth Zillwood as Risca is excellent, and Miss Gwendoline Talbot is very prominent. As Jim Murley Mr. Arthur S. Pitt gives a fine rendition, and Mr. Wm. Heilbroon is good as Pharosaphus.

Empire. — District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—An artistic performance is given here by Tom Clare; Mlle. Liane D'Eve sings French songs with spirit; Miss Ethel Newman appears with success in an amusing monologue; Henry Helme has a powerful voice, which he uses effectively; and the Abdullah Arabs are also included in a capital company.

Barrasford Hippodrome.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—John L. Sullivan makes a hit here in a boxing act with Jake Kilrain; Zona Vevey sings with effect, and is ably assisted by Herr Max Erard; Lloyd Morgan is a pleasing light comedian; Nora Stockelle is a favourite in song and dance; and other artists enjoyed are Madison and Webb, Stuart and Evans, Prof. Welsen, Lena Wylie, Susie and Protti, and Will E. Stopit.

The Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Jones.—Appearing here are The Toilers, Victoria Cross, Miss Brierley, Bliss and Bliss, Horace Jones, Zasma, Hampton and Bauman, and May de Rowse.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Business-Manager, Mr. Trueman Towers.—This place of amusement reopened on Saturday evening with Mr. William Greet's company in The Sign of the Cross, which is being continued throughout this week. Mr. W. Lawson Butt as Marcus Superbus and Miss Evelyn Hope as Mercia are both deserving of great praise, and Mr. W. Mayne Linton as Nero. Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio, Miss Beryl Hamilton as Poppoea, Mr. H. Thurston Harris as Servilius, Miss Winifred Delevanti as Stephanus, Mr. Harry Jones as Philomedus, Mr. J. Wetherall as Licinius, Mr. Walter Fleet as Favius, Mr. Henri Raymond as Titus, Miss Esme Lee as Dacia, Miss Dorothy Lart as Berenice, and Miss Mary Newcombe as Ancaria are efficient. The staging is well done.

Theatre Royal.—Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Allerton Turner.—A full house gave a good reception here on Monday to Mr. Stuart Lomath's company in the interesting human play Whom God Hath Joined. Miss Helene Wilbran as Marion and Mr. Stuart Lomath as Captain Jack Merritt are well seconded by a capable company of artists.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Packed holiday audiences here have been delighted with an excellent "show." Whit Cunliffe is scoring a big success with his songs, which are given in fine style; the Jewels are also warmly received for their spectacular protean production Change, or the Haunted Castle, a cleverly-staged act, in which the leading parts are taken by Mr. James A. Jewel and Mr. Herbert B. Jewel; Les Silas, French operatic vocalists, are heard to great advantage; Ike and Will Scott are comedians and dancers who prove most entertaining; Otto Tate and Lola Tate are very popular in their acrobatic feats in a bar parlour; the Ten Dixie Girls are very good in their vocal and terpsichorean scena The Silver Coon; Ugo Nap creates plenty of laughter in his scena What is Home Without a Mother?; Lily Palmer is an entertaining comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope depicts the race for the Grand National.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Lawrence.—A full house here on Monday was delighted with the entertainment. At the head of the bill are Mr. H. G. Brandon and his company in A Secret of the Past, in which Mr. Brandon as the Jew creates endless merriment; Mr. F. Arnold Mussett acts well as Antoine Boresque, and Miss Florence Barnes is excellent as Kate. The sketch is cordially received. Eddie Stidder and Gwen Dundar are a pair of clever, entertaining, and popular artists; Rose D'Aulby scores a success with her chorus songs; Tom York, who is possessed of a good singing voice, is an excellent character comedian; the Sisters Carlton are capital vocalists and dancers; in place of the Newmans, the Six Buster Browns appear with great success in a vocal and dancing scena. Among the fine pictures shown is one of the race for the Grand National.

Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—The two principal films are The Last of the Mohicans, or Leather Stocking, and Brothers in Arms. The others include A Cruiser in a Storm, Bob's Electric Theatre, Three to Choose From, His Masterpiece, A Visit to Bombay, A Pair of Trousers, The Stampede, and Onawanda. Owing to his success last week, Fred Hutchings has been retained.

Temperance Hall (Lecture Hall).—Secretary, Mr. W. S. Rosie; Hall-keeper, Mr. Geo. Stanyon.—A big house here on Monday evening gave a most flattering reception to Mr. Roland George Jarvis's troupe The Royal Snowdrops. The entertainment is given entirely by young ladies, and consists of the latest songs and concerted items, each artist being encored and presented with bouquets. The combination consists of Miss Ethel Bayley (musical directress and accompanist), Miss May Vesta (male impersonator), Miss Marie Dellamore (comedienne), Miss Dot Bryan (coon songstress), Miss Dulcie May (vocalist), Miss Rosa Stuart (chorus vocalist), Miss Phyllis Trixie (comedienne), Miss Elsie Cox (ballad vocalist), and Miss Kitty Grey (comedienne). Mr. Allan Armadale is the manager.

LLIGH.—Grand Theatre and Hippodrome, Ltd. —Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—Mr. Edward Crossland's melody-makers are at the top of the bill here; Mr. Ted Gill, vocalist, makes a hit; Harry Zetter is a popular and clever turn; Ethelda, the miniature lady Hercules, finds favour; Arthur Kenny, trick cyclist, does some clever feats; Fred Le Crenz and company deserves great credit for their show; L. V. O. Trio, sketch artists, are the cause of much laughter; Fred Oliver, eccentric comedian, is amusing; and the Hippodrome pictures complete.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart is here with The Mummy and the Humming Bird, and winning golden opinions. Mr. Stewart as Lord Lumley is remarkably good, his exposition being very strong and effective, and Miss Bruce Joy as Lady Lumley also plays admirably; Mr. D. Lewin Mannering's D'Orelli is clever, and Mr. Launcelot Lowden as the vendetta-seeking Guiseppe is excellent; Miss Ethel Carlyle and Mr. Percy Marmont play the comedy parts very capably, and the mounting and dressing of the piece are alike admirable.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Arnold Richardson and his company in Ferdie's Ma-in-Law are winning huge favour here. Mr. Richardson finding capital support in Miss Ethel Lonsdale and Mr. A. Gordon Laws. Lily Vine and Bonnie Goodwin's Piccaninnies are entirely successful in a smart song and dance turn; George Brooks is as funny as ever; Lizzie Daniels, Blair and Allen, Walter Barrett, and the Palace Perfection Pictures complete a very fine programme.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Prior to its presentation at the London Lyric on Monday next, Mr. Lewis Waller submitted here his promised revival of The Rivals. The event was looked forward to with considerable interest by Liverpool play-goers, and on Monday evening there was a crowded and fashionable audience, who extended to the distinguished actor and his well-chosen company a most flattering reception. There seemed, however, to be a general opinion that Mr. Waller, in appearing as Captain Absolute, had selected a rôle which did not afford him sufficient opportunities for showing his undoubtedly great histrionic gifts, and, in consequence, a little disappointment was experienced by his numerous Merseyside admirers, who had been accustomed to identify him with something more spirited and forcible. Mr. C. W. Somerset stood out prominently in the perfectly played character of Sir Anthony Absolute, the "tiff" with his nephew being an exquisite piece of acting; Mr. Leonard Boyne handled Sir Lucius O'Trigger with an ease and artistic finish that could only be expected from such a veteran and accomplished player; another eminently fine portrayal came from Mr. Robert Loraine, whose Bob Acres was a gem; Miss Lottie Venne as the loquacious Mrs. Malaprop proved amusingly interesting; to Miss Kate Cutler every praise is due for her neatly presented Lydia; Mr. Herbert Jarman, although holding the minor rôle of Fag, showed unmistakable evidence of being a talented actor; Miss Beatrice Ferrar was a sweet and bewitching Lucy; and other able supporters were Miss Dorothy Dix (Julia), and Messrs. Cronin Wilson (Faulkland), Alec F. Thompson (David), and Robert Bolder (Thomas). Needless to say, the mounting of the old comedy was perfect.

Shakespeare Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—On Saturday last a seven nights' engagement of The Earl and the Girl was opened here by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Mr. Bert Beswick as Jim Cheese provoked great laughter; the part of Dick Wargrave found in Mr. Herbert St. John a creditable exponent; Miss Lily Gullick was winsome and bright as the runaway Elphin Haye; Mr. Francis Rayne made the most of the Honourable Crewe Boodle; Downham was efficiently portrayed by Mr. Sam Lysons; the footmen, Rossiter and Charles, although minor parts, were thoroughly undertaken by Messrs. P. Jackson and C. S. Cartwright; an amusing black porter was presented by Mr. George St. Orde; Miss Virginia Bliss lost nothing at the hands of Miss Elsie Hall; Miss Beatrice Hayden proved very successful as the Strong Lady; Miss Ida Waugh suited the part of Liza Shoddam; and Miss Blanche Astley sweetly represented Daisy Fallowfield. In the second act an interesting "Chantecler" interlude took place, a song and dance being sustained by Mr. Herbert St. John (cock bird), Miss Blanche Astley (hen pheasant), and Miss Lily Gullick (guinea fowl). The costumes were rich, and the audience thoroughly appreciated the turn.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—For notice of a new production here, see another column.

Star Theatre. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week we are having a return visit of Hush Money, or The Disappearance of Sexton Blake, sent by the Melodrama Production Syndicate, Ltd. Good business is being done. As Sexton Blake Mr. C. Barrington Foote shows all the coolness and calculating spirit of the famous detective; Mr. Harry Hartley proves a capital Tinker; the rôle of John Shard is ably handled by Mr. Ernest E. Imeson; Mr. Robert Barton efficiently fills the part of Lord Montresor; Miss Theresa Osborne acts well as Lady Montresor; and good support also emanates from Messrs. J. H. Darnley (Lord Walgrave), F. Finch (Jem Tooley), and J. G. Lowther (Nathan Finch), Miss Agnes Paulton (Euphemia Pattacake), Miss Ida Wilson (Auntie Crooks), and Miss Lillie White (Mary Woodford).

Kelly's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Raffles commenced a seven night's stay last Saturday. Mr. Leonard Boyne has sent a good all-round company. In the title-rôle Mr. Reginald Dance acquits himself in first-class style, earning much approbation; Miss May Brooke makes a finished Mrs. Vidal, thoroughly grasping the intention of the part; Bunny is admirably undertaken by Mr. Harold West; and others deserving of mention are Mr. Oswald Griffiths (Earl of Amersteth), Mr. Edward Irwin (a smart resourceful detective), Miss Agnes Knights (Lady Melrose), and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald (Marie). Jerry and a Sunbeam, in which Mr. Harold West and Miss Fitzgerald appear, is a curtain-raiser.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Top of the bill here is Fred Karno's funny Yap Yaps, with Gus Le Cier

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The attraction here this week is a revival of Candida, preceded by a new one-act play, entitled Red 'Ria, a notice of which appears elsewhere. The first-named piece receives excellent interpretation at the hands of Miss Horniman's company, which on this occasion includes Mr. B. Iden Payne as Eugene Marchbanks, a rôle he plays with considerable success; Miss Darragh's Candida is finely done; and clever comedy is provided by Mr. Edward Landor as Mr. Burgess and Miss Ada King as Proserpine Garnett. A good rendering of Morell is given by Mr. Henry Austin; and Mr. Basil Dean makes a good Rev. Alexander Mill.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's play, The Sinner, is here this week. Mr. Wilson Benge is especially prominent in the cast, having fine opportunities as Monk Stretton, of which he makes full use; in the rôle of Meg Stanton Miss Mona Grey is also good; and Mr. Ulike Burke plays powerfully as Lord Ewen, and is well supported by Miss Geraldine Verner as Vera Ewen. Light interest is vested in the parts of Bill Stanton and Jim Stephens, two fishermen, smartly impersonated by Messrs. Frank Radcliffe and Sydney P. Clewlow. The play is well staged.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—The top turn in a good bill here is Harry First and company, in a novel Hebrew comedy, The Matrimonial Fee; and W. Ellis and company, in The Sleepwalker, still retain a prominent place as laughter-makers. Frank Lauri, character comedian, is well received; good comedy conjuring is done by Allen McAskell; and other entertaining items are Lew Peterman, Hebrew comedian; the Orros, clever gymnasts; the Two Kays, in their novel speciality; and Goodall and Knox, acrobatic and patter comedians.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Brearley.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company are here with His Real Wife. Miss Ward as Rose Avondale gives an admirable performance of a very trying part; Mr. J. W. Evelyn is especially good as Martin Avondale; and a fine rendering of Herbert Barton is provided by Mr. Clifford Rean. Mr. Charles Yorke as the villainous Colombe is a noteworthy figure; and Mr. Bernard Elliott as Randal Meredith scores, especially in the third act. Among other interesting rôles that of Simon Bletherell is smartly played by Mr. T. Edward Ward, whose humour is ably supplemented by Miss Clarrie Bandell as Betty Tuttlebee.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A bright programme here is headed by Billy Merson, the popular comedian; Charles Baron's burlesque menagerie is also the fore; and Ted Waite, comedian, adds a pleasing turn. Beside these, we have Miner and Storey, vaudeville entertainers; Kendrick and Laura, in harmony and eccentric dance; Kirk and Saraski, the girl aquatic marvels; and Burns and Bentley, the premier dancing duo.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—A great sensation is caused here this week by Archie Goodall, the famous old international footballer, who presents his original act, "Walking the Hoop," a feat of extraordinary strength, daring, and novelty. Sharing the honours of the bill with him are Gertie Gitana, who is as pleasing as ever, and G. W. Hunter, the well-known raconteur, who gives of his best. Heeley and Meeley, the lucky tramps, submit a highly-comic tumbling act; D'Arc's Marionettes are an excellent show; and other nice turns are J. P. Carroll, the soldier tambourinist; the Harmony Boys, in their refined vocal act; Pete and Minnie Lee, vocal sketch artists; and Florence Esdaile, vocalist, in a choice répertoire.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Vampire Dance is one of the attractions here this week, and is presented in a realistic manner by Alice Eis and Bert French; Tom Foy and his donkey cause laughter in a very funny sketch, The First of April; Wish Wynne, a pleasing, versatile comedienne, is well received; and Grant, Gardner, and Marie Stoddard are clever American entertainers. The Dayton Family score a success in their high-class risley act; and other smart turns are those of the Dancing Gilberts; the Brooklyn Comedy Four, in harmony and comedy; Siems, card and coin manipulator; and the Great Vincent, acrobatic tabe expert. Pictures complete.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Harry Ford, a well-known comedian, is here this week, and scores a big success; G. H. Carlisle and H. M. Wellman, composers, do an exceedingly smart vocal and musical act, and are deservedly well received; Maxim and Bobby are exceptionally clever acrobatic droils, and are ably assisted by a well-trained dog; and Andre Cherpillod, the champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, is seen to advantage. Other enjoyable turns are offered by Maudie Ford, dainty comedienne and dancer; Marie Brayman, burlesque artist; Adams and Ward, acrobatic comedians; and the Four Panamas, in acrobatic comedy speciality.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Sylvia Cavalho, supported by Clifford Pembroke and company, is here this week in The Fortune of War, and scores a big success; another excellent item is a dramatic episode, The Ace of Hearts, excellently presented by James Willard and company; Luna Love, a clever comedienne and dancer, meets with a good reception; Regan and Ryan make a big hit with a smart medley and as comedy entertainers and dancers; Webb and Branston charm, as usual, with their fine singing; Patty Yoie is a comedienne with plenty of go and a neat dancer; Molly Moore, comedienne, sings nicely; and the Unites are seen to advantage in an original acrobatic comedy act. Macbeth is exceedingly well presented on the Bioscope.

KING'S, LOXOSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Patrons here are much amused by Fred Karno's company, in the popular burlesque, Skating; Atlas and Vulcana, the society athletes, provide another notable and effective turn; and good items are added by Renz Brothers, comedy acrobats and ladder performers; Ida Dorrie, a charming comedienne; Manson and West, in comic duologue; Bonair and Tess, in their Japanese act; Phillips and Bristow, smart dancers; the Three Favourites, in harmony and burlesque; and Tom Franks, ventriloquist.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley.—A capital programme is offered here this week, including the names of the Three Sisters Sprightly, in their smart vocal speciality. Other enjoyable turns are those of Mlle. de Louvois; Ada Fawn, popular comedienne; Harry Kirk, comedian; Six Manchester Lads, Archie Glen, the Martons, the Luscilas, and La Belle Duchess. Up-to-date pictures complete.

MANSFIELD. — GRAND.— Managing-Director, Capt. C. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Clayton.—This week Miss Lena Stanton presents her pantomime company in Sinbad. Though entering the last week of the run this pantomime shows no sign of wear, the show going with a swing which delighted the huge crowd assembled in the theatre on Monday night last. Miss Gladys May is a dashing Sinbad, Miss Kitty Russell a pleasing Princess; Miss Lily Ernie a handsome Captain Selim; Mr. Will Payne is a good Old Man of the Sea, Mr. Arthur Carlton a funny Shipwreckeros, Messrs. J. Bana and H. O'Byan, Biz Bad and Quis Bad, are a pair of clever dancers; Mr. Dan Lyall introduces some funny business in the part of Tinbad; and Mr. A. Sawyer is a dame of merit. In a number of clever specialities the Marbiesque Trio in a series of living statuary pictures are excellent.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. F. Weathersby.—A specially-selected West End company opened here on Saturday, and played during the following week, in the three-act comedy The Best People. Mr. Percy Rogers was exceedingly good as Lord Emsworth, and Mr. James Hunt as the Hon. Gerald Bayle also rendered effective service; Mr. Harold McLinton was an admirable Lord Wynles, and Mr. Guy Fenning played remarkably well as James Spofforth; Miss Irene Lavington made a charming Lady Emsworth; Miss Lilian Hallows was all that could be wished as the Hon. Mrs. Bayle; and Mr. Guy Fenning was well cast for the part of Jackson. The comedy was preceded each evening by The Tooth of Necessity, a dialogue with interruptions, presented by Messrs. Robert Butler, Mr. Cyril Royce, and Miss Edith Cox.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Mayall.—Peggy Pryde, coster comedienne, again heads the holiday programme at this house, and her return visit has been as great a success as her previous appearances at Margate. She has lost none of her attractiveness, and her welcome has been a remarkably cordial one. Carlisle and Walker, up-to-date comedy duo, Joseph Belmont, a clever whistling entertainer, Hazel Ellis, lady conjurer, Dalvers and Wallis, smart cross-talking comedians and vocalists, Ethel Stephanson, vocalist at the piano, and Arthur Boyne, comedian, also contribute to an all-round entertaining programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Frederick Melville's Her Road to Ruin is the Easter attraction, presented by an excellent company. Mr. Charles Dickens does justice to the part of Frank Temple, and Miss Ada Champion plays Jess in a forcible manner; Mr. Kendrew Wilson ably fills the rôle of Tom Wells; Philip Hardy finds an excellent exponent in Mr. Alex. Bradley; Miss Mabel Coleman is good as the girl from Lancashire, and Mr. Harry Talbot as Billy and Miss Grace Emery as Jenny are responsible for the comedy.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Smarte Bros., acrobatic eccentrics; Chas. Wakeman's Singing Gipsies, in a vocal scena; the Three Tivoli Girls, vocalists and dancers; Percy Johnson, comedian; Dacnerell and Rutland, talking comedians; and some excellent Biograph pictures furnish an attractive holiday programme.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. John C. Burnett.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company in The Tyrant is the attraction. The title-rôle as portrayed by Mr. Roy Fortescue is a capital study, ably supported by Mr. Percy Follise as Homodei (the avenger); Mr. Edward E. Louis is well suited to the part of Prince Rudolph; as Tisbe Miss Marie Robson acts with great emotional power, and Miss Jean Scott at Katherine is also successful; Mr. J. P. Lellan is good as Lieut. Taska; the lighter vein is introduced by Mr. Wilson Summers as Victor and Mr. Fred Luard as Nobbo, supported by Miss Katie Lever as Reginetia. Elaborately staged and dressed, the drama is gaining a hearty reception.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy Company is here. A very clever entertainment is contributed to by The Rizarellis, in a daring gymnastic display; Wee Winnie, vocalist and dancer; Elsie Rubina, queen of equipoise; the Three Recars, Chinese acrobats; Miss Trixie Howard, soprano vocalist; Miss Cissie Madcap, speciality dancer; Miss Nellie Hampton, soubrette; James Carr, baritone vocalist; Arthur Walker, comedian; Tom B. Roma, comedian; Sisters Hylton, duettists; Geo. Russell, comedian; Miss Mabel Lewis, illustrated songs; Roy Potter, American trampoline act; &c., the programme being supplemented by bioscope pictures.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Will Hunter.—A fine holiday programme includes the following pictures: Joseph and His Brethren, the Hunchback, A Nobleman's Dog, Before the Mast, and Borrowed Clothes.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper are presenting with gratifying success The Flag Lieutenant. The title-rôle is admirably sustained by Mr. Ralph Roberts; Mr. Mark Paton gives every satisfaction as the Vice-Admiral; the Flag Captain is well delineated by Mr. Claud Murray; as the Admiral's Secretary Mr. Stephen Gatling is successful; as Lady Dugdale Miss Rosalind Ross does well; the part of Lady Hermione Wynne is in the able hands of Miss Rita Johnson; and Miss Una Venning very capably portrays the part of Viola Hood. The play is very nicely staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Imeson.—Under the direction of Mr. Henry R. Smith, Two Little Vagabonds is the holiday attraction at the Royal. The parts of Dick and Wally are cleverly played by Miss Helen Grenville and Miss Ivy Millais respectively; as Marion Thornton Miss Dorothy Milne is seen to advantage; and Barbara Scarth is capably delineated by Miss Mabel Cook. Mr. Frank Beresford does full justice to the character of George Thornton; Mr. Renaud Lockwood does well as Captain Darville; and Mr. Charles L. Ludlow's representation of Bill Mullins leaves little to be desired.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—Bella and Bijou, highly valued favourites on Teesside, are appearing with much success in their society entertainment; Ted and May Hopkins, Welsh humorists, Tom Bassett, in his clever character songs, Wadham and Sterling, sketch entertainers, Cari and Cari, comedians, Miss Bertha Evelyn, contralto vocalist, Jimmy Shields, one-legged comedian and dancer, and the Empire pictures complete a programme which meets with warm approval.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Frank D. Todd.—A capital programme of pictures continues to draw large audiences.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Julian.—Miss Lois Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. Ed. Neville, have been presenting The Sorrows of Satan and Nana during the week with success. Mr. Edward Neville has succeeded in the characters of Lucio and Hector in the respective pieces, and Miss Rosie Neville has played Lady Sybil and Nana with considerable ability; Miss Lois Esmond has looked handsome as Diana Chesney, and the leading people have been supported by an efficient company.

WEST PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Secretary Mr. J. Bastow.—The Gay Gordons, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour, fulfilled a four nights' engagement here with gratifying success. Miss May Yates proved herself a charming Peggy Quainton and Mr. Stafford Dickens a capital Angus Graeme; Mr. Sidney Burt scored immensely as Nervy Nat, and other parts were creditably filled. Herr Wilhelm Morgan's Blue Hungarian band is retained at this pier for the season.

WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead.—Morny Cash tops the holiday bill, making his usual success in characteristic songs; Louis Hardt has an excellent and original scena, In Days of Old, in which he does some marvellous feats of strength; the Bouncing Dillons cause the customary excitement with their clever and funny act; Penstone mystifies everyone with his smart business, assisted by San-Go and Will Rhodes; Diana Hope and company, with Her Good Name; Yorst and York, the military boys; Stevens and Brett, entertainers, and Michel, head to head balancers and tumblers complete the bill. The new pleasure grounds recently constructed in connection with the Winter Gardens were opened last week, and proved a decided success.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Emilius Hill.—Mr. Charles Parker's Æolians are the attraction here, giving a refined entertainment from a high-class répertoire.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—An excellent all-round bill is greatly appreciated by big audiences. E. Salbrig and company in their pantomimical absurdity, A Day Out, earn many laughs; Agnes Molteno charms all with her vocalism in a delightful act, Dolly and a Coach; George Payne's Wanderers prove a popular and leading feature of the show; Mi Narom's clever comedy songs and business are refreshing; Ben E. Verity is a most amusing coon comedian, with a tricky dance; Spiridion juggles well; the Bros. St. Clair amuse greatly with their comedy cycle act; Flo Matley sings good songs; and Leigh-Lauries provide clever cross-patter.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chisholm Taylor.—Miss Hilda Beverley's company is here this week in A Destroyer of Men. As Olga Mishla, Miss Hilda Beverley acts with striking force, Olga's partner in crime being admirably depicted by Mr. Stephen Langton; Karl Mishla is ably represented by Mr. Herbert Pearson, Michael having an apt exponent in Mr. James Jarrett; Mr. Jack Armitage ably doubles the rôles of Fedor Strelitzike and Paul Starevitch; and Miss Mary Brammer does well as Vida. Excellent comedy relief is supplied by Miss Dorothy Hildebrande as Nina Pattacake and Mr. Edward Keith as Coco. The scenery and effects are excellent.

NELSON.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson.—A pleasing and well-varied programme has attracted good houses here. A mystifying turn is supplied by Picitte and Lizette, pantomime illusionists; Paul Corrix performs some clever and daring equilibristic feats; and other contributors are the Brothers Durrant, society acrobats; Aeronauts and company, in a laughable sketch entitled An Airship Elopement; Minnie D'Aubyn, chorus vocalist; Olive and Owen, in their vocal comedietta, The Roadside Tinkers; Lucy Lynd, character comedienne; Will Owen, dame comedian; and the Big Four, comedy quartette.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Horner; Manager, Mr. Wm. Parker.—Miss Florence Baines has paid a welcome return visit here this week in the musical farce, Miss Lancashire, Limited, in which her reception has been most enthusiastic. She is supported by a strong company, including Mr. H. B. Pepp'n as Jno. Higgins, Mr. Sinclair Holden as Harry, and Mr. Henry Lloyd as Grant the butler; Mr. Jos. Burley, an admirable Fox, the family lawyer; and Mr. Payne Fletcher a convincing Jno. Henry Thompson. Bertha Higgins is charmingly played by Miss Mary Collier; Miss Issa Steel being equally successful as Eva Lancashire.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglas.—The new and enlarged Winter Gardens not being quite ready for occupation, the entertainments are this week being given in the beautiful Assembly Rooms, and good business rules, the company being an excellent one, and includes Mr. F. Mozzetto, Miss Reid, and Mr. J. Power, Miss Marjorie Lawrence, Mr. H. Tomlin, Mr. E. T. Parsons, Messrs. Vasey and Ramsey, Tiny Mite, and the Five O. K. Diana.

TOWER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. H. Davy.—The J. W. Turner opera company are here this week and giving every satisfaction. Many new side-shows are added to the entertainments in the grounds.

PIER PAVILION.—A good variety bill is presented here, Miss Minola Hurst and Mr Everhart being the chief attraction. Les Militaires also appear, together with Miss Zeta Grey and company in sketch.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—The Walls of Jericho is presented here by Silvanus Dauncey and St. Browning's company. As Jack Frobisher Mr. Ethelbert Edwards acts with manly strength and virility, and shows undoubted talent, especially in the more dramatic scenes. The Lady Alethea of Miss Gwendoline Hay is a clever character-study, and is deservedly appreciated; whilst Mr. Rutland Barrington as the Marquis of Steventon shows yet again his wonderful versatility. Other important characters are ably portrayed by Mr. Russell Barry as Hankey Bannister, Mr. H. Browning as Harry Dallas, Miss Ethel Trevor Lloyd as Lady Westerby, and Miss Hilda Sims as Lady Lucy Derenham. An entertainment preceding the play is given by Rutland Barrington, in which he unfolds a delightful budget of his most humorous stories in his own inimitable style.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin's company is presenting The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Davies plays with power as Denver; and his wife has a sympathetic representative in Miss Mildred Surrey. Mr. Edward S. George was good in the part of Jakes, the faithful servant; Miss Hilda Bateman, as Cissie Denver, Mr. Sidney Lynn as the Spider, and Mr. Arthur Wright as Coombe, were notable in the excellent cast.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe; Business-Manager, Mr. B. B. Clark.—Sexton Blake, by the Melodrama Production Syndicate, Ltd., is drawing big houses here. The characters are all faithfully portrayed, special mention being due to Mr. Murray Yorke. Mr. Edward McLean, Mr. A. J. Harding, Mr. Paul Barry Lewers, Mr. Stephen Nicolls, Miss Elizabeth Watkins, Miss Betty Seymour, and Miss Sinna St. Clair.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Linney.—This popular place of amusement inaugurated its summer season with animated pictures and variety entertainment on Monday evening. The Royal Welsh Glee Singers, Smith and Johnson, vocalists; Haima, society juggler; and Dan Pedley, comedian, entertain.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. W. Kilgour.—A fine holiday programme is this week headed by Pragson and his piano. This versatile artist was accorded a most flattering reception for his clever and original entertainment. A pleasing turn is The Page and the Maid, a vocal comedy production by the Bensons, who unite skill with grace and good fun. The Three Delaries, in a stimulating and clever trapeze and acrobatic act, are wonderful; whilst Coverdale, comedian and raconteur, receives well-deserved applause; and similar generous appreciation is given "The Courtiers," under the direction of Paul Mill, for their charming and tuneful musical mélange. The popular Irish baritone, Charles Robinson, gave several good songs; and Rhoda Paul, male impersonator, Barrett and Knowles, and Gladys Hooley also contribute.

NORTHAMPTON.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Samson and McNeil, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. P. H Gould; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—The Three Florodoras, in a comedy act, Two's Company, Three's None, give a delightful mixture of song, dance, and frolic; Tod Lowan is quite a favourite here; the Sisters Slater are charming banjoists; Thomas and Taylor present a smart quick-change act, Fun on the Midland; M. Cumming and company in A Tooth for a Bride, and the Breton Troupe in A Sleepless Night are responsible for plenty of knockabout absurdity. Will Willis, comedian, Ryan and Hall, funny acrobats, and the Wyndham Kitty Trio complete an excellent programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The Bank Holiday attraction here is Mr. Charles Gibbons' company, with Alone in London, which has drawn large audiences. The rôle of John Biddlecombe is capitally depicted by Mr. Russell Norrie; Mr. J. Vernon Shaw makes the most of Mr. Burnaby; Mr. Charles Gibbon is good as Walter Burnaby; and Dick Redcliffe has an excellent exponent in Mr. Gerald Jordan; as Nan, Miss Nellie Clyde is admirably suited to the part; Miss Laura O'Neil gives a satisfactory performance of Tom Chickweed; and Little Hetty Hornsby proves an interesting Paul. The comedy parts are skilfully handled by Mr. Frank Caffrey as Charlie Johnson and Miss Cissie Young as Liz Jenkinson.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The leading attraction here is provided by Charles Angus and Florrie Cooper, in their quick change act, The Manager's Office, which creates much enthusiasm; the Kramer Family submit a decidedly clever gymnastic act; Barney Noble, Irish comedian, is as popular as ever; Pattie Burton has many admirers; and other good turns consist of Burn and White, comedy duo; Sisters Indiana, speciality artists; Charlie Hepscot, versatile artist; and the Pictures.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss S. Goldin.—A welcome return visit is paid by Mr. George Munro and company in a varied répertoire of plays, and on Monday they opened to a crowded audience with The Sleigh Bells. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Munro's depiction of Mathias, which was decidedly instinct with dramatic force; Mr. Ernest Digges presented a fine manly embodiment of Christian; Messrs. W. Lawrence and Ivor Barnard as Hans and Father Walter respectively gave realistic portrayals; Miss Janet Hope in the small part of Sozal was really good; Miss Gertrude Littlewood enacted Catherine effectively; and Miss Doris Horrocks as Annette acted with tact and vivacity. The scenery was all that could be desired. The remaining nights of the week were devoted to Merchant of Venice, David Garrick, Romeo and Juliet, and The Corsican Brothers.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company in King of Cadonia is the holiday attraction here. Mr. Bertie Wright is a mirth-provoking Duke of Alasia; Mr. J. Warren Foster, an excellent King Alexis; Mr. Jack Martin does well as General Bonski; Mr. Cameron Carr as Capt. Laski is successful; and Mr. Edward Thirlby is an amusing Bran. Mr. E. Hartley successfully appears as Panex; Miss Alice Moffat makes a charming Princess Marie; Miss Florence Leigarde deserves praise as the Duchess of Alasia; and Miss Mabel Hirst is attractive as Melitza, both in her singing and dancing.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Councillor F. W. Fitt; Musical-Director, Mr. Maitland de Lacy.—A strong and attractive programme is presented this week at the head of which is G. H. Chirgwin, the original white-eyed Kaffir. The Faludy troupe prove exceedingly clever acrobats; Baker and Balfe are much appreciated for their xylophone playing; the Maro trio are expert novelty gymnasts; Kitty Wager sings attractive songs; Fred Poplar is a favourite; and Gus Garrick is very humorous. The Smythsons, in their comedy sketch Cupid's Frolic, receive much approbation; and the Hippo Bio shows some fine films.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Brewster's Millions, presented by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, is proving a great attraction. Mr. Hutchinson himself impersonates Monty Brewster, and his breezy manner and finished acting ensures the success of the comedy; Miss Cicely Stuckey as Peggy is very charming, and her acting commendable, whilst Miss Lillias Earle artistically avails herself of opportunities as Mrs. Dan; Mr. Gordon Ash is an efficient Charlie Harrison, and the study of Colonel Drew presented by Mr. A. Andrews is excellent; Miss Pauline Straus shows great ability in the character of Janice Armstrong, and a very captivating Trixie is found in the person of Miss May Seton; Messrs. Robert Forsyth, Henry Hampson, Aubrey Mather, Frank Elliott, and Otho Hazlewood do well as the "little sons of the rich," and Miss Dorothy Whitaker has a congenial rôle as Barbara Drew, whilst Miss Phyllis Stuckey works well as Miss Boynton; Mr. A. P. Kaye is good as M. Borgie, and Mr. Frank Hill as Rawles deserves mention. The other characters are well represented, and the whole production is one of great merit.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—A powerful holiday attraction is furnished in The Girl Who Went—— as the piece produced by an excellent company under the direction of Mr. Fred Bulmer is entitled. The title-rôle is dramatically and forcefully portrayed by Miss Doris Brookes, whilst as the sister Violet Harvey Miss Lalla Stanhope demonstrates her possession of exceptional histrionic ability; Mr. Louis Lingard does admirably in the rôle of Captain Frank Julian, and Mr. Evan Roland is most effective both in acting and disguise as a Scotland Yard detective; Mr. Austin Mortimer is suited to the part of Rupert Murdock, and all the other characters are in capable hands.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Horace Mills is always diverting, and in the sketch A Disgrace to the Force has ample scope for his talents. Helen Trix pleases no less by her songs than by her delightful manner of singing them; the Lukushimas are a remarkable troupe of Japanese entertainers; Guyer and Valle, in their sketch, Wait for the Finish, are extremely funny, and Harry Herbert makes his hearers roar with laughter; the Prince Milner Trio have an excellent turn, and Gipsy Woolf and six accomplished dancers give a bright interlude; the Sisters Storm dance gracefully; Adey Spencer, the girl from the hatshop, is dainty and clever; Kisbey, the call boy, and the usual Bioscope pictures conclude a first-class programme.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—An oriental musical comedy is the chief attraction, presented by Messrs. Peterman and Rickett's company; Barney Armstrong and Kelly keep the house hightly amused, and Lena Brunton is a very clever comedienne and mimic; Neville and Mors have beautifully blended voices, and the Sisters Macarte are seen to advantage in "The Land of the Lotus"; the Three Pirmans are clever gymnasts, and the Warner Trio are accomplished dancers; Harry Maynard is a humorous comedian, and Abel and Welsh real eccentrics; Pitts and Gould are delightful duo dancers, and the films shows on the Bioscope depict A Child's Faith.

VICTORIA ELECTRIC PALACE.—The Provincial Palaces, Ltd., opened their new hall on March 24 with an excellent exhibition of the Kinemacolour pictures. There was a big attendance, including the Mayor, Corporation, officials, and leading townspeople, all of whom expressed themselves highly delighted with this new form of entertainment. The interior is decorated in a pleasing colouring of blue and white, and seating accommodation is provided for about five hundred visitors. The wide difference between the ordinary coloured bioscope pictures and the animated scenes in natural colours shown in the Kinemacolour films is abundantly manifest, and will undoubtedly be greatly appreciated by that section of the public who delight in this kind of amusement.

OLDHAM.—GRAND THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam Smiley.—After being closed for two weeks, this theatre was reopened for the Easter holidays by Mr. Tom Watts' company, in the ever-popular East Lynne. Miss Laura Hansen plays the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine in a most accomplished manner; Mr. E. Rayson-Cousens makes a dignified Archibald Carlyle; Miss Isabel Singleton as Cornelia and Miss Ida Heron as Barbara Hare are all that could be desired; Miss Alice Moseley and Miss Ethel Ray are very clever as little Willie and Isabel; and Miss Beryl Forbes is a capable Joyce. Mr. Joe Rowland as P.C. Bullock is thoroughly effective; Mr. Jerrold Manville is an amusing Justice Hare; and Mr. Tom Watt is excellent as Lord Mountsevern.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—The Old Folks at Home is presented by Mr. J. A. Campbell's able company. Miss Maud Warburton as Dorothy Robin fairly earns encomiums for her capable and sympathetic acting; Mr. Frank Liston as Lord Kenilworth acts realistically as the dissolute nobleman, and his friend, Patricia Bathurst, is acted forcibly by Miss Kate Froude; Mr. Henry Sainsbury as Christopher Robin and Miss Clara Santley as Martha make a charming old couple; Miss Dora Mason as Bonita Durham and Mr. Geo. Steel as Andrew Ross are both good; Mr. William Speke is clever as Musillo, and Miss Ada Frank as Susan Giles and Mr. Geo. Scully as Ben Jolly cause hearty laughter. Mr. Stanley Fielding also scores as Joe Chaff.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—The holiday programme includes Mr. Laurence Brough and company in a laughable sketch, No. 9. Ian Colquhoun sings with great success; Little Ganty causes much amusement; Pietro and Leon are smart comedy gymnasts; and Madge May is a charming comedienne. The Sisters Belmoir sing and dance acceptably, and the Seymours give an expert acrobatic display; Fred Elton is excellent at the piano. The Palace Pictures conclude.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Good houses have been the rule to witness Her Life in London, as played by Mr. Stanley Carlton and company. Miss Rubie Maude appears with great success as the orphan girl, and holds the sympathy of the house; the Rev. Allen Gordon is played by Mr. Carlton in a sincere and interesting manner. The company is a large and strong one, and the artists in their various parts ably support the two principals.

ROYAL THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The programme includes some fine films, amongst others being The Passion and Death of Christ. Some fine views of Venice are also shown. Capital comedy films are depicted on the screen, and the popular choruses are well received. Mr. Don Cameron contributes to the bill.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. King.—The Childhood of Christ. The Corsican's Romance, Bruges, a good travel picture, Jean Valjean, a capital drama, and some very funny pictures are displayed. Mr. King sings "Ora Pro Nobis" capitally.

OSBORNE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hughes.—Among the Red Indians is a thrilling film, and Her Sister's Sin is a good dramatic picture. Some fine views of Berne are shown, and the comics include Unlucky Bill and The Orderly.

BROWN'S ASSEMBLY.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Brown.—The Passion Play is the principal attraction, and good business has been done.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL (SHAW).—Proprietor, Mr. A. Ashworth.—The Last of the Stuarts and Unexpected Santa Claus are good dramatic pictures; Three-Fingered Kate and The Gold Digger's Son are very interesting; The Dancing Tabloids, Why Jones Could Not Sleep, Sack Race, and The Servant of the Actress are excellent.
